ASSAULTS ON YPRES PROVED VERY COSTLY

British Official Report Says That German Dead Were Strewn Broadcast in the Neighbourhood of the City.

TERRIBLE LOSSES

LONDON, Nov. 23. — Col. E. D. Swinton, the British official eye-witness with the expeditionary forces on the continent, writes:—

"Around Ypres we continually are finding fresh evidence of the slaughter inflicted on the enemy. On the 15th one of the battalions while advancing discovered a German trench manned by 17 corpses, while there were 40 more in a house close by. On the next day a patrol discovered 60 dead in front of our trench and 50 more opposite another. All the farms and cottages to our front are charnel houses.

"The significance of such small numbers lies only in the fact that they represent the killed in a very small area.

"According to prisoners the German attempt to take Ypres proved costly. One stated that there were only 15 survivors out of his platoon, which went into action 50 strong. Another reported that of 250 men who advanced with him, only 19 returned. It is believed that one Bavarian regiment, 3,000 strong, which left Bavaria for the front on Oct. 19, had only 1,200 men left when an attack was made along the Menin-Ypres road on Nov. 14, in which it again suffered severely.

"The plight of some units of new formations is even worse, one regiment of the third reserve corps having six hundred men out of 3,000.

"If the period since the beginning of the war is considered, the numbers are even greater. For instance of the 15th corps, one regiment lost 60 officers and 2,500 men. Another lost 3,000 men. These figures include casualties of every kind — killed, wounded and missing.

"In all four days the weather was bad. Generally fine and frosty in the early morning, it turned to heavy rain as the day were on. Thursday snow started to fall about 1 p.m. and continued until about six o'clock. It fell in large soft flakes, which covered the ground for two inches and melted under foot. The state of the roads, already bad, was rendered worse.

"The condition of the trenches became wretched beyond description. From having to sit or stand in a mixture of straw and liquid mud, the men had to contend with half frozen slush. 'It is an ill wind, however,' and one good point about the wet weather is that it made the ground so soft that the enemy's howitzer shells, sink some depths before they detonate and expend a great part of their energy in an upward direction, throwing the mud about.

"Nevertheless, the wet and cold have added greatly to the hardships of the troops in the trenches and the problem how to enable to keep their feet reasonably dry and warm now is engaging serious attention.

"At one place, owing to the kindness of the proprietor, certain works recently were placed at our disposal as a wholesale bath house, lavatory and repair shop. In the works are a number of vats, large enough to contain several men at one time. They serve most excellently for the provisions of hot baths for the men on relief from the trenches.

"While the men are enjoying their bath, their clothes are taken away, their underclothing washed or burned and replaced by a new set. At the same time their uniforms are fumigated, cleaned and repaired and buttons sewed on. The repairs are done by a gang of women who are employed for the purpose. By this installation some 1,500 men are catered to in every way.

"When they come out cleaned, refreshed and reclothed, they are different beings. Not only is this a good thing from the point of view of the happiness and comfort of the individual, but it is a distinct gain in his fighting value, and an asset to the force. Nevertheless, bodily, the men are in good condition. Food in abundance reaches them regularly except in a few cases, such as always occur in the trench warfare."

NAVAL ATTACK NEXT?

Germany Believed To Be Meditating Onslaught on Britain.

LONDON, Nov. 23. — It is understood in Parliamentary circles here that Germany, now being held back in France and Belgium, may be tempted to try a raid on England in the near future. The British military authorities are said to be well-informed as to the locality and the method of the proposed attack. However, it is pointed out that Germany will not risk her command of the Baltic on the chances of a raid on England. If her high seas fleet were disposed of Russia would have the free run of German Baltic ports. It is believed on the other hand that the Germans are extremely confident of the efficiency of their fleet, and that they may be disposed to take great chances to hit England, so deep is their hatred of her.

It is assumed that Germany's object would be to create a panic here and prevent the sending of further British reinforcements to the front. The recent incursion of the German flotilla on the east coast will, it is believed, encourage the Germans to make a dash for England.

TURKS ARE DEFEATED

Battle Clears the Way for Advance of the Russians

PETROGRAD, Nov. 23. — Once again the Russian troops are advancing toward Erzerum, Turkish Armenia. It is reported that a Russian column has defeated the Turkish troops above Juzaveran. The Turks are fleeing, closely pursued by Russian cavalry.

The Turkish cruiser Hamidieh (also spelled Hamadje), in bombarding the town of Tuapse (also called Todpsa), which has 16,000 inhabitants, killed 35 soldiers and one civilian. The Russian forts caused the Hamidieh to retreat. The damage to property was slight.

Tuapse is in southeastern Russia. The Athens correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Co. sends the following:—

"A British destroyer has captured a Turkish sailing vessel on which were two German officers in disguise. They were proceeding to Smyrna.

"An Anglo-French squadron fired on some Turkish torpedo boats in the Dardanelles, but the latter disappeared.

It was officially announced yesterday that the Russian littoral of the Black Sea has been mined, in many places for a distance of 60 miles out from the coast. Ships are absolutely forbidden to sail at night in or out of the Russian ports on the Black Sea, through the mouths of the Rivers Dnieper and Bug, and in the Gulf of Kertch.

Four German Papers Banned.

OTTAWA, Nov. 21.—The Canadian Government has by order-in-council decided to prohibit the entry into Canada of four German newspapers published in New York, The Staats Zeitung, Truth About Germany, Vital Issue, and Vaterland.

May March on Belgrade.

VIENNA, Nov. 18.—It is reported that the German and Austrian armies are ready to resume the offensive. Valjevo and Obrenovac, captured by the Austrians, removing two big obstacles for the march on Belgrade, capital of Servia.

A POETICAL PRECIPITATION

The appended poem is the work of Miss Margaret Smith, 104 Lansdowne street. She is ten years of age and a pupil of the King Edward school. Some will agree that the production is equal, if not better, than some of the inky seizures received from persons of more mature age. Little Miss Smith is in the Part Second book:

The Kaiser and the King.

Kaiser is a wicked man,
And that you all know.
Will his wickedness go away?
Yes, he'll go some day.

Down in the trenches, deep, deep, deep,
Our poor soldiers have to sleep;
Will our King win victory?
Yes, he'll win again.

King of Britain is our King.
Will he be King for ever?
I hope he'll be our King;
Our King for ever.

ATTACKED SHEDS OF ZEPPELINS

British Make a Daring Attempt to Destroy Dirigibles

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Nov. 23.—(Via Berlin, The Hague and London.) — Elaborate precautions which the Germans have taken for safety were responsible for the failure of three British aviators who on Saturday swooped down upon this city with the object of destroying with bombs the Zeppelin balloon works. Anti-aeroplane cannon and machine guns adapted to high angle fire defeated the accomplishment of the daring exploit and succeeded in bringing down one of the hostile machines and putting the other to flight.

The British airmen were first seen above Constance at two o'clock and their presence immediately was announced to the authorities at Friedrichshafen, the anti-balloon cannon and the machine guns which had been placed in readiness immediately opened fire. The Britishers circled above the balloon hall for some time and dropped six bombs, two of which came so near to the building as to cause apprehension among those watching the novel combat. Two other bombs struck houses in the city, damaging them severely and killing a man and wounding a woman.

One of the fliers then made a fearless attempt to cross the hall at a height of only a quarter of a mile. Bullets from the guns mounted on the tops of buildings, however, pierced the aeroplane's gasoline tank, causing the fuel to escape and forcing the pilot to attempt a glide to earth. During the descent of the machine the airman, a lieutenant of the British Royal Naval Air Service named Briggs, threw two or three more bombs at the hangar, but they missed their mark.

The lieutenant, on reaching the ground, tried to defend himself with a revolver, but was captured by the employes of the Zeppelin wharf after receiving a slight wound in the head. The point where the aeroplane was landed was only 300 feet from the Zeppelin hall.

The other aviators disappeared across Lake Constance.

RECRUITING CAMPAIGN IS PROVING FRUITFUL

LONDON, Nov. 23.—The recruiting campaign which is being carried on throughout the British Isles resulted to-day in bringing many men to the colours. Troops with banners flying and bands playing marched to-day through the east end of London to Victoria Park, where speakers addressed the crowds from early morning until late this evening.

About the Belgians

The following is from Collier's, "A Woman at Belgium's Last Stand":

"At least this chronicle has the merit of having been written not only day by day, but almost hour by hour, and that it is free of the exaggerations and glamour that is apt to creep into the backward view. If Antwerp falls, the tragedy of Belgium is complete—and it is an undeserved tragedy. I have mixed with her people for many long weeks now, and I can honestly say that, though often foolish, the Belgians are extraordinarily free from vice. It has been rather a habit of mind, since the revelations of the Congo, to call the Belgians a cruel race. Nothing could be further from the truth. There is always a bad element in the people of any nation which can be made use of, and this was the case in the Congo. But, though I have, it is true, seen a Belgian Red Cross man commit the idiocy of having a pistol strapped to his belt, I have proved them most humane, and that in face of great provocation, in their treatment of the German wounded. Just as I believe the worst accounts of German atrocities to be often much exaggerated, so I am convinced that there have been no atrocities at all on the part of the Belgians. They are often foolish; brave enough but panicky at the wrong moments—as when the Germans were within a few kilometers of Ghent, and several thousand Gardes Civiques threw their uniforms in the canal and were running about in pink and blue undershirts. Also it is certain that if the enemy had made a peaceably possessable entry into the town, there would have been some hot-headed Belgian, with false ideas of courage, who would have shot at them. The Belgian organization leaves much to be desired, and when the enemy is almost at the gate you will see the soldiers on leave quite drunk by the afternoon. But the Belgian soldier is one of the bravest creatures and one of the gayest on earth. He sticks a rose in his rifle and goes off to certain death with a song on his lips and a prayer in his soul and a devotion to his country in his heart, which has never been surpassed.

Pretty Good Proof.

"How's that dude getting along who wanted to be a cowboy? Is he a fighter?"

"Must be a fighter. He still wears his monocle."

RETREAT IS PREDICTED

ARTILLERY ACTIVE

LONDON, Nov. 23. — In Flanders and in France the armies seem to be enjoying a long deserved rest, for the only remaining evidence that the belligerents are facing each other is an occasional bombardment with heavy guns. Infantry attacks have temporarily ceased.

"The day has been very quiet. There has been nothing of interest to report, except that in the Woevre district, in the Eparges, five German attacks were executed in mass in the space of two hours and were stopped abruptly by the fire of our artillery."

The following official communication was issued Saturday night:—

"To-day there was a violent bombardment of Ypres, during which the market place and the town hall were destroyed. In the region of Soissons and Vailly there was rather strong cannonading.

The following official communication was given out in Paris Sunday afternoon:

"The day of the 21st was calm upon the whole front. In Belgium, as in the region from Arras to the Oise, there were only intermittent cannonades. Our artillery evidenced in general more activity than that of the enemy. Our batteries succeeded in demolishing many lines of German trenches. The enemy worked elsewhere to construct new ones in the rear.

"The day was equally calm upon the Aisne, in the Champagne, as well as in the Argonne, upon the heights of the Meuse and in the Vosges."

A correspondent on the Franco-Belgian frontier, writing to The Sunday Observer says:

"The terrific fighting of the last five weeks north of Lille, though it has cost the allies thousands of lives, has, in the aggregate result, been all in their favor, for the Germans' situation is incomparably worse now in West Flanders than it was the week after they had entered Ostend.

"The flood, the bitter frost, which gripe the hearts and mortally assails the lungs of the German infantry in their flimsy trenches, and the unconquerable courage of the British, Belgians and French alike, have so demoralised the Kaiser's hordes that when the general retirement, which is now inevitable, begins, it will rapidly develop into a rout.

"The Germans dare not retreat. They know the allies are eager to pursue; that they have in the background a whole army corps waiting, fresh and chafing for the signal to advance.

"The allies' generalship has been superb. The Germans have wasted themselves in fruitless efforts to achieve their aim of occupying Calais, till winter has descended on them, and the elements have become the chief force in the great alliance. The Germans are concentrated at Keyem, and large reinforcements are reported advancing along the road from Thierout to Beerst, presumably to attack through Dixmude. Their attacks on the allies' line from Dixmude to Nieuport have slackened off in the last few days."

LOOKING FOR PEACE?

Mysterious German Circulars Are Appearing In Holland.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 23.—Although the German press asserts that Germany can bring 6,000,000 reservists into the field without making use of men under 18 and over 45 years of age, there are several indications that the Teuton officials are anxious for peace.

Semi-official attempts are being made to negotiate, first with one, and then with another, of the allied forces. German sections of peace societies are sending circulars to their representatives in Holland and other neutral states to initiate a peace movement.

The International Wohlfahrt Verein (Welfare Union) of Berlin has made a direct appeal to influential Dutch newspapers by means of a printed circular.

In military and Governmental circles in Holland, it is considered likely that Germany itself soon will open peace negotiations. The Government, it is said, sees itself seriously menaced by invasion, and should the enemy march into Germany, people would feel that they have been misled by the Government as to the trend of the war.

Grand Trunk Was Censured

LINDSAY, Nov. 23.—The inquest into the death of the late W. F. Succee, brakeman on the Grand Trunk, who was killed in an accident near the Aberdeen elevator at Tiffin on Wednesday of last week, was held at Midland on Friday.

After hearing considerable evidence the jury brought in a verdict of accidental death, and censured the Grand Trunk Railway Company for not having a light on the switch.

Among the Lindsay railway men in attendance who gave evidence were: Conductor J. McElroy, Engineers H. Wilson and Jas. Wood, Firemen R. J. Leahy and Alex. Constable, and Brakeman Martin.

It is understood that the deceased young man carried two insurance policies, amounting to some $1,800.

Diptheria Has Spread to Otonabee

Two Public Schools Are Closed Down—Quarantine Regulations Being Enforced

The diphtheria epidemic is not alone confined to the city. It has spread to Otonabee township, with the result that two schools are closed. The disease produces the same effect as that which characterizes its appearance in Peterborough. In the majority of cases the attack is very slight, but sufficient to justify the enforcement of quarantine regulations.

Last week Sanitary Inspector Spence inspected a number of dairy farms throughout the township. In nearly all cases, general conditions were found to be satisfactory and in conformation with the regulations enacted by the Board of Health. In one or two instances, suggestions were made respecting changes that will eventually result in a better quality of milk.

PRESENTATION TO VOLUNTEERS

The ushers in the south aisle of the George Street Methodist Church and the Reception Committee presented Mr. Angus McIntosh, junior, with a very neat and handy wrist watch and forwarded it to him at Kingston today.

"KNEADS BREAD WITH HER GLOVES ON"

"It is reported that one of the fastidious newly-married ladies of this town kneads bread with her gloves on. This incident may be somewhat peculiar, but there are others and I am one of them.

"The editor of this paper needs bread with his shoes on; needs bread with his pants on, and unless some delinquent subscribers pony up before long he will need bread without a damthing on—and North Dakota is no Garden of Eden in the winter time."

One Thousand Dollars Subscribed

To Patriotic Fund by Mr. J. J. Lundy

The sum of one thousand dollars has been turned into the Patriotic Fund by Mr. J. J. Lundy. It is understood that Mr. Lundy's original intention was to make anonymous monthly payments of fifty dollars until the sum of one thousand dollars was reached. With this object in view, Mr. Lundy made two payments of fifty dollars each. However, since so much criticism has been directed at those who are conceded to be well to do, Mr. Lundy decided it would be in the best interests of all concerned, if the full amount was paid at once. Accordingly, a cheque for nine hundred dollars was despatched to City Treasurer Adams and was duly credited to the Patriotic Fund.

The sum of thirty dollars has been contributed by Mr. W. J. Reed. This brings the total up to $6,870.70.

PETERBORO' BOYS ARE WITH THE 48TH SCOTTIES

West Down South Camp,
Salisbury Plains, England.
Saturday, Nov. 7, 1914.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I would like you to make room in your paper to publish the address of a few of the Peterborough boys on the First Canadian Contingent now in England. It appears that the people in Peterborough are under the impression that the boys from our town are all with the 57th Regiment at Bustard Camp, but such is not the case. We have a number of them with the 48th Highlanders at the above address. We have the following men in D Company, 15th; Corp. H. Staunton, Pte. Wm. McKnight, and your humble servant, Pte. J. B. Miller. I would be very pleased if you would just make these addresses known to the people. Our mail has been delayed several days on account of going to Bustard Camp. Hoping you will comply with my request, I will close. Thanking you in advance.—I am, yours truly.

PTE. J. B. MILLER.

THE WEATHER

This morning the mercury in the thermometer was again down to the low point, this time standing at three degrees above zero.

A COMPLAINT AGAINST THE SEWAGE PLANT

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—The action of our City Council in attempting to place the sewage disposal plant—a nuisance of the first magnitude—right in the heart of an old and established playground of the working men and their families, calls for the severest condemnation. Every labour organization in the city should take immediate steps to prevent this injustice, and should call to account those loud-mouthed champions (?) of labour in the council who have been the most relentless in their pursuit of this scheme. Our wealthier citizens can go further afield for their pleasures but the ordinary citizen who has neither the time or money has to seek his recreation nearer home. This accounts for the establishment of sixty-five motor-boat and one of the leading steamboat wharves, the Belmont Club's summer home, numerous boat houses and beautiful residences and Riverview Park, on the banks of the river in the immediate vicinity of this proposed nuisance. Imagine the attention these subservient time-servers would devote to the interests of Stoney Lake or Chemong cottagers were they in danger of losing their summer homes! Some class to them—but lo, the poor working man, anything is good enough for him. The water-front in the heart of the city was disposed of for a song, and now the last convenient stretch of river is to be rendered unfit for use by the erection of a sewage distillery.

Yours truly,

Mechanic.

HEALTHFUL LIVING WAS THE SUBJECT

The discourse delivered by Elder Johnston last evening in Woodmen Hall was one of special interest to the community as a whole as well as the goodly number who were present to hear. The subject was entitled "Healthful living and how it is obtained." Taking for his text 3 John 2, where it says "Beloved I wish above all things that thou mayest prosper and be in health ever as thy soul prospereth," he remarked that this text revealed the great fact that the Lord was just as anxious about our physical well-being as He is concerning our spirituality. The reason for this he declared is self-evident considering the close relation of the body to the mind, the latter one of which is the avenue to the heart the seat of our affections and spiritual life. It will readily be conceded so Mr. Johnston said, that when our physical organism becomes weak and emaciated and worn by the constant violation of physical laws that as a result the mind becomes weak and also unable to perform its proper work. This being true it is evident to all that as a result a person's spirituality would be proportionally lessened. We can, therefore, see the reason for the wish of the Almighty that His people may prosper and be in health.

Mr. Johnston then said that as the Lord was anxious about our physical health, it is natural to expect that He also would determine the very best thing to do for the care of the body. This being true the reason is very plain why the Lord in ancient times laid down certain rules in the matter of diet and personal cleanliness, which if followed out to-day would be a great factor in arresting much disease which is prevalent to-day. He referred to the Jewish race, who were more immune from disease than any other people for the reason that they follow out to the present the laws of Levitius II. concerning clean and unclean diet. Human nature to-day is no exception to that time, and if these laws of hygiene were followed out to-day people all over would be healthy and strong. He referred to the use of swine as an article of diet and showed how that many are contracting disease by the use of that filthy and abominable animal that was never intended to be eaten. He referred to many Scriptures to show how the Bible condemns it among which are Lev. 11:7,8, Isaiah 65:3,4, whre it says it provokes the Lord for people to eat it, and also Isa. 66:17, where the swine and the mouse are placed on the same level. Mr. Johnston further said if that filthy animal were subjected to a microscopic examination people would never touch another bit of hog.

Even the clean animals are to-day becoming unfit; for disease is a common thing to find among these, such as tuberculosis, cancer, etc., and the recent outbreak of disease among the animals in the United States is a proof of this very point. Yes, the time is about ripe, so Mr. Johnston said, when people in order to be healthy and strong will have to discard the use of flesh altogether, and return to the diet intended by God originally, and this is none other than the fruits, nuts and grains.

The elder not only referred to pure diet and personal cleanliness as being of vital importance, but also dwelt considerably on the value of a clean mind and the vital necessity of avoiding the impure in the way of trashy literature, obscene sights frequently revealed in shows and other ways. These defile as well, so the elder declared, and unfit the individual for the stern duties of life. The Lord wants a people who are clean, physically, mentally and spiritually, the latter one of which is obtained by confession of sin and acceptance of Jesus Christ. Mr. Johnston closed with an earnest exhortation to do all the Lord requires, and as a result reap the reward of the faithful.

THE DATE HAS BEEN FIXED

Wednesday, December 2nd, has been set apart as the date upon which the appeals against the assessment, will be heard by His Honour Judge Huycke in the County Court. There are about thirty appeals. This is probably more than the Court will be able to deal with at one sitting. The Court will convene at ten-thirty o'clock.

GOD'S PROMISE TO THE SUFFERING INNOCENTS

Subject of Sermon at Sacred Church Last Night—Rev. Dr. Roche Points Out Some of Good Results of the War—Men Turn to God in Facing Dangers.

MEN RETURN TO GOD

In the vesper sermon at the Church of the Sacred Heart on Sunday, the fifth anniversary of its opening, Rev. Dr. Roche, president of St. Michael's College, Toronto, spoke upon "The Suffering of the Innocent," with particular application to the present war. The sorrows and tribulations of non-combatants in the war-scarred countries, the sufferings of homeless women and children, of the soldiers themselves, the loss of fathers and brothers, that may be brought home to Peterborough families, the entire tangle of consequent afflictions of the war, prompt the question in the minds of men, "Why does God permit all this?" It is a riddle that must have an answer. We know that God is good. Our faith tells us that.. Rev. Dr. Roche returned to his text for the answer, quoting St. Paul to the Romans 8:18, "For I reckon that the sufferings of this time are not worthy to be compared with the glory to come, that shall be revealed in us."

The Work of Man.

The history of the race is one great tragedy. It chronicles sorrows most Sufferings and tribulations have been more common, all these were not brought about by God. It was the Divine intention that man should be perfectly happy. God made an abode for him with all the things his nature longed for. His days were to be passed in peace. But man became discontented. He rebelled against his Creator and by his rebellion brought in all his sorrows and lonliness of heart to be shared even by the last child that would be born. All this followed from sin, and it was the work of man.

What of the Signs?

Does this punishment we see falling upon men indicate that they are sinners? Does prosperity indicate the pleasure of God with the lives of those who are prospering? Using a number of illustrations Rev. Dr. Roche said the intent of the old testament was that God called back the people by sending tribulations upon them. When they were faithful they were prosperous and happy. When they lost faith and departed from God, He visited punishment upon them.

When Christ came upon earth He was born in poverty and like all the poor, he had to suffer the things they necessarily suffer. He had to bear cold, hardships multiplied, want, homelessness. Those days was the legacy He left behind for those worthy to be his disciples; a life of suffering and death in ignoming and cruel agony. The test of His disciples was that they should carry His cross.

Rev. Dr. Roche then referred to the trials and sorrows of the first Christians and of the proof of their love of Christ by the shedding of their blood. For three hundred years at the beginning of the Christian era the followers of Jesus suffered agonies and torments. They endured pain in life and ignolniny in death and they were innocent. They were the very followers of Christ. So it has gone on through the whole new law.

The Wicked Suffer.

We have seen the wicked suffer. We saw God avenge wrongs done Him. We have also seen the innocent suffer. We have seen both the guilty and innocent suffer. There again is the mystery. But St. Paul gave the key when he said, I know the sufferings of this life are not worthy to be compared with the glory to come, which shall be revealed in us.

The vast majority of the armies which face each other are just as innocent as you and I. But while those whose caused the war may not feel any physical pain, may not yet have experienced even mental agony, every wrong shall be righted. Every pain shall have its accompanying recompense in the day of God's final reckoning. How will it be brought about? "Oh! impossible," says the unbeliever, they of little faith. But we know that nothing is impossible with God.

All wrongs shall be righted and pain turned into joy. God will take the sufferers where there is no more sorrow and will wipe the tears from their eyes. Note the tenderness of God for His children. He will give them unending bliss.

What is God's part in all this? In the midst of the sorrows and trials we see the golden thread of God's acts running through it all. Rev. Dr. Roche said that doubtless many of the Catholics who have joined Canadian contingents made their peace with God when they realized the seriousness of the undertaking they had begun. How many might not have made confession and received communion had it not been for that sudden call. In France the churches were thronged at night as well as in the daytime. In Poland and Austria it was the same. All the nations were praying for success, but God will decide the victory. When the contrast is held up between the horrid part of war on the one side and the mercy of Jesus on the other, Dr. Roche said the beneficent results of the war would stand out with the greater prominence.

What about the suffering of the innocents? In the natural order God has placed around us, wounds are gradually covered over and forgotten. A recent newspaper despatch said that a battlefield that had been scarred and blasted in August showed green again when recently visited by the journalist. In this way the children who have been made fatherless will soon forget their sorrow, and so time goes on with its gentle healing the wounds of war will be forgotten except by One. He never forgets. He is God. Dr. Roche said he did not minimize the sorrow that has been brought into millions of homes, the pain and agony that had been suffered. But nature will do her healing work in the course of time.

GOD PERMITTED WAR.

God did not bring this war upon men. He allowed it to come. He allowed the jealousies and passions of men to have their results. Men were proud of their ambitions and of their achievements. They would crush the weaker. Men have brought the present catechism upon themselves. God knows the guilty and will punish them. The innocent He will reward. How could compensation be made for all this suffering if there were no eternity? He has permitted tribulations and sorrows that sinners may become justified and the just more justified.

The sufferings and death of Christ, Rev. Dr. Roche said, provided proof that He has not asked of others to do that which He Himself did. Suffering was the test for His disciples. Prosperity now was looked upon by the world as a sign of God's pleasure. Dr. Roche, in concluding, said that we must all do our share to help relieve those who have felt the distress of war. He again referred to fruits of the conflict by which men are brought back to God. Prayers were touching the heart of Jesus from those who had not known tribulations. When they stand in the presence of danger, absolutely helpless, realizing that death may come at any time, these men perforce turn to God and He hears their prayers. They ask for mercy and He grants it.

May Go On 100 Mile March

KINGSTON, Nov. 23.—It is likely that a route march, similar to that taken by the R.C.H.A. about four years ago, will be taken by the 21st Battalion. The R.C.H.A. took a march of about a hundred miles through the country as far as Hartington in the depths of winter. Four guns were taken. The battalion route march will be taken in the near future if present plans are followed. No official announcement has yet been given as to where the march will be taken, but it will likely be back through the country. Bivouacs will be made at suitable places for rest.

A few days ago the left half battalion took a seven mile hike through the country. The next will probably be to Kingston Mills. This is about thirteen miles. The next will probably be twenty miles and return to camp the same day, the lunch being served to the men at noon. This method will be followed until long tramps are not tiring to the men. Then probably in a month's time the jaunt will be away through the country, staying three or four days on the route. The battalion will bivouac at suitable places at night and travel about thirty miles a day. An A.S.C. would accompany the battalion and provide the necessary supplies. Some of the supplies would be purchased on the road and the remainder taken from the store-house here.

Route marching is very much enjoyed by the men as the mechanical drill on a field has a tendency to become monotonous.

After a week's rifle practising the battalion has improved wonderfully. The men were first put to shooting with miniature (.22 cal.) Ross rifles at targets, three inches in diameter, twenty yards distant. To put the five rounds, fired daily by each man in the battalion, inside of the three-inch circle counts fifteen points. To put the five rounds inside of the two-inch circle counts twenty points. For the first part of the week a complete miss at the target was common. On Friday the average shooting counted twenty points, and less than five per cent. of the men made complete misses. This is speaking well for the training and shooting qualities of the men. To-day the men will be given a try at the service range, using service ammunition. As the men have now the correct method to aim and hold the rifle, the results at the ranges ought to be equally good.

ST. PAUL'S ANNOUNCEMENTS

A debate will be held in St. Paul's Young People's Guild this evening, by the Young Men of Mr. Cowan's Class. The subject of the debate is, "Resolved that the Young Man of To-day has Greater Opportunities for Advancement than the Young Man of 50 or 100 Years Ago." Everybody welcome.

The annual meeting of the Bible Society will be held in St. Paul's Church on Tuesday evening and will be addressed by the Rev. Mr. Hassard of Toronto. He will use a number of stereopticon slides to illustrate his address.

A missionary lecture on Japan will be given on Wednesday evening, at 8 o'clock by the Rev. Mr. Cuthbertson, who has spent some years in Japan as a missionary. The public generally is invited to this lecture. Now that such a deep interest is being taken in Japan because of her help to Britain in the present war, it is hoped that the attendance will be large. An offering for missions will be received.

WAS ONLY A WARNING

Shots Fired at U. S. Cruiser Explained by Turks

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—Turkey has voluntarily explained to the United States Government, through Ambassador Morgenthau, that the shots fired toward the launch of the American cruiser Tennessee, last Monday, were intended merely as the customary warning that the Port of Smyrna was mined and closed to navigation.

Although the explanation is informal, and the United States Government still is waiting a reply to formal representation which Ambassador Morgenthau was instructed to make to the Turkish Foreign Office, it is generally admitted at the White House, State and Navy Departments that all danger of serious complications over the incident had been removed.

Ambassador Morgenthau reported that two members of the Germano-Cabinet, the Ministers of Interior and War, had fully explained the importance to him and high officials here said his message was filed before the instructions sent from Washington to discuss the subject officially with the Grand Vizier could have been received.

IN THE INTERESTS OF BIBLE SOCIETY

Rev. W. E. Hassard, of Toronto, Spoke at George Street Church Last Evening

Last evening the Rev. W. E. Hassard, B.D., of Toronto, and Field Secretary of the Foreign and British Bible Society occupied the pulpit in the George Street Methodist Church.

In opening, Mr. Hassard dwelt on how meagrely the Methodist Churches of Peterborough had been supporting the Bible Society of late. Last year the Methodist Churches of this City gave $13,000 to missions, and of this amount the George Street Church contributed $3,500. In doing so the Churches of the City had laid an obligation amounting to $1,361.90 on the Bible Society, and had themselves, during the last year contributed toward that obligation the sum of $28.20. This year, so far, George Street Church had a nucleus for a contribution, in the shape of $13. It was time, said the speaker, that the Bible Society people began to link together in their minds the Bible Society and the Missionary work.

The work of the missionaries could not be carried on without the assistance of the Bible Society and for every $10 given to missions there should be $1 given to the Bible Society. The Society has never received a grant from the Missionary Board since its inception. Neither was it endowed. It was dependent solely on the contributions of those interested in the work.

Continuing, Mr. Hassard touched on the great work the Bible Society was doing, and how Bibles and Testaments were supplied at cost to those who could afford it, and gratis to those who could not afford it. He showed a copy of a New Testament which sold for 3c and a copy of the Gospel of St. John, which was supplied by the Society at a cost of 1c.

The translation of the Bible was one of the great works of the Bible Society. It was now translated into over six hundred languages and at present there were a thousand men at work translating the Bible into foreign languages.

In conclusion, he displayed a copy of a Khoki Testament which was supplied to every Canadian soldier who left for the front.

The music, both morning and evening, was excellent, the choir acquitting itself to the evident satisfaction of all in the congregation.

WON'T MIX.

Bad Food and Good Health Won't Mix.

The human stomach stands much abuse but it won't return good health if you give it bad food.

"A year ago I became much alarmed about my health for I began to suffer after each meal no matter how little I ate," says a Western woman.

"I lost my appetite and the very thought of food grew distasteful, with the result that I was not nourished and got weak and thin.

"My home cares were very heavy, for beside a large family of my own I have also to look out for an aged mother. There was no one to shoulder my household burdens, and come what might I must bear them, and this thought nearly drove me frantic when I realized that my health was breaking down.

"I read an article in the paper about some one with trouble like mine being helped by Grape-Nuts food and acting on this suggestion I gave Grape-Nuts a trial. The first dish of this delicious food proved that I had struck the right thing.

"My uncomfortable feelings in stomach disappeared as if by magic and in an incredibly short space of time I was again myself. Since then I have gained 18 pounds in weight through a summer of hard work and realize I am a very different woman, all due to the splendid food, Grape-Nuts." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 21.—Liverpool cables were steady, and without news of any vital importance, the home market was practically a repetition of Friday. Opening prices were ⅛c to ⅜c lower, and trading in all futures was very light. A factor which tends to hold the market in the present stagnant state is the inability to secure ocean space. Exporters and traders, however, are not in any way depressed on this score, as when the time comes, a heavy export trade will be transacted. Winnipeg futures closed ⅛c to ¼c lower, oats unchanged to ⅛c lower, and flax unchanged to ¼c lower. Cash demand for all wheat continues good; offerings, however, are still light.

Cash oats were in good demand, certain grades being in keener demand than others, while the opening grades of flax are in good demand, while the lower grades are dull.

Deliveries thru the clearing-houses were: Oats, 3000; flax, 7000.

Inspections Friday were 612 cars as against 1274 last year, and in sight were 700 cars.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, Nov. 21.—Business in all lines of grain over the cable today was dull, there being little or no demand from foreign buyers for supplies, but a fair amount of business has been done in Manitoba spring wheat with exporters on spot during the week, including sales of 50,000 bushels No. 1 northern at $1.23½, 40,000 No. 2 at $1.20, 120,000 No. 3 at $1.16, 40,000 at $1.15, and 75,000 at $1.14½ per bushel c.i.f. bay ports. There has also been an increased demand from local buyers for oats and sales reported during the week included 5000 bushels extra No. 1 feed at 40½c, 5000 at 40c, 27,000 at 37½c, 5000 No. 2 C.W. at 37½c, and 10,000 at 37½c c.i.f. Montreal. In addition to the above there is a better demand for car lots, and on the whole a more active trade is doing. Demand for Argentine corn is fair and sales of car lots were made at 84c to 84½c per bushel ex-store.

There is no change in the market for flour. Butter is quiet and steady. Cheese is firm under a good enquiry and small supplies.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN MARKET.

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 21.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, $1.18½; No. 1 northern, $1.15½ to $1.18½; No. 2 do., $1.12½ to $1.16½; Dec., $1.14½.

Corn—No. 2 yellow, 57c to 63½c.

Oats—No. 3 white, 46¼c to 46¾c.

Flour—Fancy patents, $5.50; first clears, $5; second clears, $4.

Bran—$21.50.

DULUTH GRAIN MARKET.

DULUTH, Nov. 21.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, $1.18½; No. 1 northern, $1.17½; No. 2 do., $1.14½; Dec., $1.15½.

CATTLE MARKETS

THE WORLD OF SPORT

'VARSITY WIN GREAT GAME FROM McGILL PETERBORO' BOYS GOOD

Toronto Students Snatched Victory From McGill in the Last Minute and Captured Intercollegiate Championship —Peterborough Well Represented.

TORONTO, Nov. 23.— Championships have been won under stirring circumstances, but no championship was ever won that had such a kaleidoscopic change in the last five minutes of play as the Intercollegiate final on Saturday at the Stadium. It was no place for those threatened with nerve trouble, as the varied changes in the scoring near the close of the game was enough to drive one to the edge of apoplexy, so terrific was the strain, and the relief, while coming with the blowing of the final whistle was not removed until the 30th Highlanders' band struck up that tune, so familiar to 'Varsity supporters in former years, of "Hurrah! We're Champions Again!"

Here was the situation. With four and a half minutes to play, 'Varsity scored a try that put them in the lead for the first time during the game and made the score 12 to 9. Two minutes later McGill following a fumble by 'Varsity, went over for a try, thus giving them the lead of 14 to 12. With only two minutes to play, the task of winning looked hopeless, but the locals got the ball on McGill's thirty line, following a fumble by Laing, when he was tackled. Gloom here changed to hope and then to joy, as Carr picked it up and when tackled passed to Laddie Cassells, who scooted along the touchline and was downed passed to Laddie Cassells, who soared along the touchline and was downed with one yard to go. Pandemonium broke loose after this bit of work and the crowd surged the field unable to restraint heir feelings, but after a short delay play was resumed, Cassells being shoved over the line for a try, with one minute to play. That sixty seconds was like an hour to the 'Varsity supporters, but the timekeepers were never given a chance to announce the end to the referee, as the minute they walked on the field, hundreds sprang out ahead of them and carried the victorious players of the ground, while a prolonged cheer proclaimed that 'Varsity, after two years, were again champions by the score of 17 to 14.

Such a finish as witnessed by those two teams only happens once in a lifetime. It was more sensational than the Casey Baldwin stunt of years ago, as victory came after everything seemed lost, thus making it a wonderful game to win, and also a mighty tough one to lose. However, all the more credit must be given to the winners, as it was their gameness that finally rewarded them with victory, the locals having to fight an uphill battle all afternoon, as right from the first kick-off they were placed on the defensive, not through any fault of theirs, but through an oversight on the part of the referee. 'Varsity won the toss, and McGill kicked off, the ball going for a touch in goal, which McEvenue allowed, and erred in so doing, as the rules state that the ball must be touched by a player after the kick-off. Referee McEvenue disallowed this point ata half time, when he was shown the rules, but that didnt' get away from the fact that 'Varsity were called upon to scrimmage the ball on their own twenty yard line, thus making it all the harder for the Blue and White.

Ability to secure loose balls was responsible for 'Varsity's victory, as their three tries, resulted either directly or indirectly through their obtaining a loose ball, while McGill scored one of their two tries by obtaining possession of a loose ball twenty yards out. These facts demonstrate that 'Varsity outlucked their opponents, but do not point out that 'Varsity back line stood up under pressure better than the McGill halves, the latter fumbling a kick behind their own line in the last quarter that Gardner pounced upon for a try, while their final try came through Laing losing the ball in running it back.

From a Peterborough standpoint the game was particularly interesting. Peterborough was well represented with Dick Sheehy and Wilfred Stratton on the Varsity line-up, and Ross Laing playing outside wing for McGill. and the Peterborough fans who saw the game had every reason to feel proud of the three boys. Stratton's work at quarter was clean cut and brilliant. His passing was sharp and accurate, and not a heave went wild. Sheehy, in spite of a sore wrist, did fine work, both in the backfield and at outside wing, where he played during the second half. Ross Laing, who learned his Rugby with the local Collegiate, showed speed and splendid tackling ability, and was always on the ball. Coach Shaughnessy thinks a lot of this boy.

EVERTON ROLLS UP A BIG SCORE AGAINST SUNDERLAND

Celtic Gave Ayr United a Severe Setback--Dog Days for Queen's Park---Will Have to Fight Hard to Escape Relegation---Soccer Games in the Old Country.

So far it has not yet been stated that the Football Association will act in accordance with the suggestion thrown out by the Under-Secretary of War and abandon professional soccer, and give the thousands of players an opportunity to shoulder a rifle for the country's good. But if there are any who doubt the intensity of the interest in the game, even with all the war fervour abroad, they would feel surprised at the extent of the crowds which on Saturday paid to witness the sport throughout the Old Country. Certainly the aggregate was not so large as it would have been had there not been enforced idleness to touch the pockets of the more humble supporters of the game, but it was sufficiently large to warrant the clubs continuing in along present lines.

Only two of the scheduled games were not proceeded with for some reason or another, one in particular, that between Manchester City and Aston Villa at Hyde Road. Strong as they are on their "ain midden heit" at Newcastle, the "Geordies" could not stem the victorious rush of the lads from Oldham. Sheffield Wednesday, who were reckoned to have a soft mark in West Bromwich, got quite a shock at The Hawthorns, and were glad to share the points. The great surprise of the division was the rout of Sunderland at "Toffeeland," where the Everton piled on the agony that accompanies a six-goal defeat. Huddersfield at the expense of Woolwich Arsenal nailed their colours more securely to the top of the Second League pole, while Reading, who are running neckand neck with Brighton Hove for the Southern League championship, made Gillingham look a poor lot. On paper, however, Millwall have the pull over the present leaders.

Hearts behaved against Partick Thistle just as Tynecastle supporters wished, but Celtic, who are now assailing in earnest the Maroon's position on the league, gave Ayr United a severe setback. These are sad days for Queens' Park. Now well in the "wooden spoon" position, the club will have to fight hard to escape relegation. If they succumb in the struggle, sympathy from sportsmen will be genuine, for everywhere there is a kindly feeling toward the amateurs.

ARGOS AND TIGERS PLAY TIE GAME

Score Was Nine All and Play-off Was Impossible on Account of the Darkness

MALLET'S GREAT WORK

HAMILTON, Nov. 21.—The Argonauts and the Tigers played one another to a standstill here to-day. When the score was 9 to 9 the final whistle blew, and as darkness had fallen over the Mountain, Referee Phillips decided that there could be no overtime, so that there will have to be another argument to settle which of these two teams has the best right to the championship of the Big Four. The Jungle Terrors have to thank Mallett that they are still in the running, as it was his booting that saved the day for them. He put the ball right to the dead-line six times, thus making half a dozen points that the Argos could not possibly prevent or offset, and a couple of these husk boots were from halfway. No other booting of the season has given the Double Blue halves so much trouble. Mallett's kicking was so low and so hard that even O'Connor found it difficult to judge, and the ball bounced so high that it the men were too close when it hit, the pig-skin was liable to get away from them. The Argo backs were not fumbling, but those elusive punts got by them too often, losing them much valuable ground. Even against the wind Mallett could get great distance with his booting, and in the first quarter he got it past the Argo backs on several occasions. Gonter, on the other hand, booted splendidly with the wind, but the gusty breeze played tricks with his high ones when he had to face it. When the story of the game is all summed up the Tigers should sing a Rugby man's doxology for that little group of deadlines made for them by Billy Mallett.

Only One Touch.

In every other department of the game, outside of the booting, the Argonauts had just a little on their opponents. The running of Everard Smith was the sensation of the day. He showed that it was not merely against wing lines like those of Ottawa and Montreal that he could get away for big gains. Whenever he was able to sidestep the first couple of tackles the Tigers had their troubles bringing him down. In the third quarter he accepted a catch at his own 40 yard line, and dodged his way through the whole Tiger team for one of the most magnificent runs of the season, being pulled down only five yards out. It required three bucks to send an Argo man over for the only touch scored during the afternoon by either team, but O'Connor managed to squeeze through, though he failed to convert it. Smith made a number of other good runs, but this one was the most valuable of the day.

Although the Argos only got one touch they came much closer than the Tigers to several others. Indeed they were deprived of one because Phillips blew his whistle too soon. McKelvey dropped the ball when tackled, and Simpson picked it up and romped across without anyone to stop him. Unfortunately it happened to be one of those occasions when the referee called the play completed before it rally was so. This lucky break saved the situation for the Tigers. A little later Knight nearly got a fumbled ball behind the line, but Thomson saved. So it was that two touches just slipped out of the Argos' grasp. In the first quarter they had the ball fifteen yards out from the Tiger line twice, but could not get over.

The nearest that the Tigers came to a touch was in the second quarter. Gonter, who had the most difficulty handling Mallett's punts, let the ball get away from him into touch five yards out. Then it was that the superiority of the Argonaut line became apparent. The Tigers' human battering ram could not make the few precious feet that separated them from the big score. They were held and lost the ball.

Railway Have Sent Large Number of Employees to War

Among those associated with the Grand Trunk Railway System, who have enlisted for active service, is Mr. R. F. Morkill, Signal Engineer, who was gazetted a Lieutenant. Word has been received at Montreal that Mr. Morkill is already engaged in important work in Europe for the Imperial authorities.

Another of the Grand Trunk's officers, who has enlisted, it has been announced, is Mr. F. G. English, General Agent, Freight Department, with headquarters in London, England, while the Railway has supplied a large number of men to both the First and Second Canadian contingents.

According to information received at Grand Trunk Headquarters in Montreal yesterday, practically ten per cent. of all railway employees in England, Ireland and Scotland have joined the colours. Partial returns available show that 54,276 men had left the British Railway to enter the army or navy, but of a total of 643,135 employees on all roads.

On the London and North Western alone 9,400 men have left, while the Great Western is second, with 7,600; the Midland, third, with 6,700, and the North Eastern next with 5,000.

From the employees of British railways special corps of railway troops have been recruited to assist in restoring and maintaining rail communications in France with the allied armies at the front. These consist of maintenance men, linemen, telegraphers and other similar, while two companies consist of engine drivers, signal men, guards and switchmen, to assist a body of fifteen thousand French railway men already organized for railway work of a military nature.

BRITISH COLUMBIA PORTS BENEFIT BY OPENING OF PANAMA CANAL.

That the Canadian Railways operating in Western Canada intend to make use of the new water route placed at their disposal by the completion of the Panama Canal, is the opinion of Mr. R. F. Mansfield, the United States Consul at Vancouver, B. C.

An official report filed at Washington refers to the great harbour, and dock improvements that are being carried out at Prince Rupert. He states that many millions of dollars have already been expended there, or the expenditure provided for, so that the harbour facilities may be as ample and satisfactory as any on the Pacific Coast. Prince Rupert is the western terminal of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, tapping the new and rich country of the north.

British Columbia, Mr. Mansfield thinks, will make considerable use of the Canal for its European trade. It will be able to ship, without breaking cargoes, to any port of the world, and the almost untouched natural resources of British Columbia, it is said, will find a market abroad for many years to come.

VICTIMS OF WRECK

Sixteen Bodies Have Been Recovered on Superior Shore

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Nov. 21.—Sixteen bodies have now been recovered from the wrecked vessels Curtis, Marvin and Peterson, near Grand Marais, Lake Superior. Nine of these have been identified. They are: Captain J. H. Jennings, master of the Curtis, Detroit; Glenn Campbell, chief engineer on the Curtis, Chicago; Edward Anderson, deck hand, Norway; Segrud Helverson, wheelsman, Philadelphia; Henry Kitchner, deckhand, Detroit; Charles Nelson, deck hand, North Tonawanda, N.Y.; Albert Johnson, deck hand Cleveland; Julius W. Noll, deck hand, Alden, North Dakota.

The bodies of the two women still remain unidentified. One of them is that of an American; the other appears to be a foreigner.

On one of the women was found a watch bearing the monogram "R. B.," but there was nothing further to identify her. To add to the mystery there is a card in the local marine postoffice addressed to Miss Margaret Pearce, in care of barge Petersen.

According to C. L. Hall, representative of the Edward Hines Lumber Co here, most of the bodies recovered were from the steam barge Curtis. She carried a crew of fourteen, and had two women as cooks. Their bodies were taken to Soney yesterday, where they will be prepared for shipment. All the bodies were frozen stiff, and the work of preparing them for burial will be slow.

It is now believed that the Peterson and the Curtis were the first to succumb to the storm. Wreckage from these boats is piled up twenty feet high along the shore, and amongst this were found the bodies of more than half of these recovered.

Revival Meetings

The revival meetings opened yesterday at Bethany Tabernacle with a good attendance at both services. Rev. S. J. Long, the Toronto evangelist, took for his text at the morning service, Eph., 4: 13 and spoke at length on the subject of 'Unity or the Power of United Effort.' He gave a number of Scripture illustrations, showing the power of unity. He said the strongest example of the power of unity was that of the unity of the Trinity. He also stated that another strong example of the power of unity was to be found in the early Disciples who were one in their purpose of prayer and service. He said there were always great results which followed their united effort, and that God's people of to-day might see the same results if united in the same spirit in prayer and service.

At the evening service Mr. Long spoke from the subject of "Dying Without Mercy," and said that there were four steps leading up to that stage— Wilfully refusing to embrace the Gospel, putting the person of Christ beneath us, esteeming the blood of Christ as unholy and unworthy of our approach and ignoring the work of the Holy Spirit.

At the close of his remarks Mr. Long gave an invitation to gather at the front for prayer. Several came forward, who thus avowed their decision to accept Christ as their Saviour.

Service to-night begins promptly at 8 o'clock with a rousing song service. Come and bring your friends.

THANKS TO THE CONTRIBUTORS

A meeting of the directors of the Peterborough Countly Ploughmen's Association was held Saturday afternoon in the office of Farm and Dairy to settle all matters connected with the recent ploughing match. The reports presented showed that the directors had every reason to feel gratified with the great success of the match, the first held in many years in the county. There is every indication that next year's contest will be even more largely attended and that many more competitors will take part

It was decided to express through the press the appreciation of the directors and members and all interested in the match to those who so liberally contributed to the funds of the match, thus ensuring its success. Those who contributed were as follows: J. H. Burnham, M.P., a silver cup for perpetual competition, valued at $80.00 and a bronze medal; R. R. Hall, ex-M.P., $20.00; Farm and Dairy, $20.00; G. A. Gillespie, M.L.A., $16.00; E. A. Peck, ex-M.P., $16.00; G. N. Gordon, $15.00; The Peter Hamilton Co., $12.00; R. J. Soden, Esq., $8.00; R. W. Travers, Esq., of the Bank of Montreal, $5.00 Vincent Eastwood, Esq., of the Royal Bank, $5.00; W. H. Dunaford, Esq., of the Bank of Commerce, $5.00; C. H. Pennefather, Esq., of the Union Bank, $2.00; D. Drummond, Esq., $2.00. In addition to the foregoing Mr. F. D. Kerr, contributed $15.00 as a prize, but as this prize was not won, Mr. Kerr turned over $5.00 of it for special purposes. In the same way J. A. Sexsmith, M.P. contributed $12.00 and as it was not won Mr. Sexsmith also turned over $5.60 of it for special purposes. Great credit is due these contributors for their liberality which made the match possible.

The directors desire also to express their thanks to Mr. Sandy Matchett of Stewarts Hall for his kindness in furnishing two fields for the match and for his hospitality to those attending the match, as well as to the judges, Messrs. Wm. Rutherford and Geo. Berry, Sr., of South Monaghan, and Fred Waldon, of Lakefield, whose decisions gave complete satisfaction.

Dr. C. H. Amys is Now Located a 377 Stewart Street

Dr. C. H. Amys has removed from 370 Charlotte Street to his new residence at 377 Stewart stret. The latter is a model of completeness. It is well located and in style, corresponds to the old colonial type of architecture. The house is two storeys high and is of solid white brick construction. In equipment and convenience it is the last word. It includes everything from the winter garage, in the basement, to the vacuum connections distributed liberally throughout the house. The latter are used in connection with the vacuum cleaner that has been installed. A first-class laundry in the basement, and well-appointed surgery are among the features of Dr. Amy's new residence.

The work represents local labour. Mr. Thos. Haultain was the contractor.

TOO PRACTICAL TO BE IGNORED

The women of Canada are not only endorsing but actively backing up, the movement to buy Made-in-Canada goods. Why? Not because women are more patriotic than men—though sometimes they seem to be. It is because in the actual business in life when it comes to buying for the family and the household women are more practical than men. It is all right to be patriotic, as long as at the same time we are practical.

Buying gods made in this country by Canadian labour is a patriotic and common sense business. Buying gods made in Canada without the handicap of a duty is a practical matter of better value for the same money. Women are the natural warders of the household treasury. Some men doubt this and take it for granted that women are naturally spenders. So they are. But the wisest women in this country are those who succeed in making a little money go a long way. Money spent for goods made in Canada looks like a wise policy to the average sensible woman, because she knows that the same amount of money spent for such goods gets better value or more goods; because the foreign-made article must tax the consumer the amount of the duty before he can begin to compete in value with the Canadian product. And the women of Canada are too wise to give away thirty per cent. of a bonus on the cost of the goods. The Buy-Made-in-Canada movement is too much of a money-saver to be ignored by the practical women of Canada. 1d-127-1w48

HOME WILL BE OPENED DEC. 1

The home for poverty-stricken, but deserving men, to be conducted this winter, will be opened about the first of next month. Adjutant McElhiney is at present hard at work completing arrangements and it is thought that a deserving and effective work will be carried on throughout the winter. The object of establishing the home is to prevent the downfall of men who find themselves at the end of their resources and out of work, without any home. A good-sized pile of wood will be kept in the yard of the home, at the corner of Aylmer and Simcoe streets, and the residents of the home will be given work chopping or sawing the wod.

If any local people are desirous of helping to establish this home, bed clothes, old furniture, old beds and stoves will make very acceptable and very useful donations. Boots and shoes, furniture, magazines, papers, books, rags and rubbers will also constitute very necessary articles for the upkeep of the home when once established.

SUCCESS OF RUSSIANS

In Big Battle Before Warsaw is Fast Materializing and Big Victory is in Sight

TZAR SPREADS TIDINGS

LONDON, Nov. 24—A despatch to the Morning Post from Petrograd, dated Monday, says:

"Emperor Nicholas, visiting the wounded in Tsarskoe-Selo this afternoon, told the men that news had been received of a Russian success between the Warthe and Vistula Rivers, where two entire German regiments were taken prisoners.

"It is reported that the Emperor was in an extremely cheerful mood. From this it is presumed that the turning point really has been reached in the battle, and, though no official announcement of this victory has yet been made, it is generally believed the news the Emperor had was better than he thought necessary to convey to the wounded soldiers.

"It is also reported unofficially here that the Russians are already bombarding Cracow, which is in flames."

Official Report.

Petrograd, Nov. 23—The following statement from the Russian General Staff was issued to-night:

"The fighting between the Vistula and the Warthe Rivers continues. It still maintains the character of extreme stubbornness at the north of Lodz. Throughout the entire day of November 23 we repulsed everywhere impetuous German attacks. We discovered towards Valiova new German forces with which it was intended to turn our left wing."

"On the front of Chenstochowa-Cracow there is no essential change in the situation. In the fighting of November 21 we captured more than 5,000 Austrians."

German Submarine Rammed and Sunk

By British Destroyer Off the Coast of Scotland—German Crew Rescued When White Flag Was Raised After "Sub" Returned to the Surface.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—The Secretary of the Admiralty announces that the German submarine boat U-18, which was reported off the north coast of Scotland this morning, was rammed by a British patrolling vessel and foundered.

The patrolling ship rammed the submarine at 12.20 o'clock this afternoon. The U-18 was not seen again until 1.20, when she appeared on the surface flying a white flag. Shortly after this she foundered just as the British destroyer Garry came alongside. The destroyer rescued three officers and twenty-three of the submarine's crew, only one being drowned.

The submarine boat U-18 of the German navy was built in 1912. She had a cruising radius of 2,000 miles and a speed of fourteen knots above water and eight knots submerged.

Destroyer in Collision.

A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from Copenhagen says the Danish steamer Anglodane collided last night in the Ore Sund with the German torpedo-boat destroyer S-124, which foundered.

Another Copenhagen despatch says: The collision occurred in the Baltic Sea outside Falsterbo, Sweden. Two German torpedo boats went to the assistance of the destroyer as she was about to sink, and a majority of the crew was taken aboard them. Three of the men were rescued by the Anglodane, but one of these, the chief engineer, died a half-hour later.

The destroyer was towed by one of the torpedo boats to the Swedish coast, where she will be disarmed. The injured boat carried no lights. The Anglodane sustained no damage in the collision.

The German torpedo-boat destroyer S-124 was built in 1903. She was of 6,600 horse power and had a speed of 28 knots. She carried a crew of about sixty men.

REVERSE FOR BRITISH IN EAST AFRICA

Outnumbered by Germans They Lost Heavily in Offensive Operations

LONDON, Nov. 23.— The Official Press Bureau to-night published the following report by the Marquis of Crewe, Secretary of State for India, relative to operations in East Africa:

"In East Africa it appears from the latest information that, as an important German railway terminus was reported weakly held, a force was sent from British East Africa to seize it. On the evening of November 2 one and one-half battalions landed within two miles of the place and became heavily engaged just outside the town. But as the enemy were in much superior strength this force was compelled to fall back and await reinforcements.

"At 11 a.m. on November 4 the attack was renewed. When within 300 yards of the position, the troops engaged came under a very heavy fire on their left flank. In spite of heavy casualties, the 101st Grenadiers actually entered the town and crossed bayonets with the enemy. The North anchashire Regiment and the Cashmir Rifles on the right pushed on in support under a very heavy fire, and also reached the town. They found themselves opposed by tiers of fire from the houses, and were eventually compelled to fall back to cover 500 yards from the enemy's position.

"The losses were so heavy and the position so strong that it was considered useless to renew the attack, and the forces re-embarked to return to its base to prepare for future operations.

"From recent reports just received the total casualties in this [illegible] British officers and men. The wounded are mostly doing well. Many are convalescent."

GERMANS ARE DRIVEN BACK

Forced 25 Miles West of Lodz Where They Had Arrived in Their Invasion of Russian Poland

FLEET SHELLS TOWN

Examiner Special:

PETROGRAD, Nov. 24.—The German forces engaged in a hot battle about Lodz have fallen back twenty-five miles west of that point. An official statement from the War Office reports "favourable news from the front between the Vistula and Warthe rivers, where the Germans have retreated." Other reports declare the Germans who had reached Lodz, are now at Sadeck, 25 miles to the rear of the easternmost point reached by the force which advanced through Poland from Kalicz.

An official statement to-day announces the second bombardment of Libau on the Baltic by the German fleet. "The Germans made a special target of the most populous and open parts of the town," the statement declares. "A great number of peaceable inhabitants, the majority of whom were women and children, were victims of this German barbarism."

Still Another Effort to Make Way to Calais

Germans Sending Reinforcements Through Belgium Toward Allies' Left End of Line

Special Morning Cable.

PARIS, Nov. 24.— While vigorous attacks upon the allied lines are being made along the Aisne and in the Argonne, heavy German reinforcements are moving through Belgium towards the west. It is expected here that another attempt of the forces of the Kaiser to hack their way through the British and French lines is about to be made. There is, as yet, nothing to indicate where the blow will fall. Heavy Krupp guns are being rushed toward the front in great numbers. The armies between Nouport and Dixmude are now practically caught under a thin mantle of ice. Great quantities of German supplies, abandoned in the inundated section, are now "frozen in."

BRAVE RESCUES IN A NEW YORK TENEMENT FIRE

Special Cable to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—Two hundred people were driven into the freezing air of the streets, one fireman was injured and five others overcome by smoke in a fire which gutted the cellar and lower floors of a five storey tenement on Forsythe Street early to-day. Thrilling rescues were made by the firemen and policemen. A family of three was saved when Policemen Cohen, Green and Sullivan dared the choking smoke fumes of the stairways in a dash to the third floor.

IRISH SOLDIERS MAKE REDMOND BENEFICIARY

Examiner Special:

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Seven hundred Irish soldiers have made their wills in the little form attached to their prayer books, bequeathing all their possessions to John Redmond, Home Rule champion.

MARNE BATTLE EVENT IN HISTORY OF WORLD

PARIS, Nov. 23—Guglielo Ferrero, the great Italian historian, who is in Paris, in an interview of the Battle of the Marne:

"That day changed something in the world. Europe no longer feared Germany. It was an event whose astounding consequences will result in the history of the world."

THE
Rexall Stores of Canada
Contribute To The Canadian Patriotic Fund

THE Rexall Stores of Canada, 400 of the leading Drug Stores in Canada have unanimously agreed to contribute to the Canadian Patriotic Fund, FIVE PER CENT. of their total purchases of all Rexall Toilet Goods, Rexall Remedies and other merchandise manufactured or sold by the United Drug Company, Limited, Toronto, from October 15th to December 31st, 1914.

This action of the Rexall Drug Stores of Canada has been undertaken co-operatively, because of a co-operative organization, they realize how much more can be done patriotically than individually, and it has been taken for two reasons—to fulfil a business duty in raising a fund for the relief work of the Canadian Patriotic Organization, and a patriotic duty in an endeavour to keep a large staff of Canadian employees busy.

The 400 Rexall Stores of Canada make an appeal to your sympathy and support in their doubly worthy cause for increasing the funds of the Canadian Patriotic Organization and for the support of Canadian workmen because:—

The fund that would be raised on the basis of last year's business can be tremendously increased if every man and woman in Canada will help a little by the simple process of purchasing Rexall Goods at the Rexall Stores.

No need to give space in this announcement to emphasize the high quality of Rexall Toilet and Medicinal goods. Sufficient to say that 7,000 of the leading Drug Stores in Canada, Great Britain and the United States place their personal and collective reputations behind them; that the public in these countries endorse them to the extent of several million dollars worth of purchases a year.

Better goods are not made, and you take no risk in buying, for every Rexall Store will return you your money if any Rexall Product is not entirely satisfactory and do it, too, without the slightest objection.

Ask for it—kindly pass the word along to your friends. It is the collective purchases of all that will make this Rexall Store Fund for the Canadian Patriotic Organization a big one.

The Fund will be collected from each Rexall Store in Canada by the United Drug Company, Limited, Toronto, and will be paid by them direct to the officers of the Canadian Patriotic Organization, and the amount so collected will be published in this paper when paid over.

Rexall Goods are made in Canada and you can procure them in your own town only from

DISSENSIONS AMONG AUSTRO-GERMAN ARMY

LONDON, Nov. 23.—"It is confirmed that serious dissensions have arisen between the Germans and the Austrians," says the Morning Post's Petrograd correspondent.

"A stormy council under the presidency of Emperor William was held at Breslau after the German flight from Poland. After mutual recriminations, Germany demanded that Austria send every available man in defence of East Prussia, arguing that there was no hope of saving the Austrian frontier from the advancing hosts. The Austrians, however, demanded that the Germans make a serious attempt to save Cracow.

"Moreover, this council meeting was preceded by actual fighting between Austrian and German soldiers in the retreat. The fighting, it is said, occurred after a large body of angry Austrians left the Germans and struck off on their own line of retreat, whereupon the Germans sent detachments to bring them back. Both sides fired shots, the Austrians being overpowered. The German explanation later was that they exterminated mutinous troops."

THE FAMILY HISTORY.

A new arrived in a certain town has put up the following sign on his lawn:

"My name is Pilleton Wombat.
This is my first wife.
We get along together pretty well.
My income is $800 per year.
My wife makes her own clothes.
She has never left me.
The piano is nearly paid for."

Some of the neighbours think this man is a plain nut, but others claim that he is a public benefactor, considering all the trouble he has saved the local gossips.

LIFTS BAN AGAINST CANADIAN CATTLE

Quarantine on Dominion Live Stock Removed — Discovers Infected Animals in Queen's County.

The quarantine against live stock from Canada was removed by orders of the Department of Agriculture recently. It was announced that Department officials expected to soon raise the quarantine against cattle shipments from the Northern part of the State of Michigan.

The placing of the quarantine on cattle from Canada, it was stated, was not due to the disease having been found among cattle there, but to prevent the return to the United States of cattle cars in which infected live stock had been shipped.

Three cases of the disease were discovered in Queen's County, N.Y., one in Brooklyn and five in New Jersey to-day.

BRITISH WIN OVER TURKS

Signal Victory Gained at the Head of the Persian Gulf—Port of Jerusalem Occupied

LONDON, Nov. 23 — The Official Press Bureau to-night made public the communication issued by the Marquess of Crewe, Secretary of State for India, dealing with the British military operations at the head of the Persian Gulf:

"The recent operations in the Persian Gulf have been crowned with even greater and more rapid success than was anticipated. After the signal defeat inflicted upon the Turkish forces on November 15 and 17, the latter, abandoning all further resistance here, fled, leaving eight guns and many wounded in our hands. The Vells of Basre and Baghdad accompanied the defeated Turkish forces in their fight up the Tigris River.

"Basra (a river port on the Shat-el-Arab, sixty miles from the Persian Gulf) was occupied on the 21st inst. by our naval and land forces. All the French and British in Basra are reported safe."

An unofficial report received here to-day says the Turks have retired from the Sinai Peninsula as a result of their defeat at El Arish. It is also reported that Jaffa, the port of Jerusalem, has been occupied by British troops.

THE WEATHER

This morning, for the first time this season, the thermometer was below zero. During the night, it had been down to 3 degrees below, but by daybreak the temperature had risen somewhat, and the mercury stood several degrees above. The first zero of last fall was in Dec. 27, that date having a record of 5 degrees below.—W. P.

WANT CANADIAN POTATOES.

French Dealers Would Get Into Touch With Our Exporters.

OTTAWA, Nov. 23.—Canadian potatoes are wanted in France. Hon. Phillipe Roy, Canadian commissioner general in Paris, has informed the department of trade and commerce here that French potato dealers are anxious to get into touch with Canadian exporters. There is a shortage of potatoes in many parts of France.

In order to encourage Canadian exporters the French government has removed both the duty and the storage custom on potatoes.

Gurkhas Paralyze Enemy With Fear

Fury of Attack by Former, With Highlanders, Has Pitiable Effect on the Germans

PARIS, Nov. 23.—It is a tradition of the Indian army that Highlanders and Gurkhas work together. Here is a description of a charge by the Highlanders, which, in spite of the unflinching heroism, might have failed but for the timely intervention of the terrible kukris of Gurkhas. The Highland regiment was sent forward to carry a line of hostile trenches, but their heroic charge was checked by a murderous fire and barbed wire entanglements on which they stumbled. Between the gaps in their ranks slipped the Gurkhas. They insinuated themselves like cats between and under the barbed wire. Their kukris on their left hand disappeared in the enemy's trenches, then arose a terrible medley of cries, the harsh battle cry of the attackers, and the groan or scream of the attacked, as the terrible knife went home. In the tumult of carnage the commands of German officers who sought to rally their men were lost. In the mud and slime of the trenches a terrible struggle, hand-to-hand and body-to-body, was proceeding. The end came quickly. In a mad frenzy of fear the Germans broke and ran, throwing their rifles from them and blundering into their own wire entanglements. Such prisoners as were taken bore in their eyes a nameless terror. For hours after they were brought into the British lines they trembled constantly. There was hardly need to guard them. The terror of that charge deprived them of the power of volition, and almost of the power of motion.

WHAT ONE BELGIAN HAS ACCOMPLISHED

During the Siege of Liege He Killed an Entire Battery of 42 Men

PARIS, Nov. 23.—No Belgian soldier is receiving more acclaim in the French press than Emile Sapin who, at the age of 23, has received the decoration of the Order of Leopold and the Cross of the Legion of Honour. Le Matin confesses it could not believe all the brilliant exploits attributed to this young man, who was a private when war was declared, and who was made a corporal only a month ago, but that it has investigated through enquiries not only of Spin himself, who is now in a Cherbourg hospital, but also of many others, and it cheerfully recognised the following achievements:

First—During the siege of Leige, Sapin was in the fort of Loncin. Climbing a tree and concealed by its leaves, he killed an entire battery of heavy artillery, said to number 42 men. It is claimed that the commanding officer of this battery reached the foot of the tree, revolver in hand, only to fall as the rest had fallen from a bullet sent out of Sapin's rifle.

Second—Two weeks later, he personally captured the flag of a regiment of Hussars, whose colonel he also shot.

Third—Near Louvain, sent out in a company of six other men, Sapin succeeded in capturing 40 soldiers, including one officer.

Just how it has proof of such achievements Le Matin does not say, but it adds that General Lee, of the Belgian army and two Cabinet Ministers have personally gone to Cherbourg to congratulate Sapin, who is not dangerously wounded.

MRS. THOMSON TELLS WOMEN

How She Was Helped During Change of Life by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I am just 52 years of age and during Change of Life I suffered for six years terribly. I tried several doctors but none seemed to give me any relief. Every month the pains were intense in both sides, and made me so weak that I had to go to bed. At last a friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to me and I tried it at once and found much relief. After that I had no pains at all and could do my housework and shopping the same as always. For years I have praised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for what it has done for me, and shall always recommend it as a woman's friend. You are at liberty to use my letter in any way."—Mrs. THOMSON, 640 W. Russell St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Change of Life is one of the most critical periods of a woman's existence. Women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to carry women so successfully through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

THRASHED THE KAISER

Devonshire Man Recalls a Fight of Many Years Ago

How he once had a fight with the Kaiser in the old English style and beat him is related by Mr. Alfred R. Price, a hotel proprietor of Ilfracombe, North Devon, England. The fight took place in August, 1876. The Kaiser, then 19, was on holiday with his tutor and others at Ilfracombe. Mr. Price was then 15. "I was well paid to keep it out of the papers," said Mr. Price. The Prince had had his morning bathe in the sea, and while waiting for the return of his tutor and the others, who had gone for a stroll along the shore, he began to amuse himself by throwing stones at the bathing machines. These belonged to young Price's father, and the boy told the Prince to stop damaging his father's property. "Do you know who I am?" demanded the Prince. "I don't care who you are," replied young Price. The Prince promptly knocked the boy down with a blow on the nose. The Devonshire lad got up and fought furiously for 30 minutes until the German party arrived and separated them. Both were marked, but the Prince had the worst of the fight.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS

A "War of Defence"

A war of defence means something different in Germany from what it means in any other country. It does not mean a war in which you are attacked, either diplomatically or with arms; but a war in which you both pick the quarrel and strike the first blow, because you fear that at some future time some other Power might attack you.—London Times.

Reparation From Germany

You cannot transport cathedrals. And if you could, one cathedral would not replace another. But there are works of art which are movable, and Germany possesses notable collections of them, mostly not by German artists. It has for some time been clear that if the Allies dictate peace, some substantial toll of these must be taken for Belgium; it is now impossible to dispute that France also has claims.—London Chronicle.

Great Britain Won't Forget

India may be assured that Great Britain will never forget. The ambition of British rule in India has always been to secure the well-being of its people. There have been blunders, and there have been misunderstandings, but India has shown us that, with the fine instinct of a highly intelligent and highly civilised race, she appreciates the good intentions and that, with an equally fine chivalry, she forgets the blunders. Now we stand together for all time, two races made as one by loyalty to the same Throne and to the same ideals of progress and honor.—London Express.

American and German "Culture"

No American officer who did what the Germans have done at Antwerp, who did what the Germans have done in the North Sea, who did what the Germans have done in Belgium, could withstand for a single day the avalanche of American criticism. His own people would instantly repudiate him as a barbarian, and no excuse of military advantage over the enemy would be accepted or tolerated.—New York World.

PRISONERS OF WAR

International Code Governs Treatment to be Accorded Them

The lot of a prisoner of war, whether he be a captured foe or a detained reservist, need not be altogether an unhappy one. He must, of course, be maintained properly by the State which detains him, but over and above that a number of chivalrous rules have been made at The Hague for relieving even the anxieties of his position, and by these rules all civilised nations are bound. For example, he may send or receive letters, money orders, or parcels free of all postal charges through all countries. Presents or relief sent to him pass through all countries free of Customs duty and carriage free on all State railways. A captured officer is paid by the capturing country at the rate usual for his rank in his own army.

Every civilized country undertakes to keep a strict record of every prisoner of war and all that happens to him, and to render a full account of him to his own Government after peace is concluded. This duty is in the hands of an information bureau, which every country has to form immediately upon the outbreak of war. This bureau receives and answers all inquiries about the prisoners. It also takes charge of all valuables, letters, etc., found on the field of battle, and endeavors to get them into the hands of those who have a right to them.

Dropping German Names

We learn from the papers that a number of Britishers of German descent or Germans who have just become naturalised are changing their names, dropping their Teutonic patronymic for one typically English.

This is no new thing, for it has frequently happened in the past. Sometimes, as at the present day, it has been done to quieten prejudice, and it has been imposed on a conquered tribe or race.

Thus, a law of Edward IV. enacted that all Irishmen who lived within the Pale—that is, that part of Ireland completely dominated by England—must take an English name, derived from their trade or profession, a place, or a color.

Large numbers of the Flemings who emigrated to England in the days of Henry VI. are also said to have taken English names, but as a rule their names only became anglicised with time, which applies especially to the Huguenots.

An Army's Eyes

When people read that armies are engaging each other at 2,000 yards' distance, they are apt to imagine that the combatants can see each other; but, as a matter of fact, they cannot. At that distance it is impossible to distinguish between a man and a horse, and even at 1,200 yards, especially where there is any dust, it requires the best kind of eyes to tell infantry from cavalry.

At 900 yards the movement becomes clearer, although it is not until they get within 750 yards of each other that the heads of the columns can be made out with anything like certainty.

Infantry can be seen in the sunlight much more easily than cavalry or artillery, because less dust is raised. Besides, infantry is distinguished by the glitter of the muskets. At 2,000 yards, however, everything is unsatisfactory.

An Army Pet

That Tommy Atkins is not by nature bloodthirsty is shown by his great affection for pets. Mr. G. McRoberts, Edinburgh, relates in "Answers" that an officer in the Army Service Corps found a pet rabbit in a deserted farmhouse, and wrote home:

"We are taking it along with us. It travels in one of our cars, and sleeps with us at night. I call him the emergency ration. He is a mixture of white and yellow, and is quite a sporting little chap."

What are Peps?

Peps is the name bestowed upon a new scientific preparation put up into tablets or pastille form, which provides an entirely new and effective treatment for coughs, colds and lung and throat troubles generally.

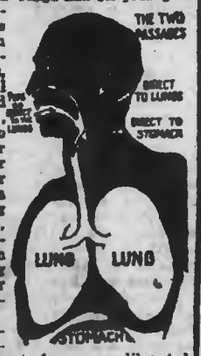
Did it never occur to you as peculiar that when you have a cough or a cold, or any chest trouble, you should apply medicine—not to your lungs, but to your stomach?

Look at it the other way round. Suppose you suffered from some stomach complaint—indigestion or ulceration. How strange you would think it if you were asked to take a medicine which had to be breathed in, and which went—not to your stomach, but to your lungs and breathing passages?

There is no connection between the stomach and the lungs (see diagram below), and when for a cold or a cough or any chest complaint you take some medicine, such as liquid cough mixtures, syrups, lozenges, which go—not to your lungs, but to your stomach—you are wasting time.

Peps—this newest remedy for coughs, colds, and lung troubles—go to the lungs and breathing-tubes, direct. Peps are really pine fumes and certain highly beneficial medicinal extracts specially prepared by a new scientific process and then condensed into tablet form. It is like making a breathable gas solid!

You put a "Pep" on your tongue and let it dissolve. As it does so the healing essences it contains turn into vapor, and you BREATHE them direct to your lungs and air passages!



These healing essences pass down your breathing-tubes, bathing all the inflamed surfaces, which no liquid or solid matter can ever reach, in health-giving pine fumes, and carrying health and healing wherever they penetrate.

These tissue strengthening, pleasant fumes, so liberated from the dissolving Peps are not only healing in their operation, they are antiseptic. They kill the germs of consumption, catarrh, and these many and varied throat and lung troubles so common to-day! Peps rapidly—like the fumes from nature's Pine woods—get direct to the lungs and chest, and give instant relief to colds, tightness, bronchitis, etc. In short, Peps bring pine forest air to your home!

"You have a nasty night cough? Take a Pep before going to bed—your cough will not trouble you! Your lungs are a little weak, and going from the warm house into the cold air outside makes you cough? Just before going out put a Pep in your mouth—there will be no coughing! Your throat feels "stuffed up," your chest feels tight, and your breathing troublesome? Peps will put matters right for you very quickly.

Peps, while gradually turning to vapor as soon as put into the mouth, will retain their goodness indefinitely if kept dry. Each little Peps pastille is packed in an air-tight wrapping, which is easily removed, and they are packed in neat tin pocket boxes. They are not sticky (the minister or public speaker can carry a few loose in the vest pocket); they do not spoil the appetite and ruin the digestion, like cough syrups and mixtures do; and—they DO cure coughs, colds and lung trouble!

Just as the out-door treatment for consumption—the "breathing" treatment—is now admitted to be the only rational treatment, so the "Peps" treatment for colds and lung troubles is the only rational home treatment.

Peps cure catarrh, coughs, bronchitis, sore throat, tightness or aching across the chest, difficulty in breathing, night cough, hoarseness, asthma, laryngitis, smoker's throat, etc. Best for children because free from opium, morphine, or any poison.

All druggists and stores sell Peps at 50c. a box or 3 for $1.25. Should your dealer be out of stock, order direct (post paid) from Peps Co., Dupont St., Toronto, or 52 Princess St., Winnipeg.

FREE TRIAL.—The proprietors wish this great discovery to be widely appreciated, and have decided to offer a free trial packet to all persons who would like to test this unique remedy. Cut out this article, write across it the name of this paper, and mail it to Peps Co., Toronto, or 52 Princess Street, Winnipeg, enclosing 1 cent stamp to pay for return postage. A free trial packet of Peps will be mailed you by return. If you have a friend suffering from a cough, cold, or any throat or lung trouble, hand this on.

CHEERFUL SOLDIERS

Tribute to Britain's Fighting Men by War Correspondent

I have had long talks with many British soldiers in France lately, writes H. Hamilton Fyfe in the London Daily Mail., listened to their stories, mostly confused and complicated, and made harder of comprehension by their inability to cope with the names of French places; heard their adventures and their escapes; their opinions of their officers, their impressions of the battles in which they took part and the result of these talks is to fill me with a great affection for the British soldier. Having made acquaintance with the people of many lands, and having seen several armies in the field, I give it as my considered judgment that for cheerfulness under difficulties, for modesty, for resourcefulness, the British soldier has no equal in the world.

Just imagine yourself landed in a country which you had never seen before, not knowing a word of the language; put into a train for a long railway journey; at the end of your journey thrust into a battle at once. For twenty-four hours you lie, in trenches if you are lucky, on the ground if you are not, with shells falling all about you. Then you take part in a hurried retirement through the darkness.

Early next morning a surprise attack is made while you are washing or beginning your breakfast. Hasty efforts are made to get sections and companies and battalions together. Some succeed, some fail. You are hustled about, ignorant of what has happened, with no idea of what may come next.

The next thing that does happen is that you are wounded or lost. Now you are a wanderer in a strange country among people whose speech you cannot understand, with an enemy to avoid who seems to be everywhere at once.

Don't you think that in such a plight you would be sorry for yourself, depressed, discouraged? Wouldn't you want to blame somebody?

Not so the British soldier. He has no grievance. He makes no complaint. He takes it all as "part of the job." He claims no credit for going through it. Where a German soldier would sit down and weep—I have seen them crying like great babies when they are taken prisoner—the British soldier is roused to watchful ingenuity.

CHILDREN IN WAR

Their Curiosity Sometimes Overcomes Any Feeling of Fear

Those who were in Ladysmith during the siege have said that the children soon got used to the state of affairs, and it has been the same elsewhere.

During the siege of Lucknow the unfortunate children used to get tired of stopping in the stifling rooms, and occasionally as a treat were allowed to play in the least exposed places outside.

On one occasion a swing was demolished by a shell, while bullets would frequently fall close to them, but they soon got used to it.

When Madame Modjeska was a child she and her little brother were in Cracow when it was bombarded by the Austrians. Their mother retired to the cellar, and called to the children to follow, but the small boy cried: "I will not go to the cellar; I want to see."

Madame Modjeska stayed with him, and almost at once a shell carried away part of the house, and the bullets began to fall. Her brother picked them up and ran from room to room, finally pushing her into the corner of the room most exposed.

"Hide in that corner. There will be more bullets," he cried. And there were. So, picking them up he told her to hold out her apron, and dropped them in. Then, looking out of the window, she saw a man shot, which frightened her, and so both ran to the cellar.

THE CAVALRY HORSE

Thoroughbred Type Proved its Value on Battlefields of Europe

Writing to The Farmers' Advocate from London, England, Mr. G. T. Burrows says:

"The excellent work of the British cavalry has earned for our officers and men unstinted praise from all quarters. When the dreaded Uhlans were charged by the English cavalry they received the shock of their lives. In the aggregate, our horses have presented an appearance that has commanded the praise of every nation. And that such should be the case is but a just reward to the valiant efforts that the Board of Agriculture has made these last ten to fifteen years, to "breed up" to standardization horses that would be eminently suited for the work that lay before them, and withstand, for some months at least, the strains and rigors of a European war. The hunter-bred horse has gone forth from England to the continent in thousands. The value of the thoroughbred blood is thus borne home again to us. The type of horse necessary for the cavalry of the line is a deep, short-legged, short-backed, good-barrelled horse of the hunter stamp, with substance and not a little quality, true action, and he must move without brushing the joints. Light, active, well-bred horses, moving truly and well in their paces, well ribbed up, with plenty of bone and short backs, may thus be said to best represent the cavalry type.

"British mounted infantry regiments are to-day mounted on animals of the polo-bred type and upon cobs. The ride-and-drive horse is still with us, and all the motor traction in the world cannot kill him at 'war time.' We have excelled ourselves on this occasion by providing our army with suitable horses. A hundred hunters at a time have been yielded up from our leading hunt establishments, and those are the horses which have made French and Belgian officers stand and stare open-mouthed at their beautiful quality."

A Great Blessing to be Freed of Indigestion

For Years He Suffered After Almost Every Meal—Attributes Complete Cure to Use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

The experience of many people who suffer from indigestion is like that of the writer of this letter. Stomach medicines may bring some relief, but chronic indigestion is almost invariably the result of derangements of the liver, kidneys and bowels, and cannot be actually cured until these organs are set right.

MR. BARRETT.

With the liver sluggish there is constipation, and the food ferments in the bowels instead of being digested. This is the source of pain and suffering, and the cause of such dreaded diseases as appendicitis, peritonitis and kidney disease. It is much better to be on the safe side and prevent such ailments by the timely use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Mr. J. D. S Barrett, Nelson, B.C., and formerly of Twillingate, Nfld., writes:—"For several years I was a great sufferer from indigestion. The least bit of food caused me considerable trouble, and often I could scarcely eat a meal a day. The many remedies I tried proved futile until I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and after using about eight boxes I was completely cured.

"Since that time I have not been troubled with indigestion, which I consider a great blessing. I feel grateful for this cure, and shall gladly answer any inquiries from persons suffering as I did."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, 25c a box, 3 for $1.00, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

FRENCH PRAISE FOR BRITAIN

There can be no fear that the French will underestimate the value of the British troops' support in the present campaign, for their most famous generals in the past have testified to the fighting abilities of Tommy Atkins.

Napoleon once said that the British troops "stood like stone walls," and added: "England is the most constant, the most powerful, the most generous of my enemies." In the Peninsular War Marshal Soult once wrote to Napoleon: "Curse those English! They never know when they are beaten. For I pierced their centre, I turned both flanks, I had them at my mercy—and still they did not run!"

Desaugiad, one of Napoleon's generals, once declared, "The English infantry is the best in the world; it is fortunate there is no more of it." General Foy wrote after Waterloo that "nothing could shake the invincible British squares. One would have been tempted to believe that they had struck roots into the earth like the battalions had not swept majestically forward a few minutes after the going down of the sun and given Wellington the most decisive victory of the age."

The same general once also sighed: "Ah, the English soldier possesses the most precious of all qualities in war calmness in the midst of excitement."

Neighborly Nations

As the war rages on and we find ourselves pinched by it, we can and thank God for good neighbors. The most wonderful thing in North American life is the fact that for four or five thousand miles our frontier is Canada's frontier, and not only is there no fort upon it, but there is no place where anyone in either nation wants a fort. They are people one is glad to have next door, the Canadians. Sometimes a Taft or a Clark is something that makes us blush for him; but the nice thing about these people is, they understand what goose tongue is and pay very little attention to it. A good deal used to be said about annexing Canada, but once in a while a man comes back from there so full of admiration that he wants to annex the United States to Canada instanter; but most of us feel—and we sincerely hope Canada can share the feeling—that good being neighbors is the best thing for both of us.—Collier's Weekly.

Kitchener no Dancer

If there is anything that Lord Kitchener detests it is dancing. He is believed only once to have consented to perform on the ballroom floor, and that was when the late Lord St. Helier, then Sir Francis Jeune, the famous President of the Divorce Division, meeting him at the Athenaeum, persuaded him to come along to a small dance which was given by Lady St. Helier.

Relating the incident, that distinguished lady says: "In spite of his protest that he had never danced before in his life he was actually induced to embark on the Lancers—a hideous a rather serious undertaking, but one which he faced with the courage and determination character-istic of him."

INDIA IS GRATEFUL FOR CHANCE TO FIGHT

British Fairness Appeals to Whole People of Whom Sir Partab Singh is Magnificent Type

Major-General Sir Partab Singh, the great Indian potentate, who went to the front at the head of his troops, may be said to embody the gallantry and loyalty of the people of India to the British Empire. He hopes not to live to see India again, but to die with sword in hand on a European battlefield. This is what he said in a letter to Sir James Dunlop Smith, who was secretary to Lord Minto when the latter was Viceroy of India.

Some years ago a young English lieutenant died of cholera in Sir Partab Singh's palace. He was the son of a friend of the Prince's, and as the body was about to be placed on the gun-carriage Sir Partab went forward to lift it.

He was checked by a couple of British officers, who reminded him that if he were to touch the dead he would, by his religion, lose his caste, and perhaps, despite his wealth, never be able to buy it back. Ignoring their protests, he insisted upon raising the body and placing it on the gun-carriage. The crowd gasped in horror and amazement, and the next morning when Sir Partab entered his hall of justice he found 500 Brahmins waiting to reduce him to the rank of an outcast. Sir Partab laughed at them. "I belong," he said, "to a higher caste than any of you have ever dreamed of, and you can't take it from me—you're welcome to all the rest. I belong to the same caste as the dead son of my friend—the caste of a soldier." Then he turned away, and it is not related that the Brahmins proceeded with their work depriving him of his caste.

Sir James Smith said that while the Indian people have no great love for England as England, they have love for individual Englishmen, and, above all, for the ideal of free institutions and fair dealing which Great Britain represents.

The native rulers of India know that they are fighting as much for India as for the British Isles. Should Britain go down, the Germans would presently seize India, and establish a military rule there. They would rule India for the advantage of Germany, not for the advantage of India. Therefore, the Indian troops and the Indian princes prefer to do their fighting for India in France and in Germany rather than at home.

Moreover, they are fighting for another stake; for their place in the British Empire. When they were refused permission to engage in the South African War there was a bitter feeling throughout India. It was felt that they were not worthy to engage in the "sahib's war." The permission granted them at this time is a sort of emancipation. They know that their status in the Empire will improve as a result of the great demonstration of loyalty and devotion they have given. It is as though the sword of honor had been laid upon the shoulder of a new nation.

FATEFUL KISSES AND WAR

The Gordon Highlanders Met Disaster After Historic Recruiting

In the year 1794 the beautiful, charming and famous Duchess of Gordon founded and raised the Gordon Highlanders, one of the most notable regiments of Scottish Highlanders. The most attractive terms to a new recruit in this gallant regiment were a guinea in gold and a kiss from the lips of the far-famed Duchess.

This seems all very good, yet the Gordon Highlanders paid dearly for the kiss they had received from the charming Duchess of Gordon. They were soon sent to fight the French, and in their first engagement 300 of them fell, killed and wounded.

In the year 1763 a stolen kiss was the means of bringing about a fierce and expensive war. Ferdinand of Bavaria was journeying into a neighboring state. One day during his journey he visited the royal household of a neighbor, and while wandering around in the spacious park that surrounded the palace he espied a beautiful maiden under a wide-spreading tree close at hand. He was so bewitched with her beauty that he implanted a kiss on her fair and lovely cheek.

She was a princess of the royal family, but the Bavarian prince did not know it; neither did he know that she was an affianced bride and that the bridegroom-elect was near by and saw the whole affair. There were hot words and blows. A duel was fought and both principals were almost fatally wounded. Diplomatic relations between the two petty kingdoms were suspended and a long and terrible war ensued.

AN EMPIRE DEFENDER

An Ontario Lad "Mid Clash of Arms and Battle's Terrible Array"

John R. Robinson, writing in the Toronto Telegram of a visit to the Canadian camp at Salisbury Plains, says:

"Only 18, and not big for his age, the boy was well set-up, neat and trim in his dress. He was a genuine son of rural Ontario—his name and rank, Private William Peak, of the 2nd Battalion, Canadian expeditionary force. The heart of a fellow-Canadian warmed at the sight of the boy, and at the sound of his voice in friendly talk as he told how he had come from his father's 250-acre farm near Mitchell, Ontario. He wanted to see his brother. The brother was in the artillery. Private William Peak wanted to go in the artillery, but his youth ruled him out, and he joined the infantry. His brother in the artillery was only 16 years old when he went with his father to the South African war and served as bugler to the end of that struggle. His father was a Scotchman, and had served as a soldier in the Old Country before he first came to Canada. He took his eldest son with him to the Boer war. Now the father could not enlist on account of his age, but his two older sons have joined the expeditionary force, while the youngest boy stayed on the farm.

"The sight of the young Canadian and the sound of his story were the colors in a picture that will never fade from the memory. Private Peak stood among his older comrades amid a confusion of army horses and wagons and soldiers. He was a gallant little figure, and he carried a brave, but perhaps homesick, heart inside his khaki tunic. The boy's path stretches onward to battle, and he is the make of a man who will 'go through with it and fight till he drops.' There is another path, and may that path in God's good time welcome the returning feet of this soldier—the path home to the trout lands and friendly woods and joyous orchards of Ontario. May some summer sunset or winter evening find Private William Peak, aged 18, safely at the end of that happier, brighter way than the way to the battlefield—the way home."

NAPOLEON'S WAR SAYINGS

The sight of a battlefield after the fight is enough to inspire Princes with a love of peace and a horror of war.

It is better to have an open enemy than a doubtful ally. My greatest fault, perhaps, was not having dethroned the King of Prussia when I could have done so easily.

Intelligence has rights before force. Force without intelligence is nothing.

To a father who loses his children victory has no charms. When the heart speaks, glory is itself an illusion.

Tents are unhealthy; it is much better for the soldier to bivouac in the open air, for then he can build a fire and sleep with warm feet. Tents are only necessary for general officers, who are obliged to read and consult their maps.

The fate of war is to be exalted in the morning and low enough at night. There is but one one step from triumph to ruin.

It is in times of difficulty that great men and great nations display all the energy of their character, and become an object of admiration to posterity.

Valor and a love of glory are as an instinct with the French, a sort of sixth sense. How many times in the heat of battles I have stopped to look at my young conscripts throwing themselves into the thick of the fight for the first time, honor and courage coming from their very pores.

Military bravery has nothing in common with civil courage.

Indecision and anarchy in leaders lead to weakness and anarchy in results.

The will of Princes is sometimes foiled; it depends upon events, and awaits their issue.

Sir John French, Reporter

A great reporter is accompanying the English troops in France. He has been present at practically every engagement and he has transmitted reports unequaled for clearness and interest. He received his credentials from no less an authority than the English War Office. What is more remarkable, he is doing this work of reporting in connection with the most exacting labor that can be imposed on mortal man. His main business is commanding an army. When the situation permits he sits down and outlines what has happened with a master hand. The reporter is Sir John French. No one can read his reports to the British War Office without being struck with his weighty lucidity, his calm mastery of the important facts, the total absence of any attempt at "effect," and the remarkably suggestive bits of pertinent description.—Chicago Herald.

MURDEROUS SHRAPNEL

Shells Named After General Who Fought in Peninsular War

There can be no doubt that the artillery is playing a most deadly part in the present conflict. The arms which are principally employed in this branch of the service are the machine guns, which pour a terrifying rain of lead into the opposing forces, and the weapon which hurls the shell known as shrapnel, probably the most destructive arm in light artillery.

Shrapnel receives its name from General H. Shrapnel, who invented the shell during the Peinsular War. This ingenious artillerist conceived the idea of filling a hollow shell with small metallic odds and ends, and providing it with an explosive charge. When the latter was detonated, naturally the contents were scattered in all directions. The shrapnel, however, has undergone considerable improvement in recent years, its deadliness and destructiveness having been accentuated to a remarkable degree. Its design is somewhat varied, for while under certain conditions all requirements are fulfilled by the shell striking the ground and exploding under contact, at others it is necessary to cause the shell to explode while in mid-air and at a predetermined range.

The modern shrapnel shell is a steel cylinder, which is packed with bullets, and carries the explosive charge. The shell is capped with either a percussion or time fuse. The former explodes when it comes into contact with a solid object, and is used extensively against approaching infantry, while the latter, the time fuse, can be set to burst practically at any range, and is essentially useful for attacking entrenched infantry. Well-timed shrapnel is capable of inflicting far greater injuries upon entrenched troops than any other missile, and at the same time is most unnerving.

The murderous effect of shrapnel is enhanced by the fact that not only are the bullets contained in the shell driven with terrific force in the desired direction, but the steel case itself is broken into small pieces by the bursting charge. While the bullets inflict clean, circular injuries, the jagged pieces of metal of the pulverised case tear gaping wounds. At the same time it is capable of working widespread destruction on buildings, because the shell explodes with great force.

New Pomerania, or New Britain, as the name has become once more since the British have taken it, is the largest island of the group, Herbertshoe being its chief city. The Solomon Islands are about 120 miles to the east. Bougainville, one of the largest of them, has hitherto belonged to Germany. The rest are British. These two groups are about 1,200 miles north of Brisbane, the nearest large port in Australia.

PLANNING FOR SCHOOL.

Dresses That School Misses Will Need For Classroom Wear in the Fall.

For the girl who is making her first appearance at college or for the boarding school miss a modish but simple tailored suit is an important item of the wardrobe. She is not likely to be prominent in the social activities of the college or school set until she has an established circle of acquaintances, and her everyday dresses and the best suit will have much to do in placing her in the estimation of her associates. With these first opinions are likely to be based very much on appearances.

Serge is always a safe choice for the tailored suit. The quality should be as fine as circumstances will permit, but the garment should be up to date in every line, for no one is more critical than the girl of this age. Blue is a safe color to choose. Anything fruitish in cut or line should be avoided.

The gown pictured here is of blue serge, with short coat finished below with wide belt with a plaited peplum effect. The skirt has a short double tunic and a loose box plait on the front. The gown is short enough to show neat buttoned boots. The little fabric hat is shaped to shade the face.

WEDGWOOD WARE.

Queen Mary of England's Partiality to It Makes it Again Fashionable.

The English queen is an admirer and collector of old Wedgwood pottery, and at Windsor castle there is a room entirely devoted to this famous ware, some of the finest and rarest examples being displayed.

Wedgwood pottery, the older examples of which are so much sought after, is named after the most famous potter England has ever produced—Josiah Wedgwood, who died in 1795. He produced from designs by Flaxman, the sculptor, white cameo reliefs on a delicate blue ground known and envied by collectors all over the world as Wedgwood ware.

This ware is now very costly and practically beyond the means of the ordinary collector.

Cut off the rinds and soak rashers of bacon in cold milk for an hour. Take them out, dredge well with flour and fry in fat. This is an improvement on the ordinary method of frying bacon.

HELPS FOR THOSE WHO SEW AT HOME.

Home-made clothes are always a problem in the making, often a trial in the wearing, unless the home sewer is an expert. And when the present styles first appeared, the task of the home sewer seemed more hopeless than ever. For what could be more easily spoiled than the long, loose basque and the full circular skirt? Are we not still troubled over memories of the sagging uneven skirt that was the prodject of the home when circular skirts were last in fashion.

As time has gone on, the task of the home sewer this autumn is no more difficult than usual. And in some ways it is easier.

For as fashion has developed, the circular skirt can be avoided. The narrow, straight skirt is easy to handle. And over it can be hung a circular or gathered tunic. The uneven line at the bottom of the tunic is not noticeable as it would be at the bottom of the skirt. Moreover the tunic can be cut in points, front and back, or it can be cut in big scallops, piped with satin, both of which methods of treatment make it easier to hang. For a little sag, of an inch, a scalloped or pointed edge.

The long basque is difficult, in most women's hands. And the long waistline must be produced in some way if the new silhouette is to be effected.

One way to produce it without actually making a long bodice, is to use a wide girdle, fitted in wrinkles from bust to hips on a lining. A pattern for this girdle can be bought, and its making is then comparatively easy. Another way to produce it is with a deep yoke on the skirt, which is not difficult to handle.

There are sold some very smart little velvet jackets that reach to the hips. They are sleeveless, and are supposed to be worn over a satin or lace bodice.

Then there are waistcoats, in velours and in pique and in other fabrics. They are not as much worn in August indications made us think they would be worn, but nevertheless, they are in good style, and they do form a good finish to a home-made frock. So do girdles and these can be bought in dozens of different styles.

And of greater help, there is ready made neckwear. Nobody, nowadays—almost nobody at any rate — makes neckwear. The shops are so full of it, in tempting forms, that every one buys it. And the beauty of it is that it is comparatively inexpensive and can therefore be changed now and again for a newer piece, thus adding the really latest touch of style to your home-made gown.

FRANCE REPOSES FAITH IN HIM

JOFFRE the Silent

By Alexander Baird.

WHEN, at the beginning of the present war, it was announced that supreme command of the French army was in the hands of General Joffre, there were many who asked, "Who is he?"

They had forgotten that three years ago he was appointed Chief of the General Army Staff, which carried with it the supreme command of the army in time of war, the result of the unanimous decision of the French Cabinet, a decision which met with not one word of disapproval throughout France. Only the Monarchists would have preferred General Pau, but on political grounds only, and even General Pau himself declared that the one man in France for the position was General Joffre.

It is a curious fact that all the French generals who have signally distinguished themselves are Southerners. General Joffre was born at Rivesaltes, a little town in the Pyrenees Orientales, famous for its cordials and having the reputation of producing nothing but artists and warriors." Obviously that is not the case. That region can also show natures that are cold, cold and clear. Joffre's great friend, General de Castelnau, is also a meridional, and comes from Cevennes. General Pau was born in Montelimar, and General Gallieni also is from the farthest south of France.

General Joffre's family was founded by a travelling auctioneer about one hundred years ago. This ancestor went from village to town, from town to village in a showman's van loaded with all sorts of goods, which were transported by him as bargains. "Joffre" each and such an article at such and such a price, he would cry from his van in the mayoralty square or market place of burg or village. Beginning at a high figure, he came down gradually. But his Catalonian name proclaimed him as a foreigner, and he adopted the nickname the country folk had given him of "Joffre" —"Le Pere Joffre."

The general in whom so much faith is now reposed very early acquired a desire to become a soldier. It was in this way: As a child he was fond of bathing in a rather deep and impetuous Pyrenean stream. His parents, fearing he would be drowned, locked him up in a second story room at night and kept him under guard in the day time. The boy pined and fretted. He then proceeded to act. He went to the press where his mother stored her home linen, borrowed the strongest and longest sheets he could find, and made with them a ladder whereby he could escape from his bedroom at dawn and have his daily romp and swim. For a time all went well, till one morning the "ladder" gave way and he broke his thigh.

While the limb was in splints young Joffre acquired a taste for study, went to the Lycée and chose the army for his career.

Toward the end of 1869, when he was not yet seventeen, he was fourteenth on the list of those admitted to the École Polytechnique, where the great government engineers and the officers of the artillery and engineering corps are trained.

His whole military career was passed in fortifications or on colonial expeditions. As a young man he labored at the outworks at Paris and Pontarlier. Later he constructed the fortresses at Tonking, organized the defence of the Island of Formosa during the war in China, and built the whole of the huge stronghold of Diego Suarez, in the Island of Madagascar. Later still he went on the Dahomey expedition to Africa. On his return finally to France, he was professor at the École de Guerre, and filled other important positions; but it was not till 1905 that he obtained the epaulettes of a brigadier general.

Though he became later Chief of the General Staff, he was no mere commander in chief, while peace reigned, than the Chief of the General Staff is "War Lord" in Germany. The supreme commander of the French army and navy is the President, who exercises that command, so far as the army is concerned, through the Minister of War. But Joffre soon became dictator. The War Minister is said to have remarked that it had been usual for the criticising authority to say, "I may be wrong, but personally I think it would have been better so and so," and to make mental notes not to employ the said general after his time was up.

General Joffre, however, called for resignations on the spot. Among the retiring officers were one or two men of great energy and devotion to duty. For them it was a hard blow. But General Joffre had been put in office to make the French army as near perfection as it could be brought, and in this, as in other things, no consideration would make him swerve from the line of duty.

He remembered, doubtless, that the German victories in 1866 and 1870 were the logical sequence of their peace manoeuvres. He regarded manoeuvres as a rehearsal of the real thing, and the members of his company who did not know their parts he cast out. There has been none of the comfortable feeling that "it will be all right in the end" since General Joffre took control of the army.

This may seem less than fair to his predecessors, who were strong, hard working men of the highest ability, and in fact created the army which General Joffre has simply tuned up. And it may seem hard, to think that the opportunity of handling that army has come only, their time.

Nevertheless, the army that Wellington was to lead "across the troops of Napoleon: McClellan the army with which Grant crushed the Confederacy. So fate ordains, and will ordain to the end of time.

It is primarily as a man of character and action, fortified by the theory begun and practised in the new doctrines of war that the intellectual leaders have worked out, that Joffre now stands at the head of the French army.

And the world had not to wait long to see the individual quality of his leadership stamped upon a great battle. His picture may not yet be completely painted and signed; but if one were inclined to look for some resemblance between Joffre and some other great leader of history, one would probably choose Grant as his nearest equivalent, except that in technical skill Grant was incomparably above his education, while it is almost impossible for the French General to improve very much upon the French doctrine. It is in type more than in circumstance that the two men seem to resemble each other—quiet, ruminating, both perhaps a little slow to move, certainly never "run away with" by their ideas, absolutely clear as to what duty is and what it is not, powerful "prime movers" and resistless fighters.

Both, too, were domesticated citizens, and this has its importance in the case of Joffre. For no man whose civism was not above reproach would have been, or could have been, entrusted with dictatorial powers by a republic to which three distinct parties of monarchists lay claim. There is a wonderful letter in existence written by Lincoln to one of his army commanders who had been telling the world that "the country needs a dictator." "Only those commanders who gain military success," wrote the great President, "can set up as dictators. Give me success, and I will risk a dictatorship."

And the French republic has shown how it believes in the system to-day.

It has been said that if France had had a Joffre in 1870 the probability is that the Germans would not have won. Like Lord Kitchener, Joffre is an organiser of victory. He does not believe in flashes of genius. He knows that long and careful preparation is necessary. Never for a single moment during the three years that he has been at the head of the army has he forgotten the purpose for which he was appointed—to prepare for the struggle in which France is engaged to-day.

Now sixty-two years of age, General Joffre is a man of medium height, slight, with a massive head, fair hair, and with a thick drooping moustache, and heavy eyebrows nearly concealing the eyes.

His will, the outstanding feature of his character, is that under the blandest, quietest, most unaffected, and even genial manner is the steel determination that can shed, pale like a thin moon its purpose.

"A good head for a watchdog; calm, but always ready to bite," is one of the first descriptions I ever heard of the French Commander in Chief. There is more truth in this than in most epigrams. You have only to see how that calm, slow massive figure flashes into energy, as he refuses a suggestion. He looks like wiping a thread of existence with one decisive movement of his hand. General Joffre is the most determined supporter in France of the policy of attack for a commander. "The only tactics" is what he calls the offensive.

He is a general, too, who has the utmost confidence in his troops. "The French are warriors by temperament," is one of his sayings; and though in the course of his career he has seen the luxuries of life increase and multiply, so accordingly he believes that the young men of to-day are as good soldiers as those he commanded as a boy lieutenant forty-four years ago.

He is known a few. His friend M. Pujade recently referred to him in an article in the Matin as "Joffre the Taciturn." Those who have met him in the corridors of the War Office have noted his heavy pachydermatous tread and his peculiar garb. It was a short jacket and a tall hat. He never wore a uniform in the War Office.

Like his confrères, General Sir John French, he is a "Silent Man." He talks little. He does not even write. Yet, vast as is his capacity for silence, you never feel that he is silent because he has nothing to say. You feel he is silent because he has too much to talk about. And when he speaks what he says is pithy and to the point, the result of quiet reflection, spoken with studied expression, in slow, straightforward sentences. There is no eloquence about what he says, no flummery.

But of course it is the man of action that France has wanted; and she has got him in Joffre.

"That's the man we need," said M. Briand to the President before his appointment to the Chief of Staff.

He leaves nothing to chance. The mobilisation of the French army took place in admirable order. In the same way his plans for the campaign are being executed with the utmost possible precision. In the field, as in his office at the Ministry of War, he is "hard as nails." He gives his orders and expects them to be carried out exactly. If they are not, there is trouble. Affable, kindly and considerate to all under him, he may sympathise with incompetence, but he cannot overlook failure.

If, a few months ago, you had visited him at his quiet home at Auteuil, you would have found him apparently living the life of a peaceful country gentleman, with his wife and two daughters; his principal indoor relaxation bridge, at which he is, as he has said himself, an indifferent player.

Now the blinds are drawn, but passers-by notice a modest little bunch of flowers placed on the doorstep. These flowers are renewed each week. For some time it remained a mystery where these bouquets came from, until it was discovered that the faithful donor was "Pere" Jean Garland, a veteran of 1870, who was wounded three times while serving with the boy lieutenant Joffre, and who works as a linhman at the Auteuil railway station.

Flags of Warring Nations

By Hereward Carrington.

HARDLY had man emerged from a state of barbarism than he felt it necessary to adopt some distinguishing sign or badge to indicate his particular tribe or nation; and this very naturally took the form of flags and banners. From the very earliest times we find traces of these standards, which were guarded with the utmost veneration and usually kept in the temples, save in time of war. From this we have the tradition, now ingrained in us, that the flag of a country is a thing to die for, to preserve; that it is almost sacred, and the "fight for the standard" has been the subject of many a wonderful painting. It will be of interest briefly to indicate the history and meaning of the flags of the various warring nations.

Take, first, the flag of Germany. It must be remembered that prior to the Franco-Prussian War of 1870 the German Empire was little more than a group of scattered States. When they combined into a single empire, however, it is only natural that we should look for traces of all their flags in the resultant standard. And we find such traces.

To be sure, the colors of Prussia—black and white—and the Prussian Eagle, enter very largely into it, but it must be remembered that this country became at that time the head and ruler of all the others. It was by far the largest country, both in area and population. It, naturally, therefore, became predominant. Besides the smaller States, there were also the flags of East and West Prussia to be included. That of West Prussia was black, white, black, three stripes of equal diameter, running the length of the flag; that of East Prussia consisted of two such stripes, the upper black and the lower white. The "jack" of the imperial navy consists of three horizontal stripes, the upper black, the middle white and the lower red. The much prized iron cross (dating back to the end of the twelfth century) is in the centre. This red stripe appears in the final war ensign of the empire, in which the tri-color (black, white, red) appears in the upper quarter, with the iron cross upon it, while the remaining three-quarters are white, with the royal arms in the centre. A black cross divides the whole flag into quarters.

The flag of Austria is a very complex affair. To begin with, the various Austrian provinces have their own flags: Bohemia is red-white; Tyrol is white-red; Dalmatia is blue-yellow; Galicia is blue-red; Croatia is red-white-blue; Istria is yellow-white-blue. Then again, Austria-Hungary being a dual monarchy, both Austria and Hungary must be separately represented and fused—as the flag. Fortunately, this combination was rendered more easy by the fact that the colors of the flags of both countries were already the same. Thus, the Austrian flag was red-white-red, the Hungarian flag was red-white-green. Consequently, effected by dividing [illegible] stripe in two, and leaving half red and the remainder was green. The arms of both countries also appear on the flag. This was decided upon March 6, 1869.

The Imperial standard of the House of Hapsburg is of brilliant yellow, in the centre of which is a large double-headed black eagle. This flag dates from the year 1472, when Ivan the Great married Sophia, a niece of Constantine Palaeologus, and thence assumed the arms of the Greek Empire (the Russians embrace the religion of the Greek Church). On the breast of the eagle is an escutcheon bearing on its red field in silver the figure of St. George slaying the Dragon—the whole being surrounded by the collar of the Order of St. Andrew. On the displayed wings of the eagle are other shields bearing the arms of Kiow, Novgorod, Voldemire, Kasan, &c. The flag of the Tsarina is similar, but smaller. The Russian Union Jack is very similar to that of England, save that the principal cross-bars are blue instead of red. This is the well known Russian war flag. The cross is that of St. Andrew, the patron saint of Russia.

The flag of Servia is the flag of the Russian merchant service reversed; for, whereas that is white-blue-red, the flag of Servia is red-blue-white, arranged in three horizontal stripes running across the flag. The royal standard is similar, save that the royal arms are placed in the centre of the blue stripe.

The well known tri-color of France is made up of three stripes—blue, white and red—running not the length but the width of the flag. It dates from the era of the French Revolution and came into existence in 1789. It has been the national flag since, with but slight variations. In 1794 the tri-color was also made the jack of the French navy.

The Union Jack of Great Britain—the flag known to all—is composed of the three crosses of St. George, St. Patrick and St. Andrew. That of the first was a broad red cross, dividing the white flag into four white squares; the white cross of St. Andrew, on a blue background, ran from corner to corner diagonally, while the red cross of St. Patrick ran in the same directions. If the Union Jack be examined it will be found to be composed of these three crosses, as stated. Besides this, Great Britain has, of course, the royal standard and innumerable other flags—army, navy, merchant, &c. The flag was first unfurled in 1801, on the union, in that year, of Great Britain (England, Scotland, Wales) and Ireland.

The flag of Belgium is composed of a tri-color—black, yellow and red—running up and down—that is, the width and not the length of the flag. The royal standard has the arms placed in the centre of the yellow strip. This was adopted as the national flag in 1831, being originally the colors of the Duchy of Brabant.

From 1477 until 1568 Belgium belonged to Austria, but on the latter date it fell into the hands of Spain. In 1725 and for some years following it was held by France, and in 1815 was handed over to the Prince of Orange, but in 1830 the Belgians rose against the Hollanders and established their independence. The flag which is now flown was then adopted.

Japan, Nippon—the Land of the Rising Sun—has adopted the rising sun as its flag. Japan claims to possess a written history of over than twenty-five hundred years; its authentic portion dates about the year 660 B.C., when the present hereditary succession of rulers commenced. It was only in 1860, however, that the country was open to foreigners. The national emblem the sun is used on the flag also. It is placed in the middle of the flag, [illegible] a golden representation on a red background in the [illegible] of the Emperor.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

How She Saved the Bank

A Financial Story of the 1907 Panic

By WILLARD BLAKEMAN

There are different ways of furthering one's getting on in the world. Shortsighted persons can see only one way, which is acting on the adage, "Every fellow for himself and the devil take the hindmost." Nevertheless men have made fortunes by helping others. The difference between this class and the other is that one acts with a view to bettering his condition, while the other acts through kindness of heart.

When I was a young man I obtained a position in a bank and by attending faithfully to business rose to be cashier. I was economical, so far as my own personal expenses were concerned, but I don't think I was mean. I would never lend small sums to my young men companions, but when any one really needed assistance would give it outright.

That I had good judgment in making investments is proved by the fact that my savings grew rapidly. When I was twenty-seven years I married Molly Erskine, aged twenty. A year after our marriage word came in from a western town that there was only one bank in the place and room for more. After talking the matter over with my wife I decided to start a bank there. I got some of the stockholders of the institution with which I was connected interested in the project and with my own capital in due time opened my doors for deposits.

I found that the man already established, John Redfield, had antagonized certain persons by declining to give them all the discounts they desired, and, there being no other banker in the town, they had taken steps to have one establish himself there. These persons welcomed me, opened accounts with me and averred that if I would do a liberal business and not be scared at trifles I would soon do all the business of the town.

I saw at once that Redfield was not pleased at the appearance of a rival and took secret means to discredit me. He kept the best and safest accounts while the weakest came to me. But by adhering rigidly to fixed principles of banking and acting on the supposition that there was business enough for both of us I got my share of the new deposits, which were increasing, and occasionally one of Redfield's customers would fall to me. But, as I had maintained, there was business enough for both, and at the end of five years Redfield had more than held his own, while I had obtained a solid footing.

Bankers, like sea captains, must expect storms. I managed my affairs with this in view; but, as in the case of a sailor, much depends upon the fidelity with which he can get in sail, so the banker's safety depends upon his ability to get in his loans. If the captain keeps his sails furled he will make no headway, and if the banker keeps his money in his vaults he will make no money. When the panic of 1907 came on I was in as good, if not better, condition than the average banker to meet the storm.

It looked at one time during that panic as if the financial structure of the United States was about to collapse. I confess I was in great fear that it would carry me down with it and bury me under its ruins. Every day more money was withdrawn from circulation and locked up. I got in all the loans I could and sold at a great sacrifice all my private property. This fund I turned into gold, took it to my home and concealed it under a board in the floor. I proposed to keep it to enable me to pass a crisis.

The financial barometer—the New York stock market—continued to fall, and money grew proportionately scarce. One morning I heard that a run had been started on Redfield's bank, and as the day wore on the line before the paying teller's window increased. There was nothing like a run on my bank, but during the day the amount drawn was three times the usual average.

The next day the line leading to the paying teller's window of Redfield's bank was increased, and at noon Redfield came to my bank and told me that he must either have help or close his doors. He asked for it on the ground that if he went under the panic would extend to me and I would be carried down with him.

I told him that I did not think so. That there would be a run on my bank I was willing to admit, but my intelligent depositors would not draw their money, and I could pay all the rest.

"Then," he said, "I am ruined. I am too old to begin again, especially with a debt hanging over my head. If I had $20,000 or $30,000 to tide me over the rest of the day I could pull through, for tomorrow I am promised payment on a note of $30,000 I have made."

It was then 12 o'clock. I told Redfield that I would consider the matter of helping him and let him know by 2, if not earlier. He went back to the hungry crowd before his bank, and I calling an auto cab, went home. There I found my wife and told her that I was called upon to save Redfield, with the strong probability of going under myself later. If I gave him the gold I had in reserve he would pull through. But my trouble was still to come, and, without the funds I had sacrificed my property to provide I knew I could not meet a run.

My wife thought a long while before replying. When she did she said:

"Give it to him. He is an old man and to break down would kill him. I have little doubt that in saving him you will go under. But we are comparatively young and can begin again."

"Remember," I said, "beginning again is a hard thing to do."

"So it is, but when I or another must perish I prefer to give way to the other."

Without replying, I took up the board concealing my treasure and was about to put the gold in a satchel when my wife stopped me.

"Go back to the bank," she said, "and let me attend to this. You are needed there, and I can convey this gold to Mr. Redfield."

There were the shining gold pieces that I had accumulated slowly and by constant work and that I was going to send to another on the eve of needing them myself to save me from ruin.

"'Charity begins at home,'" I said to Molly. "I fear we are going to do something we will regret."

"That adage has a good deal of truth in it," she replied, "but I have never come across any adage that will cover every case. I prefer the one 'Cast your bread upon the waters.'"

"Very well, sweetheart; if we go under through saving another you will not chide me with having done so and I shall have a stout helpmeet with whom to begin anew."

I left my wife to attend to the matter in her own way and returned to my own immediate duties.

A few minutes before 2 o'clock Molly came to my bank.

"Well," she said, "I've taken the gold to Mr. Redfield. I chose a coarse bag that had held potatoes to carry it in, and the bulk looked very small. It occurred to me that I would be seen delivering it at the bank and if I could make the crowd believe there was more of the gold it would induce confidence. I emptied the coal scuttle standing beside the range into the bottom of the bag and put the gold on top."

"All of it?"

"Every dollar."

"Go on."

"When I got the coal and the gold in the bag and had tied a string around the top I cut a slit in the bag near the gold, over which I held my hand. Then I called a cab, got in with the treasure and drove to the Henderson bank. When I reached it I sent in for some one to come out and carry it inside. The crowd watched the clerk take the bag from me, and as I handed it to him I took my hand away from the slit I had cut in it, and out rolled half a dozen gold pieces.

"The crowd set up a shout, and, hurrying the clerk into the bank, I picked up the pieces on the pavement—that is, all I could find. I think I must have lost something like five half eagles, or $25."

"An investment worth $25,000!" I exclaimed.

"As I went into the bank to take a receipt for the funds there was another about, and I noticed a number of persons leave the line."

I threw my arms about Molly's neck and kissed her.

There was a call at the telephone. It was Redfield.

"That wife of yours," he said, "far more than the gold she brought has saved me. We have paid a million depositors whose deposits would aggregate $30,000 leave the line. The gold wouldn't have been enough. It was the coal that did it!"

I told Molly that I had had some very large amounts drawn during the day and if there was as much cash called for on the morrow I would surely go under.

The next morning I was horrified at seeing a line of unintelligent depositors before my bank waiting for the doors to open. I thought I could stand the run for that day, and I did, but the next as early as 11 o'clock our funds had been so reduced that I knew we could not keep paying till the closing hour.

The morning journals had given an account of my wife's arrival at Redfield's bank with a bag of gold and of the effect it had produced. This helped me a good deal, but it seemed that every depositor I had in the lower walks of life was in line. It was half past 2, and our pile had been reduced to $200. Despite the delays practiced by the receiving teller to gain time I knew it would not hold out for the remaining half hour.

At twenty-nine minutes to 3 Molly drove up to the bank with a sack and called for some one to carry it into the bank. I rushed out, seized it and ran with it into the bank amid the plaudits of the crowd. When I got it into my private office and opened it, hoping that Molly had effected a loan, I was shocked to see nothing but nut coal.

But her ruse was effective. Some of those in the line, having deposits which for their class were quite large, on seeing her carry in a bag, supposing that she was repeating her act of the day before, left the line, leaving those near the window whose accounts were very small. When the clock struck 3 and the window was closed there was but $12 in the bank.

But meanwhile Redfield had got in his loan and the next morning returned sufficient of what I had sent him to carry me through. As soon as all danger had passed he had the gratitude to tell the story of how he had been saved, and, while Molly became a heroine, I profited in emoluments.

Of all the acts of my life this pleases me most.

AUSTRIANS DEFEATED.

LONDON, Nov. 23. — The Times' special correspondent at Krakajevatz says: "After being permitted to advance into Servia unchecked, save by sundry rearguard actions, the Austrians yesterday mare a determined attempt to break through the Servian line near Lazarevatz. A sharp engagement developed and resulted in the retirement of the Austrians.

"On the same day the enemy executed a movement which probably was undertaken with the object of turning the Servian left flank. Proceeding down the road from Valievo towards Kecleritch, they met the Servian column and were routed. There are no developments on the rest of the front. Austrian movements are considerably handicapped by the weather, for snow is steadily falling.

Gale on Adriatic.

ROME, Nov. 23.—The Adriatic Sea for the last few days has been swept by a violent gale, causing many Austrian mines to go adrift. The Austrian naval attache informed the Italian Government that Austria had ordered out topedo boats to destroy the mines, despite the rough sea. His explanation was not satisfactory to the Italian officials, who blame Austria for not having anchored the mines, and therefore being responsible for the threatened disaster to shipping and the fishing trade.

Black Hand Fire In New York.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23. — Eight persons are dead, two others are so badly burned that they may die, and seven more, including two fire captains, were injured as the results of a fire of suspicious origin, which early yesterday virtually destroyed a five-storey brick tenement house on East 29th street in this city.

As a result of disclosures made to the police by a tenant, who had been receiving black hand letters for the past year, and upon whom a demand for $1,000 was made last Friday, under threat of bodily harm, detectives to-day are seeking men known to them as black hand leaders, whom they suspect of responsibility for the fire. Panic which seized the tenants when they were aroused by rescuers caused the loss of life, the police say, as the building was amply equipped with fire escapes. All the dead were Italians.

Killed by Sepoy.

LONDON, Nov. 23—The Times has a special despatch from Bombay stating that Major M. R. Anderson was assassinated by a fanatical Sepoy while he was superintending the embarkation of rations on Friday evening last.

SOUL SURVIVES DEATH.

Lodge Says Communication Beyond Grave Is Possible.

LONDON, Nov. 23. — Sir Oliver Lodge, president of the Society for Psychical Research, in a lecture yesterday in Browning Hall, Walworth, made a striking declaration of his spiritual faith, expressing his absolute conviction in the future existence, and stating that he has conversed with friends who had passed away.

"I say this," said Sir Oliver, "on definite scientific grounds. I say it because I know that certain friends of mine still exist, because I have talked to them. Communication is possible, but one must obey the laws to find out the conditions. I do not say it is easy, but I say it is possible."

Sir Oliver said that once people realized that consciousness was something outside the mechanism it made use of, they realized the survival of existence was the simplest thing. It was unreasonable that the soul should pass out of existence when the body was destroyed; people were not limited to the few years they live on earth, and they certainly continued to exist.

FRENCH HURL ARROWS FROM AEROPLANES

VERVINAY, France, Oct. 17 (by courier via Rotterdam to New York). —German soldiers here at Vervinay, the little French village almost lost in a sea of mud, are holding as rare and choice souvenirs, steel darts or arrows, dropped from aeroplanes by military fliers of the enemy.

They are steel, about the length of a lead pencil, but a trifle thicker. The upper part of the "arrow" has a twisted groove, running about two-thirds its length, which causes the weapon to rotate as it falls.

"The darts on occasion have been annoying, but not very dangerous because of the difficulty in hitting anything from a great height," a captain of the general staff said. A non-commissioned officer, however, telling of one of his men being struck by an "arrow," said: "It struck him just back of the left shoulder, and came out just above the hip."

Dropped from a height of 4,000 to 6,000 feet, officers say the steel darts attain a terrible velocity.

"Recently a French flier threw a number of darts on one of our waggon parks," said one officer. "A half-dozen horses were killed or injured so badly they had to be shot. The darts can be quite anoying, but are given no consideration as an aerial weapon of offence. An artillery column or waggon train on the road is a mighty small target from a great height."

A tree which had been struck by a dart was pointed out by the officers. The weapon had penetrated an inch and a half into a hard knot.

A French aerial scout was bombarded by the Germans here to-day. Little clouds showed where the shrapnel was bursting in the air all around the aeroplane, which was at an altitude of probably 6,000 feet. When the gunners began to get the range, every little burst of cloud came nearer the aeroplane, but it escaped.

Vervinay is a field hospital station on the left wing of the German army. The trenches and firing line are on the crest of a hill about five minutes' walk to the westward, but cannot be seen because of the dense woods. A firecracker-like sputter, however, tells what is going on up there. Several wounded have been brought in. A German field battery is slowly pounding away from another hill to the north, while from the south-west comes the deep boom of an Austrian mortar battery throwing eight-inch shells weighing 900 pounds into the French barrier forts beyond the river Meuse at St. Mihiel.

In the vicinity of the village are a number of "dummy" batteries to deceive aerial scouts. They are flour barrels mounted on two waggon wheels and trees cut in eight and ten-foot lengths on old carts as imitation field guns. All are slightly screened by branches from trees. The aerial scout reports these to his batteries, who direct their fire upon the "dummies," and the real guns are able to keep their positions.

Transferring the Crew of the Audacious to Safety.—Is Britain's Super-Dreadnought at the bottom of the sea, or is she undergoing repairs? The picture above was taken from the deck of the rescue ship Olympic, and sent to New York. It shows the Audacious listing badly in the heavy sea, but of course does not prove that she sank. Up to date not a word has come over the cables from England admitting her loss, although, according to the Olympic passengers it took place on October 27th. All attempts to get information on the subject have been unanswered by British correspondents, presumably the British censors have instructions to permit no reference to the matter to go through.

LONDON, SEETHING WITH WAR SPIRIT, IS RULED BY KHAKI

Soldiers and Recruits March Everywhere or Drill in Parks, Squares and Stately Law Courts.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—Two months ago a London newspaper described Britain as "a nation half awake," and contrasted the unruffled aspect of London life with the transformation that war had cast over Paris and Berlin. Since then Britain has become fully awake. This awakening has been more of an inner than a surface change, and only those who know Britain from within can realize how great the change has been.

The most remarkable feature of recent British events has been the entire absence of excitement with which the country has passed from a condition of profound and thoughtless peace to a military status which pervades all the activities of life and seems almost to have brought upon the scene a harder and soberer na- Sports, politics, "society"—the three absorbing interests of the population three months ago—have disappeared from the columns of newspapers, from the talk of the people, and have almost vanished from existence.

All that is left of the absorbing passion for sport is the football games, and a majority of the first class professional teams are drilling in the Territorials and Kitchener army.

Khaki Seen Everywhere.

Streets and trains everywhere are filled with soldiers. Khaki is conspicuous in all the restaurants, the gilded and the cheap, and military equipment and uniforms fill the shop windows. Recruits are drilling in all the parks, in public squares, on the lawn of the Temple, where barristers work and live, in all the little open spaces among the stately law courts, and in the courtyard of the National Academy sacred to art and science. Small boys accoutred with paper caps, wooden guns, and tin drums also are everywhere.

Companies of recruits, some fully uniformed nd shouldering their rifles, others in civilian clothes and bare-headed, with blankets slung over their shoulders, march about the streets. These squads usually sing as they march.

Traffic is held up while they pass, the people stop to look, occasionally an old man raises his hat, but, strangely enough to the American spectator, there is never any cheering. This is not apathy; it is the British way.

Wealthy Forego Pleasures.

But there is another side. The wealthy classes have given up their luxuries and their pleasures without a grumble. London was a city of restaurants and theatres, of dinner parties and receptions and balls. All of this life has vanished. Most of those which keep going are giving American plays, and others are producing revipals of old successes because they cannot afford to spend money on mounting new plays. Many have reduced their prices.

"Society" has disappeared. There are no social columns in the newspapers because there are no social events to record. There is no dinner-giving, and there are no balls or shooting parties on country estates. Following the hounds has been abandoned. There is plenty of money yet, but there is no desire to spend it in foolish ways. "Drinking champagne is as strictly taboo as carrying golf clubs."

Millionaires and dukes appear at dinner in public, when they appear at all, in khaki or old clothes and drink whisky and soda instead of their favourite vintages. The Duke of Norfolk, Lord Gladstone, Lord Robert Cecil, club men and Members of Parliament, who are too old for military duties, pass their time at the railway stations and refugee headquarters, meeting frightened Belgian peasants, giving them coffee and sandwiches, and distributing clothes. Others are looking after recruits and wounded soldiers arriving from France.

St. James' Palace is the centre of Red Cross work, and a fleet of motor ambulances, most of the cars donated by individuals, surrounds it day and night. The stately town house of the Duke of Devonshire is a Red Cross office, and wooden buildings filled with uniformed men and women with the Red Cross on their sleeves fill the lawn. Castles and country houses throughout the kingdom are given over for wounded soldiers—British, Belgian, Indian, and French.

Everybody Tries Knitting.

Innumerable funds for the soldiers and dependents of soldiers are being raised and administered. Every regiment has a headquarters in London where workers are supplying its wants in the line of comforts and luxuries. Among the women of the country there is a fierce campaign of knitting. Socks, belts, mittens, mufflers are being turned out in prodigious quantities. Ladies knit at their meals, the shopgirls are knitting, the maids in hotels, and the cashiers in their boxes at the restaurants, and in the cigar stands of the underground stations.

"How to Help" is a standing headline in all the newspapers, and no pages are read more eagerly.

The contentious word "suffragette" has disappeared from the English vocabulary. The suffragist bodies have turned their efficient organizations to the care of Belgians and other war victims. The suffragist

HOW THIN PEOPLE CAN PUT ON FLESH

A New Discovery

This men and women—that big, hearty filling dinner you ate last night. What became of all the fat-producing nourishment it contained? You haven't gained in weight one ounce. That food passed from your body like unburned coal through an open grate. The material was there, but your food doesn't work and stick, and the plain truth is you hardly get enough nourishment from your meals to pay for the cost of cooking. This is true of thin folks the world over. Your nutritive organs, your functions of assimilation, are sadly out of gear and need reconstruction.

Cut out the foolish foods and fussy modern diets. Omit the flesh cream rub-ons. Cut out everything but the meals you are eating now and eat with every one of those a single Sargol tablet. In two weeks note the difference. Five to eight good solid pounds of healthy "stay there" fat should be the net result. Sargol charges your weak, starved blood with millions of fresh new red blood corpuscles—gives the blood the carrying power to deliver every ounce of fat-making material in your food to every part of your body. Sargol, too, mixes with your food and prepares it for the blood in easily assimilated form. Thin people gain all the way from 10 to 28 pounds a month while taking Sargol, and the new flesh stays put. Sargol tablets are a scientific combination of six of the best flesh-producing elements known to chemistry. They come 42 tablets to a package, are pleasant, harmless and inexpensive, and all druggists in Peterborough and vicinity sell them subject to an absolute guarantee of weight increase or money back.

REVOLT WAS SUPPRESSED.

Five Men Killed In Detention Camp Affair on Isle of Man.

DOUGLAS, Isle of Man., Nov. 23. —Five alien prisoner were killed and 13 others were seriously wounded in a riot at the detention camp here. The riot was precipitated when some of the prisoners attempted to escape. These facts were brought out at an inquest held at the camp on Friday.

According to the evidence presented to the jury, the affair occurred at two o'clock Thursday, just after the mid-day meal. There were 2,500 aliens in the engine-room at the time.

At an arranged signal — the breaking of a window with a chair — the prisoners suddenly attacked the guards with cups, saucers, tables and anything else that happened to be handy. The guards fired a volley in the air. This failed to quell the riot, and a second volley was fired, as a result of which four of the prisoners fell dead, or so seriously wounded that they died almost immediately. Twelve were wounded. The men then surrendered.

Trying To Rouse Egypt.

ROME, Nov. 23.—News despatches from Syria and Palestine to the Italian newspapers say that the Turks and the Germans are making great efforts to arouse the population of Egypt to rebel against British authority. With this object in view, it is said, the Turks are spreading the report that the Khedive is on his way from Constantinople to Egypt to assume command of the Egyptian troops.

FIRST PULLMAN

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Nov. 21 — When the first Pullman sleeping car was rolled out of the shops of the Chicago and Alton in Bloomington, employees who had been engaged upon the construction regarded it as a joke, and they had considerable fun at the expense of the struggling inventor, George M. Pullman.

The first car has long since been consigned to the junk heap, but the first conductor, J. L. N. Barnes, is still living, his home now being in Chanute, Kan. Hhe recently retired as division superintendent of the Santa Fe Railroad after fifty-six years of service, beginning as conductor of the first Pullamn car. Mr. Barnes recalls that in 156 he was a clerk in a dry goods store in Chicago and made his home with a family near the office of Mr. Pullman. On reading in the papers that Pullman was building a sleeping car Barnes asked him for a job as Conductor and was engaged.

Very Primitive.

The first Pullman was lighted by candles and heated by oil stoves. There was no carpet upon the floor. The backs of the seats were hinged, and to make up the berth the porter simply dropped the backs until they were level with the seats, and upon them were placed a mattress and a blanket; there were no sheets. The upper berth was suspended from the ceiling by ropes and pulleys and kept raised during the day.

On the maiden trip between Bloomington and Chicago patrons were charged $1.50. Mr. Barnes recalls that he had some difficulty in persuading the passengers to remove their boots upon retiring. The first ten months' patronage was poor, In those days not many could afford to pay the sleeper charge. Accordingly Barnes was laid off and his duties were intrusted to the train conductor. Soon, however, business improved and Barnes was put on the job again. More sleepers were built and Pullman speedily became a millionaire.

The first sleeper was stored in the shop yards at Bloomington for many years following its displacement by improved cars, and it was a great curiosity. It had been rebuilt from a day coach and contained but eight berths—four upper and four lower.

First Train Despatcher.

The first man to move trains by telegraph despatching is also living. He is A. H. Copeland, for forty years agent an doperator for the Chicago and Alton at Chenoa, this county. He is now living in retirement at Oak Park. It was in Vermont in 1852 that the Morse invention was first brought into use for train despatching. In that year Copeland was a young clerk in the post-office at Middlebury, and was also the telegraph operator. In those days trains were run solely by the time card. In December, 1852, a heavy snow storm delayed all trains on the Rutland and Burlington, the mail from Boston being held back for many hours. When the train from the north came in Copeland told the crew they would have a long wait at Brandon, the next stop, where they usually passed the mail from Boston. He then suggested that the operator at Brandon call Rutland and ask the crew of the mail to wait until the south-bound train could get through, thus saving a long delay. It developed, however, that the operator at Brandon had gone to Burlington. The train crew then induced Copeland to ride with them to Brandon and send the messages.

His First Message.

Upon reaching Brandon Copeland sent a message to Henry Howe, conducter of the mail train, asking him to hold his train at Rutland until the accommodation arrived from the north, signing the name of Conductor Tiffaney. Conductor Howe replied that he would do so and the accommodation proceeded. A freight train that followed asked for similar favours, and after messages were exchanged, also proceeded. The movement resulted in safety and a marked saving in delay.

The messages exchanged were preserved by Mr. Copeland and are of historic interest, marking a new era in railroading. It soon became common, when trains were off their schedule, to exchange orders, and this primitive bit of despatching soon became known to the officials. They were quick to realize the advantages, and soon each road constructed its own operators, Copeland's claim of being the original train despatcher has never been questioned.

Cold Weather Causes Germans Much Suffering

THIELT, Nov. 23—There are clear indications that "General November" will take a leading part in the operations along the front by the Yser River. Ten days of cold, wet weather have been followed by three days of frost over the entire territory outlined by the cities of Middelkerke, Thourout, Thielt, Roulers and Ypres. Much of this region is covered with stubble fields over which there is a coating of ice, making them almost impassable for man or beast.

The German troops are living in the ruins of two scores of villages and small cities. They are becoming impatient at the delay and are suffering from the icy winds which penetrate the windowless buildings in which they seek some sort of shelter. They would prefer a general attack to finish the battle, but any such sudden movement is prevented by the inundation along their front. The water covered territory is now crusted with a thin coating of ice, which supports large colonies of hungry sea gulls. Thousands of lives have been lost in this inundated area without effecting any decisive changes.

ALLIES WELL CARED FOR.

On the other side of the inundated country, safely entrenched behind frozen dikes, stand the British, Belgian and French guns. The soldiers there, on account of direct communication with France and England, are well cared for, while the Germans are handicapped by being obliged to requisition supplies from the devastated country where the population is dependent upon American charity. The automobile supply system is working less satisfactorily owing to the growing scarcity of gasoline.

WAIT FOR ENGINEERS.

The Germans are waiting with great hopes the arrival of engineers whose duty it will be to find some means of crossing the inundated territory, but the methods which are to be employed, if decided upon, are being kept secret.

A LUMBERMAN'S OPINION.

"I was troubled with palpitation of the heart and sleeplessness," writes Mr. Wm. Pritchard, Lumber Inspector, Lumsden Mills, Ont., "and used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with very great benefit, as my whole system was strengthened and built up." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new, rich blood and restores the feeble, wasted nerve cells.

ONE RECRUIT FROM 30,000 SPORT CROWD

Rallies at Football Matches Throughout England a Striking Failure

LONDON PRESS ANNOYED

LONDON, Nov. 23.—Indignation against the hitherto universally popular game of football is expressed by nearly the entire British press to-day, because almost no men enlisted as a result of the recruiting rallies at Saturday's matches.

"It is time to eradicate the football cancer," says the Pall Mall Gazette in an article which goes on to say that not a single man was recruited at London's principal football match, which was attended by 18,000 spectators. A colonel who lost a son at the front and was himself returning to the firing line appeared at this game, says the paper, and pleaded with the men to enlist.

"As a soldier, I ask you," said the colonel. "I say come, your country needs you."

Then his words were drowned by shouts when the teams came on the field, continues the paper which adds that in other parts of the country the same stolid refusal greeted the bands of speakers and recruiting officers. No recruits were secured at Nottingham, where 7,000 spectators attended a match, and not one was recruited at Brighton.

The Evening Standard says that the total result of the countryside movement was one recruit, secured at matches aggregating 30,000 spectators.

"Is football such a passion that nothing on earth can stop it?" asks the Standard. "Vigorous youths should be powerfully persuaded that this is not the time for the development of any passion save love of country."

The Westminster Gazette says that there is only one way in which the football association can put itself right in the eyes of the public, and that is by discontinuing its programme.

SCRAPS OF WAR NEWS

LONDON—The war having destroyed the market for fish hooks, manufacturers of that article are making knitting needles, for which they have so far been unable to supply the demand.

AMSTERDAM—The only animals left in the Antwerp Zoo are the elephants, which the Germans are using to drag their big guns.

LONDON—Punch suggests in a recent issue that, owing to the Boer uprising in South Africa, under Maritz, the town of Pietermaritzburg change its name to Pietrobothagrad.

LONDON — A friend meeting Prince Louis of Battenberg, when the latter was being severely criticized as First Lord of the Admiralty, said jokingly, "I thought you were in the Tower." Prince Louis replied, "You are quite ignorant of the news. I was shot last Friday."

COPENHAGEN — The German War Office has ordered printed 10,000,000 pocket editions containing German war songs for distribution at the front.

THE HAGUE—Owing to scarcity of matches public subscriptions have been opened in Berlin to purchase tinder and flint for soldiers at the front.

CLUBWOMAN'S CREED.

At the recent convention of the General Federation of Women's clubs in Chicago, the following creed was read:

"Keep us, O God, from pettiness; let us be large in thought, in word, in deed.

"Let us be done with fault-finding and love of self-making.

"May we put away pretence and meet each other face to face—without self-pity and without prejudice.

"May we never be hasty in judging and always be generous.

"Let us take time for all things, make us grow calm, serene, gentle.

"Teach us to put into action our better impulses, straightforward, and unafraid.

"Grant that we may realize it is the little things that create differences; that in the big things of life we are one.

"And may we strive and touch and to know the great common woman's heart of us all, and, O Lord, let us not forget to be kind!"—Ex.

BRITISH WARSHIPS BOMBARD ZEEBRUGE

FOG INTERFERES WITH OPERATIONS IN WEST

GENERAL SITUATION IS UNCHANGED FRENCH MAKE GAINS IN ARGONNE

Less Cannonading Along the Front According to the Offical Communique To-day--French Report Confirms the Success of the Russian Forces.

WEATHER CONDITIONS ARE VERY BAD

PARIS, November 24.—The official statement given out in Paris this (Tuesday) afternoon says that generally speaking the situation on November 23 showed no changes of importance.

The text of the communique is as follows: "Speaking generally, it may be said that the situation during the day of November 23rd has shown no important changes. Along the greater part of the front the enemy manifested his activity particularly by an intermittent cannonading, which however was less spirited than on the preceding day. Nevertheless there were here and there some infantry attacks, all of which were repulsed. As we have come to expect, these attacks were particularly violent in Argonne, where we gained some territory, and in the region of Four de Paris. There nothing to report between the Argonne and the Vosges, and furthermore very heavy fog has interfered with operations. The sanitary conditions of the troops are favourable."

THE HAGUE, HOLLAND, November 24. — Some British warships along the coast of Belgium to-day got the range of Zeebrugge harbour, where six German submarines are being put together, presumably for an attack on the allied fleet and the British coast. For some hours the position was vigorously bombarded, and the German engineers forced to quit work. It is not known whether any of the submarines were hit.

PARIS, November 24. — The cold weather has greatly facilitated the movement of artillery, both in the allied and German lines. The roads not completely inundated may now be used, having become partly frozen. The cessation of the rain and snow has also enabled the allied ships on the coast to aid the troops with more regularity. Zeebrugge is reported to have been vigorously bombarded to-day by warships, several buildings being damaged.

NEW YORK, November 24.—"Every foot of ground in Brussels is heavily mined. The slightest sign of revolt by the people will literally bring the city crashing in ruin about them." This was the declaration to-day of Edward Allen Cantrell, a member of the famous Kentuck family, and later a soldier in the Belgian civil guard. He has lived in Belgium for several years,and fought against the Germans in the Belgian trenches. He will return to Newport, Ky., as soon as his wife, still suffering from the shock of their experiences in Belgium, sufficiently recovers. The Kentuckian had left his wife in Brussels while he went on a business trip to London. It was what he saw in bringing his wife back through "the thickest of the German devastation" that "filled him with a mania to kill the Germans."

LONDON, November 24. — A story of the terrible sufferings of the homeless Belgians was received here to-day by the Belgian Relief Commission in a message from the representative of the Christian Herald of New York, now at Rotterdam. "At Antwerp one thousand

Joint Committee From Dominion Grange and Manufacturers Ask Government for Commission

WESTERN CONDITIONS

Examiner Special:

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 24.—At noon to-day these old historic enemies, the manufacturers and the farmers, waited upon Sir Robert Borden and his colleagues and made a joint request for government action. W. C. Good, Master of the Dominion Grange, and Col. Cantile, President of the Manufacturers' Association, led the deputation. They presented a joint memorial to the government asking for the appointment of a commission to inquire into Western conditions, and to act upon their findings. The memorial deals with the desirability of the lessening of the cost of production in the West so that there will be a wider margin of profit for the farmer. Reforms of distribution, transportation, marketing(finance and the tariff, are suggested in general terms.

Mr. Goodwill Has Resigned

Mr. Jos. Wearing Succeeds Him as Secretary of the Peterborough Law Association

At a meeting of the Executive of the Peterborough Law Association yesterday, Mr. E. L. Goodwill, for many years the efficieft secretary and librarian of the association, informed the meeting that he was unable from press of work and by reason of many other engagements to continue his services to the association, and requested that he be relieved therefrom.

His services to the association have been many and valuable, and it is with great regret that the Executive have complied with his request.

Mr. Joseph Wearing, the partner of the late Mr. R. E. Wood, was the unanimous choice of the Executive for the vacated position, and enters upon his new duties forthwith.

Firemen Now In Home Guard

Held Their First Drill Yesterday Afternoon and Made Good Progress

Another company of unquestionable merit has been added to the Home Guard. The firemen of the City whose occupation in times of war and peace alike is to fight fires and protect the homes and families of the City, are preparing themselves so that in an eventuality they can protect them from another enemy, the Germans or Austrians. Yesterday afternoon they had their first drill under the instruction of Sergt. H. Dodds,and they were not only put through all the elementary military formations, but they received instruction in rifle drill and musketry. The firemen would make a valuable body of fighters, and their advent to the Guard will be welcomed by all. They are entering into the military work with a will and should the time ever come they will be found not only willing but qualified to take their stand against an invading force of any nationality.

Local Company is Now in a Position to Commence the Manufacture of Electric Locomotives

GOOD THING FOR CITY

A meeting of the Manufacturers' committee of the City Council was held last evening when the following resolution was adopted.

"That the Canadian General Electric Company, having proposed to manufacture electric locomotives in Peterborough and to make the necessary expenditure to provide additional power required, buildings, machinery, etc., for testing purposes at an estimated cost of $150,000, provided the city make arrangements for a right of way for a track upon which to test the locomotives, and an arrangement having been made by which the Grand Trunk will lease the Canadian General Electric Company about three miles of their Chemong railway right-of-way at a rental of $100 a year, and taxes, this committee recommend that the proposal made by the Canadian General Electric Company to the city be accepted, and that a by-law be submitted to the electors to authorize the payment of the rent of $100 a year for twenty-one years or less if the right of way should not be used that long, for the said purpose and the exemption from taxes, except school taxes and improvement rates for ten years on that part of the right-of-way within the city."

A New Industry.

This means that the city will get the benefit of a one hundred and fifty thousand dollar industry at an annual outlay of about one hundred and fifteen dollars a year. This includes a rental of one hundred dollars a year for the three miles of track, also taxes. It will be remembered that the Canadian General Electric Company proposed to erect in Peterborough, a plant capable of manufacturing electric locomotives providing the city would give the company a right-of-way so as to enable them to construct one mile of track for testing purposes. The company suggested that the right-of-way be secured on Monaghan road. In this the Council failed to agree. Steps were then taken to secure a piece of the unused track of the old Chemong railway line, the property of the Grand Trunk Railway. Three miles of this track has been leased for an annual rental of one hundred dollars; the city to pay this amount in consideration of the company expending one hundred and fifty thousand dollars for additional plant and equipment. This will mean a larger payroll. The company has secured several large contracts for the manufacture of electric locomotives, ineluding a big order for the London and Port Stanley electric line.

War Declared on Prices

To-morrow morning a lively war-time sale on prices will begin at M. Fine's Dry Goods and Clothing Store —309 George Street. The hand-bills that have been circulated around the City state that Mr. Fine's entire stock of $10,000 worth of winter goods must be turned into cash at once. "Never were prices so unmercifully cut." Attend the opening days; bring all the money you can spare, and share in the bargains. Find the right place—opposite Custom House.

PATRIOTIC COMMITTEE

A meeting of the Peterborough Patriotic Association will be held in the Council Chamber, City Hall, on Wednesday evening, November 29, at 8 o'clock. Every member is urgently requested to be present.

RECRUITING WILL BE BEGUN IMMEDIATELY

Orders Sent Out to Divisional Commanders—Peterborough Will Be Asked for at Least 100 More Men

NO INSTRUCTIONS YET

OTTAWA, Nov. 23.—A general order was sent out from the Militia Department this morning advising the commanding officers of the various military districts to make the necessary preparations to carry on recruiting on a larger scale. This has been done in order that the new scheme outlined by Sir Robert Borden in his statement whereby the force under arms in Canada will be increased from 38,500 to 58,500, while Canada's contribution to the army at the front will be increased to 108,000 men, may be carried out as expeditiously as possible.

The details of the more ambitious plan upon which the Government has decided to embark in order to render all possible assistance to the Motherland have not yet been worked out.

May Re-open Valcartier.

It has been decided, however, that the divisional plan of enlistment adopted in connection with the second contingent will be followed. In view of the larger number of men required, it will be necessary to open additional recruiting depots in various parts of the country. The probabilities are that most of the recruiting will be done in Western Canada, Ontario, and larger centres, such as Montreal. Canada's decision to send several more contingents probably means that when spring arrives the camp at Valcartier will again be utilized for training purposes.

The hope is expressed that about next midsummer Kitchener's new armies in conjunction with the French forces will be striking the most decisive blows of the war, and that it will be an advantage to have the last forces sent from this side so well trained that they can go direct to the front.

108,000 Early in Summer.

The expectation is that the whole of the force of 108,000 men which Canada proposes to train should be ready to take their places in the firing line before the middle of next summer. In addition, many thousands of recruits will go forward as reinforcements. Whether or not the whole of this force goes forward will depend upon the duration of the war. Should they do so, another 58,000 will be placed in training for purposes of home defence, including garrison duty.

While Major Walker, officer commanding the 57th Regiment, had received no orders up to this afternoon to recommence enlisting here, such instructions may be looked for almost immediately. Peterborough will be asked for another 100 men at once.

HAS RECEIVED RANK OF CAPTAIN

Lieut. H. A. Pearson With the First Contingent Has Been Promoted

Mr. John Pearson, of Halburton, has received word from his son, Lieut. H. A. Pearson, formerly of Peterborough, of the Second Contingent, and who is now on French soil. Lieut. Pearson, who is a former officer of the 19th Regiment, St. Catharines, has received the rank of captain. He is identified with the Y.M.C.A. work in the Second Contingent, and from the letter received, it is learned that he is now on the firing line. Capt. Pearson was a former member of the Post staff. His brother Frank (also a former member of the Post staff) is with the Second Contingent.—Lindsay Post.

A DECISIVE WIN FOR THE RUSSIANS

Invading Germans in Russian Poland Have Been Driven Back and Enemy's Forces Are Practically Broken in Two, Meanwhile Invasion of East Prussia and Galicia Continues.

Examiner Special:

LONDON, November 24. — (Special Cable.) — The news from Petrograd to-day emphasizes a decisive win for the Russians in Poland, where the invading Germans have been driven back. Reports assert that the German force appears to have been practically broken in two, one section taking the southward line of retreat, the other withdrawing to the northwest. The official statement however makes no mention of the retreat to the northwest; it is confined to the announcement of a a withdrawal along the line to the southwest. The defeat however appears to be a most decisive one, and another great victory for the Russian arms.

Meanwhile the Russian campaign to the north of Poland in East Prussia, and the campaign to the south in Galicia, have continued notwithstanding the pressure on the Russian centre, giving a striking object lesson as to the extent and strength of the Czar's forces, which are apparently ever increasing in numbers and effective fighting strength.

DUNDEE, Scotland, November 24, (Special Cable). —The whole countryside here is fully prepared for a German raid. The villagers in many coast places are ready to abandon their homes and retire inland at brief warning. It is difficult, however, to see what any raiding party could accomplish here, particularly since the entrances to the Tay and Forth are heavily mined. Scotland's Canadian friends need have little apprehension of danger here. My strong view, which I believe is supported by the most expert authorities, is that any attempt upon the Scottish eastern coast would be a most risky undertaking on the part of the Germans.

Scotland is responding splendidly to the call for recruits, excepting in one or two of the large industrial cities. In many Highland villages every possible man has volunteered and gone. Tales of the doings of the Black Watch and the Gordons are repeated in every home, and fire the ardour of the people to an amazing degree. The great losses of these famous regiments, so far from keeping the recruits back, stimulates them. One Edinburgh magnate, Sir George McCrae, is now raising a regiment of his own. Scotland is proud of what her sons have done at the front, and the people here follow with particular interest any accounts of the Canadian Highlander Regiments in the contingent, feeling confident they will maintain the ancient reputation.

WASHINGTON, D.C., November 24.—"I have been asked to be neutral, and I am neutral, when I say that all of the water in the River Rhine cannot wash the blood and shame from Germany's mailed fist."

This was the bitter comment against the German government to-day by Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis, pastor of the Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, N.Y., who is a delegate to the World's Bible Conference. His remark was apropos of the German devastation of Belgium, and of the general results of the war. Hillis declared that a democratic government, similar to that of the United States, would supplant the autocratic rule of Germany's crowned head.

TEACHING A LESSON.

Not being militarist tacticians, we have not paid much attention to the idea involved in the question, why do not the French and British adopt the tactics of Germany in regard to aerial bombardments? One would not, of course, think of dropping bombs from airships upon non-combatants in cities outside or within the war zone, though this otherwise inexcusable and essentially barbarous practice, could to a certain extent be justified by the lesson it would teach the relentless Germans, and suggest to them that making war on sleeping and defenceless cities is a game that more than one can play. The British aviators have made a beginning that will make the Germans take notice. They successfully dropped bombs on the German Zeppelin factory on Lake Constance. Even if great damage was not done, something was done in the way of reprisal in the adoption of the German policy of terrorizing. The fact that British airships penetrated effectively into the heart of Europe, will indicate that German Zeppelins, in case they invade Britain, will not have it all their own way.

WHAT EVIL DOES.

We can faintly judge of the value of honour, honesty and loyalty to truth, from the awful results that come from disregard of the obligations they impose. This disregard of ethical obligation is seen in the present war brought on by the perverted "kultur" of Germany; the application of the gospel of force, the denial of the sanctity of a scrap of paper. We don't feel it directly in Peterborough yet; but when our soldiers get into the firing line—in the trenches—we shall hear, perhaps, of the death or maiming of those we know. But we will have the consolation that lives dear to us have been sacrificed on the altar of a righteous cause; the cause of freedom and humanity; the cause of the highest, of the only true, religion—Christianity, in its highest manifestations.. It is almost inconceivable, that one man, the mouthpiece, and manipulator of the cult of brute force, and territorial expansion, could plunge the world into the awful welter of bloodshed, the suffering that is felt day after day by millions of combatants and reflected with increased intensity upon millions of the innocent and helpless. This condition enlists everybody, in the fight against the iniquitous aggression of German militarism. If we can't all fight with arms, we can help those of our own who are fighting; can cooperate to relieve the distress, from unemployment brought about by the war. We can give of our means and our efforts to increase the total of the Patriotic Fund. It has been suggested that the wealthy have not contributed proportionately to their ability and that the majority of contributions are by those who feel what they give — have to make a sacrifice of something to give. We have had the ice broken by one man of means and others can follow. We must for our good name, for our peace of mind and quietness of conscience, do something better than we have done. We shall not have done in proportion to our population any too much if we make a united effort to bring to pass the slogan—

$20,000 FOR THE PATRIOTIC FUND.

AN EXAMPLE.

H. F. Baker is a hero. He is only the humble keeper of a lighthouse at Clapperton Island, Georgian Bay; but he deserves to have his name inscribed in a high place on the roll of honour. A circular was issued by the government suggesting that all government employees should contribute a day's pay to the Patriotic Fund. His reply, written to the department was that his salary was too small to make a day's pay worth while; and he authorized the department to deduct $50 from his quarterly cheque. He also enclosed $5 from his wife and family, to be added to the fund. That's giving worth while, both in spirit and result. If all the government employees did likewise, and if the public acted on the promptings of such a noble spirit, we should have no need to make appeals for stronger support of the Patriotic Fund. By the way, does the suggestion of the government apply to all employees of the government—all public servants? If equal rights principles apply, and if all the ministers and their deputies could have the privilege of giving one day's pay, the total would be considerable. A minister's salary amounts to about 25 dollars a day, and a deputy's about a third less. Besides, should not all members of Parliament, 221 in number be expected to give at least one day's pay of the sessional indemnity of $2,500 a session. This would also count considerably. We don't want the widow's mite to be lonely. If all our cabinet ministers and their deputies; if all our highly paid civil servants; if all our members of Parliament could rise to the height of H. F. Baker, the humble lighthouse keeper; if the wealthy of our population should imitate his example, we should have little trouble in putting the Patriotic Fund upon both its feet. He not only gave one day's pay, but gave ten days' pay and, counting the gift of his wife and family, fifteen days' pay. We can't expect everybody to measure up to such a patriotic standard; but if we all only half imitated him we should have no trouble in Peterborough in realizing the slogan—

$20,000 FOR THE PATRIOTIC FUND.

THE VIRTUE OF PROMPT ACTION.

Corporations are notoriously slow. They would do well to take a leaf as to prompt action out of the Kaiser's book. He didn't waste much time in talk and profitless inaction when war was declared; he flung his whole forces into the project of reaching Paris. That he hasn't succeeded is not from lack of trying. His methods teach us that the way to do things is to do them, or trying to do them.

About a year ago the Canadian General Electric Company applied to the Council to provide a test track for "trying out" electric locomotives to be manufactured by the company. The company proposed to spend about $150,000 to provide buildings and machinery for the manufacture of these locomotives. It took a whole years for the City Council to act, effectively. And after a year's—negotiation or inaction—the old Chemong track has been secured for the purpose of a test track at a rental of $100 a year.

One cannot say whether with prompt action this result might not have been reached sooner; but it seems to the ordinary ratepayer that it might have been accomplished sooner—by doing it. For years the citizens and the Board of Trade, and in part the City Council, were working for the early delivery of the Toronto morning papers. But nothing came of it. After the authorities had practically confessed failure—a private, but public-spirited, citizen dropped into the office of the superintendents of the railways in Toronto, and in a short time arranged for the use of freight trains that reach Peterborough at about nine o'clock, and now we get our papers at that hour. This was brought about by doing, instead of corresponding. Now nearly four years ago the people voted for the Hydro - Electric principle; they haven't got it yet.

It is unfortunate that corporations can't employ a similar promptitude of action to that of private enterprise. If the city had done, in regard to the test track, in three months, what has taken a year, we should doubtless have had in the past nine months the expenditure in the city of $150,000 in labour and the furnishing of building supplies; and we should probably have had a large extra staff employed in building electric locomotives at the Canadian General Electric works.

This is the time when we need every day's work that can be given. It is proposed to advance the employment of labour in government public works in Ottawa, Toronto and Hamilton—working on foundations—in order to give employment in these cities. Why could we not do something in that way in Peterborough? We are promised a dry dock. Could not some preliminary work be done this winter? We may plead scarcity of money, but we must keep things moving. The government can get money for such expenditures, and there should be no delay, for now is the time we need the giving of employment.

If we do things promptly, act in earnest, and act together, we should have no difficulty in realising the slogan—

JEAN BATEESE AND LA GUERRE.

The attitude of the people in the French country districts is the attitude of the Church. And the Church authorities have issued instructions to all priests in regard to the war. The Church is preaching loyalty. "Bourassa has absolutely no influence in the country districts," said the cure at St. Damien. "Le Devoir! Yes, we used to get it, some of us, but not now."

The Church has no use for the campaign of vilification of everything English which the Nationalist press seems to consider a very fetching idea. Therefore the Nationalist press has just as much chance of influencing the opinion of the habitant as an undersized rat has of converting a kennel of setter dogs to vegetarianism. I asked an aged man by whose fireside we warmed our frigid bones what he thought of Henri Bourassa. "Bourassa?" he said, a puzzled expression on his corrugated, leather-hued face. "Does he live in St. Gabriel?" Poor Henri!—Beck's Weekly.

THE FULFILMENT OF A GERMAN POET'S PROPHECY

The quotation used by Douglas Sladen, as the keynote of his book, "The Real Truth About Germany" (just published by Putnam), is a remarkable prophecy concerning the German people that was uttered 80 years ago by the German poet, Heinrich Heins, as follows:

'Christianity — and this is its highest merit—has in some degree softened, but it could not destroy, that brutal German joy of battle. When once that taming talisman, the Cross, breaks in two, the savagery of the old fighters, the senseless Berseker fury—of which the Norse poets sing and say so much—will gush up anew. The talisman is decayed, and the day will come when it will piteously collapse. Then, the old stone gods will arise from the silent ruins and will rub the dust of a thousand years from their eyes. Thor, with his giant's hammer, will at last spring up and shatter to bits the Gothic Cathedrals."

How literally that last touch in Heine's prophecy has been fulfilled before our own eyes the ruins, or the departed glories, of the Cathedrals of martyred Belgium and of Rheims will bear witness.

But what is even more startling to the thoughtful student is the accuracy with which Heine foresaw the general spirit that would, one day, be apparently regnant in Germany, when the Treitschke-Nietzsche-Bernhardi doctrine that "Might makes Right" would be officially adopted as the guiding principles of the Foreign and War Offices of Germany.

"World-power or downfall"; "Territorial Expansion by Means of Armaments"; "The Gospel of 'the mailed fist,' of making your way by force of arms"; "Conquer and then Germanize the world," spreading "German culture" by means of the sword — these are the master-words that now seem to be guiding a Prussianized Germany, that is, if Treitschke and Bernhardi are true interpreters.

Professor J. A. Cramb is said to have known his Germany as few Britons have known it; indeed, he was so sympathetic with many German points of view that in his "Germany and England" he says some things that your thick-and-thin "Britisher" will not like at all. His little book is only a posthumous fragment—a mere torso of the epoch-making book which he would have given to his country-men if he had not died ten months before the outbreak of this war. With remarkable prescience he looked upon such a war as more than probable, indeed as imminent, Lord Roberts truly said that it is a book which "everyone who wishes to understand the present crisis should read, as nowhere else are the forces which lead to the war so clearly set forth." Its closing chapter contains an illuminating epitome of the attitude toward Christianity that is taken by some of the most potent leaders in the philosophic and political life of present-day Germany, which strikingly bears out Heine's remarkable prophecy.

Those who believe in the Allies' cause in this war—including especially those of us who are citizens of democratic countries like the United States, and who, on account of the political and military policies now guiding the Teutonic Empire, had reluctantly come to the conclusion that there is such a thing as a "German Peril" now menacing the entire Occident—find that conviction buttressed, on another side, by the account which Professor Cramb gives of the tendencies in Religion that threaten to dominate the German people. The following is a condensation of several pregnant pages of Cramb's book, where he paraphrases Treitschke's teachings on religion:

Judaea and Galilee cast their dreary spell over Greece and Rome when Greece and Rome were sinking into decrepitude. And when, in the Fifth Century, Rome was conquered by the German hordes, Germany and the whole Teutonic people, dazzled by the authority of the Roman Empire, made the great error of adopting the religion of the vanquished. Germany's own deep religious instinct—her native genius for religion manifested in her creative success (as seen in the Gothic ribbers and cathedrals that are the living witness to the Teutonic's imagination in the new religion) was arrested, stunted, thwarted.

For thirty generations Germany has struggled and wrested to see with eyes that are not her eyes, to worship a God that was not her God, to live with a world-vision that was not her vision, and to strive for a heaven that was not her heaven. But now Germany no longer proposes to submit to this alien creed, deriver from an alien crime. She will no longer confront the ages as the borrower of her religion — her own genius for religion numbed and paralysed.

And what is the religion which, on the whole, may be characterised as the religion of the most earnest and passionate minds of Young Germany? What is the new movement? The movement, the governing ideas of the centuries from the 14th to the 19th, is the wrestle of the German intellect, not only against Rome, but against Christianism itself.

The 17th century flung off Rome; the 18th undermined Galilee itself; in the 19th Strauss completed the task that Eichorn began; and, with the opening of the 20th century, Germany, her long travail past, is reunited to her pristine genius, her creative power in religion and thought.

Hence the significance of Nietzsche. Kant compromises, timid and old; Strauss, while rejecting the metaphysic and miracles of Christianity, clung to its ethics. But Nietzsche clears away the "accumulated rubbish" of 1,200 years; he attempts to set the German imagination back where it was with Alaric, (the Goth, who sacked Rome in 410), and, thus forfeited by the experience of twelve centuries, to confront the darkness — unaided, unappalled, triumphant, great and free.

Thus, in preparing a world-empire, Germany is also preparing to create a world-religion—the religion of valour, re-interpreted by Napoleon and Nietzsche, the glory of action, heroism, the doing of great things, in Europe as a whole and especially in Germany, two great spirit-forces are now contending for men's allegiance —Napoleon and Christ. And in the New Germany, Corisca has conquered Galilee.

Thus, according to Cramb, the New Germany, finding the Religion of the Divine Man of Galilee to be alien to her genius, proposes to substitute her "Religion or Valor" for Christianity She is to give the world a new God (Odin or Thor) in the place of "the God and Father of Our Lord Jesus Christ"; a new code of ethics and a new set of Beautitudes in the place of the Sermon on the Mount.

EXPLAIN BELGIUM

"You have circulated a great deal of printed matter explaining your views on the war in all its phases. You seem particularly anxious to impress it upon us that Germany is strong in resources, that her business is going forward, that her banks have ample funds, that food and all other supplies are on hand there in great abundance. These things being so, why is Germany robbing Belgium? This little country has been stamped flat by the Kaiser's troops. Trade and industry of all sorts are utterly at an end, the whole apparatus of commerce by which food and other necessities are distributed is broken up. And yet the all-powerful German army levies on these miserable and helpless victims for money, clothing, provisions—some $500,000 per week is taken from Brussels alone. Imagine an armed man standing over a terrorized group of cripples, old folks, and children, and taking from them what little they have against the winter and taking it for his own use. That is what is going on in Belgium, and it is not war.

"Your Kaiser has a thousand times proclaimed himself as one of those to whom, in Ruskin's words, the Bible is 'a captain's order to be heard and obeyed at their peril.' He preaches sermons and has much to say of faith and religion. And yet it is because of him that these haggard fugitives floe in pain, that nameless babies are born and die with their mothers by the side of the road. He has plunged all these people into a living hell. And then, instead of succouring them, the orders go out which mean that their want is to be made more cruel, their despair more hopeless. Is there no court chaplain to tell him what has been foretold for those who oppress the fatherless and afflicted? This is one verse: 'For the Lord will plead their cause, and spoil the soul of them that spoil them.'

"It matters not if your country is strong, indeed, at home. In Belgium your Germany is already lost."

Lakefield Sidings Being Taken Up

The Grand Trunk Railway are taking up the sidings leading to the lumber mills in Lakefield which have been idle for some time. There was a considerable quantity of useful steel lying idle in these sidings which the company have decided to put to better use. The taking up of the sidings, however, is an indication that the wheels of the said lumber mills are quiet for all time to come.

30 Are Drowned In Wreck

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. Nov. 24.—At least thirty persons perished just outside the Golden Gate to-day when the ship Halalei was wrecked on the rocks. Five persons were rescued by life-savers, twenty struggled to shore on a piece of wreckage, but the remainder were lost. The storm was the worst for years in the history of that part of the Pacific.

GERMANY WOULD BE SATISFIED WITH THE CAPTURE OF CALAIS

Dealing with the campaign in Flanders, the New York Sun points out that, according to the view of Maximilian Harden, Germany would be satisfied with the capture of Calais.

It explains it in this way:

Now, if anyone cares to go back a little into that great mass of literature which is classified as Pan-German he will discover a number of maps, pretty much alike, all of which in some fashion indicate what, to the Pan-German mind, should be Germany's rightful place in the European sun. And without exception these maps all include Belgium and that corner of Northern France between Boulogne and Dunkirk on the Channel. With the maps are full and extended explanations.

These explanations are of two sorts. First there is set forth the claim of Germany. This claim rests on the fact that the larger part of this territory is inhabited by Flemish speaking people, and Flemsh is a low German dialect. Flanders, too, was at one time a portion of that German Empire which preceded the ruin of the Thirty Years' War, for every German the greatest tragedy in history.

Wants Another Outlet.

But aside for these more or less sentimental reasons there are practical reasons of great weight. As it now stands Germany is confined to a narrow frontage on the open sea between the mouth of the Elbe and the Dutch frontier. Her natural sea front is occupied by the two States of Holland and Belguim, which owe their past immunity to the strength of Great Britain. Antwerp and Rotterdam, the natural ports of Germany, are in alien territory. But Antwerp and Rotterdam both taken by Germany, she would still be at a disadvantage so long as France and England, her enemies, held both shores of the narrow Straits of Dover.

On the other hand, if Germany could win the Battle of Flanders and take Calais, Boulogne and Dunkirk, she would then have entered into possession of practically all the territory that her most extreme Pan-Germans have claimed. It is true that she had planned to take Paris and crush France, but even after France had been crushed her programme included inconsiderable territorial demands. France was to pay the cost of the war, but save in a few frontier districts was to suffer no territorial losses.

England the Real Enemy.

From the very start Germany has recognized that England was her real enemy, but so long as England was protected by neutral Holland and Belgium, as well as hostile France, it was next to impossible for Germany to come to grips. A German fleet at Heligoland could have but a fraction of the value that it would have as a weapon against England in the Scheldt, with a secondary base at Dunkirk. Moreover, it should never be mistaken that the ultimate purpose of all Germany is to get at England, the one real rival.

Now if Germany could get possession of the shore of the Channel it would then be perfectly possible for her to abandon all but a defensive campaign. If she had not taken Paris or crushed France, she would then have actually in hand what she had at the outset fixed her mind upon as the maximum of territorial profit for herself. With her wonderful artillery, her splendid military machine, she could then entrench herself from Boulogne to the Meuse, via the Aisne, and wait until her opponents wore themselves out with the fury of their attack, or she might, by private arrangement with Russia, perhaps by permitting Russia to keep Austrian Galicia while Austria took her pay in Servia and Albania, exchanged Lemberg for Salonica, regain numerical superiority.

Needs Sea Coast.

But until the Channel Coast was taken all her actual conquests would be of little value in her greater scheme, because it is the sea coast that she needs. With only Ostend, since the Scheldt is neutralized, she would have fallen far short of her goal, she would actually be almost as far away from England as before, for as a naval base Ostend and all other ports of Belgium on the open sea are without real value, are indeed hardly tenable permanently if Nieuport and Ypres are in hostile hands.

As to Holland, German writers have never made the slightest concealment of their purpose to include it in the Greater Germany. If Holland comes willingly, it is to keep its individuality on the terms that Bavaria has since 1870. But it is to be a part of the German Empire, its ports open to German commerce and bases for the ultimate attack upon Britain. To enter Holland now would not merely mean to bring the Dutch Army into the field against Germany, but it would close the most valuable neutral gate to Germany. Once Belgium were German, however, the future of Holland would be plain.

One further detail. Let anyone take a map which shows the present battle front in France and draw a line from Boulogne to Lille where it would join the battlefront. Now holding this frontier Germany would have the great industrial region extending from Lille to Charleroi by Mons, the region which is rich in coal, and both in France and Belgium the seat of great manufacturing establishments. In addition, going east it will be seen that the German front approaches Verdun and follows the Heights of the Meuse. East of this in the French Department of Meurthe-et-Moselle is one of the richest iron deposits in the world, and Germany needs iron for her great works at Essen and elsewhere.

Momentous Struggle.

In sum, then, if Germany could but win the battle of Flanders and reach the Channel she would round out her western possessions in precisely the fashion Pan-Germans have planned for a generation. She would acquire most of the industrial districts which compete with her present centres, she would acquire great coal and iron deposits. In addition, she would at last come close to her one great enemy, Great Britain.

Such, briefly, is the sole explanation of the present struggle in Flanders that in any sense satisfies the mind, given the tremendous and bloody onsets made by the Germans, the immense sacrifice of life, and the relatively insignificant military advantage discovering in victory, measured by the expenditure of human life.

Looking at the situation from the French and British side it will be seen why such a victory for Germany would be in the nature of a disaster. For France it would mean the loss of a Province and the greatest industrial centre, for England it would mean the prelude to a contest bound to endure for years, perhaps for generations.

Is it too much to forsee already that the battle of Flanders is destined to take its place among the "decisive battles of the world," for England the most momentous since Waterloo, perhaps since the Armada?

Not To Be Had.

"No, sir, we've got local option."

DISTRESSING, UNSTEADY SHAKY NERVES
MAY BE TONED UP BY USING MILBURN'S HEART and NERVE PILLS.

Mrs. John Harper, Toronto, Ont., writes: "I have used Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills for the heart and nervous system. I was confined to a grocery store for twelve years, and had to give up business, as I became terribly run down and nervous, and had heart trouble, and I am sure I am gaining very fast now. I feel that nothing did me any good until I tried your Heart and Nerve Pills, and I am positive they will cure me. The nerves of one hand would tremble and then seem to go numb so that I could not write or sew. Now my hand is quite steady, as you can see by my handwriting. This is a big change which delights me so much for I thought all was done that could be done. I was about to give up in despair when I tried this last remedy, and even after I had only taken half a box the change started to come."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will restore the enfeebled, enervated, exhausted, overworked system to full constitutional power.

Price, 50 cents per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

PARIS AGAIN GAY AS PEOPLE RETURN, NOT FEARING SIEGE

Sidewalks Crowded and Schools Reopened After Quarter of Million Get Back to City Homes.

PARIS, Oct. 27.—Paris is filling up again and appears to be getting back some small signs of being her old self. Her strets are fuller, shops are reopening here and there, the cafe terraces are less deserted, and the arrivals of whole families from the provinces grow in number daily. It is estimated that from a quarter to half a million people have returned within the last fortnight.

Reasons for the return are not far to seek. In the first place the fear of being shut up in a bleaguered city is so greatly diminished as hardly to count in the calculations of those who fled when those "terrible Germans" were practically under our walls. Winter ic coming on and life in a metropolis in winter, especially when one is in one's own familiar home, is preferable to the discomforts and rigors of an unknown countryside or provincial town. Schools hav reopened and parents naturally wish to be with their boys and girls at this important period.

Bombs from the enemy's "Taubes" are still ugly possibilities, to be sure; but reflection has led people to see that the chance of their being the individuals victimized is so small in a town of nearly 2,000,000 inhabitants as to be negligible.

Consequntly, though half or more of the shops are shut and nearly all the hotels are shut, though there are no motor 'buses, the city is beginning to look normal again, the sidewalks are crowded here at the sacred hour of dejeuner, and while the cafes are open (which is until 8 p.m.) they are nearly as thronged as in antebellum times.

Every One Reads Bulletins.

Naturally hardly anything is spoken of but the war and the daily bulletins issued by the French military headquarters at the Invalides, where also is the headquarters of Gen. Gallieni, the Military Governor of Paris, and an almost absolute autocrat for the time being, that is to say as long as the city continues to be in the "state of siege." Two official bulletins are issued daily, one at 3 p.m. and the other at 11 p.m. Both are of equal interest and importance, but the afternoon bulletin creates, of course, a wider and more obvious effect on Parisian outward life than that published at night, which is only read by the vast majority in the early hours of the morning, the first thing, in fact, on geting out of bed, and very often before getting up.

Should you be an early riser and go out without having read this morning bulletin it is possible to gather its tenor from the faces of those one meets. If the news is good every one's face is more or less radiant; if not good, and for a long time it has not been decidedly bad, the faces of those you see reading the papers wear a calm look and never a really depressed one.

The news of the occupation of Antwerp, and shortly afterward that of Ostend, was a setback, but neither piece of news caused anything like panic or even apprehension. Both were felt to be either what the military experts in the papers said they were, namely empty triumphs, which could have little or no bearing on the ultimate issue of the war, or else the fact that the allies had permitted them was accepted as part of Gen. Joffre's plan of campaign.

Have Faith in Joffre.

Since the General's display of excellent judgment when ordering the offensive movement all along the front which closed with the victory of the Marne, every one here is satisfid that the General knows well what he is about, and that if certain apparent German successes are not prevented they are either not hindered of set purpose or else they will be immediately after made good by the valour of the allies' troops.

Still it is undeniable that a state of tension constantly exists, and a highly unpleasant state of feeling it at times becomes. What makes the tension worse is that it is never wholly relaxed, much less relieved. Under modern conditions of warfare battles are not decided in a day or two or three, but it takes weeks and almost, one may say, months for the final result to be disclosed.

Consequently, too, there is always present a condition of subdued mental excitement in the minds of most people, but only in the minds of very few indeed is there a sentiment of real alarm. The reason for this is that every one here, with hardly a single exception, is so thoroughly convinced that the allies must win in the end that the conviction leaves absolutely no place for apprehension on that or indeed any other score.

Fashionable Restaurants Close.

In no rspect whatever, so far as an ordinary resident can remark, is there in Paris any lack as regards food or usual articles of household consumption. The city markets are well supplied, prices have not risen appreciably, or if they have it is by but a trifling percentage. As was to be expected, once the stream of American and other visitors ceased and the great majority of American and British residents had retired on London, the chief fashionable restaurants, like Paillard's and Voisin's, practically closed their doors.

Some of the restaurants of what may be called the second class also ceased business, but this was almost as much owing to the mobilization of the owners and employees as owing to want of custom. Maxim's bar in the Rue Royale remains open, but no sarabands are being danced in its halls and the demi-monde for the once rapidly-flowing Martini and Manhattan are few and far between.

It is at night that Paris strikes one most as having changed in character, for it has become a city not of light, but of darkness. A large proportion of its lamps are out, while the rays of the remainder are apparently so dimmed as to serve only to make darkness visible.

Time was when it was like being in some fairyland to stand in the Place de la Concorde, or on one of the Seine bridges, or at the Arc de Triomphe and look on Paris dressed in her ball costume, a blaze of diamonds sparkling on diaphanous tissues.

Since the war broke out in the beginning of August that scene is no longer to be witnessed, but rather a Paris in deep mourning with the suggestion in the mind of the spectator of a quietly-flowing river of tears behind.

A DEPRESSED INDUSTRY.

A corespondent who has been on special police duty up the river tells me that one of the depressed industries since the outbreak of the war is that of recovering bodies from the Thames. The finder of a dead body who brings it ashore is paid six shillings and sixpence. In normal times at the up-the-river stations they would have reckoned on recovering a dozen subjects already this month, but as it is they have not had a single find. It is the same right down the river. Rogue Riderhood's occupation is gone. In ordinary times a hundred bodies a year are found in the Thames, but since the outbreak of war there have been hardly any. I do not give these as official figures, but there is no reason to doubt the general fact. The explanation must be psychological. In a time of national strain and suspense perhaps people are not so absorbed in their own sorrow and there are consequently fewer suicides. We know from the experience of the police force that there has been much less crime since the war began, and that, too, may have helped to deprive the Thames of its toll of bodies.—Manchester Guardian.

CANADA MORE THAN EVER

Marching abreast down the street they come
To the whistle of fife and the beat of drum
While a hush comes over the man in the street
And the big tears roll down each matron's cheek.
Mothers o' men, how their hearts beat slow
And their lips turn white, with the dreadful pain,
And the thought that through weary days to come
They may never behold their boys again.

More than ever we need thee
Canada, more than ever;
Turn deaf ears to England's call!
Never! Canadians, never!

More than ever we need our boys
On the homestead-section and lea,
To plough and reap, to wrest with the soil,
Court danger o'er land and sea,
To dare and struggle, to work and toil
That their children may be fed,
On the vast white plains in prairie homes,
By chance or by fortune led.

The throng of the nations need thy help
Brave Canada, bold and free,
Feel the need of the brawn and brain
And the strength of thy mighty hand.
They will fight for King George
And the homes they love
And the dear old Motherland,
Scottie and British John, and men Canadian born.

Heirs of old pioneers, ready and willing to fight,
They will charge straight on
And face the foe
For England, honour and right.
More than ever we need thee
Canada, more than ever;
Turn our back on old England's call?
Never! Canadians, never!

SALT AND ELECTRICITY.

A correspondent has sent the "Scientific American" a clipping from a local paper describing a curious effect that resulted from whitewashing a barn. The whitewashing contained a strong percentage of salt, causing it to dry very slowly. The salt crept through the wiring of the electric light lines and also those of the telephone company, forming a short circuit, which burned out a large place in the ceiling when the lights were turned on. The salt formed a conductor that extended to practically every piece of metal in the barn, as is shown by the fact that light shocks could be obtained by touching them.

RICHARD HALL & SONS LIMITED

ALL SAINTS' CHURCH ASSOCIATION

Pleasing Entertainment and a Stirring Patriotic Speech in the Parish Hall Last Night--Mr. D. O'Connell's Oration

The Church Association of All Saints' Anglican Church must be a thriving organization, judging from the numbers present in the Parish Hall last night on the occasion of a social gathering and a fine patriotic speech delivered by Mr. O'Connell.

The room had been tastefully decorated with THE Flag, and a large profusion of streamers, bannerets, etc., and presented a bright, cheerful appearance.

Shortly after 8 o'clock the proceedings commenced by the singing, joined in by all present, of Kipling's "Lest We Forget," following which the Rector, the Rev. R. B. Grobb, offered up prayer, while all joined in the Lord's Prayer.

Miss Dawson, who acted as 'chairwoman," for the evening then announced the first number of the musical programme—which in its entirety was as follows:

Programme.

Chorus—'Lest We Forget,' by the audience.
Religious exercise—Rev. R. B. Grobb.
Piano solo—Miss Bridge.
Vocal solo and chorus—'Tipperary'—Mr. Farr and choir.
Cornet solo—'O Canada'—Master Paul Gliddon.
Violin solo—Selection from "Il Trovatore"—Mr. Fred Hooper.
Patriotic address—Mr. O'Connell.
Vocal solo and chorus—Mr. Webber and choir.
Violin solo—Selections—Mr. Parke.
"God Save the King."

All the numbers were heartily received. Miss Bridge, a youthful pianiste, deserves great credit. Evidently she has been taught by a capable, painstaking instructress.

Of course, "It's a Long Way to Tipperary," found a halting-place on the programme. This now famous song was given by Mr. Farr, supported by a chorus; and the catchy, lilting tune was taken up by the audience, which item was not on the programme. Mr. Paul Gliddon's cornet solo was much appreciated as was also a violin solo by Mr. Fred Hooper, whose selections from 'Il Trovatore' were deservedly loudly applauded. Mr. Parke's violin solo was very finely executed. This gentleman proved, beyond a doubt, that he is thoroughly master of his difficult instrument. Mr. Webber's solo with chorus by the choir was well received. "God Save the King" concluded this part of the entertainment.

Mr. D. O'Connell was set down for a speech on the war question and a very fine, soul-appealing, patriotic address he gave too. We have published so many patriotic addresses in our columns that every point in connection with the war, as to cause and effect, must be now quite familiar to such of our readers who 'run and read.'

Mr. O'Connell, who is a very powerful, forceful speaker, commenced by pointing out circumstances which had led up to the war—a war which had been contemplated by the German military party for years past; the object being in reality the domination of the biggest part of the world. He drew a word picture of the terrible state of desolation into which inoffensive, peace-loving Belgium had been thrown by the repudiation of treaties, and of what would take place if the German plan had been a success. Of course, to a certain extent, his remarks applied to part of France which had been devasted, winding up his powerful remarks by deeply impressing on all present that it behooves one and all to do everything in one's power—aye, even more than that, by making sacrifices—to render some assistance to those whose homes and country have been made desolate through no fault of their own.

One great point which the speaker brought out in his powerful speech, was the likening of Germany of the present day to the Rome of ancient days, when that city of learning and culture and luxury became aggressive. Its militarism and national strength spread out over various parts of the known world. The Emperor was gathering into his own hands all the power and civic organization all over the world; everything was subservient to the State. As the State increased in power and money, people began to lose their noble character; high principles began to fall and the barbarians' from outside the Goths, the Visigoths, the Franks, the Huns and Attila, 'the scourge of God' (the King of the Huns) tore the empire to pieces. So will it be in the present and the future of that empire which has been the means of setting up twenty millions of men on an enormous battlefield, except that the barbarians will be replaced by enlightened peoples.

Mr. O'Connell's remarks were listened to with wrapt attention and elicited a great round of applause. Needless to say that on the motion of Miss Dawson, a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. O'Connell was given by acclamation.

Miss Margaret Flowers, in her usual skilful and pleasing manner, performed the arduous and too-often little appreciated duties of accompanist to the entire satisfaction of all concerned.

After the programme was completed a promenade for a short time was indulged in. On entering, each lady had been presented with a tag bearing a number, a similar set of numbers being presented to the 'mere men.' On the conclusion of the programme those bearing similar numbers had to introduce themselves to each other and a pleasant social half hour was spent.

A word of praise is due to the Misses Dawson and Rush, who were indefatigable in their endeavours to promote the success of the entertainment.

WILL BE A COLD WINTER

Signs Point to Unusual Weather Conditions

The coming winter promises to be one that will be remembered for many years, on account of some very unusual features.

Last winter was noted for its cold streaks, and one of these was the wonderfully warm spell in the middle of the time allotted us for winter. The temperature was up to summer heat in many of the middle and western sections, but it will be just the opposite this winter. We shall have temperatures below normal in January and Februoury. Winter will be shorter than it has been on some former occasions, but we will be satisfied when it begins to moderate.

A Late Spring.

After the most intense cold we have experienced for years, we shall have a mild spell, and great thaws and floods will result, and folks will be congratulating themselves on the likelihood of an early Spring, but it would be advisable to wait until the forecast of the truthful caterpillar has been realized.

If the indications hold good, we shall have a very late and backward spring, with real winter at the time we should have fine spring-like weather.

The caterpillar shows light in front followed with a very well-defined dark spot of considerable size, and this dark indicates our mid-winter snap.

Then the light appears again, and this indicates the warm spell, and if there was no more dark there would be a prospect of a very early Spring, but another dark spot appears toward the rear of the caterpillar, and this will bring the late and unseasonable cold at the time we should have our mild weather.

Last winter was noted for its unusual severity in some of the Southern States where we naturally expect a mild climate.

The far North, where we naturally expected severe weather, had a mild Winter and these conditions were due to the fact that most of the seismic disturbances during the last months of last year were in the north.

The earthquakes during the past few weeks have been more noticeable in the southern portion of the northern hemisphere, and this will modify the weather in the southern sections of our country, while the cold will be intense in the more northern portions and all through the northern part of North America the temperature will range far below normal during a great portion of our Winter period.

It has been many years since the vernal equinox was on the 2nd of September.

Severe Freezing.

It has been more than a century since the United States experienced as little disturbance at the equinox as was experienced this year. No storms of any degree appeared except along the North Pacific Coast.

In this part of the world the lows and highs, as we are used to speaking of the relative atmospheric conditions which move across the country, producing the changes in our weather, were moving slowly as at any other time in the year, which is different from the usual condition at the period of the equinox.

Larvae of insects are deeper in the earth, field mice and other burrowing animals are nesting deeper, and bark on new wood is much thicker, and weeds are thicker where roots will need protection. All these indicate severe freezing.

In almost every section of the country where there was a shortage of rainfall during the summer months, Autumn rains have replenished running springs, and if cold weather does come back live stock will not suffer for want of water.

Rainy autumns are pretty certain indications of severe freezing during the winter, while dry autumn months often foretell a mild, open winter.

Autumn leaves tinted with frost indicate early winter, but when the leaves die and fall off without frost the winter will hold off late, but be more than ordinarily cold.

Corn husks and the chaff on grain were heavier this season than common, and weed seed are retained in heavier coverings than are usually noticed.

Our weather is the result of a cause and if we only get at the cause we can easily foretell the result. Watch and see how these predictions compare with the actual results.

France Faces Long War With Plenty of Food

With the French Army at the Front (via Paris) — Nov. 20.—France is prepared to wage the war to the utter end. Everything shows clearly how perfectly the republic has made ready. What I have seen and heard give me the impression that France faces a long war, absolutely unafraid.

After talking with officers and men at the front for several days, I am confident that the general situation of the allies is excellent. Optimism is evident on every hand and the one thing which impressed me the most was the absolute preparedness of the Government and the forces in the field to continue the combat indefinitely.

Since quitting Paris the correspondents and military attaches of eight neutral countries have been permitted behind the scenes. Designated as the press representative of America, I have been permitted to visit fields and enter lines from which all civilians have heretofore been rigorously barred. I have visited and inspected a re-victualing station which feeds 350,000 soldiers. The system is perfectly organized. This station is more like a model of permanent works than part of a temporary war machine.

Great sheds are filled to the roof with staples. There is flour, wheat, wine, etc. The sidetracks are crowded with loaded cars awaiting for space to be made for them that they may be unloaded.

It is General Joffre who stands forth as the guardian of the men of France. The officers of the French Army are confident they will out-last Germany from the standpoint of men despite the fact that France has a much smaller population. They believe this because General Joffre is a master at conserving his troops. In the fighting to date, his losses have been infinitely inferior to Germany's.

The bearing of the French troops is admirable. I have yet to see a disgruntled soldier. In the last four days I inspected several military hospitals and talked with the wounded. Even the most seriously injured smiled through their pain and said they were impatient to return to the front.

At the supply station I was even permitted to examine the commandant's books, showing all statistics in plain figures. And it was evident that France is perfectly prepared in this direction for protracted war.

The countries represented by correspondents and military attaches on the present trip are: Italy, Spain, Denmark, Switzerland, Norway, Sweden, Holland and America.

C.P.R.'S FOURTH VESSEL ON CLYDE

Metagama, Sister Ship to Missanabie, Launched Friday, Breaking Record.

The Metagama sister ship to the Missanabie, was successfully launched Friday and christened by Lady Biles wife of Sir John Harvard Biles, LL.D., designer for the British Admiralty, in the yards of Barclay Curie and Co. at Glasgow. When the Metagama went down the ways she created a record which bids fair to remain unbroken by any shipping company engaged in Canadian or American business. She is the fourth vessel launched by the Canadian Pacific on the Clyde this year. In the light of present conditions this is a glowing commentary on the substantial condition of her owners' exchequer.

The Metagama's sister ship, the Missanabie, reached Montreal recently on her second voyage out of Liverpool, and went back again Friday morning. They are of the "one class" type, with passenger accommodation for 250 second and 1,200 third-class. Each has a length of 530 feet and a beam of 64 feet, while the breadth of the passenger decks are 41 feet. Each vessel has a dead weight capacity of 7,950 tons, with an approximate cargo capacity of 6,000 tons. The famous cruiser stern which is also the feature of the new boats placed on the Pacific is introduced by these boats on the Atlantic. The new ships have six complete steel decks. In order to ensure safety the hulls are sub-divided by water-tight doors and bulk-heads, so as to be capable of floating when three compartments are open to the sea. These water-tight bulkheads and doors are automatically controlled from the bridge. The speed of each vessel is 15 1-2 knots, with a draught of 27.5. As for the interior of the vessels, each cabin state room is fitted with a wardrobe and chest of drawers, folding lavatory with mirror and other conveniences. The public roonis are dining saloon, smoking room, lounge and drawing room. The domestic refrigerating plant is capable of making 300 lbs. of ice per eight hours. The vessels are heated and ventilated on the thermo-tank and Crittal system, changing air eight miles each hour. There is also a printing plant on board each vessel. They are fitted with Murray's patent nested life boats as well as motor life boats. They are the first steamers to have Babcock and Wilcox patent davits which enable the boats to be launched from either side of the ship even when at a considerable list.

GERMAN ARMY IN U. S.

John Drexel Says Kaiser Has 300,000 Fighting Men There.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—"Germany has six army corps, equivalent to 300,000 officers and men, in this country already, and if she wins the present war it will be our turn next."

Such was the statement made by John R. Drexel, of this city, when he returned from Europe on the Adriatic. He has spent most of the last two months in Vichy, France, and declared he had a splendid opportunity to see the German fighting machine at work.

"It is a wonderful machine and is being very cleverly handled by the most astute group of men in the world, the German general staff," he continued. "It is up to this government to take immediate steps to increase the strength of our standing army and to double our fleet."

Singing Lightens Duty.

If soldiers be encouraged by the authorities to sing on the march, civil servants might be exhorted to lighten their duties in the same way. Sir Laurence Gomme confesses that at the beginning of his official career he used to add up huge columns of figures for statistical purposes by the simple process of doing the task to the tune of Gregorian music, and he was always correct in his arithmetical results. Examples of the practice of performing labour tasks to the accompaniment of music could, Sir Laurence says, be produced all over the world. He instances the case of the London pavers who until 40 years ago or so used to be inducted by their mates of the prices of a pot of ale if they omitted to groan rhythmally at each thud of the rain

How To Make the Quickest, Simplest Cough Remedy

Much Better than the Ready-Made Kind and You Save $2. Fully Guaranteed

This home-made cough syrup is now used in more homes than any other cough remedy. Its promptness, ease and certainty in conquering distressing coughs, chest and throat colds is really remarkable. You can actually feel it take hold. A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough—relieves even whooping cough quickly. Splendid, too, for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, bronchial asthma and winter coughs.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour it into a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. This gives you, at a cost of only 54 cents, 16 ounces of better cough syrup than you could buy for $2.50. Takes but a few minutes to prepare. Full directions with Pinex. Tastes good and never spoils.

You will be pleasantly surprised to note how quickly it loosens dry, hoarse or tight coughs, and heals the inflamed membranes in a painful cough. It also stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in guaiacol, which is so healing to the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, be sure and ask your druggist for "2½ ounces Pinex," and don't accept anything else.

THE DREAMS OF AUSTRIA ABOUT RESULT OF WAR

Plans for Germanic Dictatorship in Europe Are Formulated

VIENNA, Nov. 21—With what may seem of considerable significance to readers of the Sun, in America, I am able to state that diplomates here are beginning to discuss the question of compensation, of indemnities of peace terms, though as yet in a general and rather academic manner. I've had chats, perfectly informal and wholly "uninspired," I must confess, with Prince Sohn, first secretary of the German Embassy, here; with American Ambassador Penfield, with a gentleman prominently connected with the Foreign Office here and others. I perceive this much: That it will be a very difficult task, much more so than was the conclusion of the peace of Portsmouth, N.H., ten years ago. While I was talking with Mr. Penfield a long cipher despatch, some 1,500 words, came from Washington. Mr. Wilson, as doubtless everybody knows, is making strenuous efforts to bring about an early reconciliation all around.

Seek Servian Humiliation.

It will be relatively easy to do that, so far as Austria-Hungary is concerned. Her chief objects are first, the thorough humiliation of Servia, and, second, a sufficient guarantee that Russia will renounce her policy of provocation, her Pan-Slavic dreams, her Balkan preponderance, her thirst for aggrandisement. Austro-Hungary and Germany to achieve the second of these points, have agreed to free the Poles from the Muscovite yoke and to reestablish an independent and autonomous Poland, either wholly free and under a native dynasty, or else to be governed under a mild form of Austrian suzerainty by Archduke Carl Stephen, who is wholly Polish in his sympathies and in great favour with the Poles of every falk of life, or somebody as good for the purpose, forming a personal union with the dual monarchy. I understand that negotiations to that end have been carried on between all the parties concerned, including the Polish political leaders of every stripe, even the Socialists.

The chief difficulty in the way of course is the fact that so far Russia is still strong and unbroken in a military sense and much more crushing and decisive defeats must be administered to Russia before the whole plan becomes even feasible. These defeats, it is here and in Germany believed, will come in good time, that is, as soon as large enough German forces may be detached from France and Belgium and added to the Austro-Hungarian ones for the purpose. This, it is deemed, will not be long hence, probably by November or earlier.

All preparations are here being made for a winter campaign in Russia. Of course, unforeseen circumstances may arise, either favourable or unfavourable. It is idle to speculate on these just now, such as an appearance of Turkey, Roumania or Bulgaria, or even of Italy on the scene, for or against. The talk so far mainly considers the actual status.

Polish Uprising Expected.

One of the chief Polish leaders, who is very active in all this, and who is one of my regular informants, explained to me that a rising en masse of the Poles in Russian Poland will not take place until Poland be in the hands of either Germany or Austria-Hungary. Then, he said, they would rise. At first, early in August, many prominent Russian Poles, believing that Russia had abandoned the provinces, became active in subscribing funds and organizing Polish volunteer legions to establish an independent Poland.

They even published the names of donors in Warsaw Polish papers quite openly. Then the Austro-Hungarian army met with reverses before Lemberg, had to retire and give up part of Galicia, while the Russians returned to Warsaw in force and Shilinsky, the Governor-General of Russian Poland, caused all those whose names had been published in these subscription lists to be shot forthwith as traitors.

This and other things had been a setback to the whole movement for Polish independence. But only a setback. It survives as a whole and will show new strength when the time comes.

The German Emperor, I am told, is willing to aid the cause by all means. The proclamations of his generals in Russian Poland show that now. He is ever willing to cede the purely Polish part of Prussia in Posen and Silesia and West Prussia: A Buffer State large, populous and wealthy enough to command respect and backed up both by Germany and Austria-Hungary. That is the idea.

Organize Polish Legions.

Meanwhile the idea itself has taken firm root among all the Poles, and their enthusiasm is being kindled. Two Polish legions have been organized on Austrian soil, and a third is in process of formation. So far some 10,000 are under arms, drilled and equipped at their own cost, and excellently, I must say. They are so far acting mainly as Scouts, advance guards, and have been successful in a number of small engagements with the Russian troops. But though wearing Austrian field uniforms of light grey, with the black and yellow of Austria on the sleeve and on their cap, the distinctive Polish "Konfederatka," being a little different. Russia has given notice here that these Polish volunteer corps will not be recognized as "regulars," but will be shot on sight and hanged if caught; all of which does not deter them.

FOOTBALL IS IN DISGRACE

Fifteen Thousand at London Match Did Not Yield Single Recruit

LONDON, Nov. 24. — Indignation against the hitherto universally popular game of football is expressed by nearly the entire British press yesterday, because almost no men enlisted as a result of the recruiting rallies at Saturday's matches.

"It is time to eradicate the football cancer," says The Pall Mall Gazette, in an article which goes on to say that not a single man was recruited at London's principal football match, which was attended by 15,000 spectators. A colonel who lost a son at the front and was himself returning to the firing line, appeared at this game and pleaded with the men to enlist. His words were drowned by shouts which greeted the appearance of the teams.

In other parts of the country the same stolid refusal greeted the bands of speakers and recruiting officers.

The Westminster Gazette says that there is only one way in which the football association an put itself right in the eyes of the public, and that is by discontinuing its program.

BASRAH IS TAKEN.

British Troops Also Reported to Have Occupied Jaffa.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—It is officially announced that British troops have occupied Basrah, a town at the mouth of the Euphrates, on the Persian Gulf, in Turkish territory. The occupation took place on the 21st instant.

An unofficial report received here yesterday says the Turks have retired from the Sinai Peninsula as a result of their defeat at El Arish; it is also reported that Jaffa, the port of Jerusalem, has been occupied by British troops.

BE PREPARED FOR INVASION

LONDON, Nov. 23—"We must prepare for possibilities. It is the unexpected that happens in war."

That was the opinion of Lieut.-General Sir Robert Baden-Powell, who was interviewed by a Daily Mail representative concerning the probability of invasion.

The Chief Scout said that a German raid was extremely feasible and by no means the imaginary hypothesis that so many minds supposed. It was quite within the range of practical achievement, for instance, that German transports, each holding some 10,000 men, should leave the nine or ten ports specially prepared for the embarkation of troops at out-of-the-way places on the littoral, make the short sea passage, and so land their 90,000 men or more within a few hours.

Choice of Yorkshire.

To his mind, the attempt would most likely be made off the coast of Yorkshire, not in Norfolk or Suffolk. One of the German schemes known to the War Office disregarded London as the capital of this country, considering the real capital in the heart of the manufacturing and thickly populated centres.

A hostile raid on the Yorkshire coast, a rapid march straight across England, the enforced evacuation of inhabitants from the cities, and the demolition of the latter by dynamite —and there are at once 14,000,000 people starving and on the hands of the little army in the south. It was thus conceivable that England might be conquered without any great pitched battle—though, the General added, not probable.

GERMANS COMMENCE FINAL EFFORT TO BREAK LINES

Soissons and Rheims Are Objects of Artillery Fire in Order to Draw French From Lorraine and Meuse Districts —Kaiser Evidently Bent on Another Attempt to Smash Through Lines.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The latest advices from France say that the town of Ypres, Belgium, held by the British, and the cities of Rheims and Soissons, in France, have been subjected to a heavy bombardment from hostile artillery, and that Ypres is in flames. The public markets, the cathedral and the belfry, the latter begun in 1200 and completed in 1304, are on fire. This bombardment is believed to herald another tremendous assault by the Germans in an attempt to accomplish at Ypres what has failed at Nieuport, Dixmude and elsewhere.

"To-day, as yesterday, there was cannonading in the north and in the direction of Soissons and Rheims.

"In the Argonne there were violent attacks by both sides which, however, were without results."

"Yesterday was marked by a violent artillery fire. The enemy directed his attention particularly to the town of Ypres, where the belfry, the cathedral, the markets and a number of houses were set on fire, to Soissons and to Rheims.

"In the Argonne the day was characterized by very hot fighting. The enemy delivered very spirited attacks, which were repulsed. In the Woevre and the Vosges the situation is without change."

The bombardment of Rheims and Soissons is believed to be an effort to turn the attention of the French from the vigorous campaign which they are prosecuting along the Meuse, and on the Lorraine frontier, where fresh successes are being achieved daily by the armies of the republic. It may also be intended to cover the transfer of German troops from the western to the eastern front.

There is a recrudescence of activity along the Belgian coast and British warships were engaged yesterday in a vigorous exchange with German land batteries. The effect of this action cannot be learned, but all reports agree that the Kaiser is evidently bent on another try at Dunkirk. Heavy guns have been mounted from Nieuport to Knocke, and the entire population of the latter town and Zeebrugge have been moved to Bruges. They were not allowed to rendesvous in Holland, but were coerced in going to Bruges. This place is declared to be garrisoned for the most part by German troopers suffering from trifling wounds. Similar reports of a wholesale exodus from St. Nicholas, a city of 40,000 people, between Antwerp and Ghent, comes by way of Holland. The German military officials have ordered every one in the town to move to Antwerp instantly, where they will be provided with quarters. The order is imperative, and is said to have specified that no one must remain in St. Nicholas.

A despatch from Thielt, Belgium, says:—

"There are clear indications that "General November" will take a leading part in the operations along the front by the Yser river. The days of cold wet weather have been followed by three days of frost over the entire territory outlined by the cities of Middelkerke, Thourout, Thielt, Roniers and Ypres. Much of this region is covered with stubble fields, over which there is a coating of ice, making them almost impassible for man or beast.

"The German troops are living in the ruins of two scores of villages and small cities. They are becoming impatient at the delay and are suffering from icy winds which penetrate the windowless buildings in which they seek some sort of shelter. They would prefer a general attack to finish the battle, but any such sudden movement is prevented by the inundation along the front.

"The Germans are awaiting with great hopes the arrival of engineers, whose duty it will be to find some means of crossing the inundated territory, but the methods which are to be employed, if decided upon, are being kept secret."

Measures To Prevent Invasion

Britain Safeguarded by Emergency Committees Says Tennant

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Plans for dealing with a possible German invasion were spoken of last night in the House of Commons by Under Secretary for War Tennant.

W. C. Bridgeman, member from Shropshire, asked whether the wearing of brassards would insure that persons taking part in the defence of the country would not be regarded as civilians. He also asked if the Government was aware that many active men over the recruiting age desire to fight in the event of an invasion and are prepared to furnish their own arms and equipment, if the War Office will design a uniform for such a force.

Mr. Tennant replied that the War Office felt it was the first duty of the navy to prevent a raid.

"In event of its taking place," he said, "it is our duty to drive the Germans into the sea as fast as we can, and I hope we shall be enabled to do so."

In regard to the action of the civil population if an invasion takes place, he pointed out that emergency committees had been formed in the various counties where there was any danger of an invasion, and instructions were being issued to those committees. He thought it was not desirable to state at this time what these instructions were.

The Pall Mall Gazette, referring to the report of "liveliness" at Emden says it "accords very well with what passed in this country last week."

"Military movement, took place," continues the paper, "which, of course, we shall not dwell upon in detail, but which gave rise to the almost universal belief that the authorities had news of some attempt to be made against us. The attitude of the public mind was one of interest. It certainly was not one of alarm."

"A WANDERER IN LONDON"

Quite a large audience gathered in the School-room of St. Luke's Church last evening to hear a lecture entitled "A Wanderer in London," by Rev. F. J. Sawers. The subject was replete with interest, and told in the graphic and fluent style of the speaker, provided a pleasant and profitable evening. Mr. Sawers took his hearers on an imaginary trip through the great Metropolis, visiting historic places, of which many of those present had only learned of through the medium of reading, but were seen more clearly last evening than ever before, by the realistic descriptions of the lecturer. The speaker gave interesting accounts of some of his own experiences and impressions gained while abroad, some of which were very amusing.

Misses Calder and Greene gave two pianoforte duets that were much enjoyed.

RAID WAS SUCCESSFUL

Aviators Seriously Damaged Zeppelin Sheds After All

LONDON, Nov. 24. — It was announced officially yesterday afternoon that the British aviators who, Saturday afternoon raided Friedrichshafen, on Lake Constance, report positively that all the bombs thrown by them reached their objective and that serious damage was done to the Zeppelin airship factory.

Details were given in the House of Commons by Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty.

"Commander Briggs is reported to have been shot down," said Mr. Churchill, "and to have been taken wounded, to a hospital, as a prisoner. The two other officers, Flight Commander Babington and Lieut. Sippe, returned safely to French territory, although their machines were damaged by the fire of the enemy. They report positively that all of the bombs reached their objective, and that serious damage was done to the Zeppelin factory.

"This flight of 250 miles, penetrating 120 miles into Germany across a mountainous country under difficult weather conditions, constitutes, together with the attack, a fine feat of arms."

Another Raid Made.

BERLIN, Nov. 24. — The British aviators who attempted to destroy the Zeppelin headquarters at Friedrichshafen on Saturday are said here today also to have made an attack on the buildings at Manzell, to the west of Friedrichshafen, which are used for the housing of dirigibles. The attack was without results.

LIFE-SAVERS WERE DROWNED

Effort of San Francisco to Reach Imperilled Passengers Fails

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 24.—Five members of a crew of life-savers trying to reach the steam schooner Hanalei, wrecked on Duxbury Reef, nine miles north of San Francisco, were drowned last night. Two of the Hanalei's crew were drowned late yesterday while trying to make their way through the surf with lines. Two passengers swam to safety.

The lives of 55 other men and women, who were clinging to the sloping decks of the fast-breaking up schooner, hung in the balance. A thick fog prevented relief ships from aiding the Hanalei and when darkness closed in and the rescue craft sought safety in deep water, it was realized that the only possible hope was to get a line out from shore.

The crew of the Golden Gate Life-Saving Station started to the scene of the wreck with a line-throwing mortar, and were due to reach the ship at midnight.

SORE DEFIED DOCTORS

Zam-Buk Worked a Marvellous Cure.

Mr. Earle G. Appleby, of Big River, Sask., writes: "Two years ago, while at work, I injured my left heel. The wound did not heal, but left an open sore about an inch and a half long. As you can imagine, this was extremely painful. I tried every salve that was mentioned to me, but could not get relief, and so I then tried several old-fashioned remedies, such as wax, dropped into the sore, hot tallow, etc., and finally went to a doctor who stitched the sore. This was fairly successful for a time, but last winter the wound opened up again, and was as bad as ever. To say I was discouraged would be putting it mildly. I started in again trying all kinds of remedies, and suffered hours of agony.

"My predicament was noticed by a fellow workman, who persuaded me to give Zam-Buk a trial. I did so, although I did not expect it would prove any better than the other remedies I had tried. In a short time after Zam-Buk had been applied the inflammation and pain were practically gone. Within a week the sore showed signs of healing. I continued with Zam-Buk and it finally closed the sore and healed it completely. I consider this cure so marvellous that I am sending this unsolicited testimonial, hoping it will influence other sufferers to give this wonderful ointment a fair trial."

Zam-Buk is purely herbal, and is healing, soothing, and antiseptic. Does not contain animal fats or poisonous colouring matter.

Use Zam-Buk for cuts, burns, bruises, obstinate sores, eczema, piles, chapped hands, cold sores, rheumatism, and all injuries and skin diseases.

All druggists and stores or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, on receipt of price, 50c. box, 3 boxes for $1.25. Refuse substitutes.

THE GERMAN FATHERLAND

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—At this time when so much attention has been drawn to the German system of espionage, many of your readers will remember the remarkable influx of German bands all over Britain, generally consisting of from four to six pieces, and although in some cases these men collected money enough to pay expenses, even when the reverse was the case, they appeared well supplied with means. From 1880 to 1890, when the German rulers started in to really make their navy exceed the two-power standard, the spy system was at last taken serious notice of, and the obviously clumsy and "patent to all the world" methods gave way to the later almost occult and far-seeing organization, which spreads all over the British Empire specially, to prepare for "The Day." About the time of Britain's awakening to the fact of the German menace, Germans became the butt of music hall songs and quips generally. The following song was produced in the 80's by George Grossmith:

"The German Fatherland."
The Germans are a noble race,
And of that race I'll sing.
They love their pa's and adore their ma's,
And they idolize their King.
And these frugal folk are a happy folk,
And their life is one long song:
Praising the Fatherland, the happy Fatherland,
Which they do the whole day long.

From day to day and year to year
They manufacture wine:
You see the growing vineyards
As you journeys up the Rhine.
I've tasted every country's wine,
But of all the wines I've tried,
That of the Fatherland, the happy Fatherland,
Gives the greatest pain inside.

Their music, ah! their music,
Of the future it will be;
They like it good, they like it loud,
And minus melody.
They won't permit loud, vulgar tunes,
For nothing could be "wus,"
That's why the Fatherland, the happy Fatherland,
Send their German bands to us.

They all adore, as I said before,
Their country and their King.
In busine they are very cute,
A most important thing.
So they come to us, and they succeed so well;
That they settle on our shore:
That's why the Fatherland, the happy Fatherland,
Never sees them any more.

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

Eat Less Meat If You Feel Backachy or Have Bladder Trouble

Meat forms uric acid which excites kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effercescent litha-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

scantily clad women stood in snow and cold awaiting food," the message said; "at Malines, so acute was the suffering from the hunger of the old men and women that they clawed our hands ravenously, necessitating the use of peroxide to prevent infection."

LONDON, November 24. — During the last week Berlin declared the greatest hope of the eastern campaign was placed on the outcome of the battle about Lodz. The German forces there however failed to push forward on a line with those which had advanced to the Russian defences between Lowicz and Skierhiewice. This necessitated the lengthening of the entire line extending to the southwest to protect the German flank, and the line of communication. Official Petrograd reports indicate that the Germans have suffered heavy losses in their retreat. The Russians have pressed forward with extreme vigour in an effort to prevent the re-establishment of the German line for another offensive movement. The Russians are declared to outnumber the Germans by at least two to one, but on every hand the wonderful organization of the German army has been brought into play towards raising its mobility to the highest degree.

BERLIN, via wireless to Sayville, — While eventual victory for the Austro-German troops in the eastern theatre of war is confidently expected, the official reports from the German and Austrian headquarters today make it appear that the decision will not come as soon as had been expected, while the advance of the new Russian troops from Warsaw delays the final results. The Austrians announce that they have abandoned several passes in the Carpathians to superior hostile forces. The Russians investing Przemysl have been driven back by a sortie and are now beyond cannon range of the forts.

LONDON, November 24.—Lloyd's is betting two to three that war will end by March next. The rate on risks up to that time has been lowered, despite the present reports of preparations for an invasion of England as well as stories that additional nations are to be drawn into the conflict.

A Home Guard's Plea For Unity

Peterborough, Ont., Nov. 23, 1914.

To the Editor of The Examiner

Dear Sir,—The unanimity of opinion that exists amongst the people of the British Empire as to our justification in entering into this war has surprised the world. This surprise is caused by the fact that the empire is made up of so many classes of people, who differ in opinion upon so many different questions that are vital to their interests, both in this world and the next.

The unity of the empire is our greatest asset, but in order to make it effective it must be backed up by deeds that call for some sacrifice, prompted and inspired by true patriotism. In order to get results there must be a unity of action. There is no doubt that this unity does not exist in our city, and our patriotism is rather of a tin-horn nature. We have been weighed in the balance with other cities and found wanting. There must be a cause, and what is it? In the first place are not many of our would-be leaders professional patriots who owe their commanding position to the fact that they were able to disunite the people?

It should be the first duty of the Home Guards to strangle any movement that is started to increase this hatred and enmity that has been encouraged and fostered by politicians and those seeking our municipal franchise.

A man is weak in principle who will adopt this means in order to gain or retain municipal or political power. At this time when the unity of the empire counts for so much, we should be ashamed before the rest of the Dominion in public ingrace if we are such weaklings that we cannot check a move of this kind.

The Home Guard has made a grand start and while we are preparing to meet the foreign enemy let us defeat the enemy of unity and the empire in our midst and by so doing protect the honour of our city.

One of the Home Guard.

MONEY WILL BE USEFUL

W. T. S. Makes Presentation to Adjutant McElhiney

The young ladies of the W. T. S. called on Adjt. McElhiney this morning with $30 for him to spend on the needs of the poor children in particular in the city. This money is part of the proceeds of an evening entertainment given at Mrs. Warne's, 406 Gilmour Street last week.

Adjt. McElhiney was so pleased to receive the money, as he had already much demand for supplies for some children right away, and desires to thank publicly the young ladies of the W. T. S. for supplying him with the funds to relieve the situation.

A pitiful illustration of the need of a Home such as Adjt. McElhiney is establishing for the winter, came to light this morning at the police station. A bright young fellow who was thrifty enough to buy a lot in the south end, couldn't get work nor a loan on his property, and was completely up against it, came to the Chief of Police and asked to be put away for the winter. The Chief refused to do this, but handed him over to Adjt. McElhiney, who will look after his needs hereafter.

Fire Chief Howard, who was there, gave the man work for to-day. Many of these young men have come from good homes and must be looked after this winter, and work is being found for a number already who came to the Temple to-day.

'Phone 449 if you have anything to do for these deserving young men and send along any assistance in any way you can to help.

BELGIAN RELIEF FUND

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Could you inform me how money and other contributions, intended for the relief of Belgian sufferers, from cold and hunger, etc., reach that country.

It is to be understood that no reflection upon the integrity or efficiency of those taking an interest in this much-needed work, is implied in the question I ask; I am simply asking for information.

Yours faithfully,
SAMARITAN.

Note.—While there does not seem to be any local organization in respect of the Belgian relief fund, it may be explained that any contribution in cash or otherwise may be forwarded to Mons. Prud'homme, Belgian Consul, at Montreal, who will on receipt forward them to their destination for the purposes of relief.

POLICE COURT

In police court this morning Joseph Tobin appeared before Magistrate Dumble, charged with procuring a local woman for immoral and illegal purposes. He had previously pleaded not guilty and elected to be tried summarily.

Crown Attorney Hatton conducted the prosecution and Mr. Joseph Wearing, who was acting Crown Attorney for some time before the appointment of Mr. Hatton, acted for the defence.

Dr. J. A. Morgan was the first witness called for the prosecution. He was the family physician, and in attending the girl in question he had been led to think that she was mentally deficient. He came to this conclusion from her actions and conversation while in his office. Here Crown Attorney Hatton asked if he had ever noticed anything wrong with her throat. Mr. Wearing, counsel for the defence, objected strenuously, saying the evidence was irrelevant.

Mr. Wearing — "Here is a man charged with procuring and the witness is asked what condition the woman's throat is in."

His objection was sustained by the Magistrate.

The second witness for the Crown was the woman herself. She said she was 33 years of age. She knew the prisoner and identified him. She told how on the night of the 14th he met her at her home and walked on London Street to the Cereal dam. There they met a friend of the prisoner, who got some whiskey, and she was offered and accepted a drink. Shortly after this the offence was committed.

After that her mind was a blank and she seemed to lose control of herself. The men took her out and prisoner said to her, "You can't go home in this condition. You had better go over to ———'s house." She followed prisoner to the house, and when she went in the doors were locked. She slept there that night.

To Form Company of Engineers

In Connection With the Local Home Guard

City Engineer Parsons is contemplating forming an engineers' corps in connection with the Home Guard. If a sufficient number of young men join this company, it is the intention to instruct them in military engineering, and with this end in view, lectures will be given on the construction of trenches and bridges. Then in the spring, probably, some practical experience could be gained. All those desirous of identifying themselves with this company are asked to communicate with City Engineer Parsons.

Proceeds To Go To Fund

Miss Dorothy Allen and Mr. Maurice Park to Give a Recital

Miss Allan and Mr. Park are giving a Vocal Recital in the Collegiate Hall on Monday, Dec. 7th. The programme will be one of the finest ever submitted to a Peterborough audience, and will include both soprano and tenor operatic arias, such as "Robert toi que jaime," from Meyerbeer's "Robert Le Diable"; "O Ma Lyre Immortelle," from Gounod's "Sappho," and "The Page's Song," from Meyebeer's "Les Huguenots." In addition to these numbers, Miss Allan will also sing Sanderson's "Spring's Awakening" and other numbers.

Mr. Park will render that great aria "Celeste Aida" from Verdi's Aida, also "Elucevan le Stelle" from Puccini's "La Tosca"; "Vesti la Guibba," the arioso from Leoncavallo's "Pagliacci" and other fine tenor songs, including Balfe's "Come Into the Garden Maud." These two singers will be heard at their best in this programme, which includes operatic arias never before heard in Peterborough, as well as some of the best modern songs. Dr. Park has kindly consented to render two violin solos, and Mr. John Allan will be the accompanist.

It is hoped the attendance will be large, both on account of the unusual worth of the programme and also because the proceeds will be donated to the City Patriotic Fund.

Admission will be by silver collection.

Merchants In Home Guards

At an enthusiastic meeting of merchants, wholesale men and their employees, held in the Y.M.C.A. last night, the proposition to join the Peterborough Home Guard was heartily endorsed, and the mercantile interests of the city will be well represented. Already ninety have joined, and the merchants will have at least two companies of fifty men each, with the probability of a third one. Provisional officers were appointed.

RUNAWAY CAUSED SOME EXCITEMENT

A horse, the property of Mr. Halcombrike, 71 Robinson street, sprinted from that address, in East City, across the Hunter street bridge as far as Stewart street, and south on Stewart street, this afternoon, creating a good deal of excitement.

War Cannot Slaughter MORE VICTIMS THAN PNEUMONIA.

Pneumonia is described as a preventible disease if taken in time.

Pneumonia is the scourge of the able-bodied men and women "a little rum down perhaps" but strong in the belief that they can fight off a cold. Colds are not easily fought off in this northern climate.

On the first sign of a cough or cold, our advice to you is "GET RID OF IT."

The slight cold, the irritating cough, the tightness of the chest, if not attended to, will sooner or later develope into some serious lung or bronchial trouble.

GET A BOTTLE OF
and you will find after the first two or three doses have been taken the cough or cold will quickly disappear.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; the price, 25c and 50c.

Be sure you see that the name of The T. Milburn Co., Limited, appears on both the label and wrapper.

Mrs. Edward Hugo, Moose Jaw, Sask., writes: "My little girl, three years old, contracted a bad cold which settled on her lungs, and turned into pneumonia, and she was given up by our doctor. I decided to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and by the time she had taken three bottles she was well again. I shall always keep a bottle of "Dr. Wood's" in the house."

Tigers And Argos Play In Toronto

Will Settle Big Four Championship in a Game at 'Varsity Stadium

OTTAWA, Nov. 23.—The Argo-Tiger saw-off for the Interprovincial Rugby championship, which resulted in a 9 to 9 draw at Hamilton, will be replayed at 'Varsity Stadium, Toronto, next Saturday. The order was given at a meeting of the Big Four Executive at the Now Russell to-night. A protest was also made to the Canadian Rugby Union against the decision of that body ordering the Interprovincial champions to play the O.R.F.U. winners on Wednesday, December 2, and the Intercollegiate champions on the following Saturday, December 5, which means that the winners in the Interprovincial would have to play three games in one week to have a look in for Dominion honours.

A protest by Hamilton II. against Hamilton Rowing Club II. for having played Luts, who was claimed to be meligible under Interprovincial rules, on account of having played in another union this season, was sustained, and last Saturday's Intermediate final awarded to Tigers. This gives Tigers II. the championship, and qualifies them for the Canadian Intermediate final with Ottawa II. and St. Michael's.

President E. M. Phillips presided over the meeting. Montreal was not represented. Ben Simpson acted for Tigers, Dr. Lawson for Argonauts, and George Church for Ottawa. Major O. Heron, of Argonauts, and W. A. Cameron, Ottawa, were also present, but not voting.

BEGINNERS WON FROM UNKNOWNS

In the Y.M.C.A. Bowling League last night the Beginners took three straight games from the Unknowns. Hardill, of the Beginners, was high man with a total of 512. Following was the score:

Hardill	169	168	175	512

Games to-night (Nov. 24) between Harriers and Beginners are postponed.

VETERANS WON EASILY

In the Y.M.C.A. Basketball League last night, the veterans again showed their class when they defeated the Junior Business men by a score of 30 to 12. At half-time the winners led by 15 to 6. The Veterans are going in great style and will require a lot of beating for the championship. The teams were:

Veterans — Robertson, Richardson; forwards, McCarrell, centre; Dobbin, Best, guards.

Junior Business Men — Cranfield, Johnston, forwards;; Walker, centre, Turner, Sisson, guards.

DATES FOR CANADIAN FINAL GAME

Winners of Semi-Final Play Varsity on December 5th

The executive of the Canadian Rugby Union at a meeting yesterday afternoon ordered the championship games to be played as follows:

Senior Series.

Wednesday, Dec 2—Semi-final between winners of Ontario Union (Hamilton R.C. or T.R. and A.A.), at winners of Interprovincial Union (Hamiltan Tigers or Argonauts.).

The arrangements in the intermediate and junior series will be announced to-day.

Mr. Joseph Wright, the president ofof the C.R.U., was in the chair. Vice-President W. A. Hewitt and Second Vice-President Charles Gage were present. Mr. Hewitt also acted for Secretary Feg. Gaisford who is in New York.

Under the arrangement for the playing of the games the stage kill be cleared for the meeting Saturday, Dec. 5, of 'Varsity, the Intercollegiate champions, and the winner of the Interprovincial O.R.F.U. game. It was absolutely necessary, said President Wright, that the final game with 'Varsity should be played not later than Dec. 5th, as the students must now give their time to their studies and drill. It would be manifestly unfair to ask 'Varsity to wait longer than the date selected for the other Union to furnish a rival team for the Canadian championship.

WARNED HIS COUNTRYMEN.

Heroic Zouave Gave Life To Frustrate German Treachery.

PARIS, Nov. 24.—One of the most touching episodes of the war is told in a note appended to the official communique of yesterday afternoon:

"A party of captured French Zouaves were driven before a German column advancing on the Dri Grachter bridge in Belgium a few days ago, and when near the French trenches were forced by the captors to shout "cease firing" in French. When almost up to the bridge one of the captured Zouaves suddenly cried, "Open fire, in the name of God!" The men in the trenches instinctively obeyed the command, and not only riddled the German ranks, but killed all of their ill-fated comrades. Mitrailleuses were turned on the Germans, and they fled in disorder.

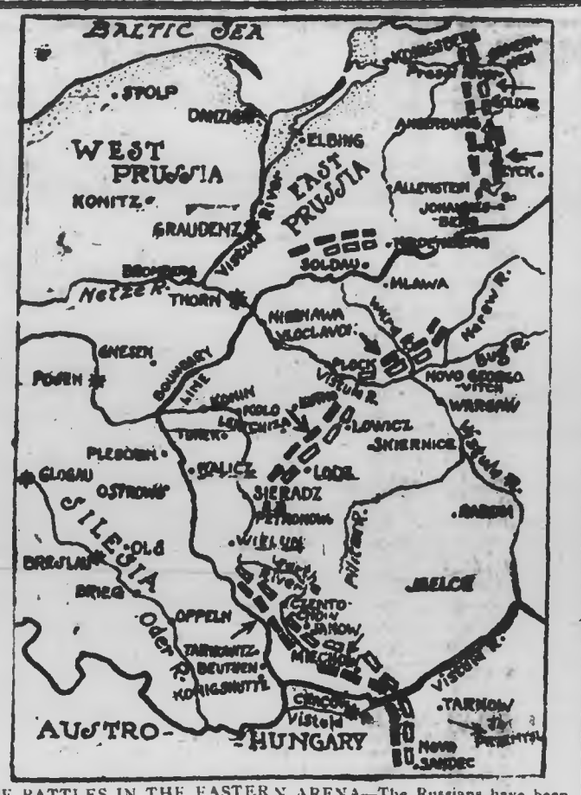
"There was no means of telling which of the heroic Zouaves, all of whom lay in a crumbled heap, had given the warning cry."

TROOPS MOVE WEST.

Russian Trans-Siberian Railway Crowded With Troop Trains.

PEKIN, Nov. 24. — Passengers coming to Pekin by way of the Trans-Siberian Railroad unite in declaring that there have been remarkable changes along this line of travel since the beginning of the war.

Vodka and other intoxicants, usually for sale at every small station, are now nowhere to be had. Almost every hour of the day and night troop trains were encountered going westward, while other trains carrying crowds of Austrian prisoners are moving eastward to Siberia. A telegraphic news service from the Government press bureau is delivered twice a day to every station along the line.



THE BATTLES IN THE EASTERN ARENA—The Russians have been driving eastward in East Prussia and have captured Gumbinnen. The forces near Soldau are now north of Georgovitch as shown. The Germans are pressing hard on Lowicz and Lodz. Further south the Russians are holding their own near Czentochow and have just captured Novo Sandec forty miles south of Cracow.

Asquith at Salisbury.

SALISBURY, Nov. 24.—The Prime Minister, accompanied by his daughter, paid an unofficial visit here yesterday. He went over the whole four camps with the commander, and conversed freely with several Canadian officers. He seemed to take a particular interest in the arrangements made for the social entertainment of the soldiers.

The men soon recognized the Premier as he drove up in a motor, and gave him a rousing welcome. He was greatly impressed with the appearance of the troops and spoke of their sturdy physique.

Jamaica Cable Was Cut.

LONDON, Nov. 24. — The official information bureau announced yesterday that a message from the Governor-General of Jamaica declares that there was interruption in the cable communication with Jamaica early in August of this year, which at the time was thought to be due to an earthquake.

It is now known that the Jamaica cable was cut by hostile cruisers on Aug. 3 at 6.40 a.m., before the declaration of war.

Two Are Reported Safe.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Nov. 24.—Alarm for the safety of the steamers Sinaloa, Nipigon and Niko, which were feared to have met disaster with the C. F. Curtis and her barges in last Thursday's storm was dispelled yesterday afternoon when at least two of the vessels were reported under shelter. No hope, however, is held out for any members of the crews of the ill-fated Curtis, Annie M. Peterson and S. E. Marvin.

To Let Big Contracts.

MONTREAL, Nov. 24.—L. A. Lacroix, a representative of the French Government has arrived in Montreal. He announces that he will let large contracts for armaments. The Ross Rifle Co. of Quebec, and United States firms will be given an opportunity to tender on a ten million dollar order for mitrailleuses and cartridges.

No Appointment Made.

OTTAWA, Nov. 24.—With regard to the revival of the rumor that Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, president of the C. P. R., is to be appointed Canadian High Commissioner in London, in succession to the late Lord Strathcona, it is stated here that no appointment will be made until Hon. George H. Parley returns, and it is unknown when that will be. He may not leave London until the end of the war.

The suggestion that Sir Thomas may be made High Commissioner receives high favor in official circles, and undoubtedly his appointment would receive very general approval.

Kaiser's Fourth Son Improving.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 24.—"Prince August William, fourth son of the German Emperor, who was injured in a motor car accident, is improving, but complete recovery will take a long time," says the Berlin correspondent of The Telegraaf. The correspondent adds:

"The reports that the Crown Prince had been wounded are unfounded."

AFRAID TO RETREAT.

German Retirement In Belgium Would Make Nation Despondent.

LONDON, Nov. 24. — A despatch from Copenhagen says that it has been learned in German military circles that, despite the serious situation on the eastern frontier, the Germans have not diminished their strength in the western theatre.

The Germans will not give up their position in northern France and West Flanders, unless it becomes vitally necessary, for such action would cause the spirits of the German people to fall so low that revolution might follow.

The Germans are expected to increase rather than diminish their efforts to get Calais in consequence of the Kaiser's special command. On account of the strategical and political importance of Calais, the Germans will disregard the cost in human life that its capture entails.

T.) ATTACK ITALY?

Turks Incited by Austria To Assail Ancient Enemy.

LONDON, Nov. 24. — A despatch from the Rome correspondent of The Standard says:

"Germany, having succeeded in pushing Turkey into the war against the allies, Austria also is doing her utmost to induce Turkey to attack Italy. At the same time the Italian Government is well aware of what is going on, but none the less hesitates to believe the report that has just come in from one of its most reliable agents that common action by the combined Austro-Turkish squadron is expected to be taken against Italy at a very early date.

"What is undeniable, however, is that a violent anti-Italian agitation is being carried on by the Turkish emissaries in Albania. Germans are said to be actively countenancing this movement, the first consequence of which have been the raising of a corps of about 15,000 Albanian irregulars who are to be posted at Valona (Aviona), the principal seaport on the Albanian coast, the possession of which would give Italy control of the Adriatic."

Nathan Urges War.

ROME, Nov. 24. — "The hour for the supreme decision has struck," said former Mayor Nathan of Rome and a leading figure in contemporary Italian affairs, at the Costanzi Theatre in an address to 6,000 people on the issues of the present war. He declared that the Italian army and navy is ready and that Italy must regain her lost provinces. His criticism of Italy's neutrality aroused the wildest enthusiasm.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

A casualty list dated Nov. 20, made public last night, gives the names of five officers killed, eight wounded and one missing.

The Marine Department expects that navigation on the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence will close much earlier this year than last.

Capt. E. J. Lovelace yesterday announced that he would relinquish the Liberal candidature of Lincoln County for Dominion House. He will go to the front as an artillery officer.

A number of the Canadian officers at Salisbury Camp were entertained by the Lyceum Club at a dinner in London, Eng., presided over by Lady Strachey, Cols. Dunfee and Hodgetts being the principal guests.

The Cologne Gazette says it learns that Gen. von Hausen, aged 68, former commander of the second army corps, who was displaced by Gen. von Kluem in September, has been sent to a sanitarium at Partenkirchen.

The London Board of Control yesterday recommended to the City Council that the Dominion Railway Commission be asked to compel the placing underground of all wires in the downtown section of the city.

French artillery succeeded Sunday night in getting the range of a chateau south of Dixmude, where the German General Staff was installed. The French shells compelled 20 officers to run from the building in night attire, during a blizzard.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—Fear of black rust in Argentina caused wheat today to rally sharply in the last half-hour of the session. Prices, after having been heavy most of the time, closed strong, ½c to ⅝c net higher. Other leading staples all finished at a loss compared with Saturday night—corn ¼c to ⅝c, oats ¼c to ⅜c, and provisions 5c to 15c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 23.—Winnipeg wheat opened ⅛c to ⅜c lower, oats ⅛c to ¼c lower, and flax was irregular, 1c lower to 1c higher. Trading was quiet, a light volume of business in options being transacted. The demand for all grades of cash wheat continues good, with exporters buying to fill space, and offerings on the light side. In oats, No. 2 C.W., and Nos. 1 and 2 feed were the grades wanted, the others being slow. The low grades of barley were also in demand. Some export sales were worked this morning, one firm selling from sixty to seventy thousand bushels during the early hours. Fluctuations were generally in narrow limits. Quite a sharp advance from low points occurred at the close on brisk demand by millers in the south and reports of heavy export sales, added to which there were damage reports from Argentina.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, Nov. 23.—There was no improvement in the demand from foreign buyers for grain today, and business in consequence was dull. The domestic demand for coarse grain was fair, and prices generally were maintained. There was a fair enquiry from foreign buyers for spring wheat flour today; but, as the prices bid were 3d to 6d per sack below what millers were asking, no sales were made. The local trade is fair. Demand for millfeed is active, and a large volume of business is doing. There is no change in the condition of the market for butter, prices being steady and business quiet.

The enquiry for cheese continues good, but owing to the scarcity of ocean room no business was reported. Exports for the week, 31,723 boxes, compared with 33,228 a year ago. Demand for eggs is good, and prices for new-laid at 3c per dozen higher. The exports for the week were 30,565 cases. Potatoes stronger at an advance of 2½c to 5c per bag with a good demand for car lots.

To Probe Copper Supplies.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24. — To maintain successfully her right to seize or detain cargoes of American copper carried on American or other neutral vessels to a neutral country, such as Italy in the south, or Holland in the north of Europe, Great Britain apparently finds it necessary to establish the probability that copper actually is destined for Germany, or Austria, or even Turkey.

One means of establishing this probability is to demonstrate that there has been an increase in the imports of copper to any neutral country in excess of the normal requirements of that country, as tending to prove that the surplus copper, or a corresponding quantity already in the country, has been allowed to pass across its borders into a belligerent country.

The only man who should not advertise is the man who has nothing to offer in the way of commodity or service—and—such a person is a dead one—whether he knows it—or not.

TO SPEED UP

BERLIN, Nov. 24. — The famous Mansfield copper mines, near Eisleben are now working day and night shifts to turn out all the copper possible for Germany's military requirements. Under normal circumstances Germany produces only one-fifth as much copper as it consumes, the mines at Mansfield yielding only nine-tenths of the 45,000 tons annually production. This, it is thought, will be doubled by pushing the mining at Mansfield to the utmost.

These mines have been worked for more than 500 years. The ore is of very low grade, seldom running above 3 per cent. and the ore vein is not quite two feet thick. The ores would normally not even pay the expense of mining but for the fact that they contain a small percentage of silver.

Germany in times of peace is the largest consumer of copper in Europe, importing more than 200,000 tons a year in addition to the home supply, and ranks next to the United States in world consumption. Foreseeing the interruption of imports from the United States and other countries, the German government at the beginning of the war pre-empted for military purposes all the copper in the country, but now, notwithstanding the British attitude on contraband, sees its way clear to liberating small quantities for commercial consumption, giving first consideration to such enterprises as are dependent upon a supply of copper for the continuation of their operations.

Mr. and Mrs. Collins will reside in Brighton township.

MANN—CHAMPAGNE.

Very quietly the marriage was solemnized of Aurlie, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Champagne, to Mr. John Douglas Mann, by the Rev. Logan Geggie, of Dunn Avenue Presbyterian Church. The bride wore her wedding dress of white satin trimmed with pearls and carried a bouquet of white roses. After the cermony Mr. and Mrs. Mann left for Peterborough and eastern points, and on their return will reside in Toronto.—Toronto Star.

MORE SOLDIERS FOR KINGSTON

Arrangements Made For Quartering Another 1000 Men

KINGSTON, Nov. 23.—While nothing is as yet definite there is a very strong probability that Kingston will shortly have one thousand or more additional soldiers.

This afternoon at three o'clock Col. Hemming, Major J. Hamilton and a corps of assistants, acting under instructions from Ottawa, made a visit to the Exhibition buildings at the Fair Grounds and also to the Malt House, King Street west, now owned by the Maple Leaf Milling Co. The idea is to see at what cost these buildings could be fitted up to accommodate a portion of the larger number of men who will be called into service under the new order calling for a force of 50,000 men constantly under arms in Canada.

Col. Hemming and Major Hamilton will then report the probable cost of putting the buildings in shape and the number of men that each could accommodate, and there is every reason to believe that if the figures of cost are not too high the Government will order the work done and the additional men sent here, though it is known that other places in the district are seeking to have some of the men located in their midst.

It is presumed, of course, that the city will be willing to turn the Fair Grounds buildings over to the Government temporarily, free of charge, the Government of course to do all the necessary repairing. This, it is felt, would be a good bargain for the city.

It is believed also that the Maple Leaf Milling Company will turn the Malt House over, free of charge.

Hence it is that the chances look good for at least another thousand or more soldiers in Kingston.

Shooting was commenced at the Barriefield ranges this morning from the 100 yard firing point. "A," "B," "C" and "D" Companies will shoot each morning and "E," "F," "G" and "H" Companies in the afternoons. Firing is started at eight-thirty in the morning, so it is necessary for the first company to leave for the ranges at seven o'clock. It takes about three hours for a company to march to the ranges, have its rifle practice and return to the city. Each company supplies its own markers and register keepers. A house has been erected for the use of the men while on the ranges.

De Laval 1915 Calendar

One of the most striking and artistic calendars that has come to this office in the ned 1915 calendars of the De Laval Manufacturing Co. It is 1½ feet long by 21 inches wide. The feature is a well executed coloured reproduction of the De Laval Cream Separator, handsomely depicted, and which is strongly realistic of this world-known dairy machine. It furnishes a useful as well as attractive hanger for the business office—one of its most practical uses being the clear and legible diary numerals for each month of the year.

Gave $30 To Charity Board

Mr. Henry Rush, chairman of the Central Charity Board, received a pleasant surprise this morning, when Mrs. F. K. Spriggs and Mrs. S. C. Warne waited upon him to make a presentation of $30 to the Charity Board. This was half of the sum raised by the W. T. S. Club at an 'at home' held at the home of Mrs. Warne, Gilmour Street, on Thursday, Nov. 19th.

GEN. HUGHES AND THE GUARD

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I should like to refer the readers of your valuable paper to Thursday nights edition, in which appeared an article of the Hon. Sam. Hughes' views on our newly-organised Home Guard. I should like to say there is not much military judgment about the statement in classing shot guns with the modern military rifles of which our enemies are equipped, also would say that there is a beautiful air of Patriotism (?) to infer that citizens of Canada who have patriotically banded themselves together for the protection of their homes and country to command them, as it were, to commit suicide by equipping themselves with toys. I should also like to bring to the Hon. Sam Hughes' attention that fifty per cent. of the men of the Home Guard have not only had military experience but will prove in the near future they are first-class shots, eligible to handle silver-sighted army rifles, and not pop-guns, and as a member of the Peterborough Home Guard and a former military man, I take the sarcastic suggestion of equipment like the rest of the men belonging to the organised body—a downright insult to our patriotic feelings.

Hoping this will come before the Minister of Militia's notice, I remain

Yours truly,

"Patriotic".

RESERVED JUDGMENT

In the case of Rex vs. Tobin in which the accused is charged with a most serious offence, Magistrate Dumble reserved judgment this afternoon.

Russians Drive Enemy To Poland's Border

Mexico City In The Hands Of Hoodlum Mob

GERMANS HURRYING BACK TO FRONTIER

Russians Have Again Swept Poland Almost Clear of the Enemy--Grand Duke is Not Boasting of the Success ---Germans Expected to Make Desperate Stand.

Special Cable:

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The extent of the victory which the Russians have gained over the Germans in Northern Poland is just beginning to become apparent, in the opinion of military experts here and of correspondents at various points in Russia. Apparently the Kaiser's troops are being driven back towards their frontier just about as fast as they advanced, but it is thought that they will turn about within 24 hours when reinforcements which are on the way should reach them and renew the conflict.

The new battle is expected to develop much nearer the East Prussian and Silesian border than the line, 35 miles from Warsaw, to which General von Hindenburg's forces penetrated on their last essay at the Polish capital. The fact that the Germans will be heavily reinforced and that a great mass of men has been sent forward by the Grand Duke Nicholas to strengthen his front will make the forthcoming engagement even greater than those which have preceded it, and will undoubtedly decide, for some time to come at least, the trend of the operations in the eastern war theatre.

Meanwhile the Russians are pressing the advantages already gained in the pitched battle with the Austro-German army in Southern Poland between Czentochowa and Cracow, and where a Russian victory will open the way for an invasion of Silesia in force. An official report from Petrograd to-night says that Russian successes on this front have been continued, and that 6,000 prisoners were taken on November 22, in addition to the 5,000 announced yesterday as captured on November 21.

Ready to Storm Cracow.

The Russians have brought considerable reinforcements into the attack on Cracow, according to a despatch from Petrograd to a Milan newspaper, which adds that the Russian offensive is being victoriously conucted on the entire eastern front.

As in the previous German invasion of Poland, the enemy's air service has been active in bomb-throwing in the large cities. A despatch from Petrograd to-night announces that a German aeroplane with two aviators has been captured by Cossacks 26 miles from Plock, into which place the airmen had dropped several bombs. The scene of the capture probably was in the vicinity of Kutno.

GERMANS BEGIN THIRD ATTACK IN THE NORTH

RETURN TO THE STRUGGLE

NORTHERN FRANCE, Nov. 24 — The combined French and British armies have been attacked by the Germans in force from Ypres to La Bassee, and a battle on the scale of the battles on the Marne, of the Yser, and of the first and second battles of pres, has commenced.

In this terrific struggle, into which the Germans enter with large reinforcements and fresh guns, the French and British armies are acting directly in concert. Already the fight has been in progress forty-eight hours. The mightiest guns in the world's military history have been brought into action, carrying death and destruction for fifteen to eighteen miles from their emplacements. Under cover of those infantry attacks are being developed.

Germans Want Ypres.

The German objective is the town of Ypres, to capture which they have sacrificed thousands of lives under fire of the British during the last month. Their guns are battering the Town once more. Everywhere along the line I hear that the allies have succeeded in checking all the enemy's assaults, which were allowed to exhaust themselves, so that a fresh and significant phase of the battle has opened up another phase in which the line of the German trenches is threatened by British and French infantry.

MEXICO CITY IS LOOTED BY A MOB

Departure of United States Troops is Probable Reason for Hoodlum Rampage--Civilians Organize in Effort to Restore Order--Robbed Stores and Armed Themselves.

Examiner Special:

VERA CRUZ, Nov. 25.—Mobs swarmed through the streets of Mexico City last night, looting stores, pawnshops and other business houses and appropriating all arms and ammunition that could be secured, according to reports reaching here from the capital to-day. At last reports a body of civilians and Federal soldiers, who had been mustered, went to the police station, where they were sworn in as special police and armed. It was hoped they might be able to restore order.

PORTUGAL ENTERS THE WAR

LISBON, Nov. 24.—Portugal will formally enter the war. Premier Deto in speeches to the House of Deputies and the Senate explained the Government's attitude, showing that it it had acted in loyal accord throughout with the alliance with Great Britain.

The Premier presented a bill authorizing the Government to intervene when, and as it deemed suitable, according to the alliance. Leaders of the various parties endorsed the action of the Government and both chambers unanimously adopted the bill.

Deputies and Senators cheered Great Britain and the allies several times during the proceedings. A local newspaper states that a partial mobilization will be ordered forthwith.

AWFUL CASUALTY LIST

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 24.—The 83rd German official list of casualties brings the total killed, wounded and missing, officers and men, to 601,438. This figure does not include the 58 lists for Saxony, 56 for Bavaria and 61 for Wurtemburg. The list covers the losses from the middle of September to the end of October, and none after November 1. Among the names are 16 flying officers killed or wounded. Several cases of typhoid fever among the troops in northern France are recorded. This has caused excitement in medical circles. The German losses to date are set down at about a million to a million and a half.

25,000 Belgian Refugees Pour Into Brussels Daily

LONDON, Nov. 23.—Mr. Jean van Brandon, of the Belgian National Relief Committee, has arrived from Brussels and says that despite the great amount of relief work conditions are becoming more serious. The situation in Brussels, he said, is growing more alarming constantly, as refugees are pouring into that city at the rate of 25,000 a day.

"This influx," he said, "is due to a lack of fuel as well as of food. Brussels has plenty of coal, but the interruption of transportation makes it impossible to carry coal to remote villages. Refugees are flocking to Liege and other large towns, as well as to Brussels.

"The people are entirely dependent on kerosene for both heating and cooking, and the supply of this fuel also is becoming scarce. The committee is receiving petitions every day for supplies of oil.

"We are grateful to the American Commission for the 17,000 tons of food which has been distributed in Belgium since November 1. We have an ample number of volunteer workers to attend to the distribution of these supplies, but the lack of transportation facilities has prevented us from reaching many remote villages which are in sore need of assistance.

"The committee is now supplying 600,000 meals daily in Brussels to 300,000 persons. These meals consist of potato soup, some rice and a piece of bread. At first the allowance of bread was six ounces daily, but this has now been reduced to three ounces because of the scarcity of flour. Even the wealthy now find it almost impossible to obtain bread in Brussels, and soon the whole population will form into a vast bread line

"A small number of these meals are being paid for by persons belonging to the middle classes, who are greatly distressed at the idea of accepting charity. They are charged at the rate of one cent for a meal which actually costs three cents. In addition to this the commission sells bread to those who are able to pay for it, using the proceeds to purchase more wheat."

Allies Cut Eleven Cable Lines Stopping Germany's Messages

COLOGNE, Nov. 24.—Under the heading, "Germany's Cable Dilemma," the Kolnische Zeitung says:

"How completely Germany is cut off from intercourse with oversea countries may be judged from an article in Electrical Engineering, according to which eleven German cable lines have been cut.

"Germany has five cables ending at the island of Borkum, in the North Sea, one going to Brest, in France; one to Vigo, in the North of Spain; one to Teneriffe, in the Canary Islands, at the north of Africa, and two by way of the Azores to New York. All five lead through the English Channel, so that it was not difficult for England to cut them. On the other hand it will be very difficult, according to the Electrical Engineering, even impossible, for Germany to repair them as long as the war lasts.

"Between Germany and England there exist six cable lines, partly German, partly English, which, of course, are not used now. From Germany's west coast, therefore, no communication with the world is possible.

"The telegraphic connection, via Holland, Denmark, Norway and Sweden can only be kept up by cables that end in England and France, which of course cablegrams are censored.

"The ways to the south via Austria or Italy are also blocked, as the cables that run from west to east in the Mediterranean belong to an English company, the Eastern Telegraph Company, and end in English territory. The cables starting from Italy and also from Turkey go via Malta, Gibraltar and Lisbon to the Atlantic Ocean. With Africa no communication is possible without using the cables of the Eastern Telegraph Company, and telegraphic land connections with China pass through Russia or British India. Therefore, with the exception of the wireless service, Germany can telegraph only to Austria-Hungary, Holland, Switzerland, Italy and the Scandinavian countries. Spain and Portugal are cut off too.

RUSS CAVALRY INFLICT HEAVY LOSSES ON ENEMY

Examiner Special:

PETROGRAD, Nov. 25.—Heavy losses to the retreating German infantry corps, which was driven into the swamps in the vicinity of Lodz by the Russian cavalry, is reported to-day in an official statement from the War Office, announcing continued success against the Austro-German forces.

AT A DIFFICULT AGE.

"How's the family?" said one actor to another when they met at Piccadilly Circus. "All right; but my children are at a difficult age just now."

"How do you make that out? Why, they're over the measles and scarlet fever stage now, aren't they?"

"Oh, yes, long ago. But you bachelors don't realise a father's troubles. My children are at the age, when, if I use slang my wife says I'm setting a bad example, and if I speak correctly the kids think me a back number."

SIX OPENLY PRO-GERMAN NEWSPAPERS ARE BEING PUBLISHED IN DUBLIN

LONDON, Nov. 25.—Irish despatches received this morning tell of a most extraordinary situation which has arisen in Ireland, a situation which will need prompt and strong action on the part of the authorities. It appears that six seditious newspapers, openly pro-German and anti-British, are being printed in Dublin and distributed throughout West Ireland with the primary object of stifling the recruiting campaign which is now being carried on there.

The news sheets in question are the Irish Worker, Larkin's paper; Sinn Fein, Irish Freedom, National Volunteer, the Irish Nation, and Ireland. The last has recently been made a daily production. Last week a prominent German organ gave a serious quotation from these papers and also gave an address in Dublin at which arms could be bought by Irish rebels. This journal also stated that money was being collected in New York to support the movement.

Meetings have been held recently in New York by Irish-Americans who are hostile to John Redmond, and at these a number of Germans attended, and "Die Wacht am Rhein" was sung Larkin has now gone to the States to lecture against the British Government.

AID FROM FLEET AT NIEUPORT

Heavy Losses Among Germans When British Troops Attacked While Vessels Shelled Enemy

Examiner Special:

ROTTERDAM, Nov. 25 — Heavy losses were inflicted upon the German troops in the vicinity of Nieuport when they were caught between the fire of the British troops and the guns of the Allied ships off the Coast The warships were vigorously bombarding the German line when the troops got into action. The range was signalled to the warships by the field wireless from the shore. As the shells from the vessels began to drop true the British troops opened up and the Germans withered under the terrible cross fire. The fleet continued its bombardment of Westende where two German batteries were destroyed.

NEW YORK HAS ANOTHER BIG MURDER MYSTERY

Special Cable:

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—The police to-day were confronted with another murder conspiracy rivalling that in which Herman Rosenthal was assassinated. Barnett Baff, fifty-one years old, and probably the largest independent poultry dealer in the east, was shot down near one of his stores on west 119th Street. His assassination is attributed directly to his fight against the poultry combine.

Advance By French In The Argonne

PARIS, Nov. 24.—The centre of the most violent fighting has shifted for the time being from Flanders and Northern Fance to the Argonne region, where the Gemans and allies have both launched occasive movements. To-day the only infantry attacks reported were in this section of the line, where the Germans were repulsed in several assaults on the French trenches

Yesterday the fighting was characterized mainly by artillery activity, with the exception of the Argonne again. There the German onslaughts were particularly fierce, but the allies' lines held firmly, and then reversed conditions by a counter-attack, which was successful, in the region of Le Four de Paris, on the eastern end of the Argonne forest, where some ground was gained.

A dense fog, following the unseasonably warm weather in the region between the Argonne and the Vosges, has put a stop to operations in that quarter. The afternoon communique gives the information that the health of the allied troops is good.

Intelligent Face of a Canadian Sledge Dog.

What a handsome and intelligent countenance is shown by the dog in the picture! Surely every one who sees it will echo this sentiment. This dog is named Collar and is one of the numerous dogs selected in Canada by Sir Ernest Shackleton to take to the antarctic in his proposed trip across that frozen end of the world. Now that war has broken out in Europe it is doubtful if Sir Ernest will proceed on his quest. The experiences of explorers in the arctic and the antarctic have proved that dogs provide the best means of transportation. Ponies have been tried and found to be of little use in long journeys over the ice. Admiral Peary, who discovered the north pole, was accompanied by dog teams, as was also Roald Amundsen, who first reached the south pole. Captain Scott, who with several companions perished in the snow after reaching the pole, took ponies, but they died long before he reached the pole.

A String Trick.

Lay a piece of string across the palms of your hands placed side by side, letting the ends hang down; then bring your palms quickly together, at the same time secretly catching hold of the middle of the string with your fourth and fifth fingers. Then direct any person to tie your thumbs together as tight as he pleases, and he will not, of course, be tying them, because you have hold of the string, yet it will appear to him that he is doing so. Ask him to place a hat over your hands. Then blow upon the hat and say, "Be loose," slipping your thumbs from under the string. Direct him to remove the hat and show the thumbs free. Request that the hat be again placed over your hands. Then blow upon the hat as before and say, "Be tied," slipping your thumbs under the string again, and when the hat is removed your thumbs will appear to be tied as tight as at first. After you have performed the trick you must convey the string deftly into your pocket so that it may not be detected.

Hunt the Whistle.

Tie a wooden whistle on to one end of a piece of string and a large safety pin on to the other end. Those who know how to play the game remain in the room while the others go out. A circle is formed, seated, and, one by one, the others are called in. One passes to the center of the circle, where one will explain to him that there is just one whistle in the ring. It is not to go outside of the circle; nobody is allowed to hold it, etc. While this explanation is taking place the one to whom his back is turned is pinning the whistle to his coat. When that is done he blows it, and that is the signal for the hunt. You cannot imagine the fun it causes to see them darting first this side, then that, catching first the hands of one, then of another, and declaring that they have it. When they learn that it was fastened to them all the time it is certainly funny to see the faces. Keep the whistle blowing; you will laugh until your face aches.

How Tinfoil Is Made.

In making tinfoil the melted tin is poured into molds making thin plates. These plates are then passed through rollers, first singly, and then as they grow thinner several are run through together until, finally, as many as 200 sheets pass under the rollers at once, which reduces each sheet to a thickness of one-tenth of a millimeter. Then it is still further beaten out by hand with wooden mallets. The metal is often alloyed with 1 or 2 per cent of copper, while for the cheaper kinds, such as is used for wrapping tea, tobacco and candy, lead is used as the alloy.—St. Nicholas.

Ma an' I.

I tell you—we've heaps of fun,
Ma an' I. She can mend my gun
An' fix my cart—an' lots of things.
She knows jes' why a bird has wings—
An' all the bestest kinds of games.
Why, most of 'em don't have no names
But I don't see why she's got to kiss
Ma jes' because I'm lookin' like this!
She bites my fingers an' shows my toes
An' says to me, "Oh, goodness knows,
I don't see how I ever got along without my Beauty Spot."
An' then she grabs an' hugs me tight
An' rubs my cheeks till they're shiny bright.
I tell you what, I love my ma;
I think she's most as nice as pa.

Purity of the Law.

At Bodmin assizes once a barrister while pleading was interrupted by the judge:

"Mr. Carter, you are wasting the time of the court."

"Time of the court!" retorted the truculent veteran, glaring fiercely at the bench. "Your lordship means—your lordship's dinner!"

The same redoubtable advocate was on another occasion defending a man charged with obtaining money under false pretenses.

"False pretenses!" said he, with fine scorn. "Why, we all make them every day, barristers and solicitors and judges—the whole lot of us! Talk of the purity of the judicial ermine"—here he pointed derisively to the learned judge, who sat cowering on the bench—"why, it's only rabbit skin!"

Shouts of laughter greeted this irreverent statement, which investigation would probably show to be literally true.—London Tit-Bits.

The Mares of Mohammed.

In bygone days there was no more enthusiastic breeder of horses than the Prophet Mohammed. In the course of time he became the owner of a vast number of mares, and the point was how to arrive at a selection of the very best. At last, says Country Life, he hit upon the following scheme: For three days and nights the mares were kept without water; then they were loosed and, as might have been expected, tore madly off to their usual watering place. Just as they were on the very brink of the water the trumpeter blew the war signal or assembly. Maddened with the thirst, the mares forgot their training, all save five, who, forgetting their own urgent need, galloped back at once to seek their masters. These five mares were set apart by Mohammed as representing the pick of his stud, and from them, we are told, descended the best and noblest breed of horses.

Spiders Are Not Insects.

The spider is not an insect, though probably nine people out of ten would class it under this term. With scorpions and mites, spiders form a class in the animal kingdom known as arachnida. This name is derived from a mythical personage called Arachne, the daughter of a purple dyer of Lydia, who was fabled to have challenged Minerva to a trial of skill in spinning. So indignant was the goddess at this act of boldness that she forthwith transformed the hapless challenger into a spider, presumably in order that she might have the best possible opportunity of practicing the art or which she prided herself so much. Spiders differ from insects in five main particulars. Their eyes are simple instead of compound, they have eight legs in place of six, they do not pass through the metamorphoses which are characteristic of insects, they have no antennae, and their breathing is accomplished by means of organs which combine the functions of lungs and gills instead of by tubes pervading their bodies. These points of distinction are sufficient to determine the fact that it is impossible to class spiders as insects.

Seasickness.

Seasickness comes on oceans, lakes and some rivers. Not every one, however, who travels upon these bodies of water can acquire it, as it appears to come only to those who have a gift for it. It has one great merit not common to all gifts, as it may be acquired without previous practice. Those who are skillful do not have to be taught. Like inspiration and the wonderful one hoss shay, it comes to them "all at once and nothing first."

Various cures have been devised for seasickness. One of them is publicity. If you can keep on deck where you will be seen by all men and a few fishes that may be staring at you, it is said to be a great help. The best cure, however, is carefully to remove the water from underneath the particular vessel in which you happen to be passing away. If enough water can be removed the seasickness will be invariably cured.

Seasickness is the only thing you get from the steamship company that you don't pay for.—Life.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Home Treatment For Hives.

Hives are usually the result of some indiscretion in eating. The excessive drinking of soda water or other soft drinks or the eating immoderately of candy will bring a crop of hives. Eating between meals causes indigestion and hives. Sweets of any kind cause fermentation in the digestive tract, especially if eaten between meals. The sour, fermented material will cause hives in a few hours. To break up the tendency to indigestion and hives never eat nor drink (except water) between meals. Eat your meals at a fixed hour every day. Take a heaping teaspoonful of the bicarbonate of sodium in a tumblerful of hot water three times a day, between meals, for four or five days, and a saldilits powder every morning upon rising.

SAVING THE PLAY

Actors Are Often Called Upon to Exercise Quick Wit.

SOME CURIOUS EXPERIENCES.

Rose Eytinge Once Extemporized the Entire Part of Lady Isabel in "East Lynne"—How John Brougham Made a Hit Without His Leading Lady.

Quick wit has saved many an embarrassing situation, turned many a seemingly disastrous failure into success. Politics, literature, courtesy, all are served by quick tongue and ready word.

Actors, as well as business men, have special use for quick wit, so often do they need help out of a difficulty during the play. A college performance was saved from wreckage by one of the young actors.

One of the cast, a boy easily upset, had just given his line, "All I need is an advertisement," when half of his stage mustache fell off.

"Oh, no," said the ready youth beside him, seeing his embarrassment; "what you need is a hair restorer."

And under cover of the laughter the victim had a chance to recover himself.

It was surely the same readiness that enabled Rose Eytinge to go through one of the most extraordinary experiences any actress ever had. In San Francisco she was once asked to fill Mary Anderson's place at short notice, appearing with the local stock company. The play was to be "East Lynne." By singular chance, no prompt book could be found, nor could they secure a copy of the novel. Miss Eytinge protested that it would be impossible for her to play, as she had never so much as seen the piece. That fact they refused to believe. Moreover, to add to her difficulty, though all the company claimed to know the old drama backward, no one seemed to have an idea of the lines she, as Lady Isabel, would have to speak.

"Oh, that'll be all right," said John McCullough, the manager, to whom she appealed. "Just you sob and look sorry, and it will go."

So Miss Eytinge, rather than cause the loss of closing the theater, went on totally unprepared to act in an absolutely unfamiliar play.

Tom Keene, the Archibald Carlisle, instructed her in the proper emotion from scene to scene. "Now she's a jealous cat, a jealous cat," he would whisper. "Now she's kittenу." "Now she's sorry she was such a fool." "Now she wants her young ones." "Now she up and dies."

The performance seemed to cause entire satisfaction to the audience, and McCullough, as he generously handed over half the receipts to the heroine of the hour, declared, "Well, you may have had to vamp that part, but I've often seen it played with less soul."

The story of an experience demanding similar readiness of wit is told of John Brougham, the early American comedian and playwright. On one occasion, when his own clever burlesque, "Pocahontas," had been billed and the house sold out in advance, the leading actress left without warning to take another position in Baltimore. The audience had assembled before her absence was discovered by the manager and star. As it was that play or nothing, Brougham, who was famed for his witty impromptu speeches, went before the curtain and suggested giving the piece without Pocahontas. He recalled the old story of the actor who played Hamlet so execrably that on the following night the tragedy was given with that character omitted by request. "Now, if 'Hamlet' can be acted without the hero," he remarked, "why not 'Pocahontas' without the heroine? Of course you are all aware of the fact that 'Pocahontas' is a much greater play than 'Hamlet.' Even if you do not know that, I do, and I ought to, for I wrote it myself. Are you willing to try it?"

"Go ahead!" came the cries from the audience, who settled themselves back to see the result.

The burlesque proceeded as usual until the entrance music was played for Pocahontas; then, turning toward the audience, Brougham, as Powhatan, sadly began: "Ladies and gentlemen, that sweet strain is supposed to bring my daughter Pocahontas on the stage. You are already aware that she is in the city of Baltimore, and the stern law of the land will not permit a Christian, much less a savage, to be in two places at once. Thus does the law protect that most useful instrument, the alibi. However, if Poky were here she would hasten to say"— Whereupon the comedian gave her lines in exact imitation of the missing actress, keeping up the dialogue in two persons all through the play. The delighted people who were fortunate enough to be present declared that Brougham was avenged.

G. P. Huntley tells of an incident that took place at an east side theater in London. The "gods" were booing the piece and throwing chunks of bread at the performers.

At last the star came forward and said: "Now, look here! We're trying our best to amuse you. Throw bread, if you like; but," he added as he stopped and picked up a chunk, "thank heaven I'm not too proud to eat it."

The gods were vanquished.—Anna Bird Stewart in New York Tribune.

Doctor Said She Had Bright's Disease.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS CURED HER.

Bright's disease is a term applied to one of the most serious of all diseases of the kidneys, the symptoms of which are often of a severe character.

Severe pains in the back appear at first and are followed by disturbances of the urinary organs which show that the urine contains a large amount of albumen. Dropsy is also another forerunner of the dreaded Bright's disease. On the first sign of any kidney trouble you should at once put the kidneys right by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. The pill that cures kidney troubles only.

Mrs. C. A. Heistand, Mooswa, Alta., writes: "Last May I was taken down sick. The doctor told me I had Bright's disease. My kidneys got so bad I could not rest day or night. The doctor's medicine did not give me any relief. I used four boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, and they put me in good shape again."

Doan's Kidney Pills are the original kidney pill, so when you ask for "Doan's" do not accept any others with similar names.

WOMAN'S BEST MEDICINE

Mrs. Kelly Advises all Women to Take "Fruit-a-Tives"

HAGERSVILLE, ONT., Aug. 26th, 1913.

"I can highly recommend "Fruit-a-tives" because they did me an awful lot of good and I cannot speak too highly about them. About four years ago, I commenced taking "Fruit-a-tives" for a general break-down and they did me a world of good. We bought a good many dollar's worth, but it was money well spent because they did all that you claim for them. Their action is so pleasant, compared with other laxatives, that I found only pleasure, as well as health, in taking them. They seemed to me to be particularly suited to women, on account of their mild and gentle action, and I trust that some other women may start taking "Fruit-a-tives" after reading my letter, and if they do, I am satisfied the results will be the same as in my own case".

MRS. W. N. KELLY

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c, or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

The little shah, accompanied by the regent, Abdul Hussein Khan Nasser ol Mulk, drove to the palace of the national council in a glass coach drawn by eight white horses. Immediately after the ceremony was over he proceeded to the mosque for prayer.

The crowning of the young shah occurred later in the day. The monarch seated himself on the peacock throne in the museum room of the palace in the presence of a great gathering. He first removed his head covering and then himself placed the imperial crown on his head. It was so large that he had to hold it in position while the chief mullah was making a brief oration.

Immediately afterward the monarch took off the crown and reassumed his simpler head covering, embellished with the famous Daria-i-Noor diamond, otherwise known as the Great Mogul, in the center of the aigret. The diamond is said to weigh over 200 carats.

Dinah, a "Handmade" Lady.

Dinah is a handy person to have around the house. She affords lots of amusement to your family and friends when they are seated on the porch. Any one can have a Dinah. She is made by doubling your fist and with a burnt cork marking the eyes, nose and mouth on the back of the hand. The lower jaw is formed by the thumb. One eye is marked at the junction of the first and second fingers; the other is marked opposite on the smooth back. For the cap use any handkerchief and wrap it around the outer edge of the fist.

To make Dinah really look as though she were talking move the thumb. If you change your voice it will seem as though Dinah were speaking, and you can make her say funny things. Rest your fist on a table. Dinah will look real. Practice this before you give an exhibition in public.

A Famous Dog.

One of the most famous of pet dogs was a French poodle, Moustache, which belonged to one of Napoleon's officers. He was not trained to military service, as dogs are now, but he took a gallant part in the engagements at Marengo and at Jena, saved several lives, detected a spy and performed other feats. His most famous performance was at Austerlitz, where he sprang forward, seized the colors "from the very grasp of the enemy and bore them in triumph to his fellow soldiers." For this deed of valor Marshal Lannes publicly thanked Moustache on the field of battle and fastened on his neck the cross of the Legion of Honor.

A Finisher.

KITCHENER
Efficiency and Health
To this Manner Red Blood and Steady Nerves the Whole British Empire is Looking With Confidence.
Efficiency everywhere marks the work of Lord Kitchener as organizer of campaigns and of the new army. Recognizing that man's efficiency depends on his health, he has given strict admonitions as to the diet and habits of the men under his command.
Whether working with brain or muscles you cannot do your best unless you keep the machinery of the body in perfect working order, and maintain a reserve force of nervous energy.
Your blood must be rich, red, nourishing in order to replace the cells and tissues wasted by the activities of life, for otherwise you become weak, nervous, irritable, feel tired and easily discouraged, suffer from headaches, indigestion and sleeplessness, and lose your efficiency.
This age of keen competition demands the best that is in you if you are to succeed, and Dr. Chase's Nerve Food will help you by forming new, rich blood and filling the body with new vigor and vitality.
Mr. John Stevens, Glenella, Man., writes:—"Three years ago I was so severely injured that I was left with a broken-down nervous system. I could not rest or sleep, and though I tried several medicines could get no relief. Reading about many being cured by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, I decided to try it, and after using nine boxes I felt like a different man. I now enjoy good, sound sleep, instead of feeling tired in the morning, and I am strong and healthy, and well fitted for my work."

Arrival of the Indian Troops

(By Rene Arcos.)

MARSEILLES, France, Oct. 15.— I have just witnessed the most extraordinary landing of troops I have yet seen. For two days Hindoo and English armies have been crossing Marseilles, to the great joy of the population, which is lined along the whole of their way, shouting and cheering. Several great transports, some say fourteen, others twenty, have arrived from India. To judge by the considerable number of soldiers whom I have seen passing, I think that the latter figure is more correct.

Yesterday I saw all these troops on the landing quays. They were an unimaginable spectacle. Between pyramids of baggage the soldiers had established a temporary camp. Many of them had taken off socks, coat, and shirt, and were washing them vigorously, but most of them were expending all their tender care on their rifles. With great energy and attention they were cleaning the finer parts.

Tremendous Procession of Troops.

Horses and mules were landing ceaselessly, and all in impressive silence and order. From time to time you could barely hear a word of command, spoken in a low voice. It was something very different from the rough German discipline.

First, marching in front, were regiments of Scotch infantry. These soldiers wear a little pleated shirt, protected in front by a sort of apron of khaki. Their heads are covered with tropical helmets, also khaki coloured. These helmets are ornamented with tiny plumes of different shades. They are armed with a short rifle, which they carry unceremoniously. Some hold it by the stock, flat across their shoulders, others by the barrel, others hold it in their hand any which way. There is no pretence at parade, no stiffness in their bearing. Many of these fine blonde lads are smoking short pipes with evident satisfaction. The soldiers stop from time to time to shake the hands which are reached out to them, and to respond to numerous "good-byes." I noticed that a good many of them had the calves of their legs illustrated with tattoos; this one has a sea star near the knee, and that one a stag's head surrounded by a wreath.

Many Japanese With Indians.

Here are the Asiatic soldiers. Many of them bear a startling resemblance to Japanese. There are, it appears, numerous Japanese enrolled as volunteers in the Indian army. In addition to their guns, these soldiers have an enormous poignard, with curved blade, hung at their belt. Some have necks like bulls, and one can imagine how redoubtable they must be in hand to hand fighting.

Here are the Sepoys with thin legs and curly beards. Their eyes shine strangely and their smile shows all their white teeth. I read on their shoulders a little inscription in metal letters. "Seaforth," and on others, "B.E.A." There are turbans of all sorts, from those decked with a sort of hanging tail to those surmounted by a cone, sometimes of khaki, sometimes red. Some turbans are rolled wide, others high. These are also turbans of coarse black linen, and low round headdresses like caps without visors, these in all colours. Green, brown, black. I recognize the leaders by their fine boots, their sober chevrons, their epaulettes of steel thread. Among the best are some all reddish fellows with short mustaches and eyes singularly resolute. These have come back to defend the honour and the power of old England.

Still the troops are passing. But what is even more extraordinary is the convoy. You can have no idea of all that is packed into these hundreds of waggons. They pass endlessly. On carts loaded with straw or hay are seated Hindoos, who salute the spectators. You would think you were living out a chapter of Gustave Flauberts "Salammbo." An enormous crowd watches the procession.

Marseilles is the doorway of the accident opened wide to the marching orient. The bands play the British national hymn, then the "Marseillaise," which is wildly cheered. At every window, on every balcony, white handkerchiefs are shaken.

I admire the presence, the great beauty of the Hindoo officers. These are they whom the newspapers of Germany call half-savages. The Germans may well be alarmed at the entry of these redoubtable troops on the scene but they should also remember that India was the cradle of one of the world's most ancient civilizations. Truly, these men with faces so pure and noble, with proud, aristocratic looks, suggest nothing even faintly resembling barbarity.

THE MAISTER AND THE BAIRNS.

Tae the Jordan's waters near,
An' the fisher fowk crushed and crooded roon'
The Maister's words tae hear.

But the Maister said, as they turned awa',
"Let the wee bairns come tae Me!"
An' He gaithered them roon' Him whar He sat,

Keep our feet in the heavenly airt,
An' bring us at last tae Thy home above
As pure as the bairns in he'rt.

Serious.

In a hospital at Cape Town during the South African war, the keenness of certain amateur members of the nursing staff tended to aggravate, rather than alleviate, the sufferings of some of the wounded.

At last the British soldier's native wit came to the rescue. One morning a sick soldier's bedclothes displayed a slip of paper inscribed: "To ill to be nursed to-day!"

How To Stop Stomach Torment

Sound Advice From a Well-Known Physician.

Men and women who suffer from what they call Dyspepsia, Indigestion or just plain "stomach-trouble" usually seek regular relief in the form of some pepsin pill or tablet, or other artificial digestant. This, experience teaches me, is a serious error. In nine cases out of ten, the distress is caused by the development of acids in the stomach,—formed by the fermenting of the food. Instead of a digestant being required, something should be taken to dissolve or neutralize this acidity, when normal digestion will follow as a matter of course. This acid matter is distinctly poisonous and unless it is dissolved, digestion merely carries the mass of fermenting food from the stomach to the intestines, where its poison is absorbed by the blood and carried all over the body.

If all the great army of people who suffer after nearly every meal would make it a point to take a teaspoonful of Bisurated Magnesia in a quarter glass of water after each meal, there would be no formation of acidity and consequently no distress or discomfort—flour, acid, gassy stomach, heartburn, belching, bloating, etc., would then be a thing of the past. 'Bisurated Magnesia' is a physician's prescription. It is inexpensive and can be obtained at any drug store. It is prepared for just such trouble and the best proof of its efficiency is that it will stop the sharpest, biting stomach distress in five minutes from the time it enters the stomach, simply by dissolving the acids that have been formed there. Its action is absolutely harmless.

SOUTH AFRICA, politicians and military experts say, is the keystone of the British Empire. At one stage of the Boer war Ladysmith was the keystone of South Africa, and when that defenceless town was besieged the Empire tottered. Ladysmith was eventually relieved, but had it fallen, according to Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, it would have been necessary to reconquer all of South Africa. The investment of Ladysmith, while it fades into insignificance so far as magnitude of operations is concerned, might readily have been the most momentous siege of history had its outcome been different. It might have marked the beginning of the disintegration of the greatest empire the world has known.

After the battle of Ladysmith, in October, 1899, the defeated right wing of the main British army was driven into Ladysmith, a town situated in a bow shaped valley surrounded by concentric circles of hills. For some reason upon which military critics have not been able to agree, the British did not fortify the outer rim of hills, probably because the circumference was about fourteen miles and their lines would have been too thin. The outer hills left unfortified, most of the inner ridges became untenable, and the entire force, including cavalry, was bottled up in the town, which the Boers, in their usual slow but certain fashion, began to invest.

Sir George White, the commanding British general, realizing that Ladysmith if held would block the sweep of the Boer forces to the south, seemed content to hold the town if he could.

Before the bombardment began General Joubert allowed all non-combatants to be removed to the neutral camp Intombi, but the majority of able bodied men of the town declined to take advantage of this, preferring to render what assistance they could to the garrison.

Where the river runs through Ladysmith it had cut a deep channel, and as at Vicksburg the inhabitants burrowed into the steep banks and remained in their caves, comparatively safe from shell fire or shrapnel, six days a week. The Boers were a religious people as a whole, and on Sundays the cannonading invariably ceased and the cave dwellers went back to their homes for a short day of respite.

Having surrounded Ladysmith, the Boers apparently thought that the British would have no choice but to surrender, and the first infantry attacks were half-hearted affairs, in which only small bodies of the besieging force took part.

On one occasion the Boer riflemen made their way by night to within eight hundred yards of the trenches of the Sixtieth Manchester on Wagon Hill. The British made ready to repel an attack, but the Boers seemed unwilling to leave their shallow cover and remained all day exposed to the rifle fire of the Sixtieth Manchester and the shrapnel of the Forty second battery, retiring at night after sustaining heavy losses. The British killed and wounded totalled thirty.

General Joubert soon realized that his most potent allies were starvation and disease, so he contented himself with strengthening his trenches about the town and bombarding continuously.

On the night of December 8, under Generals Hunter, Edwards and Royston, a picked body of colonial troops made a sortie on Gun Hill, drove the Boers away from their battery long enough to blow up a Creusot and a howitzer with guncotton, and retired into Ladysmith with a captured Maxim, losing but one man.

Considerable feeling was evinced by the regulars over the selection of colonial troops for this enterprise, and accordingly three days later another sortie was made with regular troops and another battery destroyed, although owing to a delay in the explosion of the guncotton a number of men were lost.

Throughout the siege the troops and inhabitants of Ladysmith had been heartened by the sound of Buller's guns, which continually promised relief, but Buller was forced to retire from Colenso and even this encouragement was denied the besieged.

On January 6, 1900, the Boers hurled all their available forces against the town, and some of the fiercest fighting of the three years war occurred. Back and forth over the contested ground the two armies surged, and many a wounded man unable to rise served as a shield for an enemy who lay prone behind him and rested his rifle barrel on the powerless body.

One Englishman is known to have been shot six times by his own comrades in their attempts to hit a Boer rifleman who was directing a deadly fire from behind the body.

Although the assaulting force was driven off, the siege of Ladysmith was by no means at an end, and it was not until March 3 that Buller's relief column arrived. Even horseflesh, which was the staple meat diet, was at an ebb by then.

As Buller's troops marched into the town the beleaguered garrison was drawn up on either side of the road. At the head of the relief column were the five surviving officers and a handful of men of the Irish Fusiliers. At this stirring testimony to the cost at which Ladysmith had been relieved scores of the men who had gone unmoved through the hardships and terrors of the siege leaned upon their rifles and sobbed piteously.

The siege of Ladysmith endured 118 days, during which it is calculated 10,000 shells fell in the city.

A little more than ten years ago Port Arthur fell before the science of the engineers which made effective the feats of unexcelled bravery that alone could not have carried the most wonderful fortification of its day.

In the present war weapons of offence have so far outstripped devices for defence that Europe's greatest forts are laid in ruins in a few hours by cannon emplaced perhaps seven miles from the barriers they wreck. In the Russo-Japanese conflict, the last war of great magnitude, all the battering of siege guns, all the reckless, fiendish charges of men who wooed death, were not sufficient in themselves to carry the wonderful network of defences the Russians had built. After three costly attempts at assault the Japanese dug their way into Port Arthur, their engineers and sappers tunnelling under the very parapets and blowing them up with dynamite to make breaches through which the infantry could storm. In the last analysis steel clashed against steel, and men fought with hands and with teeth, but it was the slow engineering process which put the fighting men of Nippon where they could use steel and rush after three heroic assaults, covered by unprecedented artillery fire, had failed.

Roughly speaking, the Kwang Tung peninsula on which Port Arthur is situated is backed by two concentric ranges of hills which curve across the neck of land from sea to sea. The sky line of these ridges is broken here and there by high conical peaks which played an important part in the siege. The harbor itself is flanked by hills, and eighteen miles north of the city the peninsula narrows to a three-mile strip of land across which another ridge extends.

With consummate skill the Russian engineers, who foresaw that the Tsar would one day have to fight for his foothold on the Dragon's shores, had constructed a system of fortifications adapted to the natural lay of the land and which military experts declared could never be wrested from European soldiers by any other race of men. So carefully were the plans of the Port Arthur forts drawn that, one position being taken from the enemy, the guns of other positions could be brought to bear upon it from the sides or rear, and it was due to this that thousands of Japanese found that warrior's death for which they long.

The terrain before the parapets was smooth and devoid of natural cover and the glacis were steep and bare, so that machine guns and rifle fire might mow down by hundreds the fighting men who survived to scramble up them.

The parapets proper were of masonry so tough that the mortars and heavy cannon of the besieging army did not damage them to any dangerous extent. It remained for the mines of the engineers to breach them.

From the inner line of defences eighteen miles north to the narrowest part of the peninsula the fortifications extended, and mazes of barbed wire, often electrified, were strung where they entangled hundreds of men while the machine guns and shrapnel literally tore them into shreds.

A book might be written on the siege of Port Arthur without going into unimportant details, and no attempt can be made here to describe the operations step by step. Briefly, the Russian fleet was early driven into the harbor and Port Arthur was closed by sea.

On June 26 Kenshan and Wai-tou-shan fell to the Japanese, thus practically giving them the extreme north line of fortifications eighteen miles from the city. The Russians stubbornly refused to leave their defences even after the Japanese occupied them, and for three days General Stoessel hurled counter attacks against the ridge, succeeding only in losing three times as many men as had been sacrificed in defending the positions against the Japanese assault.

Early in August the investing army took Takushan and Shoutoshan and the Russians were driven into what they termed their semi-permanent fortifications.

So far the Japanese had carried everything by assault. They were flushed with victory. Perhaps, too, they had come to somewhat underestimate the ability of the Russians and the strength of their works, but it is probable that the chief reason for the series of costly assaults on the inner works which followed was the popular sentiment in Japan which demanded the fall of Port Arthur by the Mikado's birthday, and which insisted that the city must be carried by storm.

At any rate, on August 19 the first attempt to carry the semi-permanent works by storm was made. All day long three hundred cannon threw shells and shrapnel against the Russian fortifications, some of which were veritably smothered in clouds of flying earth and smoke. The Russian guns searched among the hills for the offending howitzers, but to little avail, and as the hours passed the defensive fire dwindled. Throughout the night the howitzers played upon the works and after sunrise the infantry attacked.

Seven days the assault was pushed with every ounce of energy the Japanese possessed. The barbed wire entanglements proved ghastly shambles. Under terrific fire squads managed to attack ropes to many of the strokes and hauled them down. Others rushed to the deadly barriers and then fell in grotesque manner as though shot, and after feigning death for a time wriggled, inch by inch, under the wires and cut them.

When the Russians discovered this ruse they poured a merciless rifle fire on all wounded who lay anywhere near the entanglements and many bodies were drilled full of holes even after death.

By night the Japanese attempted surprises, but the defenders used star bombs to search out the attacking columns and then the powerful searchlights glared pitilessly on them while masked batteries of field guns and machine guns poured in a cross fire and literally wiped regiments out of existence.

The Japanese batteries attempting to destroy the Russian artillery positions were baffled by the criss-cross playing of the searchlights, which confused the gunners.

The Seventh infantry of the Ninth division was the organization which finally inserted a thin wedge in the Russian line, a wedge which, however, the Japanese were powerless to drive in. A scoop of men from the Seventh effected a lodgement in a dip of land between the East Panlung and "P" fortification. A volunteer crawled to the breastworks of the Russians and placed a canister of dynamite, where it destroyed a machine gun, before he was killed. This achievement was repeated and the boys of the regiment were so far revived that they rushed to the support of this little party in such numbers that they overflowed the cover. Still they clung to their position until Russian machine guns were got into place and began to cut swaths in the ranks.

As the men scattered and finally began to break under this terrific slaughter an officer turned back and, seizing a battle flag, planted it firmly before the very breastworks.

He was killed. Another took his place. A third, a fourth were shot to pieces as they kept the regimental colors waving, but the men had seen the standard.

In little groups they dribbled back at first. More followed. There was a rush, the trample of feet amid the drumming of machine guns, shouts of victory and groans of wounded. Then steel clashed against steel and men fought as they did before there were those to record it, and the fort was taken.

But the garrisons of the West Panlung and the north fort brought their guns to bear on the captured position and the survivors of the Seventh would have been annihilated had not reserves begged for permission, and received it, to charge into the offending forts, which were in flames. Even with these positions in the hands of the Japanese, the Russians continued a deadly rifle fire on the Seventh.

When the Japanese generals were finally forced to put an end to the storming operations they were in possession of the two semi-permanent positions at Panlung and for this the had lost 15,000 men.

By the first of September the Japanese settled down to siege operations, although they twice again attempted to carry Port Arthur by storm before their mining and sapping had been carried to a proper extent.

On broad lines the siege operations were these:—Parallel to the Russian works and 1,000 yards from them, the Japanese dug deep trenches, covered by boards hidden under sod. From this parallel three zig-zag trenches were carried toward Ehrlung, Keewan and Panlung. They were six feet deep and eight feet wide and the angle of approach was such that they could be seen only with great difficulty from the Russian works, even when they were not covered and masked. This angle was also figured to prevent the trenches being fired into. Most of the digging was done by night and the soil was carried back and out of the trenches on stretchers and disposed of where it would not be seen by the Russians, who would at once realize what the offensive force was doing.

At last a great parallel was dug all around the foot of the fortified eastern front and the work of tunnelling under the hills to the parapets of the forts, which were the objectives, was begun. Tons of dynamite were placed in cross tunnels under the walls and when these were exploded the infantry poured through the trenches to the attack and stormed up the glacis and through the breached walls.

Some of the fiercest fighting of the siege was at 203 Metre Hill, a position which the Japanese desired in order that their range finders might direct artillery fire to destroy the Russian fleet lying in the harbor and the very innermost defences of the city.

Twelve thousand five hundred men were killed or wounded in the fighting at this hill, which continued night and day by moonlight and under the rays of the skilfully manipulated searchlights.

Once taken, the Japanese stationed observers on the hill and the range was found by means of hyposcopes, telescope-like instruments which, by a system of mirrors and lenses, enable a man to see what is before him, although he may be behind an embankment higher than his head.

Once in possession of the position, the besieging force commanded the entire city and harbor, and from behind two ranges of hills the giant Japanese coast defence guns, which had been placed three miles away, sent shells high in the air and dropped them down through the decks and out the bottoms of the Russian war ships, destroying the entire fleet in the harbor.

These guns were originally intended for coast defence in the Straits of Shimonoseki and the Bay of Yezzo, but they were transported to Dalny, whence they were taken by railroad fifteen miles to the end of the tracks and then hauled by hand over muddy roads to the concrete foundations which had been constructed for them under the greatest difficulties. It required 800 men to haul one gun, the rifle alone weighing eight tons.

At an angle of sixty degrees elevation the range of these mortars was seven miles, but the Japanese were using them to fire at vessels only three miles away, and this is what enabled them to drop the shells down through the decks of the war ships.

At half-past four in the afternoon of January 1 General Stoessel wrote to General Nogi, offering to capitulate. The subsequent meeting of the two generals was private, but it is known that both complimented the other on the conduct of the operations and particularly on the bravery of their men.

General Stoessel asked General Nogi to accept his white Arabian charger, but the Japanese expressed his regret that with the capitulation all horses, arms and other equipment became the property of the Japanese nation, but he pledged his word to the vanquished Russian that the horse would be well taken care of.

Port Arthur is the greatest siege known to history and it has yet to be equalled in the present war.

It may be that there is prophecy in the words of David James, written after he viewed the trenches of Spion Kop Hill:

"What man has done, man will do again, and human shambles will not be confined to this solitary instance, although they may never exceed its greatness."

Prophets and the European War.

By Martin Petry.

THAT prophecy is a lost art is again exemplified by the European war, which was not predicted by a single one of the numerous astrologers who are constantly studying the stars. The only prophet who came anywhere near it was a young mathematician of Rochester, Mr. E. L. Johndro, who early in June predicted that the relations between Austria, Servia and Russia would be very much strained in August. He added, however, that diplomacy would settle the difficulty and that no real European war would come until 1918, and would then last three years.

Madame Thebes, the much talked of Parisian prophet, some time ago said that this would be a bad year for the Kaiser and predicted that his death would occur on September 29 of this year, but nothing happened to the Kaiser and Madame Thebes announced that she had made a mistake in her calculation, and so put the date of his demise in November of this year. Why or how she does this is a mystery to any one who knows anything about astrology.

Some English astrologers after the war started announced that it would last for a few months and that the Allies would be victorious. German astrologers stated that Germany would win, and so it goes. With many of these prophets the wish is father to the thought.

However, despite all this there really is a germ of truth in astrology, and any student of it can testify. The fault is not so much with astrology as with astrologers, who often disagree in their interpretation of a horoscope just as physicians hold different opinions in their diagnoses of a case. The difficulty is that much of the ancient lore regarding astrology has been lost, and modern prophets are stumbling about in the dark hoping again to find the secret.

As it is, all that any astrologer can do is to point out fortunate or unfortunate periods, and that is all. For instance, when the malefic Saturn moves to an inharmonious aspect in an individual's chart it is absolutely certain that it will have a harmful effect. It may bring illness to himself, financial troubles or have other baneful effects—but no astrologer can definitely state what it will be, and any prophet who does so simply guesses at it. It is the same with a benefic planet, which may bring sudden good fortune, increase in health and vitality, add to one's prestige, &c., &c.

As with individuals so with countries. The zodiacal sign Gemini rules the United States, and an evil planet in that sign has always brought some difficulty for this country. Since 1912, when Saturn entered this sign, the United States has been in a delicate position as regards Mexico, and in 1898, when Saturn was in Sagittarius, opposing Gemini, we had the war with Spain. In September Saturn passed out of Gemini and since then the Mexican question has gradually simmered down.

There are many aspects of the planets which it is known will positively produce certain results, but astrology has not yet risen to that point of efficiency and perfection where it can be definitely predicted when and what will take place. By taking the month an individual is born in, the disposition, temperament and general trend of his life can be stated with reasonable certainty. For instance, Leo persons are invariably light-hearted, luxury-loving persons who seldom have to resort to manual labor, while Scorpio persons are quiet, deep, secretive and carry out their plans in life with diplomatic skill. Thus the zodiacal signs run the gamut of every human emotion and trait of character, and these can be generally stated, but when it comes to figuring with mathematical accuracy when an event is to take place, that is as yet impossible, and any astrologer who attempts it deceives not only others but himself.

The character of the planets is also pretty well known. For instance, there is the ponderous Uranus, known as the celestial iconoclast, which tears down only to build up anew. In evil aspect this planet may cause serious and chronic diseases, or it may change an individual's views of life and he may suddenly become radical after years of conservative living and thinking, and vice versa. Calculated by the procession of the equinoxes, Uranus was in the watery sign Pisces the fishes when Christ was born and gave the world a new religion. A few years ago Uranus entered the airy sign Aquarius, where this planet will remain for 2,000 years. While in this sign the best astrologers have long predicted a new era which "will have something to do with the air." Wireless telegraphy and the coming of the aeroplane show how well they scented the matter.

Saturn affects the health principally when in bad aspect to the sun, and yet again it may bring financial loss. Jupiter rules wealth principally, while Mars is constantly associated with war. Yet a man may have Mars strong in his horoscope and have nothing at all to do with warfare; he will, however, be a fighter in whatever line of activity he may be engaged in during his life.

As for this European war, no astrologer can tell how long it will last, as the astrological signs are so complex that a Chinese puzzle is an easy task to solve in comparison. Jupiter just now is in Aquarius, which represents Prussia, but this planet will pass out of that sign within a few months. According to all known rules, Jupiter will assist Prussia's plans, but during the latter his benefic rays will be [illegible] her. To properly [illegible] matter the horoscopes of [illegible] general, army brigade, naval fleet and admiral would have to be worked out mathematically correct, and this data is hard to get, and, even if obtained, the task would be too monumental for any human mind. However, time will solve the whole matter. Meanwhile, it is well to remember that no prophet can definitely tell the result; that, while there is something in astrology, it will take years of careful study by superior minds to put it on a correct and definite basis.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A TRIFLING MISTAKE

By THOMAS R. DUNN

I was dressing for dinner one evening when the telephone bell rang. Stepping to the instrument, I heard a very sweet feminine voice say:

"Is that you, Mr. Pemberton?"

"Yes, I'm Pemberton."

"You're to be at the corner of Eighth and Walnut this evening at 9. Take the cab you will find there and"—

"Who are you?" I asked, not understanding all this talk.

"I'm Effie Stroeg. You will be driven to the park entrance. Go to the fountain, where you will find Edith. Carry a rose in— Oh, heavens, some one is coming!"

There was a click and that was the end of these remarkable instructions. It was evident that there had been a call for some one bearing my name, and the telephone girl or the person calling or some one had made a mistake.

Now, I would not on any account take advantage of such a blunder to gratify curiosity, pry into other people's affairs or for any other purpose. But I felt it incumbent on me to correct the error if possible. This other Pemberton would not get the message intended for him, the driver of the cab might wait all night on his box, and Effie might grow so desperate as to drown herself in the fountain. It behooved me to set matters right.

I called up the telephone office and asked who had given me the last call. I might as well have asked the operator to tell me how many grains there are on an ear of corn. I looked in the directory for the name Pemberton, but mine was the only one there.

There was nothing for it but that I should go to the corner of Eighth and Walnut streets, take the cab, proceed to the fountain and tell Edith that she needn't wait any longer because the real—her real—Pemberton had not been informed of the meeting.

I confess I was somewhat curious to know why a conveyance had been provided and what was to be the upshot of the business. But I resolved simply to state that a mistake had been made and ask no questions. I thought it necessary to carry a rose in order that I should be recognized for the other fellow or I might as well stay away. So on my way to the place where I should meet the carriage I stopped at a flower shop and bought one. The cab was in position, and I opened the door. The driver asked if I was Mr. Pemberton, and I told him that I was. Then he drove me to the park. I alighted and went up the walk to the fountain.

Two girls were standing looking at the dripping water, and one of them on seeing the rose in my hand left her friend and made straight for me.

"I have come to tell you," I said, raising my hat, "that there has been a mistake."

"Good gracious! What's gone wrong? Is it all off?"

"A telephone message came to me this afternoon from a lady whom I don't know."

"Certainly you don't know her. You are not expected to know her."

"You see, I'm not—that is, there's only one person of my name in the telephone book"—

"You're Mr. Pendleton, aren't you?"

"Certainly I'm Pendleton. There's no doubt about that, but"—

"Come! Let us hurry. We'll be too late. Maud told me that if I failed her it would break her all up; she wouldn't be able to get through with it."

If this young woman had been a scarecrow or suspicious looking I might have attempted further explanation. But she was as pretty as a peach, and if she wouldn't give me a chance it seemed to me that I was excusable for letting her have her way. Putting her arm through mine, she hurried me to the cab. We got in, and the cabman drove away without any instructions. I presumed he had been given them before.

"Now I'll explain," said my kidnaper. "You see, Maud Farnsworth and Ned Bigler have been dead in love with each other for a long while. Maud's parents think they know better whom Maud wants to marry than she does herself. She and Ned are to be married secretly, and you and I are to be the witnesses."

"Oh! That's all?"

"That's all! Why, isn't that a good deal?"

"But please tell me what I have to do with it."

"Why, Maud has made all the arrangements. She asked me whom I would like to take me to the parsonage, and I said it didn't matter to me; she might find some one herself. She said she would and made all the arrangements."

I leaned back on the cushion and chuckled.

"What amuses you?" asked my companion.

"I tried to tell you that a mistake has been made, but you wouldn't listen to me. I am pleased to learn that no harm has been done. On the contrary, I have made a very pleasant acquaintance."

I told her the whole story, at which she was greatly amused, remarking that it was a good joke on Maud. At the parsonage Maud started on seeing a stranger in me, but as I was only intended for a witness and she was very much rattled at the step she was taking she said nothing.

And that's how I met the girl I married.

The Midnight Sun.

At certain seasons of the year, owing to the position of the earth, there is a territory in the arctic circle where the sun is above the horizon for weeks or months continuously, shining at night as well as during the day. Thus at North cape, Norway, the sun is above the horizon continuously from May 12 to July 30 and at Bodo, not far from the arctic circle, from June 3 to July 7. Even in the extreme south of Norway there is no darkness from the end of April to the middle of August. In the winter, on the other hand, the sun is not visible at the North cape from Nov. 18 to Jan. 23 and at Bodo from Nov. 15 to Dec. 27. There is only a twilight at midday. In the extreme south of Norway the sun is above the horizon for six and one-half hours at midwinter.—Philadelphia Press.

THE HAPPY POLICE HABIT

A vilyun stabbed the lady fair
And drag her 'round by her own hair!
He monkeyed with the bureau drawers
Till the reviving lady's roars
Brought citizens upon the scene,
When he lit out for pastures green.
They saw him run a half a mile
Straight out the street, in sprinter style.
Then the police—the Nemesis!—
Came out and "searched the premises."

They felt that surely he would stay
To bid the cops the time of day.
They felt aggrieved that he should hurry
Thus from the scene and give them worry.
They simply could not think that he
Had quit the place so hurriedly!
They felt quite bitter toward the plan
For shaming their unchanging plan,
Older than the first Rameses—
That is, to "search the premises."

Till time shall end and they'll do the same.
In this constabulary game.
They'll never quit—these optimists—
Believing that on crime's black list
There is a criminal so daft
He'll stick around till he is gaffed.
They'll find him near his sinning's scene
And promptly nab him slick and clean.
So cop-squads, like a Nemesis,
Will ever "search the premises."

SAGE TEA TURNS GREY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Colour and Lustre to Hair

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns grey, streaked and looks dry, wispy and scraggy, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the tonic; you can get from any drug store a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," ready to use. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural colour thickness and lustre of your hair and remove dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the grey hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy, lustrous and abundant.

A FISH BULLETIN

"In buying fresh fish, see that the eyes are bright and prominent and the flesh firm and not flabby."

This is only one item of the many pointers given for the benefit of housewives in the most recent bulletin from Ottawa, "Fish and How to Cook It." In addition to general information on the comparative food values of the various kinds of fish, full information is given on the preparation of fish for the table along with numerous receipts for fish dishes. This booklet is got out in attractive style by the Department of Naval Service, and may be had on application to that department at Ottawa. We advise all of Our Folks to take advantage of this offer.

Nay, speak no ill, but lenient be
To others' failings as your own.
If you're the first a fault to see
Be not the first to make it known;
For life is but a passing day—
No lips may tell how brief its span;
Then, oh, the little time we stay
Let's speak of all the best we can.

A Smooth, White Skin That Defies Weather

During the coming months of biting winds and intense cold, you who would keep your skins smooth, white and velvety, should turn your attention to powdered wax. Nothing else will so effectively remove a chapped, roughened or discoloured surface. By gradually absorbing the weather-beaten cuticle, the complexion is kept in perfect condition, and even the beauty of expression appears more pronounced. If your skin be blotchy, pimply, freckled, coarse, sallow or overred, why not shed it? One ounce of ordinary mercolized wax, to be had at any druggist's, will completely transform the most unsightly complexion in less than a fortnight. Use the wax nightly, like cold cream, washing it off mornings.

If weather, age or poor health has marred your face with wrinkles, here's good news. You can quickly remove every line by using a harmless, refreshing face lotion prepared by dissolving 1 oz. powdered saxolite in ½ pt. witch hazel. The firmer, smoother skin, the more youthful appearance, even after one application, will astonish you.

(By Karl H. Von Wiegand.)

With the Left Wing of the German Army, Tiscourt, France, October 15 (by courier to Rotterdam, Nov. 23.—This is a story of the men who form one of the great human slaughter machines of Europe, in tears. It is a story of how the real human hearts of men whose chief occupation now is to kill, showed through their eyes as they sang of home and loved ones.

A story has been cabled of the "gesangverein," or choral society which has been organized by the Germans in one of the trenches north of Toul to relieve the monotony of the hours and days. Most of their singing is done in the deep black trench. There is the dense fog, the grey, ghost-like figures of the soldiers with rifles ready for instant use rest across the protecting ridge of earth, pointed toward the enemy's line only 600 yards away. The stillness is broken only by the booming of artillery in the distance—and then songs well forth from the men whose voices may soon be stilled forever.

But to-day the "gesangverein" sang in the old French church at Tiscourt. The company had just come in for a rest after several days and nights in the trenches. There was a soft, dim light in the old church. The 'singing society" of soldiers stood in the choir loft. Other soldiers and officers sat on hard wooden bench-like pews Scores of soldiers stood in the aisles.

There was intense silence. Then the musical director raised his baton: "It is the day of the Lord" welled out in rich musical tones. It was sung with the deepest feeling. As the anthem swelled forth a religious fervour shone in the faces of the soldiers. Among those in the pews and standing in the aisles, hands were clasped, heads bowed. Lips moved in silent prayer.

The anthem is ended. There is a moment of impressive silence and the soldier voices ring out in "Dear Fatherland, my beloved Fatherland." Heads are raised, shoulders squared. Patriotic exaltation comes into the faces—the love of country for which they are sacrificing their lives. Again the music ceases and once more the leader raises his baton for the next song. It is "Meine Heimat is An Dem Schoenen Rhein" ("My Home is on the Beautiful Rhine.")

It sweeps softly through the church There is a movement among the soldiers. The heart cord has been struck. Chins drop on breasts, faces soften. the patriotic fire in the eyes disappears before a softer, gentler gleam.

A French woman, leading two little children by the hand, comes up the aisle from the door and kneels in front of the dark altar. A soldier at the end of the bench leans over and touches the hair of the little girl with his lips. Two great tears roll down the bearded cheek of a soldier near by. He is struggling with some great emotion. His arms are partly outstretched as if reaching to clasp someone in them. In his eyes there is the expression of the most intense longing man may know—the longing for home and loved ones. With the back of his rough hand he brushes away the tears.

"Never, never will I see my home; never will I see them again—it tells me so" he softly whispers. Oh, God, protect them when I am no more."

Tenderly he caresses something that seems to wrap itself around his finger. In the dim light it looks like a lock of hair. He raises it to his lips again and again.

The song of home is ended. The French woman and her two little children still kneel before the altar. Silently the soldiers begin to leave the church.

The concert of the "gesangverein" is ended. Within a few days these men will be back in the trenches, a part of a war machine, but to-day a song laid their hearts bare.

HEARING IS RESTORED TO DEAF

Without Mechanical or Artificial Hearing Devices. Deaf Hear With Their Own Ears. A Wonderful English Discovery.

Thousands of people suffer from catarrhal deafness or poor hearing, who having tried specialists, advertised treatments, artificial ear drums, ear 'phones, electric vibrators and various mechanical appliances without success have at last resigned themselves to a "world of silence," thinking that nothing can ever restore to them their normal hearing. Yet their case is not hopeless. A remarkable scientific treatment discovered little more than a year ago in England is making people hear after years of deafness and is also unequalled for quickly stopping the distressing head noises that are so often the companions of defective hearing. This discovery is called Parmint and has attracted widespread notice throughout Europe where reports of the remarkable results it has given to deaf people have come in by the hundred.

The effect of Parmint it seems is by tonic action to produce a stimulus necessary to reduce all inflammation, swelling, enlargement or thickening of the organs of hearing and to stimulate the entire auditory tract.

Parmint is now being sold by many leading druggists in Peterborough and vicinity and a speedy trial is urged upon all who suffer from catarrhal deafness or head noises in any degree. Ask the druggist for 1 oz. of Parmint (Double Strength) and take it home and mix with ½ pint of hot water and 4 oz. of granulated sugar until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day and you should soon find a remarkable improvement in your hearing.

Important: In ordering Parmint always specify that you want double strength; your druggist has it or he can get it for you; if not, send 50c to the International Laboratories, 76 St. Antoine St., Montreal, P.Q., who make a specialty of it.

WHAT IS A POET?

Maeterlinck is said to have declined election to the French Academy on the ground that the place belongs to a poet, declaring: "A poet alone has the qualifications to represent worthily that which is great and heroic in a people."

All very well, but what is poetry and who is a poet? If it be contended that only the rhymester can qualify or the one who has the gift of arranging his verbal measures so that they will have a lyrical rhythm and so many feet to the line, there is still no satisfactory standard by which values may be accurately appraised. The adept rhymester does not necessarily have the qualifications to represent worthily the great and heroic deeds of a people. Many poems of the futile and inept class have already been evoked by this war. So far it has produced more poetical themes than poets.

Poets do not always confine themselves to formal metre. Some of the best poems ever written have been in the technical form of prose, and they have worthily represented the great and heroic in human life. When it comes to these matters the narrower definition of poets and poetry is restricting and irksome. There are many persons who have been convinced that Maeterlinck is a true poet Probably he is over-modest in refusing membership in the French Academy on these grounds.

O, the comfort, the inexpressible comfort, of feeling safe with a person; having neither to weigh thoughts nor words, but pouring them all right out, chaff and grain together, certain that a faithful hand will take them and sift them, keep what is worth keeping, and with the breath of love and kindness blow the rest away. —Geo. McDonald.

Bring Back Your Appetite

With a Little Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet, the Secret of Perfect Digestion.

You should see our farmers and their boys eating in the fields. On the farm five meals a day is the rule. No one ever has stomach trouble because meals are digested and people live normally.

In the city we lose our "pep" and indigestion, dyspepsia, stomach trouble, etc., make us look on five meals as an impossibility.

A majority of people have come to know the blessings which an occasional use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets confer upon the stomach. They are unquestionably the most popular remedy known, for the reason that dyspepsia is the national disease, and these wonderful little tablets have long since acquired a national reputation as a thoroughly reliable and efficient cure for all forms of dyspepsia and indigestion.

No matter how great the excess of food taken into the stomach, one or two of these tablets will digest every particle of it. A package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets should always be in the house. Many a person has saved himself from a serious attack of acute indigestion by using them after heavy meals, such as are eaten Christmas, New Year's, Thanksgiving and other holidays and festal seasons.

After attending banquets, late suppers, heavy fancy dinners, after-theatre parties, etc., where one has dined sumptuously and luxuriantly, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets should invariably be used, as they digest the food perfectly and completely, and prevent all possibility of dyspepsia, which, without their use, is more than likely to ensue.

Go to your druggist to-day and buy a box. A small sample package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will be mailed free to any one who will address: F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

BIRDS FLY FROM NORTHERN FRANCE

PARIS, Nov. 24.—The feathered tribe of Belgium and Northern France has been dispersed by the din of war.

In all the districts of the Marne it was noticed after the battle that the birds had disappeared. The Argonne forests also have been nearly depopulated of all kinds of game by the continual turmoil in those regions. Driven to detached woods and thickets, where their dangers would have been increased in time of peace, they now find security.

Apart from their enforced exile, birds are not the least fortunate of beings in these times, game shooting being prohibited in France. The markets furnished evidence that some poaching was going on, however, and the Minister of War issued a warning that the sale of no other than imported refrigerator game would be tolerated. Early in the war soldiers supplemented their rations by taking a hare or a pheasant here and there, but this was stopped by order.

Scarcity of game in the market is no hardship, for it is a small part of the alimentation of Paris. The arrivals amount annually to only 1,000 tons of native and 450 tons of imported game, while the arrivals of domestic poultry alone aggregate 21,000 tons.

Belgium sends 50,000 larks to Paris each season, while the game importations from other countries are: Austria, 2,500 deer, 80,000 partridges, 50,000 hares; Italy, 25,000 quail; Australia, 100,000 rabbits, 20,000 hares and 50,00 larks; England, 40,000 pheasants and 30,000 partridges. An effort is being made to substitute the Russian reindeer for Austrian deer.

No doubt considerable game that did not get away from the continually beaten war zone has been destroyed, and the sportsmen who have shooting preserves in these parts of the country are pessimistic concerning the future; they think it will require several years to repopulate these regions. On the other hand, the prohibition of one season's shooting in the territory not affected by hostilities it is thought, will result in immense benefit to game in general, and next year and for many years to come all kinds of game will be more plentiful than ever before.

London's Beauty Writers

Weekly Selections from Noted Beauty Experts Writing for the English Press. Simple and Effective Methods.

By Cleo Anderson, Special Correspondent, London, Eng.

Each week in this department I will endeavor, by carefully culling from the London papers, to keep my Colonial readers informed on the latest and best advice of the London beauty experts. Owing to the persistent demand most London newspapers and periodicals are now devoting much space to the question of beauty culture. Many of them now employ high salaried experts to advise and instruct in methods most efficient for enhancing or restoring beauty of face and figure. I append herewith a few clippings from leading English publications. Any of the ingredients mentioned could be obtained from Canadian chemists or druggists, so I am told. Look out for more hints next week. I shall endeavor to keep right up to date.

Helps Complexion Remarkably.

A persistently shiny nose or a dull, lifeless complexion drives many a woman to cosmetics and consequent despair. And all the time a simple remedy lies at hand in the home. If you have no cleanlite in the house you need only get about an ounce from your druggist and add just as much water to dissolve it. A little of this simple lotion is Nature's own beautifier. It is very good for the skin and instantly gives the complexion a soft, velvety, youthful bloom that any woman might envy. It lasts all day or evening, renders powdering entirely unnecessary, and absolutely defies detection.

Lend Curling Lashes.

If the eyebrows and lashes are thin and "washed out" looking, they may be made to come darker and heavier by gentle massaging with ordinary mapaline. Applying meanwhile to the lashes with the finger tips will make them grow long and lovely. This delicate pomade-like substance is perfectly harmless to the eyes, so you need not fear to use it quite liberally.

Magnetism of Beautiful Hair.

Beautiful hair adds immensely to the personal magnetism of both men and women. Athletic and smart women are ever on the lookout for any harmless thing that will increase the natural beauty of their hair. The latest method is to use pure stallax as a shampoo on account of the peculiarly glossy, fluffy and wavy effect which it leaves. As stallax has never been used much for this purpose it comes to the druggist only in sealed original packages, enough for twenty or thirty shampoos. A teaspoonful of the fragrant stallax granules, dissolved in a cup of hot water, is more than sufficient for each shampoo. It is very beneficial and stimulating to the hair, apart from its beautifying effect.

Dry, Irritating, Dandruffy Scalps.

Nothing can compare with the following recipe for the above condition, and unit you have rectified any trouble in the direction. It is useless to expect the hair to grow healthy and vigorous. Mix a package of borasium with one-fourth pint of bay rum, shake the bottle well and allow to stand for 30 minutes, then add one-fourth pint cold water and strain. This simple home remedy will stimulate the hair roots to their normal functions, resulting in a beautiful growth of new hair.

Permanently Removing Superfluous Hair.

"How to permanently, and merely temporarily, remove a downy growth of disfiguring superfluous hair, is what many women wish to know. It is a pity that it is not more generally known that pure powdered phenol, obtainable from the druggists in original one-ounce packages, may be used for this purpose. It is applied directly to the objectionable hair. The recommended treatment not only instantly removes the hair, leaving no trace, but is designed also to kill the roots completely.

Don't Use Curling Irons.

The heated from makes the hair dry and parched looking, giving a most unlady appearance. Get a small bottle of plain liquid silmering at your druggists and apply a little of this to the hair at night with a clean tooth brush. In the morning your hair will be as beautifully curly and wavy as though Mother Nature did it, and it will be quite manageable, no matter what style of coiffure you adopt. The effect will last much longer than if you used a curling iron, and the health of your hair will not suffer.

The Spread of Temperance.

No vodka for the Russian soldiers, no "bitter beer" and Scotch whiskey for the English, no saki for the Japs, and now no absinthe for the French.

The whole world seems to be in a coalition against King Alcohol. When armies begin to shoot holes into him the old king's position becomes decidedly interesting.

This sort of news should stimulate the ardour of our secretary of the navy, who sometime ago banished this same King Alcohol from American warships. All in all, 1914 has witnessed the most extraordinary crusade ever inaugurated against what Judge Jere Black used to call "hard liquor."

Long ago athletic trainers learned that men could play harder without artificial stimulants. Now that nations openly declare that soldiers can fight better without it, who shall say that men cannot also work more efficiently on cold water?

Farmer Jones (over the fence) "Does your cow give a lot of milk?"

Farmer Town (lately from the city) "Well, I think she would give a lot, but my wife and I agreed we would be saving of it, and I only milk a pint or a quart, or just what we want to use, so there won't be any wasted."

SUCCESSES FOR ALLIES REPORTED

GERMANS RETREAT ON FORTY MILE FRONT

THE HOME GUARD

Has Been Converted into a Military Organization—Mr. E. E. Goodwill Appointed Commander

OFFICERS ELECTED

Last evening in the Bank of Montreal Chambers, a well attended meeting of the executive committee of the Peterborough Rifle Association and officers was held. Captain E. L. Goodwill occupied the chair. Among those present was Lieut.-Col. Miller and Lieut.-Col. Stevenson, and a large number of ex-officers of the active militia.

Mr. Goodwill in addressing the meeting expressed his pleasure at the successful organization of the Peterborough Home Guard, which had exceeded alal expectations. He suggested that the affairs of the Association be no longer conducted by the committee, and that in his opinion the management of what was now practically the Home Guard Regiment, should be committed to the officers of the militia.

The executive committee then handed in their resignations and the officers appointed retired to prepare a report. Their report accompanied by a list of officers met with the unanimous approval of the meeting. Despite Mr. Goodwill's insistent protestations, the meeting would not hear of his resignation, but unanimously endorsed the report of the officers that Mr. Goodwill should accept the position of commander. Mr. Goodwill was finally persuaded to accept the appointment amid rounds of applause. The newly appointed officers are most enthusiastic, which in itself should ensure the success of the ment.

Brief addresses were made by Lieut.-Col. Miller, Lieut.-Col. Stevenson, His Worship Mayor Buller, and Hon. Major Davidson, chaplain of the 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers. The latter emphasized the significance of the flag and its relation to a military organization.

ALLIES WIN AT SEVERAL POINTS

Official Communique To-day Shows Advances Made in Different Sections of Western Battle Front--No Infantry Fighting Between Ypres and the Sea.

Special to The Examiner:

PARIS, November 25.—The official statement given out by the French war office this afternoon says:

"From the North Sea to Ypres there have been no infantry attacks.

"Between Langemarick and Zonnebecke we have gained territory.

"In the vicinity of La Bassee, the Indian troops recaptured from the enemy certain trenches which had been taken from them the evening before.

"From La Bassee to Soissons there has been almost a complete calm.

"We have made slight progress near Berry-au-Bac, and in the Argonne.

"At Bethincourt, northwest of Verdun, a German attack has been repulsed, and a suspension of hostilities requested by the enemy has been refused.

"In the region of Pont-a-Mousson our artillery found it impossible to bombard Armanville.

"Nothing has happened in the Vosges."

LONDON, November 25.—The allied fleet is battering down the German line established along the Belgian coast. Reports to-day tell of the German troops being caught between the fire of the warships and the land batteries in the vicinity of Nieuport. The bombardment of Zeebrugge, which has resulted in the partial destruction of the town and the fighting off Westende, all clearly indicate the determination with which the British fleet has set to the task of curbing the ambitions which the Germans may have of establishing a base for a raid on England. Reports from Holland declare that Zeebrugge was partially destroyed by the Germans that their guns might have a clear sweep for the duel with the warships. The inhabitants of the city are in flight. Serious damage has been done by the warships.

Middlekirke, Knocke and other towns of the western Belgian district have felt the main force of the British attack. Should it develop that the docks have been destroyed and Zeebrugge otherwise disabled as a naval base, a severe blow will have been struck at the German plan of operation from the Belgian coast.

BERLIN, November 25.—The Reichstag has received the draft of the second supplementary Imperial Budget for the year 1914. This empowers the Imperial Chancellor for the purpose of meeting extraordinary expenses, again to raise one and a quarter billion dollars in the form of credit, furthermore the Chancellor is empowered to issue treasury notes up to a hundred million dollars for the widows and orphans, and the relief of distress.

HANDSOME CAFE

Jim Hum, the new manager of the Dominion Cafe, 328 George street, has completed the remodelling and decorating of the interior of his premises. The transformation is an evidence of his good judgment and speaks well for his artistic tastes. The walls of the Cafe have been decorated with a very pleasing new treatment of ingrain wall paper of a granite design, while the panelling imparts an Oriental effect to the interior. A new metallic ceiling has been put on, giving a swell effect and harmonizes with the very pretty coloured border around the alcoves. Extra booths have been installed and the other booths and tables have put on a new dress of neatness and good taste. Ornamental new signs decorate the doors, and the front has been newly painted in an up-to-date manner.

Some Rope!

"How do you like that cigar I gave you?" asked the Old Fogey.

"Next to the filler the worst thing about it is the wrapper," replied the Grouch.

A KICK ABOUT THE COST OF LIGHT

Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—With the advent of the Hydro-Electric system we were promised cheaper and better light, which was much needed. The working out of this system was placed in the hands of the Water Commissioners, who took upon themselves the more pretentious name of the Utilities Commission, and since then the change for the worst started.

While everybody complains, some are affected more than others; in some cases the prices soaring to double, if not to three times the former price for an inferior light.

Some of the ladies are talking of holding an indignation meeting and of returning to the old method of using coal oil lamps, which give a cheaper and better light. It is now up to the Utilities Commission to bestir themselves P. D. Q.

Yours, etc.,
Lumen.

EXPLOIT OF THE INDIANS

Retake Trenches Which Had Been Occupied by Germans and Take Number of Prisoners

GUNS CAPTURED

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, Nov. 25. — An Indian corps has re-taken trenches which they lost to the Germans yesterday, and captured three German officers, over 100 men, three machine guns and one mortar. A statement from the War bureau announced to-day, says the general situation is declared to be unchanged.

OBJECTIONS TO LOCATION OF SEWAGE PLANT

DEPUTATION TO TORONTO

The residents of the northwest portion of Otonabee are determined that the proposed city sewage disposal plant will not be built within the limits of their township. With this end in view a deputation from a recently organized association, formed for the express purpose of opposing the proposition, went to Toronto yesterday, to interview Dr. McCullough, Secretary of the Provincial Board of Health. The deputation consisted of Mr. C. F. Kittney, Secretary of the association; Deputy Reeve Deyell, a solicitor and Mr. Thompson, M.P.P. The proposal is to build the plant at a point selected opposite Rye's boat house, and it is the residents in this part of the township who so strongly object.

Dr. McCullough gave an attentive hearing to the representations of the delegation, and appeared much impressed with their views. However, he pointed out that the plans had not yet been finally submitted to him, and that when this was done he would fix a date when all parties could be present, and in the meantime, he would, of course, not in any way, endorse the city's view.

The deputation was well pleased with the result of their visit.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

On Thursday night a splendid entertainment is going to be given in the Y. M. C. A. when a good exhibition of physical work, a basketball game and concert will be presented. VICTORY GROWS IN MAGNITUDE

Petrogard Reports Declare That Germans Are Retreating Along a Forty Mile Line and Will Be Forced Back on Their Own Frontier for the Second Time.

Examiner Special:

PETROGRAD, November 25. — It is confidently believed here that as additional reports of the fighting between the Vistula and the Warthe are received and the retreat of the Germans continues, the Russian victory will grow in magnitude. The Germans are now declared to be retreating along a forty mile line. Reinforcements are advancing from the south of Kalicz, but the superiority of the Russians in numbers over the Germans, even with new troops, is expected to force the Kaiser's troops back upon their own frontier for a second time. The battle line is swinging to the southwest.

London, November 25.—Lieut. Graham, whose name appears among the wounded, is Alan Charles Graham, formerly A.D.C. to the Duke of Connaught.

GENEVA, Switzerland, November 25. — A telegram from Belfort states that the commanding officer there had a parade on Monday in honour of the British airman, Commander Babbington and Flight Lieut. Sippe, who participated in the raid on Friederichshalen, and decorated them with the legion of honour.

TORONTO, November 25. — On a charge of high treason against the Empire, Paul Mazur, a young Canadian corporal in the Canadian militia, born of Austrian parents, was sent up from the police court to the assizes for trial to-day. Mr. W. K. Murphy, Jr., his counsel, put up the plea that the young fellow was going to visit in the States, and did not deliberately attempt to smuggle three Austrians out of Canada. The interesting feature of the case is that Mazur was acting as the government interpreter in enrolling the alien enemies at Port Hope.

LONDON, November 25.—A silent gun, probably of pneumatic type, is being used by the Germans in Flanders, a report from Colonel Swinton, the British official "eye witness" at the front, asserts to-day. Describing the conditions on the western front, Colonel Swinton says: "The hard cold weather has much improved transportation work and aerial scouting, but owing to the intense cold the men are sometimes lifted stiff from the trenches when they are relieved. The snow shows up all the roads and positions to aerial scouts, but the scouts may themselves be seen more clearly. The situation up to the 21st was unchanged. The trenches in some cases are only forty yards apart, the opposing sides holding shooting competitions, and throwing packets of tobacco at one another."

CITY HALL PARAGRAPHS

The city has decided to purchase a strip of land on the south side of Victoria avenue. The strip is one foot wide and three hundred feet long. It was originally reserved for the purpose of holding the frontage right to the property adjacent to the strip. The land is blessed with three years' arrears of taxes, so it will be just about as cheap for the city to accept the deed given by John Dixon as to advertise the sale of the land for taxes.

The Property Committee.

The Property Committee of the City Council will insist that the caretaker of the incinerator take better care of the plant and not dump barrels of ice and other material on the arches so as to break them. In other words he will be invited to use "more judgment."

JUST A REMINDER

That this is a good time to get your upholstering repairs carefully and promptly done by first-class workmen, and a full line of choice coverings to select from. Call telephone No. 79 and let us send for your repairs. E. B. Clegg & Co., 497 George street.

NO MORE STALE EGGS

The Sanitary Inspector has received a number of egg-testing appliances from the Agriculture Department, which can be procured from him free of cost by those interested. The appliance is made of cardboard which can be folded into a receptacle to hold either an electric light, or table lamp. By passing an egg in front of a hole so that the light shines up on it, one can tell at a glance whether the egg is in a fresh state or otherwise.

Mr. Spence intends to distribute some to the farmers' wives on the market on Saturday, together with literature on the proper way of marketing eggs, and hopes in this way to secure a better quality of this commodity in the future.

VICTIM OF SUBMARINE

Refugee Ship Deliberately Sunk by Germans in Channel in Broad Day-light

OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The steamship Admiral Grantesume, loaded with refugees, which was sunk in the Channel, Oct. 26, was the victim of a German submarine, the British Admiralty declared to-day. In making the announcement and charge that she was sent to the bottom by an enemy's war vessel, the Admiralty published a picture of a fragment of a torpedo bearing a German label.

"The discovery of the fragment of German torpedo in a life-boat proves conclusively that the Admiral Grantesume was destroyed by a submarine," the Admiralty states, and "this action, the deliberate destruction, in broad daylight, of a defenceless passenger ship, filled with refugees, is the best specimen of German methods yet recorded."

It was reported at first that this refugee ship struck a mine, and, later, that her boilers blew up. This is the first intimation that a German submarine was guilty of it. Two thousand people were safely rescued by passing steamers, but many others lost their lives in being transferred from the sinking ship to others.

DONATIONS WERE MUCH APPRECIATED

Contributions to Belgian Relief Acknowledged

To the Members, Otonabee Patriotic Association:

I am instructed by Mr. H. Prud'homme, 50 St. Peter St., Montreal, to thank all who contributed and helped with the splendid donations which were sent from Indian River, Keene and Peterborough for Belgian relief.

It is not advisable to ship any more foodstuffs of a perishable nature at this season of the year, but all donations of money, imperishable foods, or clothing are very acceptable.

The Central Committee for Otonabee will be at the town hall, Keene, every Wednesday to receive all gifts of clothing. Men's, women's, or children's new or old underclothing, shoes and blankets, will be very acceptable, since lack of these is felt more than outer garments. All clothing will go forward as soon as received.

Considerable money is now required to carry on the work that is now under way, and all contributions, large or small, will be very acceptable. Mr. John Moore, Keene, is treasurer for the township organization.

W. A. ANDERSON,
Reeve.

PATRIOTIC BRIDGE

The patriotic bridge and five hundred party given for Christmas presents to the Peterborough boys in England, will be held at 2.30 o'clock on Friday, November 27th, in the Oddfellows' Hall. If there are any who have not yet taken a table and would like to do so they may have one by 'phoning any one of the Committee, which consists of Mrs. Geo. Burnham, Mrs. E. Clarkson, Mrs. E. L. Goodwill, Miss Helen Davidson, Treasurer, and Miss Jean Harstone, Secretary. Those who do not wish to play cards are asked to come for afternoon tea at 5 o'clock. Gentlemen are also cordially invited to join the ladies at tea. The tickets in any case are 50 cents.

Five Prisoners Were Released

KINGSTON, Nov. 25—Five war prisoners were released from Fort Henry yesterday and they were escorted to the trains to go to their home towns. Two of the prisoners were Germans and they went to Montreal, at which point they had been previously apprehended. The other three were sons of Turkey and two of them returned to Brantford while the other went to Dundas. In the five cases the prisoners had taken out naturalization papers and it was, therefore, unnecessary to hold them.

Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 25, 1914

GERMAN GUILE AND GUILT.

The Germans have been again convicted of an act of barbarity that shames the worst spirit of savagery. A despatch received to-day, states that the fact that the steamer Admiral Granteaume with 2,000 Belgian refugees, driven from home by German brutality, which was recently sunk, was destroyed by a German torpedo, deliberately and maliciously discharged against her. With evidence like this of Germany's atrocious policy of brute force—in bringing on and prosecuting war, it is no wonder that Germany is put on her defence; and is spending millions in publicity in order to place her defence before the world. German agencies on this continent, are even invading Canada with their lying literature. We can form some idea of the insidious character of this propaganda from the fact that the names and even street addresses,of unobtrusive citizens of Peterborough, are by some means obtained. A daughter of Mr. I. E. Brock, of the Brinton Carpet Company, has received at her home address, a parcel of this precious German literature, passed through the local Custom Office on Nov. 20th. This stuff consists of seven "exhibits" or separate documents, issued by "The Fatherland—a weekly devoted to fair play for Germany and Austria, 1123 Broadway, New York city." It is unnecessary to speak in detail of the character of this literature—it is of course of the rabid, unreliable lying German kind, and won't do much harm in Canada. Its circulation here, however, illustrates the underground and insidious character of the German campaign, to promote her interests. How the names, Christian names and street addresses, of young ladies who, have no public relations, are obtained, suggests that there is somebody in this city furnishing these names, for they do not appear in the city directory.

This literature cannot have any bad effect in Canada, except with the rare few who want to have some excuse for not being neutral. The necessity of Germany and Austria taking such extraordinary means to bolster up their case; to make the worse cause appear the better, is their own condemnation. Great Britain and her allies do not have to defend their conduct and their cause. One is on the line of Christian civilization, and their cause is a righteous one. These need no defence; they speak for themselves.

SAYING AND NOT DOING.

The Hanna, Alberta Herald, in an impulse of local, national and imperial patriotism, makes a proposal, that if realized would be productive of good to all these interests. The suggestion is that every farmer in Alberta should give the proceeds from the product of one acre of his farm to the cause of Canada and the Empire in the war. This is the local end of the patriotism of the Herald — such a proposal brought into effect, would "put Hanna on the map." Then the proposal widens to take in all the provinces of the Dominion, and then all the Dominions—Australia, New Zealand, India, and South Africa.

There is no doubt that the cash outcome of such a plan effectively adopted would be great. The Herald estimates that on the basis of an average crop the yield in Canada alone would be 30 million bushels, virtually 30 million dollars.

There seems to be the germ of something worth while in this proposal, and its principle acted upon even locally would yield important results. It is known that in this district especially, the farmers, more from lack of opportunity, than from lack of inclination have not generally and generously contributed to funds to meet the conditions created by the war. The reason is perhaps that organized effort has not been made, no systematic appeal presented. In this city as in every considerable centre of population, there are many suffering deprivation, who could be helped by the surplus of farmers' stores, which might be made available by some effective system of collection. In this county, and in every county of the province there is, upon every farm, a surplus of products stored, which may not be used by the farmers themselves, but which could be turned to good account by being placed at the disposal of the destitute. If personally approached every farmer, large and small, would contribute something, and the grand total would amount to thousands of tons of useful food. But the trouble is that organization is lacking, not only in respect of such a proposal, but unfortunately in all undeveloped schemes of help. If our governments, local, provincial and dominion, would bring to bear some, even reasonably perfect, organization, the result would be untellably important. If such a scheme were provided with an organization as complete as the German war machine, we should be astonished at the results. If, in the interests of conquest, of "world power," of iniquitous aggression upon the rights and liberties of humanity organization is made effective, why should it not be made effective in providing for the results of the unspeakable war, such aggression has produced—to relieve the suffering and distress, and help strengthen the arms of those who are engaged in the grim work of fighting in person for our protection, our rights, our liberties, our homes, and all the fruits of civilization.

Our government is doing well in providing men for the battle front, but their duty includes those at home who are fighting in another way—to keep our homes together to keep the conditions of industry in wholesome condition, to keep our workers in the fields of peace, fit; to keep the sustaining machinery of industry in all its branches in good order. If the state, in the discharge of its duty, promotes the interests of a war that makes widows and orphans, it is equally in duty bound to provide for conditions it has helped to create.

But we can't seem to get together. We can moralize, we can deplore the cruel results that war has brought, is bringing and will bring more plentifully every day; we can meet and pass sounding resolutions of sympathy—bristling with patriotic enthusiasm; but if we do not follow up these things, what doth it profit?

If a brother or sister be naked and destitute of daily food, and one of you say unto them—"Depart in peace, be ye warmed and filled"; notwithstanding you give them not those things which are needful to the body; what doth it profit?

If our patriotism is worth a straw; if our loyalty reaches behind our teeth, we shall do something to give it an effect without which it is hideous mockery.

Peterborough's Patriotic Fund is slowly crawling up, by a process, apparently as painful as drawing teeth. This should not be the case, and would not be the case with something like effective organization. We need to draw on our public spirit as well as upon our bank accounts. To the three calls to furnish men for fighting, Peterborough has responded beyond the demand. We can give freely of the flesh and blood and life of our fellow-citizens, but we are lacking when the call comes to do our share by giving of our substance. One cannot believe that it is the fault of the people; it is more probably the fault of defective organization, failure to bring the appeal of duty home; to help our citizenship realize that it is their duty to help effectuate the slogan—

ALL RIGHT ON PAPER.

Hon. George Perley appears to be about the only member of the Canadian Government who has addressed a recruiting meeting. And the meeting he addressed was over in England.

In the motherland everybody is being urged to enlist; two million men are urgently called for. Here even those eager to enlist are not given the chance. But they are going to be. In the despatches that come from Ottawa about once a fortnight this country is promising well. A month ago it was announced that a force of 30,000 men would be kept in training here. Now that force has grown to 50,000. That would be highly gratifying if it were not for the fact that that the force is all on paper and the growth is all on paper, too. There has been no enlistment except for the second contingent which will be a much smaller force than the first.

A month ago the enlistment of 30,000 men was to have begun "forthwith." Now, the number has been increased to 50,000, and enlistment is to begin "immediately." It is a stronger word than "forthwith." But it is worth while to point out that if the work of recruiting doe not begin this week it cannot be done until next month, and if it be not done next month it cannot be done until next year.

Even if sufficient rifles anduniforms are not available at once, there is no reason why enrollment should not proceed, so that officers and men will know where they stand—will know that they have been accepted and will bank on it. They could be called together as they are needed. In the city they could in the meantime be learning drill with the Home Guard or with the City Regiments.—Toronto Star.

"Good Gray" John Burroughs On German "Collective Murder"

John Burroughs, the "good gray" naturalist of the United States, frees his mind as to the attitude of Germany before and after the war. He does this in a letter to the New York Tribune, reprinted in the Literary Digest. A later correspondent says of this letter—"every news and religious paper and magazine in our nation should print that splendid letter and every minister should read it from his pulpit." Here is Mr. Burrough's letter in part:

"I believe that I make no extreme statement when I say that of all the Continental peoples, except possibly the people of the Scandinavian peninsula, we like the Germans the best, and certainly we owe more to them both in our material civilization and in our aesthetic and intellectual culture. They are a great people; they touch us on all sides; they have added immensely to the richness and stability of our national and civic life. We like them as mechanics, as farm hands, as kitchen help, as teachers, as neighbours, as co-workers in all fields. They are a sober, reliable, unassuming, home-loving, human people. Yet we stand at this stage of their terrible struggle wishing only for an overwhelming defeat of their armies.

"I have yet to meet a pro-German anywhere in the country or to see a pro-German newspaper. In the little country village in the Catskills near where I sent the summer, every farmer and villager and city boarder that I met was eagerly waiting for news of the defeat of the German hosts. When the morning mail arrived the people gathered at the post-office and waited almost breathlessly for tidings in favour of the Allies. The men of German descent, of which there are many, had no sympathy for the Kaiser and his onrushing hosts. Upward of sixty years ago three young German brothers settled in this little Catskill village as blacksmiths; and were steady, honest, efficient men they proved to be! They married American women and had families. Their sons are among the substantial and always reliable business men of the community. I saw more or less of them almost daily, and if their sympathies were at all with the warring hosts of the land of their fathers I failed to get an inkling of it.

"This frame of mind in which our nation finds itself is not of our own seeking; we have not cultivated it; quite the contrary. It has been forced upon us by events over which we had no control, and it has been intensified as these events have multiplied. We saw German militarism springing with a tiger's bound for the blood and life of a neighbouring people whose only defence was that they had for a generation been making ready to try to ward off such an attack; we saw a small, peace-loving, industrious, inoffensive people, whose territory lay in the way of this fierce onrush of the Germans, trampled and murdered and despoiled, their villages and cities burned, their farms laid waste, their treasures of art and architecture consumed, their gold and silver demanded—we saw, and still see, millions of as worthy and likable people as there are in the whole world homeless, footless, swept before and trampled upon by invading armies like autumn leaves, and we heard the cry for mercy and succour that went up from them and it still rings in our ears. We saw the vast military power of Germany loosened, as if it had long been straining at the leash, as it had; we saw it eager and ready—the readiness that is the fruit of long premeditation and preparation. It was as clear as daylight that it felt the thrill and the joy of its predetermined mission . . .

"The iron brute Bismarck must have stirred in his grave. The gay, chivalrous, and, as we often thing, frivolous people over the western border were hurriedly pulling themselves together to resist the unprovoked onslaught, and their ally across the Channel was as hastily marshalling her forces to rush to the rescue. What a spectacle it all was! Who can ever forget those early August days! One of the most efficient and admirable people the world has ever seen in the grip of a merciless military autocracy, welded and hardened into such a weapon of destruction as the world had never before seen, and aimed at a neighbouring nation who would have been glad enough to have lived forever at peace with all the world. Poor La Belle France! How has she been sinned against both by her own rulers and the rulers of other nations! And little Belgium(the home of Maeterlinck), who dared to bar her doors against the titanic nation-despoiler and robber, and who now lies prostrate, bleeding, and famishing! Her wrongs cry to heaven."

"We instinctively look upon the German Army as simply a vast machine rushing with blind fury upon the civilization of the world. We do not think of its individual units as made up of the altogether modest, industrious, human, and admirable people of whom we know so many. We see nothing human in it, and we see nothing admirable but its terrible efficiency. It is as regardless of life, of property, of things beautiful and precious, of the rights of the innocent and the unoffending as is any other machine. It is not expressive of the spirit of the Germany that we know—the Germany to which we owe so much in literature, in philosophy, in science, and in the art of rational living, the Germany of Goethe, Schiller, Kant, Hegel, and a hundred others. It is rather the outcome of the Germany of the blood-and-iron Bismarck, and of the gospel of war that has been so assiduously preached by her recent savants and philosophers—the tense, abnormal Nietzsche and of the hard, calculating von Bernhardi, and of her ruling classes—the hellish gospel that might makes right, that small nations have no rights which great nations are bound to respect, the bygone feudal doctrine of the divine right of kings, and that the legitimate upbuilding of one nation can only be by the pulling down of another nation; the gospel of armed conquest, of the robber baron, of the pirate on land or sea; a gospel which sneers at treaties as scraps of paper and throws international morality to the winds; a doctrine which our own nation has done much to discredit by refusing to seize Cuba and Mexico when there was none to say nay; a doctrine to which, let us all hope, this war will put an end forever.

"War as now waged by the Kaiser against Belgium and France is but a high-sounding name for the collective murder and pillage and arson of a vast, organized band of outlaws, and for my part, I believe it is the last spectacle of the kind and on such a scale that the world will ever see."

WAR NECESSARY TO KEEP WEAK NATIONS FROM CHOKING SOCIAL GROWTH, SAYS VON BERNHARDI

(From Van Bernhardi's "Germany and the Next War.")

Without war inferior or decaying races would easily choke the growth of healthy budding elements and a universal decadence would follow. "War," says A. W. von Schlegel, "is as necessary as the struggle of the elements in nature."

Now, it is, of course, an obvious fact that a peaceful rivalry may exist between peoples and States, like that between the fellow members of a society, in all departments of civilised life—a struggle which need not always degenerate into war. Struggle and war are not identical. This rivalry, however, does not take place under the same conditions as the intra-social struggle and therefore cannot lead to the same results. Above the rivalry of individuals and groups within the State stands the law, which takes care that injustice is kept within bounds and that the right shall prevail. Behind the law stands the State, armed with power, which it employs, and rightly so, not merely to protect but actively to promote the moral and spiritual interests of society. But there is no impartial power that stands above the rivalry of States to restrain injustice and to use that rivalry with conscious purpose to promote the highest ends of mankind.

Strong, healthy and flourishing nations increase in numbers. From a given moment they require a continual expansion of their frontiers; they require new territory for the accommodation of their surplus population. Since almost every part of the globe is inhabited, new territory must, as a rule, be obtained at the cost of its possessors—that is to say, by conquest, which thus becomes a law of necessity.

The right of conquest is universally acknowledged. At first the procedure is pacific. Overpopulated countries pour a stream of emigrants into other States and territories. These submit to the legislature of the new country, but try to obtain favourable conditions of existence for themselves at the cost of the original inhabitants. They commence to conquest.

But as increase of population forms under certain circumstances a convincing argument for war, so industrial conditions may compel the same result.

War, from this standpoint, will be regarded as a moral necessity if it is waged to protect the highest and most valuable interests of a nation. As human life is now constituted it is political idealism which calls for war, while materialism—in theory, at least—repudiates it.

COSSACK TESTS SEVERE.

The height of the Cossack's ambition is to enter the sotnias (regiments) of the guard or the escort. The sole qualification is excellence of horsemanship, and every year near the Tsar's summer palace at Peterhof, a jigilovka or horsemanship exhibition takes place. An ordinary circus rider would stand no chance. A youth who can cling to his horse with one foot while picking up a coin from the ground will pass.

If on a galloping horse, with his stirrups crossed over the saddle, he can stand and fire backward or forward, or can, while in that position, carry a comrade on his shoulder, he will stand a good chance. But anything below that standard won't do.

The exhibition on the Peterhof parade ground would scare a circus trick rider and beat a cowboy to a frazzle.

ELDERLY PEOPLE SHOULD TAKE VINOL

Aged Texas Woman Says: "Old People Who Are Weak and Feeble Should Know the Merits of Vinol.

Grand Saline, Texas.—"I am an aged woman, and for a long time was weak and feeble, but I have found Vinol to be the best medicine to create strength for old people and for chronic colds I have ever taken. It has restored my health and strength so that I feel almost young again; in fact, I am now doing all my own housework.

"Old people who are weak and feeble should try Vinol and know its merits as I do. I have proved Vinol a good reliable medicine and much cheaper than paying doctor's bills, and you may publish what I say about Vinol for the benefit of others."—Mrs. FANNIE E. RODGERS, Grand Saline, Texas.

Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, sharpens the appetite, aids digestion, enriches the blood, building up natural strength and energy.

We have seen such splendid results from its use that we return the money in every case where Vinol fails to build up and strengthen feeble old people, delicate children and the weak, nervous, run-down and debilitated, or stop chronic colds, coughs or bronchitis.

General Hit.

From Mr. Cyril Potter, formerly Unionist candidate for the Middleton Division, now serving at the front.

I have for my sins been joining in a battle which has already lasted five days, and may go on for much longer. It gets very monotonous being continually shelled and shot at, but I suppose it is the fortune of war.

I had a very lucky escape yesterday. I got hit by a ricochet shrapnel bullet on the shoulder. It went round my body, just scratching and bruising me, and lodged in the bottom of the coat. I have got the little fellow still. Seven others, all officers, within two or three yards from me, were all hit by the same shell, including my general, but no one was very dangerously hurt, though two were seriously.

I have been out here now three weeks—quite long enough to realize that the war is a very different affair from South Africa, and will take a long time to finish. We want every man we can get if we are going to win it.

NORWAY SUFFRAGE SOCIETY DISBANDS

CHRISTIANIA, Nov. 22.—After an existence dating from 1885, the Society for Suffrage for Women has been dissolved, there being no longer any reason for its activities, since women in Norway have now obtained equal rights with men in the matter of voting in City, County and State elections.

In 1896 women paying taxes on incomes of more than $120 a year were granted the vote in city and council elections, and in 1907 the same privilege was given them in state elections In 1910 every woman over twenty-five years of age, who had never been a public charge or sentenced in the courts, was granted suffrage in county elections, no matter what she earned, and in 1913 the Storthing, without debate, unanimously passed a law giving women common suffrage in state elections.

There has never been any militant suffrage agitation in Norway; the women leading the movement have worked quietly and made headway by means of pamphlets and lectures. Leading men in the political world have helped them without noisy demonstration of any sort.

For many years women have been members of city councils and county boards. While they have not been prominent as leaders in reform movements, they have proved themselves less apt than men to become professional politicians who hold office for the sake of personal profit. A couple of years ago one of their leaders held a seat in parliament for a few months as a substitute for a male member, but since then there has been no other woman member. It will doubtless be a few years before women acquire the experience to be represented in proportion to their numbers. At present about thirty-five per cent of the electorate are women. The majority of women voters continue to cast their votes for men.

Mean Brute.

"Why isn't dinner ready?" demanded Mr. Gabb. "You women do nothing but gad about the house all day."

"Before you married me you used to advise me to take a nap every afternoon so I would retain by good health and good looks," responded Mrs. Gabb.

"I know I did," admitted Mr. Gabb. "But I had no idea you were going to sleep all day so you could stay awake and nag me all night."

of England, France, Germany and Russia are not permitted to use a pound of alum baking powder. The efficiency of the soldiers depends too much upon their health and endurance to risk the use of food which the authorities believe would be detrimental. Therefore the manufacture and sale of the alum powder is prohibited.

Royal Baking Powder is extensively used privately and by the military forces throughout the world. Graphic Description of Battle of Ypres From French Officials

PARIS, Nov. 24.—The Bulletin Des Armees, in its issue of Nov. 25, will publish a summary of the military operations of the last six weeks. This article was given out officially for publication in Paris this afternoon, and it is as follows:

"With the fresh success of the allies in the battle of Flanders the moment has come to recite the accomplishments of the last six weeks. These may be summed up as follows:

"The formidable effort undertaken by the Germans during this time, first to turn our left wing and second to pentrate it, has resulted in failure. By this effor the enemy was endeavouring to make good his defeats on the Marne; instead he only added another check to the check he suffered in September.

Neglected Nothing.

"Nevertheless, in order to flank us in accordance with its recognized method, the German General Staff neglected nothing along that portion of the front extending from the river Lys to the Sea. It massed between the beginning of October and the beginning of November four corps of cavalry and two armies, comprising in all fifteen army corps.

"The Crown Prince of Bavaria General Von Fabeck, General Von Deanling, and the Duke of Wurttemberg, to stimulate the morale of their troops, issued several appeals and exhortations. We found their orders on officers who fell in battle or who were taken prisoners.

Need for Decisive Action.

"All these documents agreed that it was a question of a decisive action against the French left. It was necessary to penetrate to Dunkirk or to Ypres for the reason, according to one of these orders, that the decisive blow yet was to be delivered. And this blow must be decisive, delivered with all speed and carried through at all cost. It is desired to obtain a decision in the western arena of operations before again turning toward the adversary in the East. These various orders recite, furthermore, that Emperor William was there to animate his soldiers by his presence. He had announced that he wanted to be in Ypres on the first of November, and everythig was prepared so that on that date there could be proclaimed the annexation of Belgium.

Only One Mission.

"In short, everything was provided for, every single thing except the victorious resistance of the allied army. To make this resistance possible it was necessary for us to oppose to the enemy forces if not equal to his own, at least sufficient.

"What was then the situation at the beginning of October? The Belgian army had come out of Antwerp intact but too exhausted to take any part in the manoeuvres. The English army was leaving its front on the Aisne for a field of operations in the north. Transportation and the movements of supplies occasioned long delays. The army under General De Castelnau did not extend its left wing beyond a point south of Arras. The army of General De Maudhui extended from this point to the south of Lille. Further on we had cavalry, territorials and marine fusiliers.

Allies Reinforced.

"This force was not sufficiently strong to enable General Foch, called by General Joffre to take command of the Armies in the North, to break the will of the enemy. Reinforcements were therefore sent him.

"Then for three weeks we saw the reign of the railroad and of the automobile. Day and night troops were being moved by these methods of transportation, and they arrived in time. Divisions and army corps, not so strong numerically as those of the enemy, but sustained by an admirable spirit, moved into action as they disembarked from the train. For thirty days these divisions were at the front.

The Allied Front.

"About the 20th of October our front was outlined as follows: From Nieuport to Dixmude, one of our divisions of infantry and our marines held the railroad line, while the Belgian army was reorganizing itself in the rear; to the south of Dixmude we were installed along the canal, and from there our line extended to the east making in front of Ypres a vast semi-circle held by four corps of the French army and one corps of the English army. The line then dropped to a point to the south of Messines and Armentieres, forming two segments, the first held by the remainder of the British army, and the second by ourselves.

Tried to Reach Dunkirk.

"The German attack was an effort first to occupy Dunkirk and reach Calais or Boulogne. They tried to flank us, and to cut the direct communications of the British army with the seacoast.

"All the heavy artillery of the enemy which was brought from Antwerp was there ready to be used again. Beginning the 5th of November, the attacks were repulsed. From the railroad we marched toward the Yser, rolling up the enemy who had succeeded in crossing to the left bank of this stream, and drowning his rear guards in the floods. One can still see near Ramscappelle German cannon half buried in the mud and the corpses of German soldiers half submerged.

Sacrifices in vain.

"Then the enemy, finding it impossible to get around our flank, endeavoured to cut through. This was the battle of Ypres, an engagement desperate, furious and relentless, during which the German Army hurled its units forward in dense masses without counting its losses, sacrificing everything in a fierce endeavour to attain its object. But the effort was in vain.

"For close on to three weeks we stood up against repeated frantic assaults. Every one of them was repulsed. Our front, with its circular formation, was not easy to hold, but nevertheless we were successful in keeping it intact. On the 30th of October the British troops, particularly the cavalry, had been obliged to withdraw for several hundred yards before a powerful onslaught of the enemy.

Notable Achievement.

"Our troops attacking in conjunction and at the same time with our allies, were successful in re-establishing the impassable barrier which closed the approach to Ypres. That which was done here by our army corps working in close harmony with the English corps which it encircled is worthy of a place in the finest records of military history.

"On the 12th of November the enemy had succeeded, at a point north of Ypres, in crossing the canal over two bridges. By the 13th he had been driven back to the other bank.

GASOLINE DOOMED IF ZOLINE COMES

NEW YORK, Nov. —Announcement was made recently of the discovery and successful manufacture on a commercial basis of a substitute for gasoline, which can be made at a cost not exceeding a cent and a half a gallon. If the predictions made for this new fluid are realized the use of motor vehicles will be greatly benefitted and perhaps the production of power revolutionized. The promising feature of this new fuel which is called zoline, is that it can be manufactured at a cent and a half a gallon. This and the other facts concerning zoline have been proven by a series of tests conducted by a number of the leading auto engineers.

This new fuel was discovered by John Andrus, a Portuguese, of McKeesport, Pa., who was recently paid $30,000 by the Government for a discovery he made in toughening armour plate. Audrus has discovered a way of breaking down water without the use of great heat, and the new fluid consists mostly of water, a little naphthalene and two secret ingredients that can be bought at any drug store. William Guy Hall, vice-president and chief engineer of the National Company, says a Marmon auto ran 18 miles on a gallon of zoline.

SUFFERED FROM BILIOUS HEADACHE.

At Times Thought She Would Go Mad.

Headaches are one of the most aggravating troubles a person can have. They are many and varying; but when the headache starts you may be sure that there is some other chief cause of this most painful difficulty. The stomach may go wrong, the bowels become constipated, the blood may not circulate properly, but the presence of the headache clearly shows that there is some other baneful disease which is liable to assert itself unless the cause of the headache is removed. Get rid of the headache and thus perhaps save yourself many years of trial and suffering.

Burdock Blood Bitters has, for the past forty years, been curing all kinds of headaches, and has also proved itself to be a remedy that cures where all others fail. It does this by removing the cause of the trouble.

Miss Mary A. Roberts, Hampton, N.B., writes: "For about two years I have suffered from bilious headache. At times I thought I would really go mad. Not long ago a friend advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters which I did, and after taking three bottles I have never been troubled with any kind of a headache. I think that B.B.B. is one of the wonders of the world. I can safely recommend it to all who suffer from bilious headache."

Burdock Blood Bitters is the oldest and the best known blood medicine on the market to-day, and is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Trampled To Death

Suppose you were to read in the paper some morning that a disastrous fire had wiped the town of Amherst, or Galt or Lethbridge completely off the map. That would be a hard knock to Canada wouldn't it?

Yet, figuratively and literally, Canadians are ruthlessly trampling a town that size under their feet every year,—actually obliterating it.

Every year we Canadians import $4,000,000 worth of boots and shoes from the United States. On them we pay over $1,000,000 duty.

That $5,000,000 if spent for Canadian-made boots, would keep six big shoe factories busy the year round,—employing altogether about 2400 hands, paying out $1,500,000 in wages, and supporting, in all, about 10,000 people.

Concentrate all these people in one place and you add to the map of Canada a good live town like Amherst or Galt or Lethbridge. Rather startling isn't it?

When out of pure thoughtlessness, you buy an imported boot you crunch under your heel the opportunity to build up such a town.

In buying Canadian-made shoes you are paying for quality, not duty. Dollar for Dollar they give you a value that is equal to, if not better than any others.

Next time be patriotic enough to refuse the pair the dealer offers you that is not

FORMER LOCAL NURSES WITH MRS. H. P. WHITNEY AT FRONT

Letters have been received by Mrs. F. L. Robinson, of this city, and Mrs. Thompson, of Bobcaygeon, who is at present the guest of Mrs. Robinson, from Miss Cora Thompson, who has gone to France with the coterie of nurses from New York, who will constitute the staff of Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney's field hospital behind the firing line in that country. Miss W. M. Keller, who is well known to local people, is also with the party. It will be remembered that Misses Thompson and Keller conducted the Peterborough Private Hospital here, and have a large number of friends who will be interested to learn of their part in this famous expedition. Both are graduates of St. Luke's Hospital, New York.

In a letter to her mother, written on the steamer Lusitania just before landing at Liverpool, Miss Thompson said that the party intended to land in the morning and proceed to France the next day. As the letter was written on the 11th of this month it is very probable that the young ladies are now busily occupied in tending the wounded from the firing line. Miss Thompson says that she and the other nurses realize that the expedition is no pleasure jaunt, but that serious work is ahead of them.

Below is a clipping from a New York paper explaining the nature of the field hospital with which the Misses Thompson and Keller are connected:

Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, accompanied by four American surgeons, fifteen trained nurses, and half a dozen hospital internes will sail for Europe on the Lusitania this morning to establish a field hospital for the care of the wounded behind the battle line in Northern France. The project is being financed solely by Mrs. Whitney as her contribution towards the relief of the suffering in the war zone. It was said yesterday that Mrs. Whitney, who was formerly Miss Gertrude Vanderbilt, was ready to put a large share of her fortune into this work, and to establish other hospitals if conditions at the front permitted. Her mother, Mrs. Vanderbilt, arrived in New York from Newport last night to bid her good-bye.

Although the object of her mission was not made known until the eve of her departure, Mrs. Whitney has been quietly planning the expedition for several weeks. She was encouraged by the example of her sister, Countess Szechenyi, formerly Miss Gladys Moore Vanderbilt, who has gone to the aid of the wounded in Austria. Some idea of the scale of the undertaking may be gained from the fact that ten motor ambulances, and enough clothing for 5,000 men, women and children, were shipped to France last Saturday on the steamship Chicago as part of the hospital equipment.

The four surgeons who have gone volunteered their services and will stay at the front three or four months when their places will be taken by others. The first field hospital will be started as near as possible to the firing line. It will be constructed in co-operation with the American Ambylance Hospital near Paris. The wounded of both armies will be treated in the institution, and a special effort will be made to take care of the serious cases, which at present cannot be treated in the military field hospitals. The surgeons were not willing to discuss their plans last night, but one of those associated with the work explained that relief is contemplated for a certain class of sufferers for which at present there is practically no provision.

According to those associated with Mrs. Whitney no other field hospital just like this has been established in the war zone. The nearest thing to it is the field hospital maintained in France by Herman Harjes, the banker, which on a smaller scale aims to give relief in cases of serious injury. One of the New York surgeons in the Harjes Hospital is Dr. Archibald C. Strong.

"There is a great need for skilled surgery at the front," said one of the surgeons associated with Mrs. Whitney. "At present it is impossible for the military authorities to handle any but the less serious wounds. The result is that hundreds of soldiers, who are injured most severely, have to wait until they can be sent to Paris. This means that there is a delay of twenty-four hours or more before they are treated. By that time they are beyond hope. Hundreds of lives might be saved if the surgeons were able to reach them in time.

"By establishing an up-to-date and fully equipped field hospital close to the lines we hope to render a most important service in this respect. With our ambulances constantly in service soldiers wounded in battle may be rushed to us within a comparatively few hours, and the dangers arising from delay may be avoided. It is speed that counts in thousands of serious cases, and that is what Mrs. Whitney's Hospital will provide."

English Have Impressed A U. S. Consul

"A wonderful people." This was the characterization of the English made by Lewis Decker, United States vice-Consul at Nottingham, Eng., for the last two years, in an interview with a Rochester Post-Express reporter.

Calm, stoical fortitude and a growing appreciation of the vastness of the struggle in which the nation has been launched by the force of circumstances were the keynotes of his conversation. Again and again he reiterated the phrase quoted above.

Mr. Decker's greatest admiration is for to the women of England who remain cheerful and calm, go about their daily tasks and multiply them by the addition of work for the men in the trenches, even though their hearts may be breaking over the loss of some one dear to them.

"The English women are remarkable. They are facing their task with a spirit of the most admirable fortitude. The work now being done in England by the women is simply enormous. They relieve the poor, take care of soldiers' families, sew constantly, nurse the wounded, take refugees into their homes and in addition to this do thousands of things which men formerly did and do them well. Poor working girls are giving half of their slender wages to relief funds. Some girls who work nine and ten hours a day to earn their living spend their evenings, not one evening now and then but every one in the week, to sew bandages, shirts and everything the soldier can need. The women of England are heroic.

More Recruits Coming.

"Recruiting is going along faster than at first for the people are coming to realize the extreme graxity of the situation which they did not grasp at first. To-day in England when an elderly man sees a young man in tennis flannels or with a bag of golf sticks he rebukes him publicly. One day on a street in Nottingham I overheard the following conversation between two such types:

"'Young man, you would be a better citizen and what is more a real man if you were carrying a rifle instead of a tennis racket. You had better go and get one!'"

"The young man did not reply. There are constant crowds around the recruiting station and whenever a man enters you hear a cheer.

"I have not seen any great number of troops. One does not in England. The war office is sending off the men quietly without fuss or feathers about it. There is absolutely no hysteria. Now and then one hears music and sees a body of khaki clad men marching by, the crowd cheers a little and that is all. At the station though when home regiments leave the scenes are more touching. Mothers, fathers, wives, sisters and sweethearts are there to see 'Tommy' go marching off. The bravery shown by these people is remarkable. There is little weeping until the troop train pulls out of the station. After it has gone a woman will break down here and there. But not many.

"One good thing about the way in which the war office is conducting this war is that there are no posted casualty lists. When a man is killed his relatives are notified by a little official pink slip. The coming of the mailman is dreaded in nearly every English home for the long white war office envelope may be in his hand.

"The British soldiers who have returned from France are enthusiastic about their treatment by the French and over the fighting qualities of the French troops. The old—Anglo-Franco feeling of enmity which lasted for so many hundred years is now a thing of the past."

BIG BATTLE OPENS FROM YPRES TO LA BASSEE

German Base is Subjected to a Severe Bombardment by Ships—Reinforced German Army With Heavy Artillery is Bending Every Effort to Get Through the Franco-British Line.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—Intense anxiety is again apparent in Belgium and Northern France and the Kaiser's legions reinforced and heavily armed with big guns are making another desperate plunge to break through to the coast.

The London Standard prints the following from its correspondent in Northern France:—

"The combined French and British armies have been attacked by the Germans in force from Ypres to La Bassee, and a battle on the scale of the battles on the Marne, of the Yser, and of the first and second battles of Ypres, has commenced.

"In this terrific struggle, into which the Germans enter with large reinforcements and fresh guns, the French and British armies are acting directly in concert. Already the fight has been in progress forty-eight hours. The mightiest guns in the world's military history have been brought into action, carrying death and destruction for fifteen to eighteen miles from their emplacements. Under cover of these infantry attacks are being developed.

"The German objective is the town of Ypres, to capture which they have sacrificed thousands of lives under fire of the British during the last month. Their guns are battering the town once more. Everywhere along the line I hear that the allies have succeeded in checking all the enemy's assaults, which were allowed to exhaust themselves, so that a frash and significant phase of the battle has opened a phase in which the whole line of the German trenches are threatened by British and French infantry."

Advices from Paris state that the determined efforts of Germany to turn the left wing of the allied armies, or to penetrate it at Ypres to clear a roadway to Dunkirk, have resulted in failure. In a summary of the operations of the last six weeks. The Bulletin Des Armes estimates the Kaiser's forces in Belgium at 15 army corps, or 750,000 men; declares that the German troops were ordered to capture Ypres by Nov. 1, so that the annexation of Belgium might be completed on that date. The Bulletin further tells of orders issued by the Crown Prince of Bavaria and Duke Albrecht of Wurtemburg, exhorting the soldiers to win success for their emperor, who would be at the battle front to "animate" them.

French troops on Monday defeated the Germans in the Argonne district and captured ground of strategical value, hitherto held by the invaders.

The following official communication was issued last night:—

"To-day has been relatively quiet.

"There has been intermittent cannonading on the front, and a few attacks in the Argonne, all of which have been repulsed.

"Speaking generally, it may be said that the situation during Nov. 23 showed no important changes. Along the greater part of the front the enemy manifested its activity particularly by intermittent cannonade, which was, however, less spirited than on the preceding day. Nevertheless, there were here and there some infantry attacks, all of which were repulsed. As we have come to expect, these attacks were particularly violent in the Argonne, where we gained some territory, and in the region of Four de Paris.

"There is nothing to report between the Argonne and the Vosges, and, furthermore, a heavy fog has interfered with operations. The sanitary conditions of the troops are favorable."

The British Admiralty last night announced that on Monday all points of military significance in Zeebrugge were subjected to a severe bombardment by two British battleships. The German opposition was feeble. The extent of the damage done is unknown. The British ships returned safely.

Advices from Amsterdam say that before sunset the electric works were fiercely burning and also the Palace Hotel and other buildings. The church steeple at Middelkirk was damaged, and it is reported that the sluices at Zeebrugge were destroyed. The German firing suddenly stopped, and the German submarines left the port. After some manoeuvring the British fleet disappeared in the fog. Part of Zeebrugge was burning, and the population had fled in all directions."

"THE NEW BIRTH" WAS DISCUSSED

At the revival meeting being held in Bethany Tabernacle, Evangelist Long spoke last night on the subject of "The New Birth," choosing his subject from the words of the Master to Nicodemus found in the 3rd chapter of John's Gospel.

He said that the Lord Jesus Christ taught that the essential thing was regeneration and not reformation and morality. The man who expects to get to heaven will need to have something better than a flimsy moral foundation upon which to base his hope. He then related the incident of a young man, who was lying at the point of death, to whom Dr. Alexander ministered at this critical moment. During the lifetime of the young man he had lived a superior moral life, but without Jesus Christ. He had based his hope of the future on the foundation of his good moral standing. When the good Dr. Alexander inquired as to the state of his mind, he said, "I am overwhelmed in the most awful darkness and terror."

Mr. Long stated that this incident showed conclusively that merely a good moral life without Christ is not a sufficient foundation for an eternal hope.

The service begins promptly tonight at 8 o'clock. All will receive a hearty welcome.

6 MILLION BUS. OF WHEAT BOUGHT

Hon. Robert Rogers, minister of public works, was in Toronto yesterday.

Mr. Rogers told the press that as acting minister of the interior he had directed Bruce Walker, the immigration expert of that department to make a report on farming conditions in the west. The findings of Mr. Walker now in the hands of the minister, showed that forty-eight per cent. more land had been got ready for the crop this fall than in any pervious year. This one fall made the outlook for next year's crops as the most encouraging fact in sight for improved conditions next year in Canada.

Seed Wheat Purchased.

But more than that, his department had bought two million bushels each of seed wheat, of barley, of oats, and the government would see that not a single farmer in the west lacked for seed and that of the best. More planting and lots of seed would be the feature of the 1915 crop.

TRY THIS IF YOU HAVE DANDRUFF

Or Are Bothered With Falling Hair or Itching Scalp.

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft and look and feel a hundred times better.

If you want to keep your hair looking rich, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for nothing destroys the hair so quickly. It not only starves the hair and makes it fall out, but it makes it stringy, straggly, dull, dry, brittle and lifeless, and everybody notices it. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

RUSSIANS BREAK UP A TURKISH COLUMN

Troops of the Sultan Begin to Feel Force of Bear's Advance.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 24.—An official communication issued by the General Staff of the Russian army in Caucasia, under date of November 22, says:

"In the direction of Erzerum the advance guard of the Russian army continued to drive back the enemy, after having thrown into disorder a Turkish column, during which caissons and an ammunition train were captured.

"From Karakillisee to Alashgerd Valley some engagements took place with results favourable to us.

"In the Persian province of Azerbaijan the Turks were defeated in the region of Khanasur Pass and also in the passes leading from Dilman in the direction of Kotur. In these engagements the Russian troops captured some Turkish artillery."

WRONG MAN WAS CHARGED

A funny situation was brought out in the Police Court this morning when Raymond Welsh, a bartender of the Palace Hotel was charged with a breach of the liquor law in that on October 24th, he was alleged to have sold liquor in flasks over the hotel bar and allowed it to be removed from the premises.

On Saturday, October 24th, a local blacklister was arrested for being drunk. When questioned as to where he got his liquor he said at the Palace Hotel, where he bought two flasks and carried them away. According to his story the bartender committed two offences in the one act. First, he sold liquor to a blacklister, and secondly, he allowed it to be taken from the premises.

A charge was laid against Raymond Welsh and for four successive weeks it was adjourned. To-day, just one month and a day after the date on which he was brought before Magistrate Dumble, the man who bought the liquor said that it was not Welsh, but the other bartender who sold it to him. So the case against Welsh was dropped. The peculiar thing about the case is not so much that after a month the wrong man should be brought into Police Court, charged with the offence, but that it seems that it is now too late to lay a charge against the other bartender as the information must be laid within thirty days after the offence, and it is now thirty-one days since the Saturday in question. The defence claims that Welsh was ill in the Hospital during the past month.

ITCHING RASH SPREAD OVER BODY

Could Not Sleep. Clothing Irritated. Impossible to Keep from Scratching. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. In Ten Days Well.

"220 Dufferin Ave., Winnipeg, Man.—"I became troubled with a rash similar to hives on my face and arms. Later it spread over my body. This rash itched and burned and if rubbed the skin would become hot and red. It got so very itchy I could not sleep. The more I scratched the worse it got. I sat many minutes at a time with clenched hands to keep from irritating the rash and give my skin time to cool. The first few days the spots increased so rapidly that my body was dotted with them.

"The spots on my face and neck were so plainly visible, especially if I scratched them, that I avoided the folks in the house to hide my disfigurement. Every time my body became over-heated my clothing irritated the rash so much that it was impossible to keep from scratching the parts. Over two weeks of torture and sleepless nights I suffered.

"Knowing from experience that Cuticura Soap and Ointment were good I sent out to the drug store for some. I followed the directions and in a few days I noticed the rash was less; the spots began fading. In ten days I was completely well." (Signed) Mrs. John Lamb, June 11, 1914.

THE CITY WILL ADVERTISE FOR NEW TENDERS

CONTRACT ALTERED

At last night's meeting of the Property committee of the City Council, it was decided to advertise for tenders for the collection of garbage and refuse for the year 1915. The existing contract expires at the end of he present year. Tenders to be in the hands of the City Clerk not later than he fourth of December and to be made out in accordance with existing contract, except that collections must be made at least twice a week. The half yard limit will also be eliminated, so that churches and other institutions having more than one half yard of ashes or other refuse can rest assured that it will be removed.

Last night the committee was in a mood to undertake the work of collecting the garbage on its own account, believing that a saving would be effected thereby, and the work done to better advantage.

Dump Carts.

Mayor Buller favoured the use of dump carts which can be purchased for $175 each. When the incinerator is reached, the driver pulls a pin and the entire load is automatically dumped. This obviates the necessity of 'dissecting the waggon."

Ald. Stratton moved that the committee recommend the purchase of four or five dump carts, together with the necessary harness.

Ald. McIntyre—"I think we should wait until we see what we are going to do in the matter of letting a new contract. The tenders may be so high as to justify the city undertaking the collection of garbage on its own account."

(Mayor Buller—"That might be better, although I think Ald. Stratton's motion is a good one."

Ald. Stratton was also of the opinion that the whole city should be included in the garbage collecting area, and that the collectors be compelled to go into the back yards or at least fifty feet in from the street line, for the garbage. This would obviate the necessity of decorating the boulevards, with garbage cans, boxes, etc.'

Sanitary Inspector Spence.

To this, Ald. Langford, chairman of the committee, disagreed upon the grounds that the present conditions did not warrant such extravagant modernity.

"We will not have a satisfactory system of garbage collection until we do go into the back yards for the garbage," said Sanitary Inspector Spence. Continuing, he said: "The collection of garbage is going to cost more anyway. This year we will have to collect the garbage and refuse from the schools, churches and factories of the city. The collectors are not required to have more than one half a yard of garbage or refuse from each place once a week, whereas some of the churches of the city have several yards each week. The existing contract will have to be altered."

Pro-German Papers In Dublin Are Creating Startling Situation.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—(C. A. P. Cable.)—Irish despatches received yesterday morning tell of a most extraordinary situation which has arisen in Ireland, a situation which will need strong action on the part of the authorities. It appears that six seditious newspapers, openly pro-German and anti-British, are being printed in Dublin and distributed throughout west Ireland with the primary object of stifling the recruiting campaign which is now being carried on there. The news sheets in question are The Irish Worker, Larkins' papers, The Sin Fein Irish Freedom National Volunteer and Irish Nation and Ireland. The last has recently been made a daily production.

Last week a prominent German organ gave serious quotations from these newspapers and also gave an address in Dublin at which arms could be bought by Irish rebels. This journal also stated that money was being collected in New York to support the movement. Public meetings have been held recently in New York by Irish-Americans, who are hostile to John Redmond, and at these meetings a number of Germans attended and Die Wacht Am Rhein was sung.

Larkin has now gone to the States to lecture against the British Government.

Cardinal Cavallari Passes Away in this Sixty-sixth Year

PARIS, Nov. 25.—A despatch to the Havas Agency from Venice says that Cardinal Aristides Cavallari, patriarch of Venice, died yesterday.

Cardinal Cavallari was born at Chiogga in 1849, and was raised to the cardinalate in 1907. He was noted for his simple piety. On various occasions he expressed himself volubly against the immodest dress of women and once is said to have stopped a

Body of St. Scholastique Man to be Laid in Protestant Cemetery

MONTREAL, Nov. 25. — Justice Robideux handed out a judgment yesterday afternoon which provides for the exhumation of the body of the late Mr. Hormidas Lafond, of St. Scholastique, whose burial in a Catholic cemetery, against his own wish, created a sensation some months ago. The deceased was a French-Canadian Protestant, and was treasurer of the Belle Riviere Presbyterian Church. Although he has arranged that he should be buried in a Protestant cemetery, some relatives insisted that he be buried in the Catholic cemetery.

The judgment now determines that the body be exhumed and reburied in the Belle Riviere Church cemetery.

To his daughter Mabel, who had asked that she should not have a share in the estate, he gave all and any such books and papers that she might wish to take.

Several Killed at Warsaw.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—A bomb from a German airship fell in front of the American consulate at Warsaw early yesterday, breaking the windows of the consulate, but injuring no one within, according to a telegram dated yesterday from Ambdssador Marye at Petrograd.

Several persons in the street in front of the consulate were killed and wounded.

PORTUGAL JOINS ALLIES

Action of Premier Machado is Approved by Congress

LISBON, Nov. 25. — At an extraordinary sitting of the Congress yesterday to discuss Portugal's attitude in the war Senor Machado, the Premier, said he had entered into an agreement with the British Government to render, besides other services, military aid. The Ministerial motion presented was unanimously carried. It authorized the executive to intervene by military measures in the international conflict at a time and in a manner good judgment found necessary "for our high interests and our duties as a free nation and Great Britain's ally," also to take any extraordinary steps the circumstances may demand.

Convicts Sentenced.

BRACEBRIDGE, Ont., Nov. 25.—Four escaped convicts from the Central Prison, M. J. Mulhall, E. Schlevor, J. Edwards and J. Spence, who were arrested some time ago in Gravenhurst for housebreaking and theft, were yesterday sentenced by Judge Mahaffy to three years in Kingston Penitentiary. The prisoners will complete their terms in the Central before being sent to Kingston.

LOCAL PEOPLE SHOULD KEEP BACK FROM DANGEROUS FIRES

They Hamper the Fire Brigade and Chief Howard is Anticipating Stringent Methods to Put a Stop to the Practice

"I could save 50 p.c. of the damage at most of the fires in the city and do with a smaller number of firemen," said Chief Howard to the Examiner this morning. "If the crowd would only keep away from the fires. There was a fire at Mr. W. H. Baker's house last Sunday and I think we could have saved $500 damage if we had not been so bothered with the crowd. Why the people interfered in a way that might have cost me or one of the men their life. In that fire last Sunday for example, when we went to the house we could not locate the fire because the building was literally filled with smoke. In the rooms where our men were there was not an inch of air space at all. So we had to work cautiously, and at the same time quickly.

"When one enters a building like that to fight the fire it is taking your life in your hands. For instance I propped one door open half a dozen times and coming back found it jammed tight shut by some person or other each time. If I had not anticipated that the crowd might have shut the door it might have cost me my life. But as I knew that might be the case I had not gone as far in as I would otherwise have done, so I was safe. But you see, in not being able to penetrate as far as I might my operations were hindered and the fire went on blazing merrily."

"Why I could not take any one of them from their stations. They were all needed where they were. I had every door watched, mind you," said the Chief, "and yet one man was so anxious to get in that he crawled in by the cellar window. It is some contract to keep the crowd out of a burning building when they undertake to crawl in by the cellar windows, isn't it? We would have to guard every window and door and there would be no men left to put out the blaze at all. I don't know whether the people know they are in the way or not," said the Chief, "though I take every means possible to let them know it. But I tell you this thing of crowding the brigade out from a fire is getting dangerously exasperating, and exasperatingly dangerous. Some day when a few thousand dollars' worth of property depend on us getting a free hand, as well as the lives of people in the burning building and the lives of the firemen, I am going to turn the hose on the crowd if they don't stand back. I have tried every other means under the sun, but I can't seem to get any result. But some day I swear there will be trouble about this thing, and then, by George, I will flood the town if necessary."

"Do you know," continued the Chief, "that since I have come to Peterborough I have only had a chance to fight one fire the right way. That was in Elliott's store in the basement. On the day which the fire occurred (one 24th of May) there were a number of visiting regiments in the city and the soldiers paid many visits to the fire hall, where we received them cordially enough and showed them all through the hall. Well, that night the fire broe out in Elliott's basement. We went to it and we couldn't hardly get to the fire for the crowd. The fire was a very serious one, as there were several thousand pounds of combustible material in the basement, and if the blaze once spread it meant that the whole business section would be endangered. Just when I was thinking the hardest thoughts about the crowd and making vain efforts to keep them back, one of the soldiers in uniform came to me and asked me if it would help any to have the crowd kept out on the street. I at once answered yes, and a company of the soldiers, all in uniform, cleared the crowd away. We went to work then and extinguished the fire without any trouble at all. I tell you I was grateful to that soldier."

"Why don't you telephone the police when a fire alarm comes in?" was askd.

"Although we make pretty good time it takes long enough to get to a fire without telephoning the police into the bargain," was the reply. "Then, again, there may not always be members of the police force available to help us. They may be tied up with some other work of their own. But I tell you something will have to be done to either keep the crowd back or teach them a lesson, so if you are present at the next big fire it may be well to keep well back with the crowd."

This ended the interview, with the exception that it was suggested to the chief that the next time he was called upon to "shovel coal" he might be glad of five feet of ice cold water around him during the conduct of operations. The chief refused to discuss this matter. It will be remembered that after the fire last Sunday he stood in five feet of water for an hour shovelling coal to drain the water out of Mr. Baker's house. Hence the veiled suggestion in the last paragraph.

REDRESS OF GRIEVANCES

Grain Growers Want Public Funds Loaned at Six Per Cent to Farmers

OTTAWA, Nov. 25.—The demand of the western grain growers for redress of grievances was presented to the Prime Minister and a number of his colleagues yesterday afternoon by E. G. Henderson, of Windsor, Ont. president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. He explained that a committee of the C. M. A. had recently conferred with representatives of the western farmers at Winnipeg and while there were some points in dispute between them, they agreed upon a printed memorial to the Government. The memorial set forth the need of legislation dealing with the financial situation, the tariff and the transportation problem.

As to transportation he confined his remarks exclusively to the necessity for better highways, alleging that it cost the English farmer but 7 cents per ton miles to transport his products to the railway station while it cost the Canadian farmer twenty-five cents.

The tariff was touched upon with the suggestion that, if in any respect it was unjust to the farmer, such injustice should be rectified. As to the financial question, the speaker said that the farmer should not be charged a higher rate of interest than any other producer.

Roderick MacKenzie, secretary of the Manitoba Grain Growers Association, insisted that the Government should also enquire into the transportation charges by rail and water including ocean freight rates. He favored a Government bank which would loan the postal savings and other Government funds to the farmer at six per cent. and quoted from the legislation of West Australia. It was unfair, he said, for the Government to receive deposits from the farmers at the postoffice and at the Government savings banks and then hand them over to the chartered banks to be loaned for commercial purposes.

Sir Robert Borden said the two associations had set a good example to all Canadians. He was glad to say that his Government was devoting a great deal of time and money to demonstration and educational work among the farmers, and still further expenditures would be authorized in the near future. It was not the fault of the present Government that nothing had been done to improve the highways of the country. They had been thwarted in their earnest efforts along these lines by the Dominion Senate.

The memorial, he said, asked for the appointment of a commission to enquire into vast and intricate problems and for legislation to be founded upon their report at the coming session. It was a large order and he could not at the moment give any definite answer.

As to the financial question, the Prime Minister said that he regretted the absence of the Finance Minister. It struck him, however, that the subject of agricultural credits was one to be dealt with by the various provinces instead of by the Dominion Government.

Roderick MacKenzie: If the provinces establish banks to extend agricultural credits, will your Government deposit with those banks the postal savings and other Government funds?

Sir Robert Borden: I cannot answer that question offhand.

Loss of Life Under Twenty.

BOLINAS, Cal., Nov. 25.—Forty-three survivors and fifteen dead from the wrecked coasting steamer Hanalei, which went ashore Monday on Duxbury Reef, near here, had been accounted for at 10 a.m. yesterday. Four are unaccounted for. There are also three life-savers missing.

ABOUT CONSUMPTION

Picture to yourself a young man who instead of feeling the throb of pulsing life in his veins is doomed to watch the passing hour with feelings of despair and gloom. His hours are numbered. He is another victim of the dread "white plague." Hope is dead. Nothing is worth while. Each hour weakens his hold on life.

Such was the condition of Mr. M. J. Hamilton, of 4 Tiverton Avenue, Toronto, before he heard of Copeland's medicine. He procured one bottle, then another and another until he had so far recovered as to be able to write as follows:

Mr. W. R. Copeland,
311 Pape Avenue, Toronto.

Dear Sir,—Your wonderful medicine is giving me back my health and strength. I thought it was all up with me, but now I am feeling fine. Am working hard every day and can eat anything, which was an impossibility a few months back. I will be pleased to tell anyone, troubled with lung troubles, what it has done for me.

Yours truly,
(Sgd.) M. J. HAMILTON.
4 Tiverton Ave., Toronto.

To-day, life holds prospect to Mr. Hamilton. Like others in vigorous life, each hour has its fulfilment of conscious work, pleasure or rest. The difference was caused by a medicine—the medicine that he needed—the medicine that fought his disease and strengthened his vital powers.

He is still living in Toronto and for the good the medicine did him he welcomes the opportunity to tell others what "Copeland's Cure for Consumption" did for him.

Maybe you, or your child, relative or friend are not so far gone as Mr. Hamilton was. Still, there is weakness, distress or pain. Try this medicine as he did. It can do you no harm; it is more than likely that it will be found to do you a world of good. Try it.

Several letters have been received from people who have taken this medicine for bronchitis. Two of these cases resisted for over 30 years every effort of medical men and medicine to benefit them. "Copeland's Cure for Consumption" achieved complete victory.

If you suffer from this distressing ailment, send us your address and copies of these letters will be forwarded to you.

This medicine is procurable at drug stores for $1.00 a bottle, or it can be had, at the same price, in a plain wrapper, direct from the Copeland Medicine Company, Limited, 311 Pape Avenue, Toronto. 8-14

HUYCKE'S MINSTRELS.

To Present Entertainment at Havelock Friday Night

On Friday night Huycke's Minstrels will journey to Havelock, and give an entertainment, under the auspices of the Maids of Havelock Club. There can be no doubt but what the local boys, lead by Mr. Asa Huycke, will make a big hit in the railway village, for, according to their performances so far in this city they are bound to present a programme of unquestionable style and merit. Last Friday night the Minstrels entertained the Peterborough Club and the members of that organization were highly pleased with the programme of the minstrels. To-night they will entertain the members and friends of the Belmont Club in the Conservatory of Music and the performance will, without doubt be of real merit.

The minstrels are composed of a number of local vocalists who know how to make the best out of lilting ballads and popular music, and if they can maintain the standard of their presentation as it was given before the Peterborough Club last Friday night, their success is assured. A number of local people will accompany them to Havelock Friday night.

A Meeting of Local Relief Committee

Will Be Held This Evening—Mr. G. A. Warburton, of Toronto, Will Be Present

PLAN OF ACTION

The Relief Comimttee of the Peterborough Patriotic Association will meet this afternoon at 5 o'clock when Mr. G. A. Warburton of Toronto will be present to outline his plan of action respecting the money raising campaign that is to be inaugurated in the course of a few days. The object of the campaign is to raise $30,000 for patriotic relief purposes. One half of this sum to remain in Peterborough, for local relief, and the remaining half to be added to the Canadian Patriotic Fund.

A Disbursing Office.

The Committee may also undertake to again discuss the question of appointing a disbursing officer to administer the funds collected by the Association. As matters stand the distribution of the funds and supplies is in the hands of Mr. Finch Miller, Relief Officer, with restricted power to act. The restrictions were not formulated by the Committee, but, as one member put it: "is the result of the Committee's failure to appoint an officer suitable to the community, when the objections were first raised to Mr. Miller's appointment." These objections were based on the fact that Mr. Miller is associated with the Charity Department of the City, which association worked an injustice upon those whose dependents have responded to the call to arms, and who are compelled by force of circumstances to seek assistance from the Patriotic Fund.

The Stigma of Charity.

A member of the Committee stated this morning that he could see no advantage in appointing Mr. George Cochrane to the position. The latter, who has been suggested for the position, is High County Constable, Truant Officer, and is connected with the Children's Aid Society. This member claims that Mr. Cochrane's appointment would not remove the stigma of charity which has been charged against the appointment of Mr. Miller.

Mr. Miller is anxious to relinquish his duties as disbursing officer pro tem. Until such time as a permanent officer is appointed a sort of chaos must prevail in connection with the administration of the funds. The lines must be defined wherein this fund shall apply and a system evolved that will ensure to all, satisfactory and justifiable consideration. This is something Mr. Miller has been unable to accomplish, owing to the temporary nature of his appointment. From time to time he receives various sums of money for relief purposes, which he administers to those that are absolutely in need. There are many, however, who would be entitled to relief from this source were a satisfactory administration system evolved under the jurisdiction of a capable officer. It is this and many other similar reasons that has prompted Mr. Miller to insist that he be relieved from his present connection with the patriotic fund.

Large quantities of supplies, donated by various merchants and manufacturing institutions of the City are awaiting the time when the Association will have secured a suitable place for the storage, so that they may be delivered.

It will be seen from the above remarks that the meeting at 5 o'clock is one of the Relief Comimttee only.

The meeting of the Peterborough Patriotic Association will be held at 8 (eight) o'clock this evening.

SPLENDID LECTURE UNDER AUSPICES OF JUNIOR LEAGUE

The lecture by Mr. James Cuthbertson, returned missionary from Japan, last evening in the George Street church, under the auspices of the Junior Epworth League, was well attended. Those present were delighted with the beautifully coloured lantern slides, depicting life in Japan, and with the excellent address given by Mr. Cuthbertson. The slides and lecture were quite the best that have been given here for a long time. At the conclusion of the address a hearty vote of thanks was given to Mr. Cuthbertson. During the evening the audience had the pleasure of hearing an excellent solo rendered by Miss Ruby Young.

NOT A VACATION

GETTING PLENTY OF SHOOTING

Kingston Camp, Nov. 24, 1914.

Things are still on the wing, writes one of the Peterborough boys at Kingston, to the Examiner. We have all recovered from the second dose of inoculation which we received on Saturday last, like heroes. Sunday was a quiet day with E. Co., as it was in our twenty-four hour rest after inoculation. The second dose does not make you feel so sick as the first, but in cases where the first did not have the effect, as it had on some of us, the second dose player the bear with them, so you are bound to feel it. We had the usual church parade on Sunday at the armouries, the preacher being the pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church. The long galleries on the side were well packed with visitors. The weather was much better than the Sunday previous. It was a little on the cold side, which made you feel like marching at a brisk pace. The R.C.H.A. band played for the hymns before the march out.

This week we march over to the butts at Barriefield. On Monday we had five rounds with the peep sight and five rounds with the battle sight. The right half of our company goes to the targets and marks while the left half shoots and then vice versa. One company had finished firing in 55 minutes, which was much quicker time than the company that was shooting ahead of us. Our boys did good shooting, some of them making 46 to 45 out of a possible 50 at 100 yards. To-day (Tuesday) we were due at the ranges at 11.30. Our usual parade at 8.30 was as usual to the cricket ground, which was for company drill. About 10 a.m. the left half of our company left the parade ground to act as advance guard to the right half on the way to the butts. When the left half had been on the way a little while the right half moved off. Each half had men detailed off to act as connecting links to bring messages to and from each company. This kind of work will be practiced on a larger scale later on, and it is very important that every H. C. O. and men should be well trained in this scouting business.

The shooting was good again to-day. We had five rounds with the peep sight and then we had five rounds with the battle sight, but only allowed five second from the time the target went up till it was down again and some good scores were made again to-day. A very cold wind has been blowing across the ranges and we find a great benefit from the wristlets, which keeps our wrists nice and warm, thanks to the ladies who so kindly knitted them. We are allowed to wear the Balaclava caps when going to the ranges. We have to go out to the butts again to-morrow, and hope the shooting will still improve so our E Company will be the best shots in the battalion. The boys are still making good use of the Y.M.C.A. military club room. They are having moving pictures every evening and a programme, consisting of singing, etc., which are always well received.

"Thanks" From C. G. E. Squad At Halifax

The Examiner is in receipt of the following letter expressing the thanks of the eight Peterborough Engineers in Halifax to those of this city who assisted in making the caps, wristlets and housewives for them.

The letter reads as follows:

M.C.E. Camp, McNab's Island, Halifax, N.S., Nov. 23rd, 1914.

The Editor, The Evening Examiner, Peterborough, Ontario:

Dear Sir,—Would you kindly extend, through your columns, our hearty thanks and appreciation, to those in Peterborough, who have contributed to a "box" containing caps, wristlets, and housewives, sent to the eight C.G.E. men stationed here. Special thanks, I believe, is due Mrs. Hazen Ritchie and Miss Layfield.

The gifts are certainly a credit to the donors. They surpass in design and neatness anything of their kind here. "Made in Peterborough" has now a special significance in camp.

Although we are in a rather exposed position here, we now feel we are better able to brave the elements for the winter, and also hope to be able before the war is ended to exhibit something "Made in Germany."

Very truly yours,
H. S. McKEAN.
On behalf of the C.G.E. Squad.

YOUTHFUL SLUR ON GRANDPA

"Don't you think he is too cute for anything?" asked the proud young mother, referring to her baby.

Keep Your Lungs Strong

This advice is doubly important with the knowledge that every three minutes some one in the United States succumbs to consumption and many refuse to realise they are afflicted until it is too late.

It is after colds or sickness, from overwork, combining duties or when general weakness exists that tubercular germs thrive because the resistive powers of the body are weakened.

Only with fresh air, sunshine and abundant rich blood can one hope to arrest their progress, and the concentrated fats in Scott's Emulsion furnish fuel for rich blood, and its rare nourishment helps strengthen the lungs while it builds up the forces.

If you work indoors, tire easily, feel languid or run-down Scott's Emulsion is the most strengthening food-medicine known and is free from stupefying drugs. Avoid substitutes.

QUESTIONS FOR MR. BURNHAM?

Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Some time ago Mr. Burnham with a great flourish of trumpets announced that the new Customs House and Post Office would be immediately built. What is being done by the government for the men out of work? If this Post Office was being built now it would probably keep 200 labourers at work. What is Mr. Burnham doing against Mr. McClelland being reinstated in the office from which he was dismissed when the Commissioner reported him for irregularities in the conduct of his office? Is Mr. Burnham willing to permit this? It seems that if a man is a little higher up on a job he gets back, but the labourers on the canal receive no encouragement on a job when they need it the most. What is Mr. Burnham doing for the many men out of work who might be working on a government job if the government had an interest in the working man? Lectures in the parlour of a church do not help to fill the working man's dinner pail.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

MAY DISCONTINUE SOCCER FOR REST OF THE SEASON

It is difficult for us here to reconcile the expressions of many of the leading English newspapers with the previous information received that already 100,000 football players had joined the colours, and that thousands more were undergoing military drill at their training quarters, ready to answer the call.

And further, that Lord Kitchener told the Football Association that there was no need for stopping the game. "There was nothing better for restraining depression and keeping up the hearts of the people," he said. All the same, it may be that many young men would rather shout than fight, and it is likely these that the writers are trying to get at.

Hold Soccer Conference.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The request of the Scottish Football Association for a conference of the four countries of the United Kingdom to consider the whole question of football and war has been favourably considered by the British Association which will immediately make suggestions for an early meeting. The main subject for discussion will be whether any steps should be taken regarding the continuance of the game for the remainder of the season.

H. R. C. ARE CHAMPIONS OF O. R. F. U.

Executive Throws Out the T.R. and A.A. Ottawa Game

TORONTO, Nov. 25—The O. R. F. U. Executive, at least some of the members, did themselves proud last night, when they decided to vote that the Ottawa-T-R. and A.A. game in Ottawa on November 14th should be thrown out, and Hamilton Rowing Club be awarded the senior championship for the year 1914, and the Bush matter of professionalism be left over for a future date.

The members of the Executive who voted for this splendid idea of amateurism were J. McAllister and Bert McKay, Hamilton Rowing Club; Geo. Little, London; J. W. Ryan, Ottawa; and James Dolan, Toronto. Those against the motion were J. DeGruchy E. J. Livingstone, Secretary Hugh Gall and Dr. C. O. Fairbanks of Petrolea.

The T.R. and A.A. Club, who registered the protest against St. Patrick's for playing Bush, an alleged professional wrestler, notified Secretary Gall that they wished to have Bush of St. Patrick's present at last night's meeting, and offered to pay his expenses here. The St. Patrick Club of Ottawa were notified to this effect, but strange to say, Bush failed to appear at the meeting to answer the charges of professionalism. His club made the lame excuse that Bush was unable to attend the meting for fear o flosing his position. Yet, in the face of the St. Patrick Club's contempt for the O.R.F.U. by failing to produce Bush at the meeting, the "clever" executive ruled that Hamilton Rowing Club be awarded the championship, at the same time admitting that there was good ground for T.R. and A.A.'s protest by throwing out the game. What good was done by throwing out the game, if T. R. and A.A. did not profit by proving their charges that Bush was a professional?

T. Herbert Lennox, K.C., represented the T.R. and A.A. club, and pointed out to the Executive that under the O.R.F.U. constitution when a player is charged with being a professional that the onus of proving his innocence rests with the accused. Ottawa did not produce Bush, while the only thing the Executive had from him was an affidavit signed by one Harry Bush that he was an amateur in every sense of the word, but the Barry Bush that signed the declaration left out the important part whether he was the player who played against T.R. and A.A. or not. It was said in some circles that the St. Patrick's player was one Geo. Bush.

The Executive, however, could not be convinced that it was the proper thing for Bush to be present at the meeting before reaching a decision of any kind, but gave out the decision before finding on what grounds they did it. No sane man will believe that it was proper to decide the protest by throwing out the game altogether, and not giving reasons for so doing.

Secretary Hugh Gall made a motion which read that in view of Bush not appearing at the meeting, that the Ottawa Club be censured for not having him appear, and that the game between T.R. and A.A. and St. Patrick's be thrown out, with T.R. and A.A. to play Hamilton for the championship next Saturday, but the amendment giving the championship to the Hamilton R. C. was carried.

HOCKEY

The Executive of the Peterborough Hockey Club will meet at the Empress Hotel to-night ot 8 o'clock. A full attendance of members is expected.

MANY EGGS ARE SHIPPED TO ENGLAND

That the price of storage eggs will not go much over twenty-five or thirty cents this winter is the opinion of the local merchants in the city.

There are 400,000 more cases of eggs in the United States this year than last and not nearly so many in Canada as the outside wholesalers are exporting to Great Britain as fast as possible. One company stated that 13,800 cases were shipped from the port of Montreal in the week ending November 8; 15,774 in the week ending November 14, and 30,365 in the week ending November 22. The price of fresh eggs will go to almost any figure as the supply is very limited.

HASTINGS NEWS

Young Man Gets Into Trouble —Taken to Cobourg

Special to The Examiner.

HASTINGS, Nov. 24.—The weather during the past week has been quite wintry and everyone is donning their winter apparel and beginning to talk about Christmas.

Practice has already begun for the annual Christmas entertainment, in the Town Hall, and no more will time drag heavily on the hands of those who have the programme in charge.

The members of the W. M. S., in connection with the Methodist Church, met in their regular monthly meeting on Thursday last, when a very instructive programme was given.

We regret to learn of the illness of Mr. Baker of Warkworth, who is suffering from a paralytic stroke, but who is, however, on the way to improvement. Mr. Baker is the father of Messrs. Malcolm and Wm. Baker, merchants, of Hastings.

Mr. Breene of Lindsay, was in Town during the past week, in the intrest of the J. Deese Plough Co. of Toronto.

Mr. Erle Laing of Freelton visited friends here on Saturday.

Mr. Moore of Campbellford occupied the pulpit in the Methodist Church on Sunday morning, in the absence of the Pastor.

The picture show in the Town Hall on Saturday night was well attended.

Mr. Malcolm Baker visited friends in Warkworth on Sunday.

Miss Honey spent the week end at her home in Percy.

Mr. Cummings of Norwood spent Saturday with friends here.

Miss Breckenridge of Peterborough is the guest of her friend, Miss G. Howson.

Mr. S. Carroll is receiving the congratulations of his many friends upon the occasion of his marriage to Miss Drope, both of Hastings. Mr. and Mrs. Carroll are followed by the best wishes of all, who join in wishing for them a long and happy wedded life.

We are sorry to report the illness of Mr. T. Learmouth, and hope soon to see him regain his wonted health.

Mr. Winter Runnels motored to Peterborough on Monday.

Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 24th and 25th, were billed for "turkey days" in Hastings, and the birds were taken both alive and dressed.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Laing of Norwood visited friends in this vicinity last week.

A young man named Gordon Powell who has been in the employ of Mr. Wm. Preston, for some months, was arrested last week on a charge of forgery, or tampering with figures on a cheque given by his employer. He was sent to Cobourg to await his trial.

Mr. Lloyd Hess of Peterborough visited his parents on Sunday.

Mounted Corps To Be Raised.

OTTAWA, Nov. 25.—It is expected that orders will be issued immediately for the recruiting of two regiments of mounted rifles in Alberta. These will be in addition to the new infantry regiments which are being recruited.

One of these regiments of mounted rifles will be from Calgary and the district north of it, the other will be from Medicine Hat, Lethbridge and Fort Macleod districts. It is probable that Col. MacDonald of Calgary will command the Calgary Regiment, and that Col. Sissons will command the other.

William H. K. Redmond Enlists.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—It is definitely ascertained that William H. K. Redmond, a member of Parliament and a brother of John Redmond, the leader of the Irish Nationalist party, has joined the army. He received a commission as captain last week.

In the days of the Irish land war, William Redmond was prominent in the protests against British rule, and served a number of short sentences in jail.

Earthquake Recorded.

TORONTO, Nov. 25. — A well-marked earthquake was recorded on the seismograph at the Toronto Observatory yesterday. The vibrations, which did not affect this city, lasted from 7.12 to 9.30 a.m. The earthquake was also registered in Ottawa and at Washington. It occurred presumably down in the Ecuador region, said Prof. Young of the Meteorological Office.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES

An official despatch from Pretoria announces the capture of 100 more Boer rebels, including Commandant Jordaan and four other officers.

Another name has been added to the casualty list of the Canadian expeditionary force. Private Ash, of Chilliwack, British Columbia, died of spinal meningitis.

A despatch to The Paris Journal des Debats from Bordeaux yesterday says that the French Government probably will prolong the moratorium for another period.

The cruiser Goeben was only slightly damaged in her battle with Russian warships in the Black Sea and is being rapidly repaired at the Nicodemia drydock.

Dr. Fred. Frank, one of the pioneer residents of Orangeville, and a native of the neighboring Township of Caledon, died yesterday at his home, following a paralytic stroke on Sunday night.

Lt.-Col. Lowther, A.D.C. to the Duke of Connaught, who is now sufficiently recovered from wounds received at Mons, is gazetted as Brigadier Commander and temporary Brigadier-General.

The New York Herald's Washington correspondent says that from a usually well-informed democratic source, he bears a report that William Jennings Bryan will retire from the Cabinet on or about March 4 next.

Mrs. D. J. Schumacher, of Windsor, carried out her suicidal plans yesterday by leaping from the second storey of Hotel Dieu Hospital, where she had been taken after being rescued from Detroit river, in which she had attempted to drown herself.

LLOYD'S OPTIMISTIC.

Underwriters Lower Rate In End of War Speculation.

LONDON, Nov. 25—Brisk business was done at Lloyd's yesterday in "end of the war speculation," that the war would be over by March. There is a certain volume of opinion there that thinks the chance good. Enquiries in the city yesterday showed that last week 75 guineas per cent. was quoted for a policy under which the total loss would be paid over by the end of next March. The rate had fallen yesterday to 60 guineas.

On the other hand there has been an increase during last week or ten days of 5s. to 7s. 6d. and even 10s. in the full war risk rates of insurance of private house property on the east coast. For big works such as the Tyne yards the rate has advanced from 10s. to £1.

What is in the minds of a few underwriters who are speculating on the duration of war is a secret, but the question of German's supplies is being much talked about in the city.

CHILEANS ROUSED.

They Will Take Drastic Steps to Stop Violations of Neutrality.

VALPARAISO, Chile, Nov. 25.—The Chilean training ship Gen. Baquedano has been sent by the Government to the Juan Fernandes Islands to make an investigation into the charges that the Germans have established a base of operations on the Island of Mas a Fuera, one of this group.

The French consul here has lodged a protest with the Chilean Government that the French bark Valentine was sunk by the Germans within the territorial waters of this island.

There is considerable public feeling here on the assumption that the Germans have repeatedly violated the neutrality of Chile, and the Government has decided that it will take energetic measures to preserve its neutrality.

CANADIAN PACIFIC'S HOME GUARD

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy has approved of the formation of a Canadian Pacific Company of the Montreal Home Guard to consist of about 250 men, the arms and equipment to be supplied by the railway comany. Half of the company will be enrolled from the offices and employees at the Angus Shops and the other half from the Windsor and Place Viger Stations. All departments of the service will be embraced in the composition of this Company. At a later date miniature rie rangers will be established at Angus and Windsor Station, where members of the Company will be afforded an opportunity to practice marksmanship. From the number of applications already received the movement promises to be a complete success. The first parade of the Windsor Station Company was held on Saturday afternoon, when there was a full response to the roll call. Instructions in drill were given by Sergeant Major Sharpe, who was formerly in the Imperial Army, having seen active service in Burmah and South Africa, and who is therefore well qualified to give drill instructions.

CANADIAN RAILWAY NOTES.

The increased interest in mixed farming throughout the Province of Alberta has added ten per cent to the quantity of live stock in that Province, the value of which is now estimated at $110,000,000. The value of farm products for 1914 has been estimated by that Provincial Government at $657,000,000. Fall wheat in Alberta has made satisfactory progress, according to C. P. R. reports, and the recent heavy fall of snow will protect it from the frost.

Progress on the Kettle Valley Railway is so advanced that the line will probably be ready for traffic to the Coast next summer. This means another tourist route for the C. P. R. through British Columbia, as the country traversed by the new railway is exceedingly picturesque. The Kootenay Central Railway, another branch of the C.P.R. in British Columbia is also well on the way to completion, the Swing Bridge over the Columbia River near Lake Windermere having been put into position. Construction on this line has been carried on both northwards from the Crow's Nest Line and southwards from Golden, and this bridging of the Columbia River will enable the two ends to meet.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—Assertions that the inadequacy of the number of vessels available for exports had become so apparent that steps were being taken to obtain government aid in the acquisition of vessels, had a bearish influence today on wheat. After an early advance, the market closed weak at ⅝c to ¾c under last night. Corn suffered a net loss of ⅝c to ⅞c, and oats of ¼c. In provisions the outcome varied from 12½c decline to a rise of 7½c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 24.—Wheat prices opened ¼c to ⅜c higher, oats ⅛c lower to ⅛c higher, and flax unchanged to ⅛c lower. Trading was slow and fluctuations narrow in the distant months. November, however, ranged to the extent of 1¼c before noon. Wheat futures closed irregular, being unchanged to ⅛c lower. Oats were ⅛c to ¼c lower at closing, and flax unchanged to 1⅛c down.

The cash demand was quiet for all grades, quite a lull in this department taking place today. Exporters, however, are making sales from time to time.

Inspections Monday were 977 cars, as against 1480 last year, and in eight were 600 cars.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, Nov. 24.—The demand from English importers for Manitoba spring wheat shows some improvement, but the volume of business done was small. The local trade in coarse grains is steady, there being a fair demand for car lots, and prices show no change. The export business in flour continues quiet, owing to the fact that prices bid are not satisfactory to millers. Mill feed is unchanged, with trade active. Butter is quiet and steady and cheese is firm. New laid eggs are scarce, for which there is a good demand, and the market continues strong, prices having scored an advance of 3c per dozen. Other grades are firm, with a fair demand. Potatoes firm.

Kitchener Takes Over Hides.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—Field Marshal Earl Kitchener, Secretary of State for War, yesterday issued a decree reserving all the hides of full grown cattle for military purposes. A special company having charge of the leather business of the country is organized. All the tanneries will be operated in connection with this company, receiving their quotas of hides, which they are to tan for the army from it.

TO GO TO ROME.

Sir Henry Howard Will Represent Britain at the Vatican.

ROME, Nov. 25. — The appointment of Sir Henry Howard as envoy from Britain to the Holy See was announced here yesterday. Great pleasure at this appointment was expressed at the Vatican, where it was said that it always had been regretted that Great Britain and the United States were not represented among the diplomatists accredited to the Pope.

A report from Paris some days ago said: In speculations regarding the reasons for Great Britain's present step it is pointed out that, while the enemies of Britain are represented at the Vatican by three envoys, those of Austria-Hungary and the kingdoms of Prussia and Bavaria, the allied countries are represented by only two, those of Belgium and Russia. France has not had an envoy at the Holy See since the separation act was passed in 1905.

Another point which is brought up as a possible explanation of the move is the political unrest in Ireland due to religious differences.

CULTURE IS NATURAL.

What is culture? John Galsworthy always of a reflective nature, has been considering the question anew. It is not, he thinks, scientific learning, social method and iron discipline, nor the power of producing and appreciating works of art. It is, on the contrary, natural gentility. The Hindu has it, the Burmese, the Jew, the Irish cottager, the Pole, the Russian peasant, "even the Englishman." In all of these says Galsworthy, is a live humanity, a deep kindliness, proof against the ranker instincts. — Exchange.

OBITUARY

MISS MARIA JACKSON.

The death occurred yesterday afternoon of Miss Maria Jackson at her home, 561 Gilmour street, after an illness of some duration. Deceased was born in Cavan, but had resided in Peterborough for some years before her death. She was very well known and highly respected in this city and district, and her death will be sincerely mourned by a large number of friends.

The late Miss Jackson is survived by two brothers, William, of Cavan, and Henry, of this city. Eight sisters also survive her. They are: Mrs. David Finlay, Mount Pleasant; Mrs. A. Finlay, Emily; Mrs. Wm. Fowler, Mrs. Wm. Scott, Smith; Mrs. John Hewson, Mrs. W. Handley, Mrs. W. Scott and Mrs. Wm. Braden, of Peterborough.

The funeral will be held from the late residence of the deceased to the Little Lake cemetery to-morrow afternoon to the Omemee cemetery.

MR. GEORGE MORTON.

On Thursday, Nov. 19th, 1914, Mr. George Morton, one of the oldest and most highly respected residents of Cavan passed away in his eighty-fifth year. Last spring Mr. Morton received a fall, fracturing his thigh, from which he has been confined to his bed ever since until death called him to the beyond and ceased all his suffering and pain, which was borne with patience and fortitude. He was a regular attendant of St. John's Church, Ida, until he suffered this accident.

In politics, Mr. Morton was a staunch Conservative, although he never took any active part in politics.

The late Mr. Morton's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. John Morton, came from the County of Cavan, Ireland, and settled on a farm in Cavan which their son, Mr. John Morton, brother of deceased, now resides on.

The deceased is survived by eight sons and one daughter. His wife, whose maiden name was Sarah Martin of Cavan, predeceased him some years ago. The sons are William, George, Robert, Joseph, John, James, Isaac and Edward, all residing in Cavan, and Richard of Omemee, and Mrs. Bryon Davis of Manpers. Mrs. Samuel Graham of Omemee is the only surviving sister. The late Mr. Morton, whose death took place last June, was also a son.

The funeral took place on Saturday Nov. 14th, from the family residence, 10th line of Cavan, to St. John's Cemetery, Ida, and the services were conducted by the Rev. W. C. Allen of Millbrook.

The deceased was an uncle of Mr. W. Jackson, 285 Dalhousie street.

When strange came the summons
Which called him away,
He entered the regions
Of infinite day;
And by his departure
Brave spirits are thrilled,
The place he leaves vacant,
Can never be filled.

AT HOME WAS GREAT SUCCESS

With its spacious rooms gaily decorated with flags, red carnations, ferns and red candles, and its cheerful grate fires, the residence of Mrs. P. J. Grady, 383 Water street, was thrown open on Monday afternoon and evening for the benefit of the Canadian Kitchener League. Mrs. Grady in black silk and with a corsage of red roses received the guests, and so charmingly hospitable was she, that many of the ladies who attended in the afternoon, returned in the evening accompanied by their husbands. Patriotic music, rendered from the pianos in both drawing rooms, delighted the guests. The tea room presented a pleasing picture with its bevy of prettily dressed college girls who daintily served recherche refreshments.

The proceeds which go to the Canadian Kitchener League, who are sending so much warm clothing to the soldiers, amounted to over $80.00.

The thanks of the League are due to all those who in any way assisted in the success of the event.

The excellent tea and coffee used was donated by Mr. J. John.

Crossed Chemong Lake on the Ice

The honour of being the first to drive across Chemong Lake this autumn goes to Mr. Dan. Whetung, Jr., of Indian Village, who made the crossing safely on Monday, Nov. 23, and has crossed several times since. Mr. Whetung or his father is generally the first to perform the feat, but this is the earliest on record. The ice is from three to five inches thick.

BUSINESS GIRLS WILL HOLD MEETING

A meeting of the Business Girls in Peterborough is called for this evening at 8 o'clock, in the office of the Peterborough Typewriter Company, for the purpose of making arrangements for supplying Christmas presents to those children in the City whose parents may not be in a position to do much for them this year, owing to the scarcity of work.

It is hoped there will be a large attendance and that all the Business Girls will unite in this work.

FIRST AID CLASSES AT THE Y.M.C.A.

In the writings of Florence Nightingale—occurs this paragraph: "We are only on the threshold of nursing. In the future, which I shall not see, for I am old, may a better way be opened! May the methods by which every infant, every human being, will have the best chance of health, the methods by which every sick person will have the best chance of recovery, be learned and practiced! Hospitals are only an intermediate stage of civilization, never intended, at all events, to take in the whole sick population.

May we hope that the day will come when every mother will become a health nurse, when every poor sick person will have the opportunity of a share in the district sick nurse at home."

First Aid Classes.

The class taking up the lectures on First Aid to the Injured will, after the practice work in bandaging on Wednesday night, be ready for first examination.

The Second Course

Will include lectures on Home Nursing, the Sick Room, Infection and Disinfection, Details of Nursing. Application of Local Remedies, etc.

These lectures are given under the auspices of the St. John Ambulance Association. Examinations and diplomas awarded.

Those wishing to register for these lectures are asked to do so at an early date.

DECEASED MAN'S BROTHER IS HERE

As noted in Monday's Examiner, the Police are in receipt of a telegram from Rochester, asking them to locate the relatives of a man named Murphy, who was killed in an accident there. It has been learned that Mr. W. E. Murphy, commercial traveller, at 366 1-2 Water Street, is a brother of the deceased, and he is making the necessary arrangements.

POSTERS OVER 54 YEARS OLD

In renovating the store recently occupied by Mr. J. Butcher, the walls of the building were bared to the brick and on the south wall were disclosed two posters, which have occupied their positions on the wall for at least fifty-four years. One of them, dated September 25, 186—, was advertising the sale of a farm and mill property in North Monaghan, and the other the visit of a "Napoleon Troupe" of actors to the town hall. The bill was dated for June 27 and 29, and as it was pasted under the other bill, must have been for the same or some preceding year as the other poster—that is sometime in the 60's. The fact that the bills were posted there indicates that there was no building where the ten cent store has been in business of late when they were put up, as they must have been visible to passerby to be of any value.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mis Honour Judge Huycke left for Brantford this afternoon.

Mr. T. J. Begley of the Lindsay Post, was in Peterborough visiting his brother, Mr. R. J. Begley, who is ill in St. Joseph's Hospital.

NEW ZEPPELIN READY.

That Was Reason For Daring Raid of Allies' Aviators.

LUCERNE, Switzerland, Nov. 25. —Commander Briggs, the British aviator, wounded and captured by the Germans after the daring raid by the allies' aircraft on the Zeppelin plant on Lake Constance Saturday afternoon, was wounded in the temple and hand, it has been learned. The only damage officially admitted at Friedrichshafen as a result of the raid, is a smashed window. It is believed that the raid was made by the French and British aviators as a result of information received that the huge new dirigible which has been under construction there, under the personal supervision of Count Zeppelin, had been filled with gas preparatory to a trial trip.

Rigid precautions against spies have been initiated by the Germans to prevent knowledge of the modus operandi of the new Zeppelin becoming known among the allies, or to prevent damage to the machine.

Canada's Finest.

OTTAWA, Nov. 25. — The Northwest Mounted Police, who have been refused permission to go to the front, because their services are required to keep order among the 175,000 aliens in the northwest, have responded with a decision to give one day's pay per month until the war is over. The pay of the ordinary constables is only $1 per day. This splendid contribution means about $1,500 per month.

Officers May Be Cashiered.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 25.—The two German officers who escaped from the interned camp in Holland and made their way across the border of Germany have arrived at Osnabrueck, in Hanover, says a despatch from Berlin. The German military authorities, says the despatch, will try the officers in a "court of honor," and they will probably be compelled to leave the service for breaking their parole.

For an aviator there has been invented in France apparatus which shows the speed at which his aeroplane is travelling, the velocity of the wind and the angle at which he is attacking it, and whether he is rising or falling.

According to a French physician spinach is "the broom of the stomach' as it cleanses and purifies that organ.

THE GERMAN RETREAT BECOMING A ROUT

German Defeat in Poland Grows to Great Disaster

Large Force of Enemy is Surrounded and Only a Supreme Effort Will Prevent Capture or Annihilation—Army Corps Reported Captured.

INVADING HUNGARY AGAIN

PETROGRAD, Nov. 25.—Important German forces, forming the 'wedge' with which General von Hindenburg hoped to drive a hole through the Russian centre and penetrate to Warsaw, have been completely surrounded after five days of furious battle, and unless they can cut their way out northawrd from Lodz and escape back to their own frontier, these forces will be involved in a smashing defeat. Such is the present situation in the great battle in Poland between the Vistula and the Warthe, as indicated by to-night's official communication from the headquarters of Grand Duke Nicholas.

From other sources it is learned that 48 trains have been despatched from Warsaw to convey the prisoners and wounded from the battlefield and it is estimated that the German losses in the battle so far reach a total of at le 50,000 men.

A Decisive Blow.

Great enthusiasm is manifested in military circles here, officers expressing the conviction that the enemy has received a crushing blow at Lodz, which is likely to prove decisive in the campaign in Poland. Meanwhile, equally good news comes from the Russian general staff concerning operations on other parts of the front. It is said that the fresh German force that was rushed up south of the Warthe, in an effort to turn the Russian left wing and avert disaster at the hands of the centre at Lodz and the right on the Vistula, has failed in its purpose, the advance of this force being everywhere checked by a strong Russian defence.

Against the Austro-German force on the Silesian front before Cracow the Russian offensive is slowly progressing; "our troops have the upper hand," says to-night's communication tersely. In the Carpathians the Cossacks once again are in the mountain passes and raiding southward into the plains of Hungary; according to reports from Hungarian sources, skirmishes already have occurred at places 50 miles south of the mountains. Further north the Russians have taken 3,500 prisoners, including a general, in the recent fighting.

The Official Statement.

To-night's communication from the Russian general staff, which is notable for the conservatism of its language, describes the present situation in Poland as follows:

"The fighting near Lotz still continues. The large German forces which, on Nov. 23, broke into the region of Strykow, Brzesiny, Koluszki, Ragow and Tussyn (all these places are in the vicinity of Lodz) are pressed on every side by our troops, and are now attempting by a supreme effort to cut through toward the north. To the south of Koluszki station some scattered units are roaming about. We captured prisoners, some heavy ordnance and field guns. The outcome of the battle of Nov. 24 was to our advantage.

"In the fighting near Czenstochowa and Cracow our troops manifestly have the upper hand.

"Beyond the Carpathian passes we are surrounding large bodies of Austrian troops in the vicinity of Mezolabores. In this region we captured a general, forty officers, more than 3,500 soldiers and convoys and machine guns. Near the pass giving access to the Hungarian plain we occupy the city of Homonna."

Lost Whole Army Corps.

Reports reaching here concerning the magnitude of the defeat of the Germans to the west of Lodz in some instances place the German losses as high as an entire army corps. Forty-eight trains have been despatched from Warsaw to bring in the prisoners and wounded. This number of trains, made up of the maximum number of cars of the Russian wide-gauge, would carry between 45,000 and 50,000 men, it is estimated here.

Military men here express the opinion that the reported defeat was partially due to the failure of the column of Germans from Wielun to defeat the Russians sent against it. Bad roads delayed the German column, it is reported, enabling the Russians to concentrate a sufficient force to repulse it and turn the flanks of the main German column.

Austrians Impotent.

Dealing with the fighting north of Lodz, the Army Messenger says:

"The Germans are making attack after attack in an attempt to break the Russian forces, but without success. The Austro-German army is staking all on this battle."

The newspaper adds that on the Galician front the Russian offensive is becoming more energetic, and is reducing the enemy to a state of impotence.

DEFEAT BECOMING A ROUT

Special Morning Cable.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 26—The defeat of the Germans in Poland is rapidly assuming the proportions of a rout. It is claimed here to-day that unless the army of General Von Hindenburg is able to re-form its lines—and this is considered unlikely here—the defeat of the Germans will be the most complete they have suffered on either Eastern or Western front, since the opening of the War, according to officials.

Shells Over Antwerp Like. "Flock of Birds on Fire"

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—It took Frank Van Cauwenberg and his brother Henry eight years of unremitting toil to save francs enough to open a little butcher shop in Antwerp, but took only a second for a shell from a great German siege gun to demolish it. Yesterday Frank told of the tragedy in his life in the offices of the Belgian Bureau, No. 8 Bridge street.

Like all the homeless refugees who are flocking here, he wants work, and through an interpreter he anxiously said that he is a fine butcher, as his customers would attest if they only were here. With him was Julius Claes, a young Belgian, who was educated at the University of Louvain and who speaks French, English and another language or so. Claes, who was in the city of Antwerp while it was under siege, told of the terror which held sway there, and Van Cauwenberg, who went back after the bombardment, when the Germans controlled the city, told of their sneering attitude of superiority toward the crushed residents who remained behind after the great exodus.

"From the time the bombardment commenced on Wednesday, October 1," Claes said, "It was as if a mighty thunder storm was rolling around and around the city. The shells whistled through the air and looked like—what you say—a flock of birds on fire. Poof! They struck and in an instant there were smoking walls or splinters where a house or shop had stood. And in all the streets and houses men and women and children were running about and crying.

"Shrapnel from the rapid firing guns dropped on the houses and killed people; the houses were set afire and little knots of men would rush in and drag out the old men and women or the children. In nearly every house the glass was broken and in the streets one walked on broken crockery and glass.

Women fell on sidewalks and in the streets, where they prayed and cried for help, but few stopped. Everybody tried to get away on the boats that were running to Flushing. It was on Thursday that the English came. The wounded were coming back all the time, in great loads, and they told us that the Germans were coming on and on and they couldn't stop them.

"The boats from Ostend brought the English. They were dirty uniforms, spattered with mud, and the men had beards, for they came from Tiremonde and Namur, some of them, and they had been fighting for a long time. Others came in omnibuses. They were sailors, who were landed below the town. All of them were laughing and joking and they waved at us. The people cheered them and women ran out and blessed them, for they thought that when the English came the Germans would be driven back.

"But the next day the wounded came in larger and larger numbers, and Belgian officers with detachments blew up the forts along the Dutch frontier and set fire to the petroleum tanks. I managed to get to Flushing on Friday and was not in Antwerp when the Germans finally came, but it couldn't have been any worse than it was before they got into the town. My house was blown up and when I left I left with nothing but what I carry now."

Van Cauwenberg, through an interpreter, tried to tell what a fine shop he had. He and his brother were in business only eight months, he said, and they had put all of their savings for eight years into the shop.

"It was 5,000 francs, M'sieur," he explained. "Five thousand francs, and we had four animals, fine animals they were, too, in the municipal refrigerator. That was why I came back after the Germans entered. I wanted to get them out, for though my shop was gone, I thought I could sell the beeves. But the Germans only laughed at me, and when I grew angry, they kicked me and slapped me and made me go away. Many others they kicked and slapped, too. So I have come here."

"You can have a shop here," he was told.

"Um, maybe," he answered. "But think! Five thousand francs, and in the shop but eight months! It is too bad, is it not?"

URIC ACID SUFFERING.

Uric acid is an accumulation of poison which finds lodgment in the system when the kidneys fail to remove it from the blood. In the kidneys and bladder it forms stones, in the joints and muscles it causes rheumatism. In any case the pains and cruel aches is almost beyond human endurance. Uric acid is removed promptly from the system when Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is used internally and relieves by outer application. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills

Conditions in Egypt Said to Be Good—Difficulty of Shipping Cotton Makes Economic Problem

KAISER TROUBLE-MAKER

ROME, Thursday, Nov. 26. — The Giornale d'Italia to-day publishes correspondence from Alexandria, Egypt, which says that Germany is reviving after 115 years, but with much wider scope, the game played by Napoleon in Egypt, and that the natives can now be compared to a volcano, from which anything may be expected.

Meanwhile, the correspondent says, Great Britain is preparing to give the Egyptians a new Khedive in the person of Hussein Kemal, son of Ismail Pasha, Khedive from 1866 to 1879, and uncle of the present Khedive.

"For the present," the correspondent continues, "the only grave symptom is an economic crisis, due chiefly to the impossibility, owing to the war, to export cotton, which is Egypt's chief product. As a consequence the banks are shaky. The moratorium has suppressed 3,000 notes of hand which have not been paid, and which will result in about 2,000 bankruptcies."

A despatch from Athens says private advices received in the Greek capital from Constantinople are to the effect that Djemal Pasha, former Turkish Minister of the Interior, has been appointed commander-in-chief of the Turkish forces operating against Egypt.

CHASING TURKS BACK TO FORTS

Russians in the Caucasus Are Driving Routed Enemy Before Them

PETROGRAD, Nov. 25.—That the Turkish forces are still retreating before the Russians in the region around Erzerum is recorded in the following statement from the general staff of the Russian army in the Caucasus made public here to-night.

"In the direction Erzerum our troops continue to chase before them the bulk of the Turkish forces they have defeated. We are capturing many prisoners and much ammunition and stores.

"The roads along which the Turks are retreating are strewn with the frozen bodies of their dead.

"Prisoners taken are unanimous in declaring that the defeated army is making haste with a view of seeking shelter behind the forts at Erzerum and Deve-Boyun.

"The situation elsewhere remains unchanged."

PORTUGAL MAY NOT TAKE EARLY PLUNGE

Minister at Washington Says Policy Is Not Radically Changed.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25. — The Portuguese minister, Viscount de Alte, to-day said he had been notified by his government, that the Portuguese congress had decided to act in accordance with its interests and its duty in co-operation with the allies in case of request by them. The minister to-day stated that this act of congress signified no postive change in his country's policy and did not necessarily presage immediate action.

Portugal is bound by treaty to support England, and the congress reaffirmed the bond after the beginning of the war.

GERMAN DIPLOMATS RESPONSIBLE FOR WAR

Kaiser Said to Have Told Them to Seek New Positions.

LONDON, Nov. 25. — The German Emperor, according to a despatch from The Hague to the Exchange Telegraph Company, has ordered Gottlieb Von Jagow, the German Minister of Foreign Affairs, to notify all the German diplomatic agents who hitherto have been employed in the countries now at war with Germany, that they can consider themselves free to choose another career.

Newspaper critics, the message adds, state that this sequel seems to indicate that German diplomacy is help responsible for the war.

DREAD OF INVASION

Now the Germans Turn to Fear—Extensive Preparations Along the Kiel Canal.

BRIDGEBUILDERS READY

LONDON, Nov. 25—An invasion by the Allies is feared by Germany, according to The Copenhagen Evening News, which reports that extensive preparations are being made to guard against such an eventuality.

The News says it has learned from eyewitnesses that the Germans are strengthening old fortresses in the former Danish territory of Schleswig-Holstein, as well as a line of entrenchments called the Dannewerk along the northern side of the Kiel Canal. It is thus hoped to protect the canal against attacks from the north, for it is on the shores of Schleswig, according to the reports, that an invasion is feared. All the German islands in the North Sea, it is said, are now closely guarded, and strongly fortified positions are being erected on the shores of Holstein and along the western side of the River Elbe.

A Central News despatch from Glasgow states that the structural engineers and bridge builders throughout the country are being requested to stand ready to rush repair work in Belgium and France. From this it is assumed as undoubted evidence that conditions are favourable to the allied troops.

PRAISE FOR 57th MEN

Major Bennett Says Non-Coms Have Been "Pure Gold" and There is a Fine Sentiment in Company

SALISBURY IMPRESSIONS

Much interesting information in regard to the Canadian Contingent and the 57th Regiment quota in particular is contained in a letter received by Capt. A. G. Carruthers of the 57th Regiment from Major G. W. Bennett, of Peterborough.

In regard to reaching camp Major Bennett says: "The march to camp from Amesbury station was cross country most of the way, distance of eight miles. My right half company was detailed to bring horses, and you ought to have seen the boys trying to ride horses for the first time with nothing but a head rope.

"It will be interesting to you to hear that we were ordered to adopt the British organization of four companies or double companies to the battalion. A company was combined with C and I am selected as officer commanding with real rank of major, and will be mounted. I will be the third senior officer in the regiment, and will have command of the leading company of four platoons, consisting of about 50 men, five sergeants and one lieutenant to each with a captain second in command. My command will, therefore, be about equal size to an ordinary parade of a regiment in Canada. We are getting on rapidly with our new drill. It looks like fighting for us just as soon as we are ready.

It's quite a sight to see for miles and miles, many camps of about the size of Valcartier dotted here and there. None of them are up to Valcartier in accommodation, but the sanitary conditions are much better. The camps are all dark—that is no pole lights, and all lights are doused at 9 p.m. Austrian and German bombs, you know, are not desirable bed-fellows. Even London is dark — all lights out.

I have promoted Fred Howarth to be company sergeant major. He is a fine fellow, the very best, and is always on the job. My N.C.O.'s are all A1, pure gold. They have made good with me, and I appreciate it very much as there is a certain amount of personality in matters of this kind, and our admiration and trust seems mutual. In fact this sentiment seems to "carry on" throughout the whole company. We have had no "crime" nor lectures on morality, etc. I simply ask each man to be as he knows he ought to be, not because he has to be so, but because he wants to be

He has also travelled all over Canada, and has a remarkable acquaintance with everything Canadian. He has made a most favourable impression.

RUSSIANS GET THE KAISER'S COAT AS TROPHY

PETROGRAD, Nov. 25—The Army Messenger asserts that among the trophies taken by the Russians at Czenstochowa was Emperor William's carriage and that in it was the Emperor's blue coat.

The correspondent of the Paris Temps in Copenhagen reports that many fugitives from East Prussia are arriving in Schelswig-Holstein in a pitiable condition, and that many of them, especially children, died of starvation en route.

One detachment of Germans in the recent fighting before Lodz, which reports assert, was cut to pieces by the Russians, is said to have been on the point of executing a coup disguised as Russians. It is alleged that they wore the round, fur-peaked caps which form part of the Caucasian Regiment's uniform. They were detected as they were about to turn the Russian flank, by Russian officers, who noted through their field glasses slight differences in the uniform and equipment of the Germans, according to the story.

The Austrian commandant at Przemysl has been executed by the Germans, according to refugees, because he wished to surrender.

How To Get Rid of a Bad Cough

A Home-Made Remedy that Will Do It Quickly. Cheap and Easily Made

If you have a bad cough or chest cold which refuses to yield to ordinary remedies, get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour into a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Start taking a teaspoonful every hour or two. In 24 hours your cough will be conquered or very nearly so. Even whooping cough is greatly relieved in this way.

The above mixture makes 16 ounces—a family supply—of the finest cough syrup that money could buy—at a cost of only 54 cents. Easily prepared in 5 minutes. Full directions with Pinex. ●

This Pinex and Sugar Syrup preparation takes right hold of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the dry, hoarse or tight cough in a way that is really remarkable. It also quickly heals the inflamed membranes which accompany a painful cough, and stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough. Excellent for bronchitis, spasmodic croup and winter coughs. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children like it.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in guaiacol, which is so healing to the membranes. ●

●To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex,"—do not accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

The Bath.

George C. Boldt, the doyen of the hotel keeping world, said in New York:

"It is now the excellent fashion—and this fashion will be permanent—to build hotels with a bath for every bedroom.

"I remember the time—of course I was then very young—when baths were not so necessary. In fact, I once overheard a little boy say to his father in a hotel corridor:

"'Pa, what are nights of the Bath?'

"'Why Saturday night, of course,' the father replied.

"Another time we put a rich old lady from the country—this, too, was ages ago—in our best room, a room with a bath.

"The room clerk asked her in the morning how she slept. She hid a yawn behind her hand and answered:

"'The bed was good, and I'd have slept fine, young man, only I was afraid somebody would be wanting a bath and the idea of strangers passing back and forth through my room worried me so I just couldn't snatch a wink.'"

No Trouble to Change.

"That is a beautiful hat."

"A charming hat," said the saleslady, "but not suitable to a brunette. Now, if you were only a blonde."

"I must have that hat. I'll be a blonde."

JESUS' PRACTICAL EXAMPLE

Many people who have their thought almost entirely taken up with the affairs of the material sense of life, in the way of business or otherwise, have regarded religion as something that hardly applies to secular pursuits or at least as something not adaptable to their own daily problems. The teachings and example of Jesus they look upon as transcendental and not of practical benefit when it comes to the trying demands of everyday. If consideration should be given to religion, some go so far as to say, it should only be at special times perhaps, or on Sundays, when the pursuance of business vocations would be regarded as somewhat improper.

Is not all this very strange in the face of the fact that there never was known a life of greater nobility and heroism, or one more filled with practical assistance to those in need, than that of Christ Jesus, the Founder of the Christian religion? In fact there is no better example to be followed by mankind for the successful accomplishment of every right purpose.

In the first place we should remember that Jesus was a practical business man. He was a carpenter and he had no doubt to deal with people as trying as could be found anywhere. He understood how to overcome business difficulties as well as every other kind. He solved his problems by methods rather unusual, it is true, but effectual nevertheless. We find for instance at a marriage feast to which he had been invited, when the supply of wine was exhausted and those in charge were at a loss how to procure more, he came to their assistance and furnished them with all they needed, and that the best quality, although materially he had nothing but water from which to draw his supply. When his taxes came due he very quickly produced them in a most peculiar way. He was so apt in the line of navigation that when the best of sailors had failed in a storm and the ship was about to founder he brought it through all right by his method. When the multitudes followed him, four thousand at one time and five thousand at another, and became hungry Jesus again proved himself equal to the occasion and provided for their needs. With a few loaves and fishes he was able to feed them all and have an abundance left over. He was a practising physician as well and did not hesitate to deal with cases that others had given up as hopeless, yet never was he known to fail in a case which he accepted.

Surely such a career of accomplishment in everyday affairs is well worth consideration and his methods worth trying. The question naturally arises, How did he produce such wonderful results? Since he did not rely upon the usual material methods it is evident that he must have depended upon a higher mental and spiritual system. He taught that a right mental attitude was necessary to accomplish the work. This he described as belief or faith in God and it was the lack of this to which he attributed the failure of his disciples to heal a young man who had been brought to them, but whom he healed instantaneously.

According to Jesus' teachings, he did not regard himself as the source of these works, but rather the channel through which the divine power or cause was made manifest. This cause or source he designated as his Father and said, "My Father worketh hitherto, and I work. . . . The Son can do nothing of himself, but what he seeth the Father do: for what things soever he doeth, these also doeth the Son likewise. . . . I can of mine own self do nothing. . . . I seek not mine own will, but the will of the Father which hath sent me."

These sayings would indicate that Jesus knew the harmonious manifestations and results in his experience, called miracle, to be simply the natural expression of the divine law and government and that these things at which the people marvelled were but the natural evidences of the supremacy of spiritual power and its control over the supposed influence of material or mortal laws. His own work made these facts clear to the world by teaching and demonstration. He proved the efficiency and the availability of divine power to deliver humanity from every form of evil or suffering and his promise to his followers is, "He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also." It is the privilege and duty of every one to follow his example and to recognise constantly under every condition the operation of the divine law which destroys all that is discordant and injurious. As Mrs. Eddy says in the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" (p. 427): "Immortal Mind, governing all, must be acknowledged as supreme in the physical realm, so-called, as well as in the spiritual."

One of the main features which made the life of Jesus of such practical value was his love of mankind. His life was eminently unselfish and the good of others was his first consideration. Although he knew that his public work of healing and teaching would bring down hatred and persecution upon his head he did not hesitate but prosecuted his holy vocation unceasingly and unswervingly. His life exemplified how might and meekness, majesty and humility may be blended in harmonious unity. He spoke the truth sternly and unflinchingly to the proud scribe and Pharisee, yet drew a little child to him and said, "Of such is the kingdom of heaven." He was called to a Roman centurion's home, but stopped on the way to heal a poor crippled woman. And he who could rebuke the high priest washed his disciples' feet. The Son of man who could have called down a legion of angels humbly bore his cross up Calvary's brow; and why? That he might demonstrate the power of divine Love to overcome all human hate and show through his own patient fidelity to Truth the way of salvation for all mankind.

It is because Christian Science has come to correct all false concepts regarding Jesus' life and to show its true meaning and application that this Science has proved such a boon to humanity. That life which has generally been regarded as a supernatural exhibition of God's power, limited to one short period of the world's history, Christian Science has brought close to us and has shown to be simply the applied understanding of the divine Principle and rule which is as adaptable to our needs in the present day as it was to human needs then. It shows that the purpose of the Master's life was to reveal the healing, saving power of divine Love to all mankind. Referring to this life, Mrs. Eddy writes in Science and Health (p. 37), "May the Christians of to-day take up the more practical import of that career! It is possible,—yet it is the duty and privilege of every child, man and woman,—to follow in some degree the example of the Master by the demonstration of Truth and Life, of health and holiness."

SHE GAINED 36 LBS.

Mrs. George Bradshaw, Harlowe, Ont., writes: "I was troubled for many years with weak, watery blood and dropsy. I had nervous headaches, dizziness and sinking spells, and was, in fact, a semi-invalid. Doctors told me my heart and kidneys were diseased and gave me up. By using 10 boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I have been cured of many of my old complaints and gained 36 pounds in weight."

NO CHANGE IN MOTHER.

No matter how old the children may be,
In the mother's heart they are always young.
The lullaby soft, or the story gay
Always the babes to which she sung
Related, to charm the pain away,
Of hurt received in childish play.

The boy at her side may grow bearded and grey,
Her girl the mother of children may be—
My boy and my girl, you'll hear her say,
The same as when babes they lay on her knee—
Their griefs her griefs, their joy her joy,
Her love is given without alloy.

No matter how old the children become,
A welcome is sure to meet them, when
On a longer or shorter absence from home
They gladly return to their mother again—
In anticipation she welcomes with joy
The return to home pleasures, her girl or boy.

The world may treat them with cold scorn,
Storm fate their dearest hopes destroy,
But the mother's heart is always warm
With pity and love for girl and boy;
She folds them close in her sheltering arm.
And defies the world to do them harm.

—Charlotte Vermilye Cruser.

Brave Land of Heroes! We acclaim
Thee to the ages yet unborn.
By none shall be excelled thy fame,
Nor from thy brow the laurel torn.

A war mad monarch, thirsting blood,
Demands thy honour—breathing fire
At thy refusal, hurls a flood
Of armed legions in his ire.

Ne'er did he dream a land of peace
Would dare resist his haughty tread.
But, though his legions o'er increase.
So doth the toll of German dead.

Behold the Kaiser! Tremble all
When he decrees that war shall be.
"To arms!" he cries, and e'en does call
Upon the living God to see.

List to his talk of Fatherland,
Of love of country, love of home.
Love has he none, but bears the brand
Of Nero at the sack of Rome.

Why should fair Europe's breast be strewn
With slaughtered thousands of her sons?
Why should a Belgian path be hewn
To march on France with German guns?
Is there a cause both wise and just
Can justify this wholesale death?
Oh, that one man's Kriegerlust
Should give to war a living breath!

Poor, ravaged Belgium! Martyred land
Of noble patriots—valiant men,
Who die for honour. May the hand
Of God bless you—bring you peace again.

The Supreme Test of a Healing Agent

Psoriasis or Chronic Eczema Defied All Treatment Until Dr. Chase's Ointment Was Used.

After suffering with the terrible itching of Psoriasis for five years, and being told by physicians that she could not be cured, Mrs. Massey turned to Dr. Chase's Ointment and was entirely cured.

MRS. MASSEY.

You will find this letter interesting, and will not wonder that the writer is enthusiastic in praising this ointment.

Mrs. Nettie Massey, Consecon, Ont., writes:—"For five years I suffered with what three doctors called psoriasis. They could not help me, and one of them told me if anyone offered to guarantee a cure for $10.00 to keep my money, as I could not be cured. The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head, and the itching and burning was hard to bear. I used eight boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and I am glad to say I am entirely cured, not a sign of a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise this ointment enough."

Can you imagine a more severe test for Dr. Chase's Ointment? This should convince you that as a cure for eczema and all forms of itching skin disease Dr. Chase's Ointment stands supreme. Put it to the test. 60c a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

A skin you love to touch

Why it is so rare

A skin you love to touch is rarely found because so few people understand the skin and its needs.

Begin now to take your skin seriously.

You can make it what you would love to have it by using the following treatment regularly.

Make this treatment a daily habit

Just before retiring, work up a warm water lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap and rub it into the skin gently until the skin is softened, the pores opened and the face feels fresh and clean. Rinse in cooler water, then apply cold water—the colder the better—for a full minute. Whenever possible, rub your face for a few minutes with a piece of ice. Always dry the skin thoroughly.

Use this treatment persistently for ten days or two weeks and your skin will show a marked improvement. Use Woodbury's regularly thereafter, and before long your skin will take on that finer texture, that greater freshness and clearness of "a skin you love to touch."

Woodbury's Facial Soap is the work of a skin specialist. It costs 25c a cake. No one hesitates at the price after their first cake.

Do this today—now! Tear out the illustration of the cake below and put it in your purse as a reminder to get Woodbury's and try this treatment. Tear out the coke now. Take it to your druggist today. Begin tonight to get the benefits of this facial soap. For sale by Canadian druggists from coast to coast, including Newfoundland.

ADOLPH MAX, BURGOMASTER OF BRUSSELS, CIVILIAN HERO OF GREAT WAR, HAS THWARTED OPPRESSION OF GERMANS

LONDON, Nov. 23—While the civic authorities of the captured Belgian towns, have, almost without exception, behaved admirably during the German occupation, there is one man who deserves all the best a grateful country can do for him, and that is Adolphe Max, chief burgomaster of Brussels, who, in sticking to his post, maintainig order and ensuring the protection of his fellow citizens, has displayed wonderful courage and resource.

Scarcely known outside his own City, and certainly quite unknown outside Belgium, Burgomaster Max has made himself famous throughout the world in less than two months and while not openly putting obstacles in the Germans' way, he has stood out against oppression so stoutly that it is well known that the Germans would be only too glad of an opportunity to shoot him.

It would not have taken much to provoke the Germans to partially destroy the beautiful Belgian capital, it is believed, but Burgomaster Max kept a firm hold on the reins of civic government and by advice and example he persuaded his subordinates and fellow citizens that the evil of peaceful occupation was better than futile resistance and certain destruction.

The invaders did not make it easy for him, because he flatly declined to render that obsequious homage demanded by Prussian militarism. Max told the German commander bluntly: "If you want me to retain the job, and keep order I am going to be a real mayor," and as he has loyally adhered to the terms under which Brussels surrendered, the Germans have been compelled to let him alone for very shame's sake.

The first day of the German occupation Max returned to his office at the Hotel de Ville, to find the new military governor of Brussels seated at his desk. The German took no notice of him and evidently proposed keeping him standing at the door like an ordinary prisoner, but Max wasn't used to being treated that way. He pulled up a chair and made himself comfortable beside the intruder.

A few days later the Germans issued a proclamation stating that as the Belgian Government had fled, finding itself unable to govern the country, Germany would considerately take over the job. Max promptly had placards printed describing as absolute lies the statements contained in the proclamation, and he had the placards pasted up alongside. This brought down on him a peremptory notice that no posters must be displayed without the sanction of the German commander, who proceeded to warn the burgomaster that a repetition of such an offence would be sternly dealt with.

No whit dismayed, when ordered to haul down all Belgian flags, Max issued the required instruction with an addition of his own. Let us accept temporarily the sacrifice imposed upon us; let us haul down our flags to avoid a conflict, and let us wait patiently for th hour when we shall obtain satisfaction," his notice read.

This drove the German Governor into a furious temper and that evening Max recived a note saying: "The German Government alone has the right to issue notices. You have acted in the violation of this right. Such a thing is intolerable. This is the second time you have offended and a last warning is now given to you not to offend again."

Max replied: "So long as I am burgomaster of Brussels I shall act according ot my idea of duty. In this I shall never fail."

He posted no more proclamations, but he aroused the Germans to a perfect frenzy of rage by making a speech from the steps of the Exchange buildings. Addressing an enthusiastic crowd he said:

"I am forbidden to post circulars on the walls, and I do not possess any newspapers by which to let you know the good news that I have received. But I cannot be prevented from talking and I will use that means to inform you every day of the situation and prevent the false news spread by the Germans affecting your spirit."

The brave burgomaster then detailed the defeats in the field sustained by the Germans and Austrians and added: "Let every one of you go into the town and inform your friend and families of the good news."

After he had repeated this action several times Max was arrested, and held for deportation, but even the German commanders could not but admire his courage.

It is understood that King Albert proposes to grant titles of nobility to his brave representatives in Belgium's captured capital.

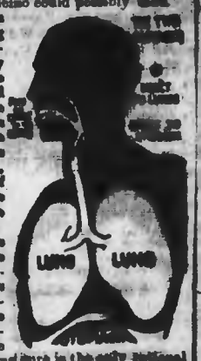
Army Corps Drags!

Look at the diagram below. It shows how the lungs and the stomach are entirely separate organs reached by entirely separate tubes. What you swallow goes to the stomach. What you breathe (and only what you breathe) goes to the lungs and air passages direct.

Now you see how useless it is, when you have a cold, or a cough, or bronchitis, or catarrh, to dose the stomach (which may be quite healthy) with drugs! What you need is something you can breathe to the lungs direct!

That is Peps.

Peps is the name of a new scientific preparation containing highly medicinal essences and pine extracts, compressed into tablet form. You put a Peps on your tongue, and as it slowly dissolves these volatile essences turn into vapour. You BREATHE the remedy to your sore, filling chest and lungs, almost—not another is to your stomach, which is not ailing. The healing fumes, thus breathed down, bathe the delicate, inflamed membranes of your bronchial tubes, and pass right on to the tiny passages of the lungs—a course no liquid or solid medicine could possibly take.



Peps fumes are healing and antiseptic. They heal sore tissues and kill disease germs. Peps bring pine forest fumes to your home, instead of you going to the pine forest!

Dominion Senator Praises Peps

Senator Derbyshire, of Brockville, writing from the Dominion Senate, Ottawa, says:—

"I am pleased to express my high opinion of Peps. Some time ago I contracted a very bad cold, which settled on my lungs and bronchial tubes. I almost lost my voice, was constantly coughing, and experienced considerable pain. A friend offered me a box of Peps, and I tried them. I was very much pleased with their almost instant action. They seemed to go direct to the sore places, stopped the coughing, and made my breathing easier. I continued their use for a short time, and they completely cure I my cold."

Peps are best for children, too, because they contain no opiates or poison. 50c. box, all druggists and stores. Write for free trial packet to Peps Co., Toronto, or 25 Princess St., Winnipeg, sending 1c. stamp for postage, and this advertisement.

Two War Posters Are Everywhere Seen In England

LONDON, Nov. 21. — After three months of war London, as a neutral sees it, seems a conflict between the two commonest sentiments of the period—"Business as Usual" and "Your King and Country Needs You." These signs confront you everywhere. In August they were on the houses and motor cars; now on the bill boards, empty walls, hotels, theatres, monuments— everywhere that paste will hold them.

Contrary to the expectations of earlier weeks, none of the big hotels are closed, but even at the height of the evening crowd there is slim attendance, nearly half the men being officers in uniform. Americans are very scarce, none being en route to the Riviera or other European resorts.

There has been a revolutionary change in staff at all these hostelries, managers, clerks, doormen, waiters of German or Austrian blood having been sent to the detention camps. No restaurant or hotel can remain open with any chance of making money unless it can announce that "no alien enemies are hired here." One of the largest hotels on the Strand was recently the target for much newspaper criticism because its orchestra never played "God Save the King." That orchestra now plays the national air every evening, with frequent repetitions of "Tipperary," "Marseillaise" and other favourite songs of the allies.

Theatres Reduce Rates.

The theatres are having a hard time of it. War was blow enough, but the darkened streets with their accompanying gloom and the closing of restaurants at 10 o'clock, whether they be Piccadilly grade or mere "pub," was a harder blow. Rates have been seduced, soldiers and nurses in uniform are admitted at half price, patriotic repertoire of the orchestras—but it is all up-hill work.

The theatrical profession is in despair. Since "Drake" was put on by Beerbohm Tree, nothing new has been attempted. Old plays are the order of the day. But for one or two American importations, Londoners would have nothing new to see. Even 'The Country Girl" and "The Belle of New York" have been revived. George Edward, who recently returned from a detention camp in Germany, has no heart for musical "shows."

Most of the galleries are open—the fear of the suffragette having departed—but many of the best known masterpieces have been taken from the walls to places of safety.

In the streets recruits in companies battalions and regiments pass along daily many of them without uniforms. These are the men the country calls for, but Englishmen rarely stop even to look at them. Even the women who knit socks or mufflers as they ride to their work in busses do not lift their eyes to watch passing troops. Some of the papers complain that there should be bands and that people should stop to look at the volunteers, but people do not. It is evidently not the British way.

City Dark at Night.

Leicester square at night is not what tourists are wont to consider it, a centre of gayety and amusement. The Belgian influx has added somewhat to its population, but the afes cand theatres simply cannot overcome the impression of gloom. Two thirds of the streets are dark and the other two thirds have the upper part of the globe painted black, while no electrical signs are allowed. It is as if Broadway were set back to 1860.

Regent and Oxford and the adjoining shopping thoroughfares lack their customary number of busses, some lines having been taken off altogether as the army commandeered them. All the shops have reduced the number of their employes, but make a brave show of "Business as Usual," their window placards showing how many of the staff have enlisted or that a certain proportion of the receipts will be devoted to the Prince of Wales fund or that gifts for soldiers or sailors can be obtained with a discount from regular rates.

In the city itself the stock exchange men stand in Throgmorton street at noonday from force of habit, and talk of business that may come sooner or later. Figures show that unemployment is below the average, the rush of hundreds of thousands to the colours accounting for that. At an auction sale at the wool exchange this week the seats were crowded, but the bidding was brisk only for the grades of wool that could be used for khaki.

That Racking Persistent Cough
Can Be Quickly Cured By DR. WOOD'S
NORWAY PINE SYRUP

All obstinate coughs and colds yield quickly to the general action of "Dr. Wood's" for the simple reason that this valuable preparation combines all the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree with which is combined Wild Cherry Bark, and the soothing, healing and expectorant properties of other excellent herbs and barks. This makes it, without any chance of denial, the best cough medicine on the market to-day.

When you ask for "Dr. Wood's" see that it is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark, and that the name, The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont., appears on the wrapper. Price, 25c and 50c.

Mrs. H. C. Kingston, Moose Jaw, Sask., writes: "I wish to recommend Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup as being the best cough medicine on the market. A few months ago I took a severe cold which left me with a racking cough. After trying several cough remedies, with no result, I decided to get a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and after taking the first two doses it began to effect a cure, and after continuing its use for a short time, I was entirely cured. I cannot say too much in its praise."

THE WEATHER MAN

The Weather Man (I know him well)
Who has charge of the station,
Is quite a decent sort of chap
Outside his occupation.

When not concocting devilish schemes
To pester us with weather,
He is a charming man to meet,
Delightful, altogether.

He is a man of brilliant wit,
He jokes and makes us smile;
Goes to the office, pulls a plug,
And lets it rain a while.

He says to keep the thin ones on.
And then straightway doth go
Into his shop, and turns a switch,
And lets a blizzard blow.

He is a smiling optimist,
His friends ne'er hear him sob;
But he is sure a pessimist
When he is on his job.

Outside his office he's a prince—
A malcontent inside,
It seems to be another case
Of Jekyll and of Hyde.

Farm and Dairy Market Report

Toronto, Monday, Nov. 23.—A few industries are working overtime to fill military contracts with the government. These, however, do not afford a correct gauge of industrial conditions. Perhaps no one industry reflects more closely general trade conditions than the railways. The C. P. R. shows a big falling off in earnings during the last quarter. The latest returns of the Grand Trunk Railway show a decrease in earnings of over $1,000,000. Other railroads are in similar condition. War cannot but leave its mark everywhere in industrial depression. No country gains financially even in a victorious war, and Canadian trade is paying the penalty that might have been expected.

The condition on the farms is somewhat different. Prices generally range higher than they did a year ago. Live stock are one of the few dull features of the market. Grains generally remain steady.

WHEAT

Wheat is a trifle lower than last week, but generally the market may be said to be steady. No. 1 Northern is now quoted $1.20½; No. 2, $1.22½. Ontario wheat is firm at $1.19 to $1.13.

COARSE GRAINS

The market is quiet in all lines, with a normal business being transacted: Oats, C.W. No. 2, 40½c; No. 3, 37½c; Ontario, 40c to 31c; corn, 70½c; rye, 86c to 88c; peas, $1.00 to $1.70; barley, malting, 65c to 67c; feed, 55c to 56c; buckwheat, 75c. The Montreal market quotes as follows: Oats, C.W. No. 2, 41½c; No. 3, 39c; extra No. 1 feed, 41c; local white, 40c to 40c; barley, malting, 70c to 72c; feed 62c

MISCELLANEOUS.

Eggs are firm, with new laid in cartons quoted 35c to 40c; selects, 30c to 32c; fresh gathered, 27c to 28c and storage, 25c to 26c. Montreal quotes fresh eggs, 40c to 42c and No. 1 storage, 30c to 32c. Poultry is plentiful. Live spring chickens, 12c to 13c; old fowl, 9c to 10c; ducks, 9c to 9c; geese, 7c to 8c; turkeys, 16c to 18c.

Potatoes are unchanged. Ontario's being quoted 65c; New Brunswick's, 70c. The Montreal market is stronger at 46c to 47½c.

Hay quotations rule about $4 higher than at this time last year. Some hay is going forward to United States points. Government orders have not yet been filled. Altogether the situation is strong, with No. 1 hay quoted $20 to $16.00 here and $20 at Montreal.

Mill feeds are steady at last week's quotations.

DAIRY PRODUCE

Dairy produce is not receiving much attention from the farmer now as the make of butter is limited and that of cheese has practically ceased. In the case of butter the supply is not equal to consumption. The New York market is easier and the outlook for shipments in that direction is not promising. New Zealand butter is reported en route to Vancouver. Finest September creamery is quoted 27½c to 28c at Montreal.

In cheese the demand is confined chiefly to the tail-enders at reduced quotations, the finest Septembers being passed over for the time being. It is estimated that the cheese stocks now in Canada are the lightest at this date for many years. Country boards report 14½c to 14½c; Brockville on Thursday selling 1,291 at 14½c and Kingston 77 at 14½c

LIVE STOCK

The Live Stock News sums up the situation on local cattle markets as follows: "The immediate outlook does not appear to be any too bright, but for the long pull the man who has good cattle in his stable has no cause to worry. By spring, if industrial conditions improve and as Canadian cattle are again allowed to enter the United States, beef in Canada is likely to enter the luxury class."

Heavy cattle have been going slowly and even coming a little above the canner class, slower yet. Handy ripe steers seem to be in best demand, but not many are offering. Country shippers will be well advised to go easily on this cattle business through the province seem to be well filled. Probably the high prices of feed will deter many farmers from putting in the usual number of feeders. The closing of the United States market, too, will have a serious effect on the outlet for this class of stock. Quotations over-age as follow:

Export steers, $7.75 to $8; handy choice steers, $7.50 to $8.25; butchers' steers, common to good, $6.75 to $7.50; heifers, $6 to $7.50; choice cows, $6 to $6.75; cows, good, $5.50 to $6; butcher bulls, $6.50 to $7; bulls, $5.50 to $6.75; stockers, $5.50 to $6.50; canners and cutters, $3.50 to $4.50.

Milkers are recovering from a little dullness and choice ones now above Monday's, $85 to $75; common and good, $40 to $60; springers, $60 to $90. Calves are down, $10, being quoted $8 to $9.75.

Sheep and lambs are in steady demand: Lambs, $7 to $8.25; cull lambs, $5.50 to $6; light ewes, $6.25 to $6.75; heavy sheep and bucks, $4 to $5; culls, $3 to $4.

Hogs are quoted $7.40 f.o.b. country points. Packers are talking a reduction this week.

THE SALE OF DEC. 2ND

Among the good things offered by Matthew Armstrong at his dispersion sale in Tilsonburg on Dec. 2nd is the present herd sire, Dutchland Calamity Ormsby, 16782, by Sir Dutchland Colantha Sir Abbekerk, whose dam and grand dam average 31.55 of butter and 614.15 of milk in seven days. His dam is Calamity Jane Ormsby 2nd with 31.4 lbs. butter at two years and two months and 80 lbs. of milk in a day at four years. Seven of her nearest dams average 22.22 lbs. butter in seven days. This sire is mostly white, and an excellent individual.

Another good sire is King Segis of Cedar Hedge, who is by King Lyons Hengerveld, the son of King Segis, whose dam has a 33-lb. record and her daughter having produced 30 lbs. in seven days. The dam of Cedar Hedge is Highland Beauty Dotchy, a splendid type, capable of making a good record when she is tested.

Among the cows are to be found a grand-daughter of Hengerveld De Kol, by Pontiac Hermes, who sold for $700 at public auction. She is a grand individual, with plenty of capacity, but has never been put on record. Her heifer calf, by a son of Sir Admiral Ormsby, the sire of Jennie Hengerveld Ormsby, the world's record cow at four years, is also in the sale. Another fine young cow is Lady Princess Hiawatha, 22.2 at four years, and her two-year-old daughter, sired by Dutchland Colantha Sir Abbekerk. Also a heifer calf by Mercena Abbekerk, the sire of Mercena of Campbelltown, 23.87 lbs. at three years. There is also 10 heifer calves and five bull calves, sired by Sir Mercena Abbekerk, 8634, and Sir Hengerveld Artis, 10251, whose sire is Count Hengerveld Fayne De Kol, a son of Grace Fayne 2nd's Pietertje Hengerveld Count De Kol. His dam, De Kol Imperial Duchess, 2197, is a daughter of Clothilde Artis, who has 15 A.R.O. daughters and three sons. A March bull calf from this cow and Sir Mercena Abbekerk is also for sale. Then, too, there are several cows not tested whose ancestors are doing good work, and which breeders cannot afford to miss. Keep the date open, Dec. 2nd.

IF BACKACHY OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat Less Meat, Also Take Glass of Salts Before Eating Breakfast

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a teaspoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

FIELD WORKS OF BELFORT PERCHES READY FOR SIEGE

BELFORT, Nov. 21.—"You know," said one of the old Alsatians who sought refuge in this last little corner of Alsace that was saved to France after the war of 1870, "they can't do much more than they did before, while we can do a lot more."

The news had just arrived that the Germans were forcing the fighting in Upper Alsace and the sound of cannonading seemed to bring nearer the eventuality of a third siege of Belfort. The town was none the less tranquil for that; most of the inhabitants shared the confidence of this old veteran, who, as he talked, pointed significantly to the great "Lion of Belfort" that Bartholdi carved in the solid red sandstone on which the citadel is built.

The Germans are no doubt sure they can do "a lot more" than in 1870. They undoubtedly will, if they can bring up their 17-inch mortars, but their troubles will begin further down the "Belfort gap"—the open space between where the Jura mountains end and where the Vosges begin. It is an inviting opening for an invader but it is capable of many deceptions.

Colonel Denfert-Rochereau, with 17,000 men, could not prevent General Treskow with a whole army from installing his heavy artillery on the Lower Perches and the Upper Perches, the heights to the southeast of the town that dominate the citadel, but he prevented them from taking the town and, after 108 days of continuous bombardment, marched out only because his own government ordered him to do so.

Learn Lesson of Nancy.

Confidence in the resistance powers of any fortress under present conditions having been shaken by the fall of Liege, Namur, Maubeuge and Antwerp, even the solid rock of Belfort may be expected to crumble under the half-ton projectiles of the German mortar, but other lessons have been learned. There is the lesson of Nancy, an open town, with not a single fort to defend it, before which the Germans were forced to retire. The same field works they found there are admirably suited to the "Belfort Gap," and the besiegers may find that "It is a long way" to the Perches. The forts of these commanding heights have been rebuilt since 1870 and all the outlying defences of the place which were its weakness then are its strength to-day.

Besides the forts of the Perches the Germans would find on their left strongly entrenched supporting forces with all sorts of earthworks; on their right they would have the continual menace of forces holding all the defiles of the Vosges in German territory as far as Thann. On their front they would have to face a system of entrenchments that have been incessantly augmented and reinforced since hostilities began.

All the surrounding villages are so many little fortresses, united by deep trenches, while all the lower approaches, mostly in marshy country, reached by canals, may be flooded on short notice.

After surmounting these obstacles the besiegers would have to cross wide, open spaces exposed to the cross fire from the Perches and the citadel before they could bring up the famous "brummers."

These are the reasons why the Alsatians of Belfort are confidently rejoicing in the occupation by French troops of many of the neighbouring towns of the annexed regions of Alsace.

THIN PEOPLE CAN INCREASE WEIGHT

Thin men and women who would like to increase their weight with 10 or 15 pounds of healthy "stay there" fat should try eating a little Sargol with their meals for a while and note results. Here is a good test worth trying. First weigh yourself and measure yourself. Then take Sargol—one tablet with every meal—for two weeks. Then weigh and measure again. It isn't a question of how you look or feel or what your friends say and think. The scales and the tape measure will tell their own story, and most any thin man or woman can easily add from five to eight pounds in the first fourteen days by following this simple direction. And best of all, the new flesh stays put.

Sargol does not of itself make fat, but mixing with your food, it turns the fats, sugars and starches of what you have eaten, into rich, ripe fat producing nourishment for the tissues and blood—disperses it in an easily assimilated form which the blood can readily accept. All this nourishment now passes from your body as waste. But Sargol stops this waste and does it quickly and makes the fat-producing contents of the very foods you are eating nourish, develop, plump and pound of healthy flesh, which shows your skin and bones. Sargol is inexpensive, efficient and harmless.

Leading druggists in Peterborough and vicinity sell it in large boxes—forty tablets to a package—and if strength or weight increase are not more than satisfactory, your money back.

Mr. F. J. Doughty was in Town on business on Friday.

Mr. John McMurray's new residence has been completed and is ready for occupancy. This building is the work of the local contractors, Messrs. Selkirk Bros., and the heating system was installed by Mr. A. F. Choate.

The members of the Warsaw Rifle Association have been relieved of their rifles and in the event of trouble will revert to the weapons provided by nature.

There is a sale of seventy-five travellers' sample Sweater Coats and Pull-over Sweaters going on this week at Choate's Store, Warsaw. Prices are as follows:

A VALUABLE HINT.

You have watched the machinist connect his lathe with the factory's power. Wheels, pulleys, shafting, belting—all are flying about, but his machine is still. There is no power in it. Suddenly he moves a lever; the belt slips over upon his own pulley; his machine comes into motion; the power of the unseen dynamo or engine has come to his lathe to do his work for him. So it is with God's power and our souls. It whirls on all about us; it is actually in our bodies and our brains, but it needs that slight act of trust to connect it with our souls. While we are singing, we are apt to be trusting. And as we trust, God becomes our salvation. — Christian Herald.

Prince Louis of Battenberg Was Victim of 'Spy Scare'

London "Man in the Street," Carried Away by His Fears, Responsible for Loss to Admiralty of All Around Specialist and Loyal Subject.

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, Nov. 21.

As England became more alive to the spy peril and as the campaign against the German spy grew one heard a great deal of talk about the First Sea Lord being a "German Prince." Everywhere one went the same cry was heard: Why was a German chief of the Admiralty? Why was he not dismissed? And yet when Prince Louis of Battenberg resigned it came like something of a shock to those who recognized his worth and understood how invaluable had been his work for the British navy. But England, or rather the "man in the street," clamored for his dismissal, and Prince Louis, recognizing his position, through the accident of birth, no doubt after serious consultation with the King, and his fellow admirals, decided to satisfy the public demand and quit.

Then, and only then, did England realise that it had lost the services of one of the greatest naval strategists it ever had and one of the most loyal subjects of the King.

It is indeed, a remarkable fact that while every one in England is familiar with the careers and faces of the leading British generals, very little is known outside naval ports of the heads of the sister service. There have been a few exceptions, but the general public knows little of Prince Louis of Battenberg. They only knew that "a German" was directing by wireless from Whitehead the movements of every ship and sailor.

Prince Louis of Battenberg was born sixty years ago, not in Germany, but at Gratz, in Austria. His mother was a Polish countess. His father was Prince Alexander of Hesse, younger son of the reigning grand duke of that independent State, which had furnished Wellington with the finest "mercenaries"—as the Kaiser Wilhelm would doubtless call them—under his immediate command at Waterloo and elsewhere.

Victim of Prussian Vandalism.

But the integrity and independence of the grand duchy were not to endure long after Prince Louis' birth, in 1854. Prince Louis' family fought with Austria against Prussia's bid for hegemony in 1866, and after Prussia's triumph they were penalized by the brutal conqueror by the Prussian annexation of the major portion of their State. Of their several provinces—Hesse-Nassau, Hesse-Cassel, &c.—they were allowed to retain but a small district around Darmstadt, their present capital. In 1868, two years after this act of Prussian vandalism against his family, Prince Louis, at the age of fourteen, entered the British navy and received his letters of naturalization as a British subject.

It is perhaps unnecessary to recall that one of his brothers, Prince Henry of Battenberg, gave his life for England in the Ashanti campaign, that three of his sons have been fighting in the present war against Germany, one, Prince Maurice, being killed, one invalided home, while the other is still at the front. Of Prince Louis' two sons, one is fighting in the army and another is following his father's profession.

As a sailor, commander and naval strategist Prince Louis' reputation stands high. Despite his royal connections, his promotions, having regard for his acknowledged merits, have been, if anything, rather slow. On the other hand, he has probably served in more special commands or specialist departments than any flag officer now in active service.

Many Sided Specialist.

This variety of interests stood him in good stead after he became the professional director of the navy and its policy. For it is desirable that the First Sea Lord should at one and the same time be acquainted personally with every branch of the navy's work—engineering, gunnery, torpedo, submarine, aviation, &c.—without allowing his personal inclinations unduly to influence his naval policy in favor of any one. He must be an all around specialist, and there is probably no admiral in the British service who fulfils this all important condition to the same extent as Prince Louis.

As naval adviser to the Military Inspector General of Fortifications (1892-1894), Prince Louis acquired valuable experience on technical questions connected with coastal defence and gunnery. Seeing also that he was twice connected with the British Naval Intelligence Department, the first time as assistant director in 1899-1901, when the enemy presumptive was France, and subsequently as director, in 1902-1904, when Russia in a similar capacity was already yielding place to the Kaiser's realm, there is little which he does not know about the potentialities as well as actualities of both the present allied and hostile fleets.

A scientific and eminently intellectual naval officer, Prince Louis when afloat was none the less a breezy captain, and as a squadron commander he became a most daring and inventive tactician. Both officers and "tars" who served in the Mediterranean in the late nineties, under the then Sir John Fisher and Sir Arthur Wilson, love to tell the story of how Prince Louis, at that time still a captain, but placed by Admiral Fisher in command of a small squadron operating at manoeuvres against a much larger force commanded by Admiral Wilson, completely outwitted the latter.

Sir Arthur Wilson was blockading the Prince in an awkward harbor—the exit from which, in face of superior force, was supposed to be an almost impossible task. Prince Louis waited for a particularly dark night, then rigged out the fastest of his smaller craft with huge beams spread out both horizontally and vertically and studded with lights, so as to give these craft from a distance the appearance of large battle ships with lights.

Escapes with Ships.

Having done this, he sent them out at full speed and slipped them through the blockader's lines. Whereupon the entire blockading fleet started off in pursuit of the "skeleton" battle ships, while Prince Louis' capital ships made off in safety in the opposite direction. This is by no means the only tactical triumph achieved by Prince Louis at manoeuvres, but is one of the numerous illustrations that could be given of his skill in mimic warfare.

As a rear admiral he commanded the Second Cruiser Squadron (1903-6), when his flagship, the Drake, became a record holder in respect of both gunnery and speed. For, although Prince Louis has ever supported Lord Fisher's views on the primary importance of big guns and long rate shooting, he has shown himself another resolute believer in light cruisers of high speed, such as the Germans have long favored and as have been launched recently for Britain in the shape of the Birmingham and Lowestoft class.

As commander in chief of the Atlantic fleet from 1908 Prince Louis was in charge of that finest of all the pre-dreadnought squadrons, the eight King Edwards. In 1910 he relinquished this command for that of the Third and Fourth (Reserve) Divisions of the home fleet, but the International crisis of the summer of 1911 found him once again in command of the King Edwards off Berehaven, for to him had been intrusted by the Admiralty the all important task of containing, with an inferior squadron, the dreadnoughts of the German high sea fleet should they have attempted either to make a raid on the English Channel ports or "to "break through" the Channel into the Atlantic, while the British dreadnoughts were waiting for them in the North Sea between the Scottish and Norwegian coasts.

Designed Sensational Manoeuvres.

In the following year, on the reorganization by Mr. Winston Churchill of the Board of Admiralty and his creation of a naval "war staff," Prince Louis was appointed Second Sea Lord, and owing to the persistent ill health of Sir Francis Bridgeman he it was who designed the sensational manoeuvres of 1912.

Prince Henry himself was in command of the Blue, or defending, fleet, whose mission was to prevent a landing in England under cover of the Red, or enemy fleet, under Admiral Callaghan, which was allowed a considerable start. The Blue admiral destroyed the Red fleet, but only after a considerable raiding force had also been landed.

RUSSIANS IN WILD BAYONET CHARGES

(Special Dispatch.)

VILNA, Nov. 21.

Three wounded soldiers with the St. George Cross glittering on their breasts who have been brought into hospitals here, with ten others, unwounded, are all that are left of a whole company of Russian soldiers, but one of these wounded men verified a remarkable story illustrating how the Russians fight and their devotion to their officers, which I was inclined to imagine exaggerated, in the Army News, the official organ of the Russian army, published at the front in the field printing office of the General Staff.

"In the march into Galicia of our south army," he said, "one of our strong columns, composed of three classes of arms, was making a forced march on the line Trembovl-Podgaetsi-Galikz. The road was intersected by numerous small streams running from north to south. It became absolutely necessary to gain the crossings. To accomplish this our column marched practically without interruption, making from thirty-five to forty versts (twenty-one to twenty-four miles) a day.

"It is quite clear that in the circumstances the commissariat train fell considerably behind, and we did not always receive our food in time. All this, one would think, would considerably weaken both the offensive and defensive power of our men. It was on a hot day that we had just crossed the River Koropetz. The banks of this river near the village of Virzhbuy were strongly held by the Austrians, and they were so placed that on the east bank of the river they endangered the flank of our column.

"Our commander immediately decided to attack. The enemy, however, did not wait for us to attack and likewise advanced. In a few minutes a pitched battle commenced. Our infantry defiled in a long chain, and regardless of losses went forward on the run. Under a terrible rifle and machine gun fire our men at a distance of six hundred paces started the bayonet attack. One of the battalions was caught under the cross fire of machine guns, but that did not stop it, and on it went under the leadership of its commander, though losing men by the dozen, and went straight for the machine guns. There were no firsts and no lasts.

"At the command 'After me!' it seemed as if a solid wall was advancing against the enemy. We succeeded in finally capturing the guns. The Austrians made for the river and our artillery followed them up. The corps commander, who at the beginning of the battle had ridden out to the forward chains of the attacking regiments, was observing the battle from an elevated position.

"As soon as the enemy was seen to be retreating an effort was made to gather our forces and form our original lines. At a gallop the corps commander approached our regiment. We met him with a loud cheer, and many of us waved our caps. The sun was setting. The battle was drawing to a close. The artillery was firing a few parting volleys. Heaps of corpses in light gray Austrian coats and in Russian embroidered shirts mutely demonstrated the fury of the battle.

"The sight pained one by the heart, but brought tears of delight to the eyes. The faces of the soldiers fairly glowed. There was not a sign of faltering, not a sign of hunger. All were drunk with victory. The commander of the corps, whose bravery the soldiers had commented with their rousing cheers, stopped at a small group of men.

"What party is this?" asked the general. 'The remains of the Third battalion of the N. regiment, your excellency,' reported the senior officer. 'It was the battalion that made the charge on the machine guns. The Ninth company had actually made the capture. The commander asked the Ninth company to step forward. The company advanced. The captain was the only officer left alive. Out of the entire mass of the battalion stepped forward ten unwounded and three wounded soldiers. The latter had been able to remain in the ranks. One of them was a sub-lieutenant.

"In the hands of one of these heroes was still a rifle the bayonet of which was covered with blood, and with which he had in the sight of his officer killed two Austrians. The corps commander, not without a shudder, thanked the company, and on the strength of the power conferred on him by the commander-in-chief, promised them the St. George's Cross as soon as they reached headquarters."

And this is but an incident, a proof of the stories told of the Russian officers' self-denial, of their courage and self-sacrifice, proved, too, by the terrible losses in the officers' ranks. Petrograd is today in mourning over the loss of hundreds of officers of the guards.

HOW MOSCOW TREATS HER WOUNDED

(Special Dispatch.)

Moscow, Nov. 21, 1914.—There is no such simple and cheerful and openhearted and gossipy city in all Europe as Moscow. It has the qualities that enable it to yield unreservedly to a great impulse whenever the moment calls. Russian downrightness is at its strongest here.

Moscow is the heart of Russia. And the heart of the city has gone out wholly to the army. The battles are fought far away on the frontier, but every day trains loaded with wounded come rolling in from the frontier, and Moscow receives them as a mother receives her children.

In almost every street you see the sign of the "Red Cross, with the inscription "Home for Sick and Wounded Warriors." Under the management of the Moscow City Council there are 11,000 beds for the wounded, of which at the time of writing 10,500 are occupied. About seven thousand convalescent men are lodged in the houses of Moscow citizens. The War Office has provided in the city accommodation for 12,000, and on the contributions of private individuals 10,000 beds are maintained. Half the elementary schools are used as hospitals, and in the remaining half the children are taught in two shifts.

Moscow is the chief distributing centre for the wounded. The less serious cases are dealt with at the hospital near the station, and at the first opportunity are sent on further into the interior. The severely wounded are left in Moscow.

All these figures were interesting enough, but I was anxious to see the work done, and Mr. Chelnokoff, one of the Moscow deputies, kindly put me in charge of a municipal surgeon, Dr. Nikolsky, who took me on a round to various types of hospital. The first we came to was a small house, maintained by the parents of the pupils of a well known private school. A quaint old Moscow house, with endless nooks and crannies and abrupt staircases—the kind of house described in Tolstoy's novels—had been turned into a clean, bright hospital, in which about thirty soldiers were living like princes under the charge of a woman doctor and a large staff of nurses.

A big, light, airy school, which I next saw, was less homelike, but entirely adequate for the care of 300 soldiers who reposed here, some reading, some playing the balalaika.

The most curious hospital I saw was a row of new tramway sheds, where a floor had been laid over the rails and the pits from which the cars are cleaned. In these halls, lighted from the roof, stand two upon line of beds. Everything needful was here—fine bathrooms, perfectly equipped operating and bandaging rooms, kitchens and store rooms. Some of the sheds which lie close to the railway are to be used as temporary resting spots for those of the slightly wounded who are to be sent on to hospitals in the provinces. A branch line brings the trains up to the very door.

Then we visited the Soldatenkov Hospital, one of the most up to date hospitals in Europe, and certainly the best in Moscow. The men who lay here were severely wounded, but they were living in almost palatial splendor.

Moscow knows better than any other city the vast sweep of a great war. Exactly 102 years ago Napoleon rode grimly out of the ruins of the city. The railway by which I travelled from Warsaw to Moscow followed for some distance the route of Napoleon's advance and retreat. At wayside stations, under a leaden sky, and in a bitterly cold wind, stood peasant women in sheepskins bidding farewells to sons and brothers who were going off to the front. Near some of the stations hospitals have been established, and convalescent soldiers were walking about with their arms in slings. While in the morning we crossed the Beresina, near Minsk, a blizzard was raging, and fields and forests were whipped in snow. The Russian winter, that brought ruin to Napoleon, has set in early this fateful year.

BATTLE OF TRENCHES ONE ENDLESS GRAVE

That all is not glory and excitement at the front of a battle line is emphatically illustrated by the correspondence of the Scientific American, an officer of the French army, who draws the following pen picture in the special war issue of November 7:—

"All along the roads and the fields can be seen the vestiges of numerous trenches. We have fought here ardently for a month and slowly, step by step, we have forced the enemy to retire.

"At the actual hour the armies can be classed in two categories—one half is digging trenches in order to fight and the other half is fighting to dig trenches."

Chinese, Humiliated by Japan, Favor the Manchus

Pleas for Resistance to Invasion from Shantung, Unheeded by Government, Which Has No Efficient Army, Cause Tears Among Citizens of Young Republic.

(Special Dispatch.)

PEKING, Nov. 21.

This is a land of lamentations. China sheds tears of bitter regret because she has no efficient army, because she has no money to put what army she has upon a war footing and because the lack in those two directions has contributed to the loss of the province of Shantung.

There is not a Chinese native who does not believe that Shantung has been Japanned even more effectively than Manchuria. To tell the average Chinaman that Japan will adhere to her declarations that she will abide by the terms of the Anglo-Japanese alliance and preserve the integrity of China is to provoke ironical guffaws—and more tears.

"Humiliation!" shrieked an American educated Chinese at me the other day with passion which almost burst him. "Why, humiliation is not the word to describe what is now happening. Those—those"—and he spluttered in his anger for an epithet, "those—adjectival little fellows constitute the last straw which will bring our—our collective hump to the ground."

And then he laughed. "I said a hump! China is nothing but a hump—just a h-u-m-p." He slowly spelled out the word. "If we weren't a hump we would be fighting like Belgium is fighting—and we have not got a fight in us. The dwarfs can come in, they can commandeer anything in sight; they take our food, our carts and horses, our pigs and chickens, our houses—and—our women. They pay for nothing, or if they do pay it is their own price, and that in paper money of their own make. And this great republic, of which we talked so much, stands it. Bah!"

Turn to Manchu Leaders.

He was a very, very much disgusted Chinese, and is now pro-Manchu. Thus are revolutionists against this new regime made. The Chinese are prone to make the immediate responsible for the past and release it of obligations to the future. That is why there is so little real change and why China is where she is to-day. And it is a crisis like this which makes the Chinese rise temporarily in their wrath and curse the past, the present and the future, swear resonant oaths that there will be no repetition of such an outrage—and then go away and do nothing.

Japan has come into Shantung to put the Germans out and ostensibly to act the part of the gracious neighbor and restore to China something that had been filched from her by the War Lord. China refuses to believe any such thing. Chinese newspapers are filled with what purport to be true stories of Japanese outrages. They describe how Chinese who have refused to hand over live stock or food have been maltreated and murdered, how homes have been battered in by Japanese soldiers, the male inmates turned out and the women ravished. There are innumerable stories of a heartbreaking character. The Japanese say they are not true.

Set to Fight Japanese.

The people of Weihsien, a city on the Shantung railway which has been entered by Japanese soldiers, have in their despair petitioned the government, saying: "The misery the people have sustained on account of the presence of the Japanese is past the power of description. Also before the destruction of our native we have already been converted into slaves, bearing all kinds of tyranny."

"Is not China still an independent nation?" they ask. "Has she not a host of heroic men who are willing to sacrifice their all to defend the honor of their country? We people of Weihsien are willing to sacrifice our lives to help them. Let God decide our destiny. Let the high officials betrothed themselves."

And the high officials, knowing that China is financially unfit to fight for her independence, knowing that she must postpone the hour for the reckoning, [illegible] face the trained veterans of Japan, and knowing that it would be folly to encourage Japan to an act of hostility against China at this time of stress in the world, hustle around the diplomatic table and try to save their "face"—and Shantung. It is all they can do, but it recalls a very striking ejaculation made by a prominent foreign official in the Salt department recently, that "the Chinese devote so much attention to the gentle task of saving their face that they, like the ostrich, when it believes it is out of sight, leave the bulk of their anatomy available to be kicked."

Fear Threats of Conquest.

And while the officials in Peking, confronted with their knowledge of the true facts of their position, are struggling to come to an amicable arrangement with the Japanese for the occupation of the railway connecting Tsingtao with Tsinanfu, the people of Weihsien and other people cry out that they are being outraged. "Woe to him," they write to the government, "who should venture to make any protest—as he will be attacked with Japanese bayonets."

They relate a case. "Mr. Wang, a returned student from Japan, tried to reason with the soldiers. They cut his cheeks so that his bones were exposed. The Japanese said, 'You slaves, our great Imperial Japan will, by and by, be your master, therefore all your rivers, mountains and fields are our property; should you dare to speak you will become a corpse the next moment.' Mr. Wang fought with them though he was not armed.

"He was stabbed in the side—and died." This may be exaggerated by the petitioners, but the Chinese believe the story, and the many others like it. But the Japanese deny them.

In the Council of State members recently aroused and branded the Japanese soldiers as despoilers of their country side and outragers of their women; they asked how Great Britain could justify her joint action with such troops while she is fighting in Europe to uphold the integrity of Belgium. And they ask the government what it intends to do about the business. The government does not know. It has lodged protests against the violation of China's neutrality, it has issued orders to the troops to prevent them precipitating armed conflicts, and it is hoping that it will get justice when the war is over. It can do nothing else short of entering upon a war, which would be suicidal.

Contend for Railway.

The chief bone of contention is, of course, the railway line. China asserts that Japan is not entitled to occupy it, because it is a China-German concern. Japan declares that it is a German railway, in which the German government dominated, notwithstanding that there were a few Chinese and several German shareholders. It was used, they point out, to convey German troops into Tsingtao and to transport provisions to the garrison right up to the time of the investment, and, furthermore, they assert that it is part and parcel of the leased territory of Tsingtao and must be occupied by them.

China contests every point, but is willing to make an amicable arrangement under protest for the working of the line by the Japanese until the end of the war. But even in the doing of this the Chinese feel it in their hearts that they are entertaining a Trojan hope when they leave it to the Powers who shall be Powers after the war to see to it that the Japanese shall leave Shantung. The Japanese entrance into this trouble here in Europe has created a problem the settlement of which gives to

THE BOY WHO DREAMED

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1914, by Associated Literary Press.

John Boyce was a village carpenter, and it cannot be said of him that he was a hardworking man. As a matter of fact, he was inclined to be lazy. He had a wife who was regarded as easy going, and the couple did not cut much of a figure in the estimation of the villagers.

The only child of the Boyces when they had been married more than seven years was a son named Bob, six years old. He wasn't dull, and he was not considered unusually smart—just an average boy. If any one had predicted that he was going to turn that county inside out before he reached the age of seven he would have been looked upon as light in the head. The boy started his career at the breakfast table one morning when he said:

"Father, did the lightning ever strike anything in Hilldale?"

"Not that I remember," was the reply.

"But it's going to."

"How do you know?"

"Dreamed it last night."

"What'll it strike?"

"The Methodist meeting house. It's going to strike the spire and bust it all to pieces and then burn the church down."

"Bob, the cat must have been lying on your stomach," said the mother, who was somewhat impressed by his earnestness.

"No, she wasn't."

"It ain't worth minding," said the father as he left the table to fill his pipe.

An hour later he met the pastor of the church on the street and told him what young Bob had dreamed.

"Indigestion," replied the good man.

On the afternoon of the third day thereafter a thunderstorm came. While the clouds were banking up the boy came in from play and said to his mother:

"Now you watch out and you'll see the church struck!" And so it happened.

When it came to be generally known that the boy had dreamed it, it was commented on as a curious thing, but it was the start of his career as a dreamer. It was about two weeks later that he said to his father:

"Father, they are going to steal Mr. Enright's black horse."

"How do you know?"

"I dreamed it last night. The horse was in a lot, and a strange man put a bridle on him and rode him off."

During the day the carpenter saw Mr. Enright and told him of the dream and advised that the horse be locked in the barn o' nights. The owner laughed heartily and replied:

"Don't let Bob dream that my mother-in-law is coming on to live with me."

Two nights later the horse disappeared and was never heard of again.

Young Bob didn't rush the dreaming business. It was four weeks later that he said:

"Father, Mr. Jones, the constable, is going to be hurt."

"How?" was asked.

"I dreamed that a man hurt him."

"What sort of a looking man?"

"His nose was reddish, and he had bushy whiskers and was in his shirt sleeves."

The constable was told, and he smiled and replied:

"Boyce, do you believe in your boy's dreams?"

"Yes, I think so."

"Well, to show you that I don't here's a five dollar bill I'll bet against a fifty cent piece that this dream of his turns out to be nonsense."

Mr. Boyce fished up the coin, and the wager was made. That was in the forenoon. In the afternoon he drove out into the country to serve some papers on a farmer, and while talking with the farmer's wife at the door he was hit on the head with a club by the husband, who sneaked up behind. The assaulter had a reddish nose and bushy whiskers.

The constable was in bed for two months, and the farmer ran away to avoid arrest.

The next dream was that Deacon Goodhue would lose his two cows if he didn't shut them up. When told of it he replied:

"They must take me for an old fool to think I would heed anybody's dream."

"But that Boyce boy's dreams have come true."

Two days later the deacon's cows were run over by a train on the rail road.

This dreaming was uncanny. It was dangerous. It got on the nerves of a whole county.

In old Salem days they would have denounced that boy as a wizard and roasted him at the stake. As it was, they could do nothing but ask each other what should be done.

It was a lightning rod man that solved the problem that puzzled all others.

"I'm not a superstitious man," he said, as all other men say, "but I don't want that boy dreaming that I fell from the roof of a barn and broke my back. Let's buy the family to move a thousand miles away and dream for some other community."

A committee had a talk with Mr Boyce, and he agreed for the sum of $7,000 in cash to take his family and go west as far as the west extended. The money was raised, and the family went, but it has never been known in Hilldale just where they settled or if the boy Bob kept up the dream business.

Flight of the Housefly.

Dr. Hindle of London finds that houseflies tend to travel either against or across the wind. This direction may be directly determined by the action of the wind, or indirectly, owing to the flies being attracted by odors borne by the wind. Fine weather and warmth favor dispersal, and flies travel further in the open country than in towns—probably because the houses offer food and shelter. In thickly housed localities the usual maximum flight is about a quarter of a mile, but in one case a single fly was recovered at a distance of 770 yards—partly over open fenland. When set free in the afternoon flies do not scatter so well as in the morning. Liberated flies often mount almost vertically to a height of forty-five feet or more.

Switzerland's President.

There is one highly civilized country in which not one person in four could give their ruler's name. That country is Switzerland. One reason why the president is almost unknown either by name or by sight is that he is not a public figure at all. He has no privileges as president and no official uniform—not even of the army. Switzerland has a fresh president every year. He has no personal authority as president and is practically only the speaker of Switzerland's unassuming little parliament. It is recorded that at a meeting of Swiss business men no one could recall the name of the president. The waiter was asked. He happened to know, because the president was his uncle.—Philadelphia Times.

MORALS OF NATIONS

"International morality" is a term born of the present war. It is plain it will have to be the corner stone of the world peace. The relations among nations are just as subject to folly and sin as those between individuals.

Somehow a different idea has become supreme—that a nation can do a thing that would be wrong for an individual to do. That cannot be so. A wrong is a wrong high up or low down, and whoever is guilty of it must suffer the wrong, some time, some how. Some of the suffering is going on over in Europe just now.

If the European war impresses the lesson that "international morality" must be the law of this earth, and that it shall be recognized in all national treaties, the war will bring a blessing to all future generations. If it isn't, there is, of course, much sorrow yet in store for mankind.

DEVICES TO GET VODKA.

Means Resorted to by the Russian Peasants.

How the Russian peasants sought to evade the Russian government's stringent regulations forbidding the sale of vodka and other strong alcoholic drinks — regulations adopted to improve public morality during war time—is told in a dispatch to the London Standard from its Petrograd correspondent. Until recently vodka might be obtained in restaurants and cafes of the first class, this being permitted on the theory that the lower classes would not enter such establishments. But the authorities did not count on the determination and ingenuity of the habitual vodka drinker.

Topers of the peasant class arrayed themselves in finery to which they had never been accustomed, and the sartorially fortified went to the best restaurants where their thirst was allayed. There remained no course open to the proprietors but to serve them, and to meet the situation the sale of vodka and drinks of kindred strength has been prohibited absolutely through all Petrograd, though nearly 60 restaurants may still dispense some light wines, champagne and beer. Besides vodka, sherry, port and madeira are banned.

The peasantry, it is related, often gained entrance to restaurants of the first class by the simple expedient of acquiring genteel head-gear. A derby on a man and a hat on a woman instead of the customary peasant shawl was sufficient, so the story goes, to attest to his or her right to demand service. The immense unconsumed supply of vodka and liquors which the restaurants now find on their hands is a problem soon to be referred to the government for solution.

GERMANY TO BLEED

Fights so Well Defensively That's Impossible to Figure How Long She Will Stay in the Game—Wonderful System of Trenches is Secret—Far Superior to French System.

TO DEATH SLOWLY

PARIS, Oct. 30.—(By mail to New York)—Germany will have to "bleed to death" slowly, drop by drop. She fights so well defensively that there is no telling how long she can stay in the game.

Competent, impartial military observers here are coming more and more to the belief that the Germans are prepared to hold on indefinitely and to fall back by inches rather than by miles. The secret lies in the wonderful German system of trenches. Even French military experts now admit France is far behind Germany in the art of concealing and protecting her armies in the field.

German officers have studied every recent war profoundly. No war has been too small for Germany to ignore. She has found something in all of them to put into practical use.

The French army, since 1870, has made use of the three usual means of concealing infantry—sitting, kneeling and standing room trenches. The individual soldier, advancing a few yards at a time under fire, makes use of a shallow, individual trench which he digs himself, throwing the dirt in front and placing his knapsack on top of the dirt. A company of 250 men carries 80 picks and 80 short-handled spades attached to the knapsacks. It takes several minutes to get at these utensils.

This means of entrenchment has been found to be insufficient and dangerous. The practice of placing knapsacks in front of the individual trenches makes it easy for the enemy to count the exact number of men with whom they have to deal.

The German plan is different. The German trenches are made as invisible as possible, and in series. There is an advanced trench two feet wide by five deep. The excavated earth is sprinkled about so that from a distance of 200 yards the trench is invisible. Back of it and connected by zigzag runways is a second trench the same size as the first. The runways permit the Germans to fall back without exposing themselves. These trenches are 100 yards apart. A third trench, 100 yards behind the second, is carefully constructed. In it are the machine guns, under turrets. It is usually covered with green logs placed crosswise. On the logs earth and bushes are placed to conceal the trench.

But the Germans do not stop even here. As soon as this series of three trenches is completed, even though they are under fire at the time, a second series, far more elaborate, is being constructed. This second series of trenches is skilfully and intricately protected not only against infantry attack but from exploding shrapnel as well, so as to be almost equal to permanent outer defences of a fortified place.

It must be said, however, that since the war began the French have profited by viewing the German trenches from which they have driven the enemy. For this reason the war has developed into a series of sieges, or it might be called a war of the trenches: for frequently these entrenched positions are so close to each other that Galicia and Teuton soldiers pass many moments "kidding" each other. "Sniping" has become the pastime of the day.

"'I advise all my young men to marry early. Married people get on better than single ones. The married help each other by lending each other their qualities.

"For example:

"'My wife, before I married her, a young man said at the club, 'went in for slit skirts and tango teas and cigarette-smoking, but to-day she wears Quaker grey and flat-heeled shoes, and her one interest in life is housekeeping.'

"Another man said in an awed tone:

"'It requires a strong will, a mighty strong will to change like that.'

"'Well, I've got a strong will,' said the first man."

Surgeon Seized by Germans Sees Surprising Cruelty in Night Raid at Dixmude

In Flanders, Nov. 10.

During a dark and stormy night a company of Germans succeeded in passing right through Dixmude after killing, amid silence, the mitrailleuse guard at the head of the bridge leading to the town.

The surgeon in charge of the field hospital was awakened by the sound of the Germans marching past.

In the room were two wounded men. He told them to keep quiet as Germans were in the town, and then went to the seaff to give information He volunteered to bring up reserves and set off in the pitch dark with his two wounded on stretchers.

Walking along the dark road unsuspecting, he suddenly ran into the Germans, who were in ditches and along the road. "Halt!" He thought these were the Belgians, and joked, calling out at them for not seeing his Red Cross band, and replied to their challenge innocently, "Medecin Belge."

"Hands up," brutally enforced, brought him to his senses. He and his stretcher bearers were made to descend into the ditch, where they found other prisoners, fifteen in all.

Slay Wounded Men.

The two wounded men were killed —and the surgeon would have been shot also, only the officers interceded for him with the major. They had a wounded German officer with them, and asked if he would tend him. He said "Yes," and tended the wounded German.

The major asked him if he knew anything of the position of the troops, and he replied that he had been in a hospital all day. Finally they all advanced along the road, but it was soon evident that it was no good going on deeper into the Allies' lines. The Germans then boldly placed their wounded in a Belgian ambulance cart and sent it straight back to the town bridge.

One can imagine the surgeon's perplexity. Was the town wholly German Otherwise it seemed too daring an act. The Germans decided to attempt to reach their own lines by a roundabout route. Over ditches, hedges, etc., they went straight ahead Remarkable discipline was manifested. The men waded deep in water without a word.

Over the roughest country went the daring band, prisoners in advance, without any sound save whispered words and stern orders.

The Germans lost their way as dawn was coming up, and then they stumbled on the Belgian trenches. Rifles rang out, a German soldier fell. The surgeon rushed to help him, seeing also a way of escape, but "Vorwarts!" came the order from the major, and the wounded man was left, holding up supplicating hands after his comrades, abandoned!

Surgeon Makes His Escape.

The band had previously passed close behind a Belgian battery, the surgeon whispering to his fellow prisoners not to call attention to it. The Germans might have done much damage, as there were no infantry immediately near. As it turned out, the battery commander had trained two pieces loaded with shrapnel on the band and was about to fire when they passed on.

The Belgians remained in their trenches and the Germans pushed on, falling out of the frying pan into the fire, for the French trenches were before them.

The surgeon, seeing a chance in the disorder, lagged behind, and, coming to a ditch, threw himself into it. One ambulance man and a French prisoner followed his example, and on all fours they crowled fifty yards and then witnessed the final phase of the adventure.

Finding themselves trapped the Germans started to kill their prisoners. Five were mercilessly shot, including a French marine officer and interpreter, who had been sent to them the previous day with a flag of truce to discuss some question. Another prisoner had been killed previously, and was found later, his legs bound with wire, and ten bullets in his breast.

The brutal major met his fate. A prisoner rushed toward the French, caught up a wounded man's rifle and charged back toward the Germans. He was within a yard of the major, bayonet ready to strike, when the latter saw him and turned, his sword still raised in command. The bayonet drove home; a gurgling shout of "Vorwarts!" came from the stricken officer, and all his brutalities had been paid for.

Death Meted to Four.

The French took the rest of the company prisoners, and wanted to shoot them all. They would have been justified in doing so, but only the four were shot who had been marked out as the most brutal.

They met their fate in a very different manner from the major. One, a trumpeter, an elderly man, was frankly half mad with terror. He held out supplicating arms and screamed out about his family, his wife and children. His cries for mercy and shrieks of appeal were cut short by the sound of the volley from the firing party, obedient to to fall of the officer's sword, and the unfortunate wretch just shuddered into a mondescript heap at the foot of the wall.

Another met death proudly, his head erect, his eye defiant. He also shuddered down the wall in death. A third sprang to meet his fate with a cry of "Hoch!" for his Kaiser.

The fourth man had received every one of the bullets in the neck, showing excellent marksmanship. All the three refused to be blindfolded, and so in the morning glow they passed.

The Red Cross cart with the wounded German, which had attempted to pass back through the town and over the bridge, was held up. "Halte la!" The guttural reply came: "Rouge Croix!" Down they all were brought and disarmed. The surgeon was able to put in a kindly word for those who had been good to him.

BUTTER FROM SIBERIA

Now Being Shipped to England Through Panama Canal.

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—Siberian butter is now being shipped to England through the Panama Canal, it was stated among butter dealers here today.

Siberia is one of the world's greatest butter producers, and has marketed the product largely in England and Germany. The German market is now closed to them, and the usual water routes to England also are closed. In consequence it is said that the Siberians are shipping their butter overland to Port Arthur, Manchuria and across the Pacific to the canal.

RAILWAY NOTES

A LUCKY FIND FOR THE C.P.R.

A discovery which may mean much to the Province of Ontario has been made at Caledonia Springs, namely that the waters of one of the four springs is strongly radio-active. A recent visitor who had hitherto gone for his cure to the Austrian resort at Badgastein was prevented this year by the war and tried the Canadian Spring. He was struck by the similarity of the waters which on test was found to be due to the presence of radium. The last official analysis was made in 1908 before the ramifications of radium were fully recognized, but Professor Ruttan of McGill has been commissioned to make a new complete analysis. The value of a genuine radium spring in Europe is calculated to average from two to three million dollars, owing to the number of invalids who are attracted to such a spring.

Mixed farming, according to advices received by the Canadian Pacific Railway, is now more than a fad—it is really spelling more dollars, greater success and certainty in the future and fixing the people into the soil in a way that the single crop will never do. The farmers are now alive to the importance of mixed farming, alike for profit and the benefit of the country generally. Men who came to the country and merely wanted to stay for a year or two, cared only for the abundance of wheat they could grow. They impoverished the land, but made money. Then they cleared off, many of them. Meantime the railway company went up and down the land preaching the gospel of mixed farming. At first it was not listened to; to-day mixed farming is becoming a common practice, with capital results to everybody, according to the advices indicated. This extension of mixed farming is having its economic showing in the west in the variety of production for the home market. This market is steadily extending by the introduction of manufactures. These are nascent, for the most part, but hopeful. They provide employment on the one hand, while on the other the mixed farming gives to the industrial population the supplies which otherwise would have to be found elsewhere. There is thus an equipoise set up between the two which is mutually beneficial. Most of the cities and towns in the west have their own manufactures, while outside these towns and cities one can find the mixed farm raising stock and vegetables for the industrial workers.

The record of improvements effected on the Dominion Atlantic Railway, which the Canadian Pacific Railway leased in 1911 for 99 years shows that new wharves have been built; 45 miles of new track have been ballasted; 80 miles of new 85 pound rails have been laid down; 120 cattle guards have been filled and replaced by surface guards, while dozens of bridges have been either improved or rebuilt. In round figures, 6,000 feet of wooden bridges have been replaced, or will be replaced very shortly, by steel bridges, concrete arches, and rail top culverts. New brick stations have been built; a general renovation has taken place, costing many thousands of dollars. The new stations include those of Wolfville and Annapolis Royal, Mosherville, Patterson and Iberville. During the past two years 26 stations have been repaired and painted, and platforms have been erected. A new line from Centreville to Weston, 14 miles in extent, has been built in the most substantial manner. Both permanent work and the lighter things which needed attention have been carried out; and to-day the old Dominion Atlantic looks spick and span—looks as if it had taken on a new lease of life.

CALCIUM CHLORIDE PREVENTS FREEZING.

"When the motor refuses to start these cold mornings, the trouble can be traced usually to the carburetor," states E. W. Headington. More gasoline is required in cold weather than in warm weather and the adjustment should be made accordingly. The richer the mixture of gas going into the cylinders the more heat will be generated.

"The outside air is much colder, and consequently the heat will radiate much faster from the cylinders than in warm weather. To get the same results from the motor, this extra loss of heat must be made up by supplying an extra amount of fuel. The cooling system should also receive careful attention to prevent any damage arising from freezing. The radiator cells have very thin walls for rapid cooling, and the lightest freeze is liable to develop leaks. The system should be cleaned out with a solution of ordinary washing soda and water, and then an anti-freezing solution of some sort used.

"The Haynes Automobile Company has found the solution of calcium chloride in water to be very satisfactory in all conditions. Alcohol is expensive and requires frequent renewal. Use chemically pure calcium chloride. The commercial form usually contains acid that is injurious to the metal parts. Get a strip of blue litmus paper from the drug store, and if it turns pink in the calcium chloride solution put in ammonia or soda ash until it remains blue.

"The amount of calcium choride to use may be found from the following table:

2	18.0 above zero
3	1.5 above zero
4	17.0 below zero
5	39.0 below zero

Nervous Prostration and Heart Troubles.

Nervous Prostration, or Neurasthenia, is one of the worst forms of nerve trouble and brings about a general weakness of the whole nervous system.

The symptoms presenting themselves are headache, a feeling of depression, disturbed and restless, unfreshing sleep, often troubled with dreams, fright when in crowded places, dread of being alone, horror of society, fright at travelling, muscular weakness, sense of fatigue upon effort, etc.

When the nerves become affected in this way the heart generally becomes affected too.

All are curable if taken in time.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are just what you require at this time. They strengthen the nerves and build up the whole system.

Mrs. John Hewson, Caledonia, Ont., writes: "I feel it my duty to let you know the great benefit your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills did for me. I suffered for four years with heart trouble and nervous prostration. I was so bad I could not go up stairs without sitting down at the top before I could go to my room. I could not sleep nor could I lie on my left side, for it would seem as if my heart would stop. I thought my time had come. I was doctoring with the doctor, but didn't get any benefit. I took eight boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and am enjoying good health."

Price, 50 cents per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

COMPARATIVE CALM ON BATTLE FRONT

DIXMUDE REPORTED RE-CAPTURED BY ALLIES

NO IMPORTANT DEVELOPMENTS ON WESTERN BATTLE LINE YESTERDAY

Cannonading in the North Decreased in Violence While There Were No Infantry Attacks on the Allied Lines Which at Certain Sections Were Able to Advance---Complete Calm in Argonne and Woevre Districts.

GERMAN ATTACK ON MISSY FAILS

Special Cable:

PARIS, November 26. — Following is the 3 p.m. communique in full:

"No important developments marked the day of November 25th. In the north the cannonading diminished in intensity and no infantry attack was directed against our lines, which made slight advances at certain points.

"In the region of Arras there was a continuation of the bombardment on the town and its environments.

"On the Aisne the enemy endeavoured to deliver an attack on the village of Missy. The movement resulted in a complete failure, with considerable losses to the Germans.

"We have made some progress in the region to the west of Souain.

"In the Argonne, in the Woevre district, in Lorraine and in the Vosges, there is almost a complete calm along the entire front.

"There has been a heavy fall of snow, particularly in the higher portions of the Vosges Mountains."

LONDON, November 26.—The town of Dixmude has once more been captured by the allies, according to a despatch to the Daily Mail from Dunkirk, which declares the information was learned from a trustworthy source. To the French marines goes the honour of driving the Germans from this position, which has been the centre of violent attacks for weeks. It is stated that three times the Germans were driven from their trenches before the marines were finally able to hold them. Desperate fighting marked the encounter as the Germans returned twice and retook the trenches. The assault of the marines was made on Tuesday night; on Wednesday morning they occupied the town, and set up machine guns to hold their position. The losses of the marines are placed at 300 in dead and wounded.

BERLIN, November 26. — The Germans lost 170 killed, 600 wounded during the siege of Tsing-Tau by theAnglo-Japanese forces. An official statement today covering these operations stated that 4,250 were made prisoners by the Japanese; this number includes the 60 wounded who are being cared for in Japan. The statement says that they are well treated.

BERLIN, via wireless to London, November 26.—Bad weather is interfering with the operations of the Turkish troops, official reports from Constantinople state to-day. "The Russians continue to hold the frontier positions, but our troops advancing in the Tschorok district, have again been victorious," the statement declares.

A NEW VESPER HYMN USED IN ENGLAND

The following vesper hymn is being extensively used in England after the Benediction at evening services:

"Be with all the dear ones
Whom we miss to-night,
In the hours of danger
Keep them calm and bright,
From the camp and trenches,
From the battle plain,
From the mine-sown ocean,
Bring them back again."

PRE-DREADNOUGHT WARSHIP BULWARK IS BLOWN UP

British Battleship Destroyed by Explosion in Her Magazine and Nearly all the Crew Were Drowned

ONLY TWELVE SAVED

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Eng., Nov. 26.—IT IS OFFICIALLY ADMITTED THAT THE BRITISH BATTLESHIP BULWARK HAS BEEN SUNK OFF SHEERNESS, ENGLAND, AND ONLY TWELVE SAVED OUT OF A CREW OF ABOUT EIGHT HUNDRED.

According to the explanations given by Winston Churchill in the Commons this afternoon, the Bulwark was blown up as a result of an explosion in her magazine. The accident took place in the River Medway, one of the estuaries of the Thames river, about thirty-six miles from London.

The Bulwark was in the Formidable class, built in 1902. She was 451 feet long, and her armament included four twelve-inch, twelve six-inch, and many other guns.

It is reported here that two German submarines have been hemmed in, in Sheerness basin close to where the Bulwark was blown up. The Bulwark was being equipped for war service when she was blown up.

According to the navy list Captain Guy Schlater was in command of H. M. S. Bulwark. In London to-day there are many rumours concerning German spies on British warships. To further questioning to-day in the Commons, Churchill said his best information was that an internal magazine had caused the disaster.

All London was shaken by the report that German submarines had been found near the Bulwark. Sheerness is but 35 miles from London and directly down the Thames.

Churchill announced that the Bulwark was blown up at 7:50 this morning. Vice-Admirals and Rear-Admirals were present at the time he said and reported that they were convinced the disaster was due to an internal explosion. "They reported," said Churchill, "that the explosion rent the ship asunder. There was apparently no upheaval of water. When the smoke cleared away the Bulwark had entirely disappeared."

A special inquiry has been ordered to be instituted to-morrow.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The German submarine terror was upon London this afternoon. Between 700 and 800 men were lost in the destruction of the Bulwark. The entire complement was on board when a terrific explosion rent the Bulwark from bow to stern. The band was on deck playing when the detonation split the heavens, sending up a vast column of smoke and blowing men and parts of the ship high in the air. When the smoke cleared away the Bulwark had entirely disappeared beneath the waters. It was Churchill who was forced to announce that in the appalling disaster only twelve men out of seven or eight hundred on board the ship were saved, although they were in their home water when stricken. "The loss of the ship doesn't sensibly effect our military position," said the First Lord, "but I regret that only twelve men were saved. I think the members of the House would wish me to express in their behalf the deepest sympathy and sorrow with which the news was heard in the House, and the great sympathy that is felt for those who lost relatives and friends." These remarks of Churchill were received with subdued cheering.

BRYAN IS RETICENT

United States Secretary of State Refuses to Discuss the Protests of European Powers

NEUTRALITY QUESTION

Examiner Special:

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Secretary of State Bryan, the only high official on duty here, refused point blank early to-day to discuss the protests of the European allies to this government against alleged breaches of neutrality by Colombia and Ecuador. Although Charles Roberts, the under colonial secretary in the House of Commons yesterday publicly announced that these protests have been filed, the secretary of state declined to discuss in any way the situation at this time. It is understood, however, that he takes the position that inasmuch as Colombia has already emphatically disavowed the charged that German manned wireless stations were permitted to operate unscrutinized by the government, this government is compelled to accept her word unquestioned. In the case of Ecuador the charge was that it had permitted certain islands owned by it to be used as German naval bases. This also has been denied by the legation here. The allied protests were filed more than ten days ago.

The attitude of the United States is that it has no right to interfere with the internal affairs of other nations. It will, of course, enforce to the letter the Monroe Doctrine, but that simply provides for the prevention of European territorial acquisition on this hemisphere.

Notwithstanding this attitude, however, should Britain, France or Russia undertake hostile acts against any South American nation, or should the Chilean charge against Germany be proved, it is likely this government would at least take a diplomatic hand in the game.

A very enthusiastic meeting of the Business Girls of Peterborough was held on Wednesday evening, at the rooms of the Peterborough Typewriter Agency.

This meeting was called for the purpose of organizing a Club among the girls in the various offices in this City, and judging from the number of those present there will be no difficulty in carrying out this scheme.

The immediate work on hand is to provide small Christmas presents for the families of those who are at present out of work.

The next meeting will be held at the Bank of Montreal on Wednesday evening, at half past seven, and it is hoped that all the Business Girls will endeavour to be present.

PATRIOTIC FUND CAMPAIGN RECEIVES INITIAL IMPULSE

Movement to Raise $20,000 Inaugurated Under Auspicious Circumstances—Peterboro's Duty to the Defenders of the Empire

AN INSPIRING ADDRESS

The first shot in Peterborough's campaign to raise $20,000 for patriotic purposes, was fired last evening in the presence of a large and enthusiastic gathering of people. Mr. G. A. Warburton of Toronto, was the man behind the gun. His fusilade of Canadian optimism was only exceeded in effect by his intensive and effective attempt to arouse the meeting to a sense of practical patriotism. The rounds of applause that punctuated Mr. Warburton's remarks testified to the range finding prowess of the speaker. His aim was deadly and the conclusion of the meeting found the audience pledged to inaugurate a short decisive money raising campaign, and Mr. Warburton on his way downstairs in charge of a committee of five that were selected to give the campaign its initial impulse.

His Worship Mayor Buller who presided, called upon Mr. F. D. Kerr to outline for Mr. Warburton's benefit the plans that have been recommended by the local Patriotic Association. These in brief, are to raise the sum of twenty thousand dollars irrespective of the amount already subscribed. Two thousand dollars of this amount to be forwarded to the Canadian Patriotic Fund at Ottawa and the amount remaining to be devoted to the needs of those at home.

Mr. Warburton's Remarks.

"It has been one of the greatest joys of my life to have do with this fund," said Mr. J. A. Warburton on rising to speak. "The Toronto fund was one of the first that was created. It was commenced before the national fund was started. We were persuaded that the people of Toronto did have some money in spite of the war. We organized and began the wor of raising funds for the Toronto Patriotic Association. We got a Citizens' committee and twenty-five teams of ten men each. Our objective was five hundred thousand dollars. Each man for the space of four days pledged himself to give his entire time. He was not to pay any attention to his business or his family. We selected a good Publicity committee and also commandeered all the automobiles that we could lay our hands on. We had drums, fifes, bagpipes and all the music that was going. We loaded them into automobiles and sent them around the city. Our slogan was: "Patriotic Relief Fund." Give! Give! Give! We collected about ninety thousand dollars on the first day. The second day we had so much money that if we permitted the team captains to turn in the receipts, there would be no excuse for working the next two days. I begged of them to hold back and not turn in any more than one hundred thousand dollars. Despite all we could do, one hundred and thirty thousand dollars was turned in. We then increased our objective. We finished up the campaign with over one million dollars. They said that they money is still pouring in. In Montreal they beat us out and raised over two million dolalrs. They said that they would never have raised that amount if we had not set them the example."

In Other Cities.

"We went to Hamilton with the intention of starting a campaign for one hundred and fifty thousand dollars. Then we went to London for the purpose of putting on a campaign for one hundred thousand dollars. Now London has a faculty for keeping its enthusiasm under control. They started off with a big noise, but had no organization. They finished up in London with over one hundred and thirty thousand dollars. Hamilton raised two hundred thousand dollars and have added more since. Then we went to Berlin and were introduced to a Patriotic meeting, where a lot of women were running the show. That made me scared. I then went to Kingston which is another town that can be very quiet on occasions. They had decided to raise thirty thousand dollars. I said that is not a hard task. We concluded the campaign with fifty thousand dollars to the good.

Our next town was Ottawa. In Ottawa there are a lot of people who are scared to cross the road unless the Duke is around to nod at them. They look like undertakers at a pauper's funeral. They had not out to raise a

A LOCAL YOUNG MAN FINED ON ASSAULT CHARGE

Magistrate Outlines Duty of Prospective Brother-in-law—Young Man Assaulted Sister's Fiance

$500 TO KEEP THE PEACE

Growing out of a brother's objection to a young man who was paying attention to his sister, a charge of assault was heard in Police Court this morning. In it the brother was charged with assaulting the informant, who was engaged to the young lady in question.

In the witness box the informant said that he was engaged to marry this particular young lady. He was a commercial traveller, and as he was about to leave town that night on the midnight train he took the liberty of staying with the young lady till 11:15 o'clock. At that hour the young lady's brother came in. What the brother said to the young man is not printable, but what he did was first to choke him, and then kick him twice, once in the back and once in the hip. Then when the informant went to get his coat (and while his back was turned toward his assailant) he caught him by the neck and tried to choke him again; all the time using language one sample of which was quite sufficient for the Magistrate. At this point the sister intervened and effected a rescue. Fiancee then asked the young lady to bring his hat and coat, and when she left the hall to do so the brother took his opportunity of launching a kick at the witness who "avoided it by moving quickly to the front steps." The witness said that he hoped to marry the young lady "when the family enmity against him had assuaged sufficiently to permit it." In the meantime it was necessary for him to put off the happy day "until he could discover whether the feeling against him minimized or intensified." From the evidence it would seem that he had discovered that the feeling had intensified.

The young lady corroborated her fiancee's evidence and the young man was fined $10 and costs, and bound over to keep the peace, being forced to give a bond for $500. The Magistrate gave the youthful offender a very direct talking to, suggesting that his duty as a prospective brother-in-law and host to the visiting young man was not to maintain a feeling of enmity towards him, but to acept him and welcome him into the family. His conduct had been unmanly and unwise. The defendant was given a chance to shake hands with his brother-in-law-to-be, but refused absolutely to do more than scrutinize with a very threatening aspect, the extended hand of the other young man. Hence the fine and the bond for $500 to keep the peace.

INDIAN HERO WILL GET THE VICTORIA CROSS

Sole Survivor of Party of Fifteen Killed Ten Germans Before He Was Brought Down By a Bullet

HAS FIVE WOUNDS

Examiner Special:

LONDON, Nov. 26.—A Times' Boulogne despatch says: "Havildar Ganna Sing, of the Fifty-seventh Rifles, is the first Indian to be recommended for the Victoria Cross. He has arrived aboard an hospital ship, a bundle of splints and bandages, but very cheerful and full of heart. He has five bullet wounds. Havildar, with fifteen men of his regiment, was attacked in a trench before dawn. The Germans were stopped for some seconds by barbed wire entanglements and lost heavily before they broke through. In the hand-to-hand struggles that ensued, Havildar shot the German officer whose bullet grazed his head, and then took the German's sword and killed ten more before he was brought down by a bullet in the foot. "Otherwise," he said, "I should have killed more." Ganna Sing was the sole survivor of his party."

CORNER THE LIAR.

It should be easy to identify the imaginative individual who is guilty of sending out sensational and senseless reports of happenings from Vancouver, B.C. Before the news of the late naval battle, we have had several such reports from time to time that have been shown to be entirely unfounded. It is a very important matter that the people should not be misled by false reports. We are inclined to and, in fact, must, gauge our attitude to, and activities in relation to, the interest of Canada and the Empire in this war, by the knowledge of conditions that comes to us. If the information coincides with the actual facts our attitude and activities will take the right direction, otherwise they will not do so. The despatching telegraph office at Vancouver of such bogus reports, should be able to reveal the name of the rascal responsible. No doubt the military authorities would absolve the man in charge from the crime of revealing the necessary secrets of a telegraph office. We want our news to be true, whether they are good or bad. We don't want a counterpart of the Sayville wireless station under German prompting to be in operation in a Canadian city. Our arch enemy in this war has done so much and such systematically splendid lying, that we should find successful competition hopeless.

DRASTIC BUT WISE.

The action of King George adds another morsel to the British constitution, in the form of a new precedent, piled upon those upon which the British constitution is built. He has excused two Privy councillors, Sir Ernest Cassel and Sir Edward Speyer, names of prominence and influence in the financial world, from attendance at meetings of the Privy Council on account of their German birth, though they are British subjects. This is a mild form of dismissal; and even at that it may seem drastic in character and savour of injustice toward two men of eminence and so far as known, of irreproachable record of loyalty and good citizenship. There may easily be an injustice done, but the King or his advisers are not to blame. The dismissal of these Privy councillors, is a necessary precautionary measure justified in the interest of the nation. If there is any such thing as justifiable injustice, it obtains in a case like this. The King is not ot blame for the injustice done. That is to be charged against the Kaiser and the German war clique. They have made the name of Germany stink in the nostrils of honest men. By their breach of treaty; by their disregard of all the obligations of morality and honour, by their unconquerable crookedness in diplomacy and war waging and by their complicated wide-spread, and hellishly ingenious and complete system of spying, they have brought into condemnation millions of undeserving Germans. They have made apply the Virgilian saying —Ex uno disce omnes. They constitute the standard by which all Germans, worthy and unworthy, are measured. Unworthy of trust themselves, and standing as the representatives of the German people in this war, the latter are necessarily involved in the general condemnation of German methods, German unfaith and unworthiness of trust.

THE GUILD OF KNITTERS.

The war not only revives and intensifies old passions of bad import, but it revives old virtues and functions of usefulness. It is related that one aged Western Ontario woman, who has lost her sense of sight has found her "second sight" in her fingers and is knitting things for the soldiers. All over the land there are noble women plying the knitting needles and weaving their warmth of womanhood into garments and socks for the defenders of their homes and liberties. Woman's—divine work is never done — still find more work to do. This new industry of women, knitting, brings back the golden age of womanhood, when useful if homely work, made them worth cherishing and defending. It brings back the days of the distaff and loom, the days when every woman spun and wove her own clothing and household linen; the days before social frivolity and passion for dress, the love and pursuit of pleasure absorbs the activities of women and makes women a burden and a drag, instead of a helpmate. The new activities open to and accepted by thousands of noble women in Canada, are not only works of beneficence and mercy, but in part a movement towards the realization of the spirit of Milton's plaudit—

> For nothing lovelier can be found
> In woman than to study household good.

In another part of this issue is published a letter, describing the needs of the soldier boys at the front, that can me met by the knitting activities of the women of Peterborough. As the housewife sits in the home circle in these long evenings, she can be knitting while somebody reads the war-news, or while the husband tells of the success he and others have made in realising the slogan—

$20,000—OR MORE—FOR THE PATRIOTIC FUND.

THE DAY OF THE "BANTAM."

Great Britain now has a bantam battalion. Men below the standard of height inherited by all armies from the days of the halberd and the battle axe have been accepted by the recruiting officers and will take their place in the lines of the Allies on the Continent.

Other things being equal, do not modern war methods offer an advantage to the smaller warrior over his larger brother? He can shoot just as straight, his shot carry just as far, the experience of France and Japan shows he can cover ground just as quickly, and he is not so good a target for the enemy. In the bayonet charges in Northern France and in Belgium the physically smaller French soldiers have proved more effective than the larger Germans.

Britain's bantam battalion may prove itself as efficient as the battalions of Britain's "bantam" ally of the Far East. There is no reason why it should not.—New York Herald.

WAR!

"War!" is the title of the latest illustrated booklet issued by Dr. Barnardo's Homes. It tells of a war declared, not last August but half a century ago; not by His Majesty's Government, but by one man; not against the overbearing arrogance and ambition of an unscrupulous militarism, but against an equally subtle and deadly foe, the shadowy and innumerable armies of destitute childhood; against vice, evil influence, hereditary tendencies, uncleanness, desolation. For forty-eight years that war has been waged by Dr. Barnardo and his followers. Already 60,867 children have come under their protecting care from all over England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales, and all parts of the British Empire. Tens of thousands of these children have been saved from destruction and transformed into worthy citizens of the Empire!

Perhaps it is true to say that not for many centuries has so strong a spirit of patriotism pervaded our land. Not one of us, even the most apathetic, but feels his heart beat quicker at the ring of the National Anthem, the proud swirl of the National flag. Aye, and there are many of us who have watched the marching soldiers and turned away with an ache in our throat, and in our eyes the sting of long-forgotten tears. And there is not one of us, man or woman, who is not asking: "What can I do?" We cannot all serve in the fighting-line; but we can all do something for the Country and Empire; and a matter of supreme importance is the care of the Nation's children. We owe one paramount debt to those brave men who are giving their lives for our Country. Not one of their children must be allowed to suffer. Upon the Nation and Empire devolves the duty of their guardianship. The execution of that duty is surely the very least we can do.

Dr. Barnardo's Homes are labouring in the service of Orphan and Destitute Children. The work is above all things national and patriotic. Its motto is "For God and Country." The Homes gather the helpless and neglected little ones, nurture and train them, and give back in due time young men and young women of whom the Nation may be justly proud. The Homes have emigrated 26,685 boys and girls to Canada, and 503 to Australia, New Zealand and South Africa. Barnardo boys have answered well to the call of King and Country. 702 are known to be in the Army and Navy. 300 are constantly in training at their Naval School. Barnardo boys have been in most of the Naval engagements. We feel sure that the British public would wish the Charter "No Destitute Child ever refused Admission" to be maintained. Ten shillings maintains the whole of this work in all its efficiency for one minute. Give yourself the joy of feeling that for at least one minute you are bearing upon yourself the total burden of this National work. Gifts of all kinds, money, clothing, blankets, etc., will be welcomed by the Honorary Director, Mr. William Baker, M.A., LL.B., at Headquarters, 18 to 26, Stepney Causeway, London, E., England.

REFUGEES FLEE EAST PRUSSIA

120,000 Go and Hundreds Die En Route from Cold and Hunger.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 25. — More than 100,0000 refugees have fled from East Prussia before the Russian advance, according to private advices received here from Berlin.

Because the trains are carrying fresh German troops to that region the refugees have been unable to travel westward rapidly and hundreds have died en route from cold and hunger.

The German Professions Versus German Practices

"You have circulated a great deal of printed matter explaining your views on the war in all its phases. You seem particularly anxious to impress it upon us that Germany is strong in resources, that her business is going forward, that her banks have ample funds, that food and all other supplies are on hand there in great abundance. These things being so, why is Germany robbing Belgium? This little country has been stamped flat by the Kaiser's troops. Trade and industry of all sorts are utterly at an end, the whole apparatus of commerce by which food and other necessities are distributed is broken up. And yet the all-powerful German army levies on these miserable and helpless victims for money, clothing, provisions—some $500,000 per week is taken from Brussels alone. Imagine an armed man standing over a terrorized group of cripples, old folks and children, and taking from them what little they have against the winter, and taking it for his own use. That is what is going on in Belgium, and it is not war.

"Your Kaiser has a thousand times proclaimed himself as one of those to whom, in Ruskin's order to be hear and obeyed at their peril. He preaches sermons and has much to say of faith and religion. And yet it is because of him that these haggard fugitives flee in pain, that nameless babies are born and die with their mothers by the side of the road. He has plunged all these people into a living hell. And then, instead of succoring them, the orders go out which mean that their want is to be made more cruel, their despair more hopeless. Is there no court chaplain to tell him what has been foretold for those who oppress the fatherless and afflicted? This is one verse: 'For the Lord will plead their cause, and spoil the soul of them that spoil them.'

"It matters not if your country is strong, indeed, at home. In Belgium your Germany is already lost."

Swashbuckles In U. S.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26—"Swashbuckling jingoes" was the term Secretary of the Navy Daniels yesterday contemptuously hurled at American citizens who preach militarism. "It is a matter which makes the American people thankful that we have at the helm at this time of world crisis a man who has a full realization of the meaning of war, who, as he said, has 'a passion for peace'."

Natives Desert Turkey.

ROME, Nov. 26. — A despatch to the Messagero from Athens states that Chief Senussi has asserted that 10,000 troops on the Egyptian frontier have now returned suddenly to Cyrenaica, renouncing all hostility towards the British.

Turkey has been accused of fostering the revolt in Cyrenaica against the British and invade Egypt from the west.

NOW IT'S ZAPATA!

He Is the Lord of Mexico City—Villa on the Way There.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26. — The forces of Gen. Zapata occupied Mexico City Tuesday night and are maintaining order, according to official telegrams from Mexico City, dated yesterday, and received here late last night.

Mr. Stillman, U. S. consul, reported that the Zapata forces, after sharp fighting in the outskirts of the Mexican capital Tuesday afternoon, in which sixty soldiers were reported killed, entered just as the forces of Gen. Blanco evacuated the city. There was some disorder and looting in the brief interval between the evacuation by Blanco and the arrival of the Zapata troops, but the city was quiet immediately afterwards. The convention forces, under Gen. Villa, according to Mr. Stillman, were expected late yesterday.

The Brasilian Minister said he had received full assurances from the Zapatistas that they would maintain order. The Villa forces are expected to arrive at any moment.

Austrian Commandant Hanged.

LEMBERG, Galicia, Nov. 26.—(Via London.)—The sound of firing which was said to be the result of a clash between the Germans and Austrians composing the garrison of Przemysl, was reported by refugees arriving here yesterday from the vicinity of the Austrian fortress.

It was further reported that the Germans had hanged the commandant of the fortress because he proposed to surrender the citadel. The Austrians are said to have opposed the measures put into effect by the Germans, which resulted in a pitched battle in the streets.

Keep Suez Canal Open.

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—(By wireless)—The Turkish Government has announced that the Suez Canal will be kept open for traffic, according to a semi-official despatch from Rome.

This is probably a reply to a reported protest from Italy that Turkey would be held fully responsible if operations against Egypt caused the closing of the canal. It is hard to see how Turkey is able to give the assurance above.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

McLEAN OF SHEFFIELD SCORES ELEVEN GOALS

No English League Club Has Gained Both Points in Every Home Match This Season—Sixteen Croydon Common Players Have Joined the Colours—A War Tax Proposed For Ununiformed Spectators.

With eleven goals in nine games, McLean, of Sheffield Wednesday, bids fair to have a fat time this season.

With the exception of Halley, all the Burnley players have agreed to accept reduced wages. Such is the effect of the war on soccer.

Sheffield defeated Glasgow by two goals to one at Hillsborough, in the annual inter-city game. Morton of Queen's Park, was the outstanding man of the game and let Utley a fine dance.

Good outside rights are again more plentiful in first-class football than any other type of forward.

No English League club has gained both points in every home match this season.

With the improved stand accommodation, Tynecastle can now house a crowd of 70,000. But where is the crowd?

Aberdeen have only two wins over Falkirk at Brockville in nine years.

Lyall, Bell and McStay have played in every game so far for Ayr United.

De Meyer, a Belgian international footballer, is among a party of refugees now residing at Nottingham.

Miller, Nichol, Banks and McDougal have been tried at centre forward by Liverpool this season. A capable successor to Parkinson is hard to find.

Sixteen Croydon Common players have joined the colours. This is a record for a professional club.

Dr. J. M. Young of Partick Thistle, has commenced practice at Falkirk.

Rumour has it that Bradford are trying to secure the transfer of Sandy Higgins from Newcastle. 'Tis said the price is £65 high.

Edinburgh Hibernians have the doubtful record of losing goals in five matches this season. Something is surely wrong at Easter Road.

Interclub football matches have been resumed in Paris, according to authentic reports.

Clapton have only called upon twelve players in their games to date this season.

Fancy Buckley, Shepherd and Weddell in Bradford City's reserve team.

"Tiny" Fayers is often dubbed "The Second Wedlock" and quite right too.

Sunderland will be without the services of George Holley, until after Christmas at any rate.

A War Tax.

Football and the war still animate the English press and the following is the latest despatch:

Very contradictory statements are being made regarding the recruiting appeals. At present strong comment is being uttered by the leading dailies upon the apathy shown on Saturday by football spectators to the recruiting speeches delivered by officers on the fields before big crowds attending the matches. One eminent lawyer even suggests the prohibition of football, on the same ground on which betting and other banned sporting practices are forbidden, namely, the demoralization of manhood. Another suggestion made is that the Commons put a war tax upon all men not in uniform attending matches.

On the other hand, it is learned that the responses to a recruiting circular issued to all households in certain districts over the signature of Premier Asquith and Mr. Bonar Law, leader of the Opposition, are very gratifying. The answers to the circulars show that thousands of young men express their willingness to be enrolled if called upon. Moreover, many older men exhibit the same eagerness, one schedule being filled up by a man of 70.

In Lancashire, where early factory employment tends to produce short stature, the Manchester branch of the National Service League has drawn attention to the large numbers of able-bodied men fit for service who are ruled out even by the lower standard of height recently adopted. The league has registered 500 bantams, as they are styled, who are willing to serve if the regulations are relaxed on this point."

Part of The Winnings For The Fund

Mr. F. J. Daly of Peterborough has made a generous offer in regard to the Peterborough Patriotic Fund. Every race Mr. Daly wins this winter on the ice track with his newly purchased horse, "Grand Opera," he will denote a portion of the winnings to the fund. Horsemen who know what "Grand Opera" can do, will realize the handsome nature of Mr. Daly's offer.

More V. C.'s Awarded.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—Eight Victoria Crosses have been awarded for conspicuous service in battles in France. Five of these were given to privates and three to officers. Three men won their decorations at the battle of Le Cateau, one at Mons and the others in later battles.

Altogether 18 Victoria Crosses, the most coveted of all British decorations for valor, have been awarded since the commencement of the war.

Austrian Archduke Gets One, Too.

BERLIN, Nov. 26. — (Via The Hague to London.) — Emperor William has conferred the Iron Cross of the first and second class on Archduke Charles Francis of Austria, commander-in-chief of the Austrian army, and heir-apparent to the Austro-Hungarian throne, for the part he has taken in the military operations.

PASSPORT REFORM STIRS AMERICANS ABROAD AND DEALS HARD BLOW TO SPIES

LONDON, Nov. 26: — The United States government's sweeping new order requiring every American travelling in Europe to go through a third degree cross-examination before an American diplomatic or consular officer before the journey came as a bolt from the blue sky to-day. It caused widespread comment and some indignation, though it recognized that the measure is necessary to checkmate German spies impersonating bona fide American travellers.

There is no criticism of the government for this drastic order, which it is recognized is probably to comply with Sir Edward Grey's communication concerning German secret agents posing as American citizens. But many Americans want to know who is responsible for the apparent wholesale issuance of fraudulent American passports to Germans. The result is that now an American passport is not worth the paper it is written on unless backed up by a photograph of the bearer, a description of where he is going, what he is going for, how long he is going to stay and so forth.

American embassies in European capitals to-day are circulating broadcast warnings to all Americans to consult the nearest diplomatic or consular officer before undertaking any voyage.

In a nutshell, all Americans must understand that henceforth a passport does not mean permission to travel in Europe. They must have written and vouched for proof that they are not German spies before they can feel safe.

It is all the result of the too free issuance of American passports at the outbreak of the war, coupled with German quickness to profit by American leniency in this respect.

The American Embassy here announced to-day that hereafter American passports must bear the photographs of the persons to whom they are issued in accordance with the recent order of the State Department at Washington. Passports now outstanding must be submitted within two weeks to the embassy or to the American consulates to have photographs attached and officially stamped, or they will be invalid.

This order, it is explained, is designed to prevent the misuse of American passports in the belligerent countries of Europe. Carl Hans Lody, the German spy recently executed in the Tower of London, was the bearer of an American passport. A passport also was in the possession of the man known as Horst von der Goltz, or Brigman Taylor, now under arrest here in somewhat similar circumstances. The prisoner has admitted that he is not an American although born in San Francisco. He is of German parentage, and was reared in Germany. He served in Mexico on the staff on Francesco Madero as a major, and later tried to enter the German army, but was rejected. He obtained money from the American Relief committee in Berlin and Rotterdam on the strength of his American passport, made out in the name of Taylor. An investigation is being made of the manner in which he obtained this passport.

Just Another Interesting Story of Mons and Le Cateau

So much has been written of the fighting, writes Neil Munro, in the London Chronicle, as if it were a conflict "in vasuoo" — of automata wrought to a glowing heat, pelting at one another like sparks in a radium tube, oblivious of all but ever-present danger and the weapons in their hands, that even so comparatively obscure affair as the retreat from Mons got a fresh and vivid interest for me when I heard three days of it described this afternoon by a Scottish Officer with an observant eye, a mind sensitive to even trivial impressions, a good memory, and a note-book. For him, at least, the retreat was full of pictorial interest and curious recollections. "There are some thirty-odd miles of road round there that I want to see again," he said, "just that I may assure myself I'm not dreaming when I think I can recall the silliest little thing on either hand of it—a duck-pond I washed my hands in; the sign-board of a cafe called 'the Last Cartridge'; a row of bee-hives in front of a house with every window shattered; a clock, still going, lying in a ditch; a burn where I thought there might be trout; above all, a bead of the road not far from Solesmes where I got on the roof of a barn, and saw, through my glasses, away to the west, what I said to myself was the last of the Gordons. . . . It was there where they got nailed, poor fellows, close on Cambrai. There must have been at least 800 of them, and the Germans were swarming round them. . . . Rotten luck for the Gordons! That's how more than half a battalion of them are prisoners."

Le Cateau.

Next day he walked to Le Cateau. "It's a town," he said, "about the size of Perth, I think, lying in a hollow with a lot of spinning mills about it, and the sourest kind of apples you ever tasted. When I got into it, Le Cateau was packed with the automobiles of our staff, with transport waggons, artillery and cavalry. Their kits were spread out on the pavements; they hadn't slept since Saturday, and you may guess they looked pretty tired. Six mortal hours I spent that afternoon inquiring for my corps, and I felt like a wandered sparrow. Nobody seemed to know anything. In a shed behind an inn called the Mouton Blanc I slept four hours that night as sound as a whistle, though I knew the Germans were not six miles from us and fifty times our numbers, and when I woke in the morning they were lobbing balls into the town, and their "Tauben" were flying over us. Every man, woman, and child belonging to the town was streaming out on the high road to St. Quentin. They walked and they tottered; they drove donkey-carts and pushed perambulators; they seemed to have all put on their Sunday clothes, and they had the most absurd burdens—bedding, string-balls gull of eggs or apples. . . . Terror. By Jove, you should have seen them!

On the Paris Road.

"I got a lift in a waggon from a man who had all his family and a cat piled in it, and drifted with the flood along the Paris road for a place called Ham, for an A.S.C. man told me (quite erroneously, as it happened) that our chaps were there. We came to a part of the road where a long row of carcasses of meat had been abandoned; further on, the road was strewn with bread, biscuits and jam tins. 'By Jove!' I thought, 'we're shifting in a hurry!' . . . The road, remember, was boiling with traffic, all going in one direction—a host in khaki, mixed up here and there with panicky civilians. . . . Some day I may tell you more about the look of things exactly there, but not just now.

A Stream in Spate.

"And they were dreadfully in the way, for our men and stuff were pouring back too, remember, and badly needing all the room there was. If ever there is an enemy in Britain, you advise the civil populace to make tracks long before they hear the guns. I was dreadfully put about, though, for these people; and it was quite a relief to get away from them and tack on to a regiment not my own about six miles south of Le Cateau—either Busigny or Wassigny—where we put up a rather pretty scrap. Next day I walked for nearly fifteen miles to St. Quentin, a smallish town that was like to burst with British troops when I got into it. They poured in at one end and out at the other like a crown stream in spate, carrying the civilian population like drifted twigs among them. You never say such a sight. . . . A holy mess! . . It looked as if something was bound to jam. Broken companies of every regiment except my own kept pouring through; our ambulance cars, supply waggons, and artillery swished and clattered without end on the causeway, and half the men that were on them were sound asleep. In the square was a bunch of brigadiers and aides, poring over maps; London buses with the names of London streets and English firms on them were there in scores; one of them nearly ran me down, and jumping to save myself I sprained by ankle.

By the Hendon Bus.

"It's a flattish, farming country, good, I should say, for pheasants. The trees were hanging with apples and pears. I remember one place where a man in charge of a drove of sheep was sitting on a basket reading a book, and paying no attention to Bedlam let loose; he was either the wisest man in the world or the craziest. Sitting on the cart, I could see for miles across the country, and away on the right and left was our cavalry and artillery spread out and making for cover and position in little woods and behind small hillocks. They were going about their job so orderly, it bucked me up tremendously; I realized that some of the thoughts I had had for the last 12 hours were wrong. And, after all, I didn't get to Ham; with my usual luck, the cart broke down, and I got on a Hendon 'bus to La Fere, and there it was I got this arm from a splinter—no, not of a shell, but of a more prosiac thing, a spoke of a water cart a shell had burst on. . . . It's getting on quite nicely, thank you. . . . And, oh, by the way, please tell the British public to teach their children French; it would be twice as jolly for us out here if only we knew French."

MOTLEY CROWD IS FOREIGN LEGION

France's Famous Military Organization Contains in Ranks Men of All Nations.

Perhaps of all France's alien troops, perhaps of all troops in the world, over the Foreign Legion hovers the greatest halo of glamour and romance, says a writer in the World's Work. There have been foreign legions in most of the world's great wars, and, in modern times, have been known as such. The French Foreign Legion is said to have originated in the Scottish Archers of Charles VII. of France, and from all the other nationalities employed by his successors.

After the Napoleonic wars the foreign regiments were disbanded, except the Royal Foreign Legion, created in their place by Louis XVIII., gradually becoming merged into the Eighty-sixth regiment of the line. The year after the Revolution (1881) the present Foreign Legion was formed, the French chambers decreeing that it was not to be employed on the soil of France. We find the regiments of the Foreign Legion ordered wherever French colonies need their presence, yet the world identifies it most closely with its two North African regiments.

So we find, clothed in the loose red trousers, blue blouse, double-breasted black tunic with red facings and wearing red fringed green epaulettes, the blue woollen cummerband around the waist and a red kepi on which flares the seven flamed grenade, the badge of the Legion, approximately eight thousand legionnaires living on seventeen centimes (three and a half cents) a day.

In many ways they represent the same types of men as our federal volunteers, and, like the volunteers of any country, include many adventurous spirits, deserters from armies, men who have slipped a cog in life, men whose histories read like veritable legends. In the Foreign Legion, marching "side by each," are French, Poles, Italians, Belgians, Eurasians, Levantines, Austrians, Russians, Greeks, Swiss and a very few British. It has included as many as twenty-eight Americans at one time, but strange to say, more than half the legionnaires are "made in Germany," if we include those from Alsace and Lorraine. Men are promoted to commissions from the ranks and some of the most noted of their officers have borne German names, and one company was led to the attack of Casablanca, Morocco, in 1908 by a Japanese captain.

The average French legionnaire is of the working class, likely enough a deserter from the French army, who has enlisted as a Swiss or a Belgian. Besides these, as one strolls through their barracks at Sidi-bel-Abbes, a bit in the hinterland of Oran, or sees them "off duty" in a desert encampment, one may find in the soakless shoes of legionnaires ex-army officers, barristers, professors, diplomatists and even ex-bishops, purchases "heel-balting" their black belts, and among those doing their washing, a prince or a banker; and if the missing scion of a noble house is wanted, the well known advice is: "Write to the Colonel of the Legion."

But it is a life which either "makes or breaks" a man generally in the morals, which in the severest test—with men exiled from all the entire equipment, the small land d'abri going to make up the seventy to eighty pounds of weight on his back. Under this in the withering heat on burning Sahara sands he has been known to march thirty miles a day, with hourly ten minute rests. It has been well said that "the Legion is a mercenary force in theory only. The legionnaire practically fights and works for nothing, so far as money is concerned, for a sou a day is all the cash he gets." Thus France has much from the Legion and gives little in return."

A Sure Guide.

"Waiter, give me the menu."

"We have none, but I can tell you what we have."

"You must have a jolly good memory."

"Not at all, I simply look at the table cloth."

Had His Own Idea How Much.

Lady (to boy at door)—You are an honest lad. But the money I lost was a ten-dollar bill, not two fives. Didn't you see that in the advertisement?

Boy—Yessum! It was a ten-dollar bill that I found, but I changed it to two fives so you could pay me a reward.

The only man who should not advertise is the man who has nothing to offer in the way of commodity or service—and—such a person is a dead one—whether he knows it—or not.

COMFORTS FOR THE CANADIAN SOLDIER BOYS

Vast Quantities of Articles Are Still Required and Money for Emergency Fund Needed

A STRONG APPEAL

The following letter has been received by the President of the Women's Art Association, which is working in co-operation with the Women's War Fund Committee. The letter is self explanatory. It should be read with care, for it involves a strong appeal to practical sympathy — to practical work:

The Ladies' Empire Club,
69 Grosvenor Street,
(Personal address)
October 27, 1914.

Dear Madam,—We are addressing this appeal to you in the hope that you will interest your Association in our work and also make it known as widely as possible among those women in your locality who are working for our soldiers.

When the Canadian Expeditionary Force left Canada, Miss Arnoldi and I were appointed by the Minister of Militia to accompany them and continue the work we had begun at Valcartier, namely the distribution of "field comforts." This work has been approved by the British War Office. It was realised in Canada, as it is here, that it is very necessary and important. The women of Canada are working so hard and so enthusiastically that we feel that they will appreciate to the full a direct channel for their supplies, and also the personal touch which it gives. Very careful enquiries will be made and detailed lists obtained from each Regiment as to their exact requirements.

The Canadian War Contingent Association, which has been formed here to further the interests of our force in every way, has among its objects, the collection and distribution of Field Supplies. The Hon. Geo. Perley, M.P., is the President. It may be interesting to note that each colony has a War Contingent Association. The Canadian Association has elected us to their Executive, and has appointed us their distributing agents. In this way overlapping, or wasted effort, will be prevented.

We shall need vast quantities of comforts and also money for an Emergency Fund. The men already here still require things in large numbers. Whole regiments have no cholera belts and many others are only partly supplied with these and other warm necessities.

The English papers are full of appeals for comforts for the British Tommies, and it behooves us Canadian women to look after our own men. When once they are at the front there will be much replenishing to do, and it is proposed to have a distributing depot at the base, wherever that may be. We shall be at Salisbury Plain for the present, and supplies will be received and acknowledged from there. Free transport is promised, and arrangements are being made for a receiving and forwarding depot at Montreal, as the November sailings are all from there. Notices as to this will appear shortly in the Canadian Press.

To give you some idea of how necessary it is to consider comforts over here, I may say that the Queen has appealed for 200,000 belts and 200,000 socks, and Field Marshall Sir John French has made a special appeal for the Expeditionary Force at Malta. The demand is so great that it is very hard to get these supplies here, and we feel also that Canadian industries should benefit by the supplies for Canadians. We beg, therefore that you will come to our aid and make this work the big and complete thing it should be.

We shall be pleased to give any further information desired.

All packages should be clearly addressed to Miss Plummer, care of Montreal Depot, and very plainly marked "FIELD COMFORTS".

All money should be sent to Miss Arnoldi, "Field Comforts Fund," 69 Grosvenor Street, London, W.

The following is a list of the requirements: Money for Emergency Fund. We should have 50,000 cholera belts. Asked for in thousands. Woven recommended. Socks. We cannot have enough. The more hand-knit the better. These are the first and most important needs; others are:

Handkerchiefs (coloured); khaki preferred.
Sleeping caps.
Mufflers.
Flannel Shirts.
Underwear.

All outside articles of clothing should be khaki or grey in colour.

If sending large quantities it is strongly recommended that they be put in cotton bags of 50 or 100 and packed in small packing cases. A complete list of contents, with name and address of sender should be securely fastened inside the box.

We hope very much to have your support in this work, and we shall anxiously await your answer as to how you can help us.

Yours sincerely,
Mary Plummer.

P.S.—Pipes, cigarettes and other Christmas presents will be very welcome.

The above letter constitutes an appeal that should strike home. When we, a few days ago felt a sharp premonitory pinch of winter, even in our comfortable homes, within warm walls and with abundance of comfortable clothing, we pitied ourselves, as we faced in fancy the rigours of the coming winter. We, whose hearts were in the right place, gave a thought to our Canadian lads on Salisbury Plain, who, although they are now under luxurious conditions compared to those they will find when they get into the trenches, are still in need of many things that are necessary to their comfort, and what is more important, to their health.

Here is a chance for our women. Mrs. Pankhurst and her party have given up their militant campaign for suffrage, and are throwing their whole heart into war relief work. Our own women can surrender some of their social activities for the sake of our soldier boys at the front.

This letter should give an impulse to local activity. Our women are fully informed of the needs and are assured that whatever they do will be effective; will reach the men, themselves, as intended. Miss Plummer and Miss Arnoldi are officially appointed. They are doing, as they have done, splendid work, and have already had their services recognised by being promoted to the rank of Lieutenants.

Apropos of this subject the following—the initial poem in a graceful little book of verse, by "Kathleen Hale," is presented:

GREY KNITTING.

All through the country, in the autumn stillness,
A web of grey spreads strangely, rim to rim.
And you may hear the sound of knitting needles,
Incessant, gentle, dim.

A tiny click of little woden needles,
Elfin amid the gianthood of war;
Whispers of women, tireless and patient,
Who weave the web afar.

Whispers of women, tireless and patient—
"Foolish, inadequate!" we hear you say;
"Grey wool on fields of hell is out of fashion,"
And yet we weave the web from day to day.

Suppose some soldier dying, gayly dying,
Under the alien skies, in his last hour,
Should listen, in death's presience so vivid,
And hear a fairy sound bloom like a flower—

I like to think that soldiers, gayly dying
For the white Christ on fields with shame sown deep,
May hear the fairy click of women's needles,
As they fall fast asleep.

Note.—Any person wishing to help, in the way of producing comforts for our soldier boys, can get full information (and technical instructions) from the convenor of the Executive of the Women's War Fund Committee, 273 Hunter Street, telephone 318, or by sending in name and address with request for information.

UNCLE SAM'S THANKSGIVING

Examiner Special:

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Business was practically at a standstill all over the United States to-day, while the nation observed its national Thanksgiving Day. The prevailing note was a deep sense of gratitude, that the United States was at peace with the world, despite the fact that all other big nations are at war. President Wilson spent a quiet day at the home of his daughter, Jessie Wilson-Sayre, in Williamstown, Mass. He was closely guarded by secret service men at all times.

CITY HALL PARAGRAPHS

Mr. E. J. Ferguson, 220 Edinburgh street, has taken out a building permit for the erection of a four-roomed kitchen, at an estimated cost of $100.

The Incinerator.

Arrangements are being made to place a couple of electric lights in the City's incinerator plant; also a length of hose for fire fighting purposes. Ald. Duncan, Chairman of the Property Committee, has been instructed to secure a dumping ground for nightsoil. This will be rented at a possible rental of $350 or $400 a year.

A Surplus.

The assessment for garbage collection amounts to one mill on the dollar. This amounts to $9,124 on the roll. Of this amount $6,684 is paid for the collection of garbage, leaving a surplus of $1,440. It is the opinion of Mayor Buller that the surplus will be reduced to a minimum when all expenses are paid. The City pays $567 a month for the collection of garbage.

The Patriotic Fund.

The proceeds of a concert held in St. Martin's Church, Ennismore, amounting to $110, have been turned over to the Peterborough Patriotic Fund. This, together with $5 received from the completion of the receipts of the "Judas Maccabaeus" concert, brings the fund up to $7,123.70.

Three Loads a Day.

Next year's contract for the collection of garbage will provide for collecton of garbage and refuse from the Churches, schools and factories of the City. This is made compulsory by Act of Parliament. Only Government buildings are exempt from taxation for garbage collection. It is estimated that an industry like the Quaker Oats Company will have at least three loads a day.

The Destruction of Zeebrugge Was Both Swift and Complete

Bombardment from Fleet Destroyed German Vessels and Scattered War Munitions.

SUCCESSFUL CANNONADE

LONDON, Nov. 26.—British war ships, probably assisted by French men-of-war, have practically destroyed the town of Zeebrugge, West Flanders, the most important port of Belgium held by the Germans, in so far as naval operations against this country are concerned.

It is reported here that a flotilla of heavy battleships threw a torrent of shells into the town for three hours destroying work which has required many weeks to complete, reducing six new German torpedo boats in process of completion and scattering to the four winds of heaven great quantities of war munitions. The exact time of this action cannot be placed from available reports.

Soon after Antwerp fell Zeebrugge was occupied by the invaders, who lost no time turning it into a base for the projected aerial and sea raid on Britain. Train after train of ammunition and supplies was poured into the town for several weeks, the Solvay Military Works, on the Bruges Ship Canal, one of the best equipped arsenals in Belgium, was eagerly seized upon and turned into German uses. Extensive plans had been under way for building Zeppelins at Zeebrugge and the delicate apparatus for generating the hydrogen necessary to the operation of these big crafts was already installed, while sheds were building in which they were to be housed.

In addition, a comprehensive system of earthworks was rapidly encircling the town and heavy artillery had been posted advantageously. In short, Zeebrugge was in an admirable state of defence and the wheels of its plants were busy turning out military necessities.

All this has been wiped out in a short three hours and the new "pistol pointed at the heart of the English" is no more. Meagre details of the bombardment say that the German guns replied vigorously to the fire of the warships for a time, but that this fire was ineffectual, as the battleships stood out of range.

This last fact is significant, indicating that the biggest vessels of the British fleet, and presumably of the French fleet also took part in the attack. When the Germans saw that their guns were impotent, they attempted to save the valuable stores brought to Zeebrugge, but this effort is also reported as unavailing.

The following official communication was issued last night:—

"This was a quiet day. There was no alteration of importance of the entire front."

A succinct review of operations along the allied front in France is furnished by the French communique of the afternoon, which says:

"From the North Sea to Ypres there have been no infantry attacks. Between Langwarck and Zonnebeke we have gained territory. In the vicinity of La Bassee the Indian troops recaptured from the enemy certain trenches which had been taken from them the evening before. From La Bassee to Soissons there has been complete calm.

"We have made some slight progress near Berry-au-Bac, and in the Argonne.

"At Bethincourt, northwest of Verdun, a German attack has been repulsed. A suspension of hostilities, requested by the enemy, has been refused.

"In the region of Pont-a-Mousson our artillery found it possible to bombard Arnaville. Nothing has happened in the Vosges."

SWEDEN MOBILIZING.

She Has Issued a Call To Reserves In Canada and the U. S.

OTTAWA, Nov. 26. — It is learned here that a call has gone forth to Swedish reservists in Canada and the United States to return to their country and prepare to join their regiments. There are many such men in Canada occupied in various walks of life, and if all obey the order many good citizens of the Dominion will leave.

Considerable speculation has been rife recently as to the probable attitude of Sweden in the war. So far she has carefully preserved her neutrality, though it is stated that certain influences have been at work within her borders urging participation. German agents, encouraged by an aristocratic clique in Sweden which is said to be strongly pro-German, have been at work, while it is stated that there has been considerable bitterness over the closing of the North Sea. Fear of Russia is also said to be a strong factor. On the other hand, the Socialistic wing of the Government, which is of considerable strength, is strongly for peace and sympathetic to the allies.

It is not considered here that the call for reservists is a direct and unmistakable indication that the nation has decided to take part in the war, but it has been decided to mobilize against emergency. Sweden's military system is based on conscription, and she is said to be in a position to place 250,000 men in the field within a month.

KAISER'S NEW FEAR

Guarding Against an Invasion of Schleswig-Holstein

LONDON, Nov. 26.—An invasion by the allies is feared by Germany, according to The Copenhagen Evening News, which reports that extensive preparations are being made to guard against such an eventuality.

The News says it has learned from eyewitnesses that the Germans are strengthening old fortresses in the former Danish territory of Schleswig-Holstein, as well as a line of entrenchments called the Dannewerk along the northern side of the Kiel Canal. It is thus hoped to protect the canal against attacks from the north, for it is on the shores of Schleswig, according to the reports, that an invasion is feared. All the German islands in the North Sea, it is said, are now closely guarded, and strongly fortified positions are being erected on the shores of Holstein and along the western side of the River Elbe.

A Central News despatch from Glasgow states that the structural engineers and bridge builders throughout the country are being requested to stand ready to rush repair work in Belgium and France. From this it is assumed as undoubted evidence that conditions are favorable to the allied troops.

It would appear from the above despatch, since the Government have notified the bridge builders of Scotland to be in readiness, that the allied forces in northern France and Belgium were meeting with success, and were preparing to drive the Germans back into their own country. If the enemy were retreating it would be necessary to have bridge repair work done quickly to facilitate the allied advance towards Germany.

TO CHECK SEDITION.

Movement In Ireland Will Receive Sharp Treatment.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—A determined effort to end the seditious campaign against recruiting in Ireland has been begun by the Government. It was announced yesterday that on Monday detectives, acting on warrants, searched the residence of one of the leaders of the Sinn Fein party in Dublin. Documents and papers belonging to the Sinn Fein volunteers were seized.

In the House of Commons yesterday Mr. Hunt, M.P., asked the Solicitor-General whether his attention had been called to a letter in The Mayo News in Ireland, signed by John Mc-Bride, urging Irishmen to prevent recruits from joining the British army, calling the British Empire a "blood-sucking vampire," and asserting that the Nationalist representatives in Parliament wanted Irishmen to "leave their bones in foreign countries, so that none would be left to defend Ireland."

Mr. Hunt further asked whether the censor would allow such letters to be published in the future. Chief Censor Buckmaster replied emphatically, "I will not allow the publication of such letters."

Augustine Birrell, Chief Secretary for Ireland, replying to questions regarding statements injurious to recruiting, which had been published in "certain Irish papers," stated:—"I am well aware of the contents of the publication referred to, which seems to have had a large free circulation, particularly in England. The Government is considering what immediate steps shall be taken to secure the suppression of documents and statements of this character. I do not consider them dangerous, but I am sure they insult the sentiment of the vast majority of the Irish people."

NEUTRALITY IS BROKEN

Columbia-Ecuador Case is Explained in the House

LONDON, Nov. 26.—Charles Roberts, Under Secretary of the Colonial Department, speaking on behalf of the Foreign Office, made a statement in the House of Commons to the effect that information in the possession of the Government indicated that the Governments of Colombia and Ecuador had failed in certain respects to observe an attitude of strict neutrality.

The particular cause of complaint against Colombia has reference to a high power wireless station.

The British charge d'affaires endeavored repeatedly, said Mr. Roberts, to induce the Government to remove the staff of Germans at the wireless station and institute strict control in order to prevent the transmission of messages to belligerent merchant ships lying in Colombia ports. Failing in this the charge sought to have the station closed. The report received from the charge leaves it in doubt whether steps taken by the Colombia Government are of an effective nature.

German warships, he said, had converted certain islands belonging to Ecuador into naval bases. Great Britain was not yet aware what result had attended the protest made to the United States.

ANNUITIES FOR ALIENS.

Prince Albert of Schleswig-Holstein Gets Money From Britain.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The question whether the payment of big annuities was being made to certain relations of the reigning royal family when members of their families were fighting for Germany against Great Britain, was raised in the House of Commons yesterday by Wm. Young, member of Parliament for Perthshire.

Mr. Young asked Premier Asquith whether he was aware that Prince Albert of Schleswig-Holstein, son of Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, a daughter of the late Queen Victoria and aunt of King George, was engaged as a combatant with the Germany army; whether the prince was in this country at the outbreak of the war and whether any effort had been made to detain him.

Mr. Asquith replied curtly that he had been informed that Prince Albert "was serving in a military capacity in Germany," but that he had no knowledge when he left England.

To the inquiry regarding the status of the prince's family, who received $30,000 a year from Britain, Mr. Asquith made no reply.

MONTREAL, Nov. 26.—A delegation representing the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Women and Children will wait on Sir Lomer Gouin, Premier of Quebec, some time during the next session of the Legislature and ask for amendments to the statutes compelling municipalities to keep their poor, to pay prisoners for their work for the benefit of their wives, and to impose sentences of flogging on wife-beaters.

Huycke's Minstrels Made Big Hit In Conservatory of Music Hall Last Night

First Presentation of "Aide-in-Peterborough" Minstrel Show Before Belmont Club Was Unqualified Success.

In the Conservatory of Music Hall last night, before an enthusiastic audience comprised of members and friends of the Belmont Club, Huycke's Minstrels excelled themselves in the presentation of their splendid programme. There was plenty of life and spirit to the performance in evidence during the whole of the evening that spoke well for those staging the Minstrel Show, and this combined with the splendid musical and humorous numbers presented, held the interest of every one present from the overture until the curtain was rung down after the finale.

The Costumes.

Many a minstrel show has come to Peterborough and departed with several hundred dollars and given no evidence of as complete preparation for a real Minstrel production as Huycke's minstrels in their first appearance before a local audience, last night. The costumes appropriate and original in themselves were an indication that the young men behind the production had determined to make it a first-class one in every respect. The end men were arrayed in green Tuxedos with cerise tango bloomers and tango ties. The chorus wore black Tuxedos with cerise bloomers and blue stockings. The effect was surprisingly satisfactory, and helped in a large measure to make the first appearance an unqualified success.

The Music.

Perhaps more than anything else the Minstrels will have to be given credit for their musical numbers last night. Their choruses, quartettes, duets and solos and specialties combining several of these, were immense. In all of these the harmony was all that could be desired, and could only have been obtained by careful and arduous training. The musical numbers completely captivated the audience and on many occasions the performers were brought back to the limelight by storms of applause. "Harmony Bay" by George Daly and J. Minicola and Chorus, was one of the best of the musical contributions.

The Comedy.

The music of the show was linked together by several clever specialties in which Mr. George Wesley took the lead. The style of humour that the Minstrels "got across" last night was the kind that always gets a good response from the audience. There was nothing stale in the specialties which were all of a high order, and they were a welcome variety. Mr. Mat. Drysdale, after this solo "By the Beautiful Sea," contributed a splendid juggling act. D. Quinlan and W. Fitzgerald, in their dancing specialties, deserved the prominent place they received in the programme. The four end men injected a lot of life into the presentation, and they got under the comedy parts in exceptionally good fashion.

The Numbers.

It would be impossible to pick out any one or two or several numbers and characterise them as the best. All were heartily received and all bore the earmarks of having been thoroughly prepared. The overtures by the Orchestra which were compositions of Mr. Asa Huycke, made a fine impression. The various choruses exceeded every promise made before last evening in regard to their merit, and especially in the singing of "Tipperary" at the conclusion of the first part of the programme was their work effective. Asa Huycke (and the Octette of Harmony singers, introducing old-time plantation melodies), was one of the bright features of the evening.

"Made in Peterborough"

The scenery was splendid and occasioned more than one remark of appreciation. The scenery, costumes, specialties and some of the minstrels themselves, were made in Peterborough, and as a "Made In Peterborough" minstrel show, local people have every reason to be proud of last night's production.

The Minstrels play in Havelock on Friday night.

John Speedie Apprehended

Man Wanted in Lindsay Has Been Working for a Farmer in Ennismore.

LINDSAY, Nov. 25—John Speedie, whose name has been prominently before the people during the past few weeks, was arrested Tuesday night by Constable Woods and placed in the cells. Speedie, it is claimed, left his wife in want in Toronto and has not written to her during his absence. The Lindsay police have been searching for him, and information was given that he had left Lindsay for the "shanties". According to Speedie's story this morning he has been working for farmers in this district, and was ashamed to write to his wife because he had no money to send her. During the past four weeks he has worked for farmers in Ennismore, at a wage of ten dollars per month. Speedie severely scored the farmers for the hill-of-fare provided. It was bread, butter, tea, minus cream and sugar, and apple sauce every meal. He saw very little meat. While in Ennismore (where he took the name of Murray), he read in the paper that the police were looking for him. He straightway made for Lindsay, so he says, but fell by the wayside. He was found in a drunken condition last night and placed in the cells. This morning he told his tale of woe to Chief Short. A Scotchman by birth, Speedie was a salvage worker on the coast. He wanted to get back to Toronto where he said he had lots of friends.

Will be Held.

When Speedie was taken from the cells to the police station, he revised the story told above. He claims that he was not married to the woman in Toronto who claims to be his wife, but simply lived with her for a while. Her name is Marie O'Neill and she is employed as a clerk in Jacob's shoe store on College street. Marie is 25 years of age and, according to Speedie's story, is a soiled dove. He is a widower, having buried his wife in Bonnie Scotland, Scotland. The reason he drifted towards Lindsay was for the purpose of seeing the police as well as "lifting" his watch, which was pawned at Appelbaum's. Chief Short is holding Speedie until he could get Marie O'Neill's story.

MANUFACTURING SHRAPNEL SHELLS

In Peterboro'—British War Office Places Big Contracts in Canada.

MONTREAL, Nov. 26.—The British War Office, through the Department of Militia at Ottawa, is spending $2,500,000 throughout Canada in the manufacturing of shrapnel shells alone, the work going on at seventeen different points.

When the work was begun shortly after the outbreak of the war nearly all the material entering into the manufacture had to be secured in England and the United States, but Colonel Bertram of John Bertram & Sons, Limited, who are doing the work, stated at the Windsor Hotel, that practically all of the material is now obtained in the Dominion. The lead is being furnished by the Trail Smelter in British Columbia, while the Nova Scotia Coal & Steel Company supply the steel, and material for the other parts are found in Canada.

The work is now going on at Montreal, Sherbrooke, New Glasgow, Amherst, St. John, Kingston, Toronto, Welland, St. Catharines, Hamilton, Dundas, Galt, Ingersoll, London, Peterborough, Lindsay and Smith's Falls, the capacity being 100,000 shells per month, although they are not working at full capacity.

The present contract calls for 200,000 shells and it is expected that others will be made in Canada. They are now being made at the rate of 30,000 a month. These shells weigh eighteen pounds and are thrown from fifteen and eighteen pounders.

certain sum of money and had fallen short of the mark. If you start out with a two by four proposition you will get two by four men to run it. If you start a good big proportion you will get big men to run it.

In Ottawa we held a meeting for the purpose of organizing. We put the speakers down in the hall by themselves. They didn't do any harm; we don't know whether they did any good. We started out to collect three hundred thousand dollars. The receipts on the last day of the campaign totalled three hundred and seventy-five thousand dollars.

Ways and Means.

The Patriotic Fund undertakes to take care of the dependents of those who have responded to the call to arms. It is not a question of taking care of your own. That's an unCanadian way of looking at it. I am glad you are not looking at it that way.

If you want to go into this there are several ways to go at it. First you must get a responsible man who can lead the fund with a relatively large contribution. Then you must get your team captains and then a good committee who will provide a list of names of possible subscribers. You want the very best business men in your community. Don't approach John Jones because he is out of work, and say: "Here is John Jones, he hasn't anything to do; we will set him to work. He don't know how to work; if he did he would be at it.

In referring to the question of the unemployed, Mr. Warburton said: "As a member of the Social Service committee of Toronto, I would say that it is better to provide work for men than it is to povide charity."

The People's Fear.

"The people are in a state of fear and un-Godly fear that they will pauperize themselves," said Mr. J. H. Burnham. "We find a financial canker seizing the people. Unless they get a stimulant in the way of enthusiasm so that they will feel good, nothing can be expected of them." Here in this country with eight millions of people in it, with its enormous amount of resources, are they doing anything towards developing it? Not a thing. They are taking great pains to hold on to it. The workingmen of this country are demanding work and they are denied it. There will be no relief until the government takes the matter in hand. I am thoroughly disgusted with it.

Mr. O'Connell—"We have come here this evening for practical purposes, and I would suggest that we do some practical work, and for the purpose of starting off this campaign, I would take the liberty of asking Mr. Warburton what we should do at once."

Committee Appointed.

"I am sorry," said Mr. Warburton, "that I opened up the question which has set some of those present to thinking. I feel as though I want to make a speech myself," continued the speaker. "When I hear an orator I want to imitate him. I would suggest that a committee of five be appointed to give the campaign its initial impulse."

Mr. O'Connell moved that Mr. Warburton be requested to remain over. This was seconded by Mr. Stocker and endorsed by the meeting.

Mr. F. D. Kerr pointed out the difference between passive sympathy and active sympathy. He said that it would be worse than useless to select a name without a man behind it. Mr. Kerr volunteered his services in any capacity whatever.

A committee comprising Messrs. O'Connell, F. D. Kerr, A. W. Cressman, J. A. Aylmer and J. Crane, was appointed to confer with Mr. Warburton in the matter of commencing the campaign.

After a few brief remarks by Bishop O'Brien the meeting concluded with the rendition of the National Anthem.

BETHANY TABERNACLE

Rev. L. J. Long Spoke on "God's Uttermost Salvation"

The revival at Bethany Tabernacle continues with increasing interest and attendance.

Rev. Mr. Long, the Toronto evangelist, delivered a powerful sermon on God's Uttermost Salvation" last night. His presentation of the subject was so forceful and convincing that no one who heard him could have failed to be convinced that Jesus Christ has ability to save all who come to God by Him. In the course of his address Mr. Long gave many striking illustrations of those who had been marvellously lifted by the hand of Jesus Christ who were now living witnesses of the Saviour.

The Evangelista's descriptive powers are extremely fascinating, and none can fail to receive help who hear his earnest and appealing messages. Hear him to-night and every night this week at 8 o'clock.

FIRST AID CLASSES AT THE Y.W.C.A

In the writings of Florence Nightingale — occurs this paragraph: "We are only on the threshold of nursing. In the future, which I shall not see, for I am old, may a better way be opened. May the methods by which every infant, every human being, will have the best chance of health, the methods by which every sick person will have the best chance of recovery, be learned and practiced! Hospitals are only an intermediate stage of civilization, never intended, at all events, to take in the whole sick population.

May we hope that the day will come when every mother will become a health nurse, when every poor sick person will have the opportunity of a share in the district sick nurse at home."

The Second Course.

Will include lectures on Home Nursing, the Sick Room, Infection and Disinfection, Details of Nursing, Application of Local Remedies, etc.

These lectures are given under the auspices of the St. John Ambulance Association. Examinations and diplomas awarded.

Those wishing to register for these lectures are asked to do so at an early date.

ENNISMORE'S CONTRIBUTION

Raised $110 at Patriotic Concert Which Has Been Given to the Local Fund.

A SPLENDID EFFORT

Ennismore, Ont., Nov. 25th, 1914.

Last Sunday after mass, Rev. Father Fitzpatrick spoke on the war, the magnitude of the task, which the Allies are trying to accomplish, and the necessity of every British subject, irrespective of creedor nationality, uniting against the common enemy of human liberty. Father Fitzpatrick quoted passage after passage, from Count Von Bernhardi's work, "Germany in the Next War," to show the false principles underlying the military spirit of Germany, her anticipation of just such alliances as this war, has brought about, and her thorough and systematic preparation for the accomplishment of her ambitious aims, viz., "World Power." Father Fitzpatrick then appealed to his people, to stand firm by that flag which has brought liberty, prosperity and independence to British subjects, in every quarter of the world, which has ever respected the rights and possessions of other nations, and which for us Canadians, is the emblem of true peace, concord and solidarity.

A concert was then announced for Tuesday evening, Nov. 24th, and the large enthusiastic gathering in the Township Hall clearly evidenced the good spirit, loyalty and devotion of the people of Ennismore, to the worthy cause for which Britain and her allies are sacrificing the lives of so many of her young men.

The receipts of the concert reached the handsome sum of $110, which was handed over to the committee of the Patriotic Fund, Peterborough.

This was the first Patriotic Concert held in the township, but if necessity demands, others of a similar nature will be held, for the same laudable purpose.

Deep Interest In Organization

Of Red Cross and Ambulance Brigades in Connection With the Salvation Army

Very deep interest is being taken in the organisation of the Red Cross and Ambulance Brigade of the Salvation Army, the meeting for which is being held at the Temple at 8 o'clock on Friday night.

Dr. Sutton, who has much experience in Army Ambulance work, has volunteered his services to lecture these brigades, the first to commence next week. Adjutant and Mrs. McElhiney, the soldiers and adherents of the Army are deeply grateful to Dr. Sutton for his kindly and timely interest in the work, and are going to do all in their power to respond to Dr. Sutton's teaching.

FORD PROFIT SHARING HAS WORKED WONDERS

Employes Are Buying Homes, Adding to Savings and Increasing Life Insurance

DETROIT, Nov. 24.—At the end of the first year of the Ford profit-sharing plan with employees, every workman in the great plant is either banking savings or purchasing home sites at the rate of $48.76 per month. Homes to the value of $5,000,000 have been sold Ford workmen, of which amount $1,200,000 has been paid. The gain per man in bank deposits is 180½ per cent., in life insurance 86 per cent., in homes owned 87½ per cent. Eleven hundred foreign-born employees in the Ford establishment are being taught English by fellow employees, without compensation, and the spirit of co-operation has turned the plant into a great hive of industry.

OLD MAN ROBBED OF HIS WIFE

The Alleged Usurper Has a Wife Living in Peterboro'—Story Told to the Police.

LINDSAY, Nov. 26.—To be driven out of his home and robbed of his partner in life was the experience of an old man named Young, a former resident of Bobcaygeon, according to the story told Chief of Police Short.

Young, who is 78 years of age, went to the United States fourteen years ago to live with his daughter, who resided in a small town in New Mexico. While there his wife died, and a short time afterwards he fell in love wth a young woman (a resident of Bobcaygeon). They resided happily together until three years ago, when his health failed him and his wife (who is forty years his junior) advised him to go back to his daughter, where he would regain health and strength. He had no money, however, but his wife loaned him $35 and also advised him to settle his affairs before leaving as he might never come back. He accordingly deeded the property to his wife and left for the States. In his absence another man (a well known resident of Bobcaygeon), went to live with his wife and usurped the old man's rights. The wife of man No. 2 had left him and settled in Peterborough, so he took up with Young's wife. When Young returned to the Village there was no welcome for him in his own home, so he had to shift for himself. He secured work with a farmer who finally threw him over on the Town of Lindsay.

Chief Short took the old man up to Mr. J. B. McNeillie with a view to having him placed in the House of Refuge. He would like to get back to his daughter but has no money to pay his way.

It is a very mistaken notion that Christian young men have not really a good time. They are in fact the happiest young people on earth. They carry about with them a good conscience.

MR. LASTAR INDIGNANT

Former Local Man is Living in Toronto and Never Was Arrested as Spy

Mr. Bernard Lastar, for a number of years a resident of Peterborough, and who was stated by a local paper to have been imprisoned in Fort Henry, Kingston, as a German spy, was a visitor in Peterborough to-day. The article in question had only recently been called to his attention, and naturally Mr. Lastar was somewhat indignant, as there was absolutely no truth in, or foundation for, the report. Mr. Lastar has been living in Toronto since leaving here over three years ago and was never arrested or imprisoned.

"Why there is no one who would rather see Germany in hell than myself," Mr. Lastar remarked to the Examiner to-day. They expelled me out of Germany."

Mr. Lastar was born in Moscow, and is therefore a Russian Hebrew. His feelings towards the British Empire are shown by the fact that his son Oscar is a signaller with the Queen's Own Rifles, and going to the front with the second Canadian contingent.

As to Mr. L. Mendell, who was also stated to have been imprisoned, Mr. Lastar says that the former local photographer is in business in New York.

DISBURSING OFFICER NOT APPOINTED

The matter of appointing a disbursing officer to administer the Patriotic Fund is just as far from solution as ever it was. The Distributing Committee of the Patriotic Association submitted a report last evening which bore the name of Mr. George Cochrane, who, it was said, would act for a monthly remuneration of twenty-six dollars. To this Mr. Geo. Ball objected, claiming that it would be possible to secure two or more patriotic citizens who would undertake the administration of the funds, thereby obviating the necessity of creating an official. "This town is nearly strangled by officials," said Mr. Ball, with considerable emphasis.

Mr. E. A. Peck—"Why do you need help; I thought there was a committee appointed to look after the work of administering the funds?"

"Too Hasty".

Mr. A. H. Stratton was of the opinion that the Executive Committee was too hasty in taking the work out of Mr. Miller's hands. The latter could continue the work which he has started and the money could be paid out through the City Treasurer's Office.

Mr. Rush pointed out that the only objection that had been in respect to Mr. Miller's appointment was that he is the City Relief Officer. Mr. Rush tendered his resignation as a member of the Distributing Committee of the Patriotic Fund upon the grounds that he was connected with the Charity Department of the City, as was Mr. Miller.

The meeting refused to accept Mr. Rush's resignation and adjourned, leaving the matter of appointing a distributing officer until after the money-raising campaign.

$194.51 WAS RESULT OF THE MILE OF PENNIES

Y. W. C. A. Campaign Was Very Successful

The object of the attempt to secure a "mile of pennies" for the Public Department of the Y. W. C. A. was not only to secure financial support but to make the Association better known throughout the City—to invite all the girls in Peterborough to know and enjoy the privileges of the Association building. It is realised that the generosity of the public is taxed to the uttermost these days, and many thanks are due those who contributed toward the "Mile of Pennies," the amount collected being $194.51.

Many questions have been asked as to what part of the work the money is to be expended. The Association, in Peterborough, has two departments—the Residential or Boarding Department, which is self-supporting, and for which no subscriptions are solicited; and the Public Department which is supported by its membership fees and public subscriptions. The object and work of the Public Department will be explained fully, later, for the benefit of those interested.

FIXING THE BLAME.

A teacher, instructing her class in the composition of sentences, wrote two on the blackboard, one a misstatement of fact, and the other wrong grammatically. The sentences were: "The hen has three legs," and "Who done it?"

"Harry," she said to one of the youngsters, "go to the blackboard and show where the fault lies in those two sentences."

Harry slowly aproached the board, evidently studying hard. Then he took the crayon and wrote:

"The hen never done it. God done it."

AUSTRALIANS PROUD OF THEIR OWN NAVY

Cruiser Sydney's Victory Over the Emden Most Notable Feat.

The exploit of the Australian armoured cruiser Sydney in putting an end to the long career of destruction of the German commerce destroyer Emden, has attracted world-wide attention to the Australian Navy. The first work done by the Australians was to place the British flag over Samoa.

In 1907 the great question of the creation of a more adequate home defence fleet was seriously taken up by the Australian Parliament, and it was decided that instead of making a cash contribution to the Imperial Navy, as had been the custom, Australia would create a naval force esentially Australian in character, the officers and men of which would be commissioned and enlisted under Royal Navy conditions, or else to be obtained after they had served in the Royal Navy, to serve on Australian vessels. They were to be paid in Australia at Australian rates of pay.

"The whole control of the young navy," says The Navy and Army, one of the British service publications, "both in peace and in war was to be vested in the Commonwealth, but in time of national danger it might be placed entirely under control of the Imperial authorities, as has actually been done in connection with the present war. For purely local defence it was proposed to build submarines and torpedo boat destroyers, to remain absolutely under Australian control.

"All these boats were, as far as possible, to be manned by Australians. This was regarded as a means of encouragement to the people of Australia to take a practical interest in naval defence. So long as they contributed in cash their interest did not get beyond that of pounds, shillings, and pence. To arouse the personal interest by having Australian ships manned by Australians was a good idea.

"Likewise, it was decided, where possible, to have ships built in Australia, and skilled artisans were sent to England to watch the construction of the vessels. Australian representatives also attended an Imperial Defence Conference in London, and it was eventually agreed that Australia should provide a battle cruiser of the Indomitable type, three armoured cruisers of the Bristol class, six destroyers of the improved River class, and three submarines, as well as the necessary auxiliaries, such as docks and depot ships, the whole to form a complete naval unit, and to be one of the three divisions of the Eastern Fleet."

The estimated cost of this departure on the part of the Australian Commonwealth was between $17,000,000 and $18,000,000, and the annual cost of maintenance in the neighbourhood of $8,500,000.

The construction of the battle cruiser Australia, the present flagship of the Australian unit, was commenced in June, 1910, and she was launched in October of the following year and commissioned in June, 1913, just two years after her keel was laid down. In September she arrived in Australian waters, and with her arrival there came actually into existence the Navy. Australia, two armoured cruisers, Melbourne and Sydney, were also constructed in British yards, but the third cruiser, the Brisbane, was built at the navy yard in Sydney.

Acker was found guilty and let off on suspended sentence upon guaranteeing to pay the costs, amounting to $4.80.—Havelock Standard.

No Politics In Censorship.

LONDON, Nov. 26. — A discussion arose in the House of Commons last night relative to the censorship, and Sir Stanley Buckmaster, director of the official press bureau of the war office, said that the censorship should have no concern with politics and should not in any circumstances be used for entering opinion in favor of the Government. If that were done, he said, the Government would abuse the confidence of the nation and be guilty of a very base action.

Sir Stanley declared that he had no sympathy with the view that bad news should be prohibited. It was possible, however, in which a full disclosure of events might not be desirable and might even prove disastrous.

Team Captains Were Selected

Three Day Campaign Will Be Opened on December Eighth—Mr. Warburton's Remarks

The second step in the campaign to raise twenty thousand dollars or more for patriotic purposes was recorded to-day at noon, when about twenty members of the Peterborough Patriotic Association met in Hooper's palm parlours to give further impetus to the movement that was inaugurated last evening. Team captains were appointed, as follows: Messrs. E. A. Peck, W. Stocker, G. Ball, J. J. Duffus, W. H. Denham, G. A. Gillespie, Dr. McNulty, J. Picard, Sr., T. F. Matthews and Adjutant McElhiney. The captains will report on Monday next in the City Council chamber. Their duties in the meantime will be to select teams of ten men each, while the List committee will prepare the list of possible subscribers to the fund.

Mr. D. O'Connell who presided, said that the committee had started to work with a view of raising a substantial amount for patriotic purposes. The committee had benefitted by Mr. G. A. Wartburton's presence, and had every reason to believe that the campaign would be brought to a successful conclusion.

A Question of Organization.

"I am sure that this is a fund in which everybody in the community is interested," said Mr. Warburton. "The success of the movement is a question of organization or in other words a question of bringing latent force to focus. You must conform to business conditions to make this campaign go."

"This group of men here is intended to be the beginning of the force that is to make this thing go. Have it all over in three days. It is a question of concentration. If you spread it over two or three weeks, the campaign will lag and success will not be ours."

Peterborough has raised the smallest amount of money for patriotic purposes of any city in Canada of a comparative size. Other cities smaller than Peterborough have raised larger amounts than you have for your objective. I hope you will see your way clear to raise the objective.

Work of this character constitutes the development and expression of human feeling. You are going to bring a blessing to this community in bringing this thing to a successful conclusion.

A Test.

This experience through which we are passing is not only a test of civilization, but a test of the essential qualities of our manhood.

The soldiers' families are not adequately provided for. The Government pay $20 a month, and the soldiers usually assign a monthly allowance of $20 out of their pay. The Patriotic Fund undertakes to all $6 to this amount, bringing the income of the family concerned up to $45 a month. It does not take the place of a pension. It is only expected to take care of the families of these men while they are absent. In case of death of the soldier, the fund will be available to bridge over any financial difficulty that may arise until such time as pensions are provided by the Government.

Mayor Butler placed considerable emphasis on the fact that the public generally are finding fault with the way in which the fund is administered, many claiming that forty dollars should be sufficient for the needs of a family. "This is not adequate," said the Mayor.

The National Fund.

"You join the National Fund," said Mr. Warburton, "because the fund undertakes to care for soldiers' dependents from one end of Canada to the other. What we want to do is to get a fund big enough to cover all needs. Supposing a woman in a small community, where they can't have a fund, is in want. Then you can call on the National Fund for assistance. It is not charity. It should be removed miles and miles from charity.

There is every reason to believe that the objective of the Committee will be raised from twenty thousand dollars to probably fifty thousand dollars. It is also proposed to hold a public meeting on the evening of December 7th, and opening the three-day evening on the following day. Two or more prominent men of Canada will be obtained from Toronto.

SUPERFLUOUS QUESTION.

She—Is it a secret society?

He—No. Didn't I tell you there were women in it?

THREE LOCAL PUBLIC SCHOOLS WERE ENTERED

East City, Central and Queen Alexandra Schools Gone Through and Teachers' Desks Searched

Last night the Queen Alexandra School was entered and the desks of the teachers and pupils in the different roms were searched. Only three cents in money was taken, although the desk of the Principal, Mr. H. A. Veaney, was forced open and gone through. This is the third local Public School to be entered in the past two weeks. Last Friday night the Central School was entered and the teachers' desks were opened and searched. There was no money taken although boxes containing money were rifled and their contents thrown about, so that it would seem that the culprits, whoever they may be, were not after money. One of the teacher's straps was taken, however, and there was plenty of evidence that the party or parties had searched several of the teachers' desks thoroughly. On the same night the St. John's Church was entered.

Some days previous to this the East City school suffered in the same manner, and here some money and supplies were taken.

LETTERS ARE THE MOST APPRECIATED

The following extract from a letter to the Mail and Empire, from that paper's staff correspondent at Salisbury Plain, is of timely importance and should be acted upon by all friends of our local boys at Salisbury Plain, who are not already doing so:

"In passing it may be remarked that, while the books are very welcome, there is not a man in camp who would not sooner have half a dozen letters from home to read when he comes in from a hard day's training work. Too many people wait for the man himself to write to them, forgetting that when the evening comes he feels more like having a rest than writing letters. News from home is the most eagerly sought for thing in camp and often some of the men do not receive letters for weeks at a time. It's not only letters from relatives that the volunteers like to receive. They want also to hear from their friends and acquaintances, for it's good to feel that, though they are thousands of miles away, they are not forgotten. The least those who are unable to go to the front themselves can do is to write to the men who have gone and, besides, it is a splendid way to express patriotism. Every Canadian who has a relative or friend with the contingent should consider it his or her duty to write to him. Rest assured that he will answer it if he can, but whether he does or not he will appreciate it from the bottom of his heart. And, what is very important, every letter should be addressed, including the addressee's rank, name, company, battalion and brigade."

ELECTIONS BY ACCLAMATION

To the Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—The idea that has been suggested of arranging for the next municipal elections to go by acclamation and to have the expenses thereof thus saved diverted to the Patriotic Fund, is one worthy of our approval.

One cannot help but admire the stand taken by Mr. Campbell, Reeve of Chandos, when he said at the County Council meeting that if that plan were adopted and any one undertook to oppose him he would at once resign in order to save the expense of an election so that the same might be applied to the Patriotic Fund. The names of such men deserve to be written in letetrs of gold.

Yours truly,
GENEROSITY.

Nov. 26th, 1914.

WILL SHORTEN THE WAR.

Italy Is Likely To Come In With Allies, Londoners Believe.

LONDON, Nov. 26—That Italy will find a casus belli against Austria soon and pour half a million troops into the balance on the allies' side in the general belief there to-day, as a result of the latest developments in Rome.

Concurrent with this is a belief that the war will end much sooner than has been generally predicted. Prior to the opening of Parliament few believed that the war would last less than twelve months, and the greatest hope was for peace in the fall of 1915. But in the debate at the opening of Parliament the Prime Minister remarked, apparently quite casually, that the war might be over earlier than many supposed. He is supposed to have had in his mind a belief that before long Italy will take sides with the allies.

That would certainly shorten the war, as, from now on, either side that can suddenly throw half a million fresh troops into the fighting line, either east or west, will win.

Servia May Agree With Bulgaria.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—There is considerable diplomatic activity in the Balkans and important developments are expected. It is considered in official circles here that with the Austrian army on her soil, Servia will be more likely to listen to the demand of Bulgaria for a slice of Macedonia as the price of her support. There is also talk of an arrangement between Roumania and Bulgaria, in fact, of a reorganization of the Balkan League which would bring all the Balkan states over to the side of the allies.

SAYS 3,000,000 INDIAN TROOPS WOULD LINE UP

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The Maharaja of Idar, ruling chief of a native State in Rajputana, who is the fifth of the Indian Princes to proceed to the fighting line, arrived in Cairo yesterday. Interviewed by a Daily Telegraph correspondent he is quoted as saying:

Everybody in India is for England. It is a reason for great pride with us that the Emperor accepted our services. If the Emperor asked for three million troops he would have them, fully trained and steadfast, because the Britons are fighting for world civilization and for the life of the small State, like Belgium. Everything we have is hers.

USE ELECTRICITY TO HEAT TRENCHES

Military Authorities Must Take Some Steps to Alleviate the Sufferings of the Troops if Cold Continues—Daring Attempt to Mine British Position Frustrated—Snow Suspends Work in the Vosges.

Examiner Special:

PARIS, Nov. 27.—A daring attempt to mine the filled trenches in the vicinity of Arras was reported to-day. German sappers had succeeded in carrying a mine trench well up to the British lines, working under the cover of darkness. Only the discovery of the enemy prevented the blowing up of Britons with enormous loss of life. Cannonading, with intermittent infantry attacks continued to-day along the great battle line stretching across Northern France and Belgium. In the Vosges operations are largely suspended owing to heavy snows. On the northern end of the line, however, the Germans continue their activity in so far as the weather will permit. The intense cold causes the greatest suffering in the allied trenches.

If the present positions are to be held throughout the winter, the military authorities realize that something must be done to allay the suffering of the troops. They are now considering a plan of electrically heating the main trenches. Engineers have held this as feasible as the successful expedient of charging wire entanglements with electricity.

BOY DROWNED WHILE SKATING NEAR LAKEFIELD

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 26.—Sydney Craven, 14 years old, of Annapolis, Md., attending the Grove School here, was drowned while skating on Lake Kashawanack this evening. The body has been recovered.

SAILORS LEFT TO DROWN

SANTIAGO, Chile, Nov. 26.—Numerous British sailors who perished off the Chilean coast when the German fleet sank the cruisers Good Hope and Mammouth might have been saved had the Germans made any effort to rescue them.

This is admitted by the Germans, themselves, according to a sworn statement made here to-day by the Captain of the French bark Valentine which was captured and sunk off the Juan Fernandez Islands. The Captain and members of the Valentine's crew were held prisoners on one of the German warships for ten days. In his sworn statement the Captain asserted the Germans said they might have saved numerous Englishmen who were swimming in the water, but they deliberately let them drown. The crew of the Valentine was shamefully treated, he swore for refusing to aid in the transshipment of coal from the bark to the warships. The Germans, he said, robbed the Valentine of everything before sinking her.

Fire in Norwood High School

Was Checked in Time—Joists Were Burned Away

Examiner Special:

NORWOOD, Nov. 27 — The High School building by fire, recently. In being gutted by fire, recently. In some way the floor surrounding one of the registers in the laboratory caught fire and was smouldering quite extensively when discovered at noon by the Principal, who went to lock the door prior to leaving for dinner. Attention was attracted by smoke issuing from the room. The joist was burned away in one place, while two holes had also been burned in the floor. It is most fortunate the fire was discovered as soon as it was, or it might have assumed serious proportions during the noon hour when there would be few persons, if any around upstairs to notice it.

Kaiser Moves Troops From Flanders Front

PARIS, Nov. 25—Among a train load of German prisoners who arrived last night was an officer who told me that just before he was captured, thousands of German troops were moved back from Flanders to the Aisne and the Meuse. The Kaiser, he added, was like a draught player with one piece left in a double corner. He dodges backward and forward, with no definite idea of how to escape ultimate defeat.

The officer thought, however, that until the entire truth becomes known Germany will continue to offer a stubborn resistance. The condition of the troops, he describes as lamentable. There have been many cases of typhoid but the food supply has been better this month. He is firmly convinced there is no danger of Germany suffering from lack of food, no matter how long the war lasts, unless two neutral countries join the Allies.

Many Spies Infest the Dockyards

And Most Dangerous are Said to be British—Morning Post Calls for Stringent Measures

LONDON, Nov. 27—The Morning Post's naval correspondent, in discussing the theory that the battleship Bulwark was lost through an internal explosion, gives a technical description of how artificial detonation may be caused, and then says: "Members of His Majesty's Government may endeavour to persuade the public that the danger of German spies is exaggerated, and also that the authorities are dealing with it adequately. The fact remains that His Majesty's dockyards are infested with spies. If evidence of that statement is required the answer is that evidence is in the possession of the naval authorities. The Lord Chancellor, on Wednesday, committed himself to the statement that the dangerous spies in this country were not German, but were British. Some of the information which had been given could only have been given by people who had access to it because they were British. His belief was that we had very little of this kind of thing, but that we had some, and that it was formidable he could not doubt. This is a very remarkable statement, and Lord Haldane could hardly have made it unless he possessed proofs of its substance.

"When the disaster occurred yesterday the Bulwark who lying off Sheerness. The adjacent area is presumably proclaimed, but it does not follow that the proclamation has been enforced and that the neighbourhood has been cleared of Germans. All naval ports, dockyards and towns ought to be placed under martial law. They are still under civil jurisdiction, which is not appropriate in a time of war. The proclamation of martial law is in itself a deterrent to any evildoer, who, instead of the slow process and many chances of acquittal under civil jurisdiction, contemplates the possibility of being summarily shot—a very different prospect."

CARTRIDGE HIDDEN IN THE GARBAGE

Exploded When it Was Put in the Incinerator.

Is ball ammunition so plentiful in Peterborough that the city can afford to feed it to the incinerator? This is a question that has occurred to the mind of Mr. Arthur Helson, caretaker of the city's incinerating plant on Townsend street. While in the act of putting some garbage in one of the manholes of the furnace, a ball cartridge exploded. The business end of the shell shot up from the manhole and glanced off one of the angle irons of the roof, then dropped to the floor, where it was picked up by the caretaker who narrowly escaped injury by the flying missle. The cartridge had evidently found its way into the garbage and was exploded by the heat of the furnace.

GERMANS CRUSHED IN BATTLE OF LODZ

Russian Victory in Poland Said to Be Greatest of Modern Times—No Official Claim of Utter Defeat of Enemy—Cut Off in Rear Germans Unable to Retreat—Result of Contempt for Russians.

Examiner Special:

PETROGRAD, Nov. 26.—Germany has found her Sedan on the plains of Poland. Officials who have the ear of the Ministry of War have been told that the Russians have won the greatest victory of modern times between the Warthe and the Vistula, and about 60 miles west of Warsaw.

The information is semi-official, and is believed to anticipate by a few hours official confirmation by the general staff. The report is that Grand Duke Nicholas' armies have utterly crushed General von Hindenburg's divided army, have captured or destroyed 100,000 men, and have cut off the retreat of the surviving corps.

The German counter-offensive under Lieut.-Gen. Makkensen was halted 25 miles east of Czenstochowa and driven back. Von Makkensen was forced to abandon von Hindenburg's troops to their fate. Meanwhile, the Russian advance in East Prussia was never delayed an hour, and is reported to-night to be nearing Insterburg.

The unofficial news is that Cossacks are driving Austrian rearguards into Cracow, and that Russians guns are shelling the city from the northeast and the south-east.

RUSSIAN OFFICIAL BULLETIN

PETROGRAD, Nov. 26.—The following official communication from General Headquarters was issued today:

In the battle of Lodz, which continues to develop, the advantage remains secured to our troops.

"The Germans are making strenuous efforts to facilate the retreat of their corps, which, having penetrated in the direction of Brzezny, are now retiring to the region of Strykow under conditions very unfavourable for them.

"On the Austrian front our action continues with success. In the fighting of November 25th we took as many as 8,000 prisoners, including two regiments with their commanders and other officers."

ARMY IS SMASHED.

Petrograd, Nov. 26.—Disaster once more has overtaken the Germans in Poland. Their second army of invasion is smashed. Not only has their flank been cut, but the Russians are well in the rear of the German army.

The battle of Koluski is the crowning victory of the campaign in Poland. What is left of the German army is still being pursued. Surrounded by a wall of Russians and in terror of the steel of the Cossacks, the enemy is fighting with the desperation of despair to regain his own frontier.

When the final cost is counted, Koluski will be found a greater blow to German hopes than either Lemberg or the San.

Koluski, which is about 20 miles directly east of Lodz, and is a junction of three railroads whereby the troops might reach the Vistula Valley was of more importance to the Germans. In order to anticipate a counter-attack, they made a demonstration against Lodz. This effort only infuriated the Russians, who, balked for the moment of their prey over the Silesian border, turned to face the foe on the new quarter.

It has been an axiom among military authorities that the Russians cannot take the offensive. Bury that axiom right here. They took the offensive like maddened wild-cats, and they fought rings around the Germans. Admitting their numerical superiority, their victory is none the less brilliant, considering the difficulties involved in their change of front. The undoing of the Germans was their contempt for the Russians' numbers. You cannot disregard numbers when the opposing troops are as well armed as you are.

Cossacks in Their Glory.

The battle of Kolaski still rages, and straggling regiments of Prussians are even now fighting their way out of the swamps and over the foothills, Cossacks surrounding them like wolves. As the weather turns cold they are burdened with the wounded.

Can the vaunted German organization stand this strain, this last smash? If not, another order for trains to bring back prisoners is due. A sensational feature of the battle was the charge of the Cossacks. Over the infantry they went, up to the mounts of the heavy guns, cutting down the gunners. Some rode off with the guns while the rest continued the pursuit. These fierce riders were satisfying a grudge. A certain German General made a rule to hang every Cossack caught.

Private advices reaching Montreal say that the big wrestler was shot through the legs, and after being wounded, dragged himself along the ground a distance of five or six miles until he was picked up by an auto-

HOW TO PREVENT ACID STOMACHS AND FOOD FERMENTATION

By a Stomach Specialist.

As a specialist who has spent many years in the study and treatment of stomach troubles, I have been forced to the conclusion that most people who complain of stomach trouble possess stomachs that are absolutely healthy and normal. The real trouble, that which causes all the pain and distress, is excessive acid in the stomach, usually due to, or aggravated by, food fermentation. Hyperacidity irritates the delicate lining of the stomach and food fermentation causes wind which distends the stomach abnormally, causing that full bloated feeling. The both acid and fermentation of with and retard the process of digestion. The stomach is usually healthy and normal, but irritated almost past endurance by these foreign elements—acid and wind. In all such cases—and they comprise over 90 per cent. of all stomach difficulties—the first and only step necessary is to neutralize the acid and stop the fermentation by taking in a little warm or cold water immediately after eating, from one to two teaspoonfuls of bisurated magnesia, which is doubtless the best and only really effective antacid and food corrective known. The acid will be neutralized and the fermentation stopped almost instantly, and your stomach will at once proceed to digest the food in a healthy, normal manner. Be sure to ask your druggist for the bisurated magnesia, as I have found other forms utterly lacking in its peculiarly valuable properties.

NEAT TEA COZY.

The Chinese Basket Which Is Conveniently Fitted and Wadded.

The most practical of all tea cozies is the Chinese tea basket, which comes fitted with teapot and two Chinese serving cups. This basket is wadded and lined in characteristic Chinese style and has a strong hasp and metal handle on the cover. It will keep the tea hot for an hour. These baskets come in three sizes of from two to five cups capacity. They are ideal for out of door teas and the automobile. Most attractive are the embroidered linen and the silk cozies which slip over the pot.

Advice to Diners.

In one of the French restaurants in Soho, where there had been a fight a few nights before, the following was at once posted in large type: "The war will be settled abroad. Please do not start anything here."

An enterprising man has printed these placards in large quantities, and is selling them to the restaurants frequented by persons of various nationalities now at war abroad.

Dress Hints.

Shoes that are too tight at the toes interfere with the action of the calf muscles and spoil the shape of the ankles.

Rain spots on cloth need not be regarded hopelessly. Wipe off the way of the nap with a silk handkerchief or very soft brush. If this be done quickly no marks will remain.

To remove from suede or chamois gloves the shiny spots made by rubbing—of a bracelet, for example—rub them gently with fine emery or glass paper. Then rub them well with bran and shake or brush.

LOOK!

If you were told of a new discovery for the treatment of coughs, colds and bronchitis, as certain in its action on all chest troubles as anti-toxin is on diphtheria, or vaccination on small-pox, wouldn't you feel like giving it a trial? Especially if you could try it for fifty cents!

Peps is the discovery!

Peps are little tablets, neatly wrapped in air and germ-proof silver foil. They contain certain medicinal ingredients, which, when placed upon the tongue, immediately turn into vapour, and are at once breathed down the air passages to the lungs. On their journey, they soothe the inflamed and irritated membranes of the bronchial tubes, the delicate walls of the air passages, and finally enter and carry relief and healing to the capillaries and tiny air cells in the lungs.

In a word, while no liquid or solid can get to the lungs and air passages, these Peps fumes get there direct, and at once commence their work of healing.

Peps are entirely distinct from the old fashioned liquid cough cures, which are merely swallowed into the stomach, and never reach the lungs. Peps treatment of coughs and colds is direct treatment.

If you have not yet tried Peps, cut out this article, write across it the name and date of this paper, and mail it (with 1c. stamp to pay return postage) to Peps Co., Toronto. A free trial packet will then be sent you. All druggists and stores sell Peps at 50c. box.

PEPS

Desolate St. Pierre.

St. Pierre, with its 30,000 inhabitants, destroyed by the eruption of Mount Pelee, has never been rebuilt. This city is as barren as an abandoned granite quarry, and reminds the visitor of Pompeii. Even yet the ruins are being searched for valuables, although the place is still under police control. Two or three streets have been excavated and some half dozen temporary buildings erected; but otherwise little has been done.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Morning Cold Baths.

The early morning cold bath is beneficial only to those persons who possess sufficient vital energy and nervous force to insure a good reaction with no subsequent langnor or lassitude. If one feels greatly refreshed after one's morning bath, but two or three hours afterwards feels tired or languid, there is sufficient evidence that the practice is injurious, and should be discontinued.

Those who have an ample supply of blood and flesh, who possess a lymphatic or sluggish temperament and whose nervous force is not depleted may indulge in their morning bath to advantage.

Those inclined to be thin, whose hands and feet upon slight provocation become cold and clammy, who digest their food rather slowly and assimilate it with difficulty, who are nervous and are burdened mentally, all such individuals should avoid bathing during the early morning hours.

Prince of Piedmont, Heir to Italian Throne.

Prince Humbert, heir to the Italian throne, better known by his official title as Prince of Piedmont, was born ten years ago. In the early summer he embarked on the man-of-war Puglia with a naval tutor for a cruise in the Mediterranean. Heretofore the young prince has spent his summers with his mother and three sisters, but he wants to be a sailor and therefore went to sea. Doubtless his sail was of short duration, as conditions in the Mediterranean are anything but peaceful. The naval training of the Italian crown prince is a departure from established custom of the house of Savoy, for since the time of its founder, Umbertus I. in 1032, all heirs of the house have been brought up as soldiers.

Word Guessing.

"Haven't you something new for us, Aunt Ruth?" asked Bertha.

"I'm afraid I am thought out," Aunt Ruth said, laughing. "Though I believe something did pop into my head the other night.

"It isn't much of a game," she said presently, "but it may help out some of these rainy hours."

The four drew their chairs nearer, alert to hear what Aunt Ruth had to tell.

"We will begin with the first five letters of the alphabet. Alice, Bertha and Carl may as well use their initials, and Norton and I will take D and E. Alice, you may give us the definition of a word whose first or last letter is A. Then we will try to guess it."

"Well," said Alice, "my letter ends something I like in puddings and cakes."

"Sugar!" shouted Norton, and then joined in the laugh at his blunder.

"Vanilla," guessed Carl, which was right.

"Mine begins something we cannot live without," said Bertha.

"Bread?" ventured Alice.

"No. Besides, we can live without that."

"Breakfast?" asked Norton.

"No, indeed. Plenty of people don't eat breakfast."

"Breath," guessed Aunt Ruth, and then it was her turn.

"It ends a precious stone," said Aunt Ruth.

"Sapphire!" cried Norton.

"Right. Now give us a D word."

"Something I like to eat," said Norton.

"Dates," guessed Carl.

"Dumplings?" asked Aunt Ruth.

"No," laughed Norton.

"What can it be?" wondered Alice.

The tinkle of a bell in the hallway told them it was dinner time.

"Let's go out and get it!" shouted Norton.

"Oh, dinner!" they cried. "Why didn't we think of that before?"—Youth's Companion.

Legend of the Phoenix.

The phoenix of legendary lore was a delightfully interesting bird not only because of its beauty, having a purple body and a gold collar with a glorious tail of blue and pink feathers and a splendid crest, but because it had to die every 500 years by being burned to ashes. A small worm would be found in these ashes, which became a bird on the second day and a phoenix on the third, warranted to last 500 years. And because of this pretty legend the phoenix rising from its ashes is sometimes represented in churches as an emblem of immortality.

Providing For Old Horses.

A certain Herr Franz Bizony, who died not long ago, was a great lover of animals. He dwelt at Miskolcz, Hungary, and in his will bequeathed $64,000 to the city for the founding of a home for old horses.

More than a hundred horses, donkeys, cats, dogs and birds had their homes in outhouses and stables on his property during his lifetime. With the exception of his manservant, it is said that Herr Bizony had not seen another human being for twelve years before his death.

It is better to use a little ammonia in the water in which white paint is to be washed, than to use soap, even the best soap. Care should be taken not to employ too much of the ammonia.

Fine lace curtains should be soaked in lukewarm water, then placed in strong suds, made from white soap; soap should never be rubbed directly on the curtains, nor should they be put on a washboard. They should be wrung out by hand, and when a darker tint is desired, coffee is the best and safest thing to use. Have coffee well strained, through a bit of cheesecloth.

THE COLLEGE GIRL

Gifts That Make Her Keep Absent Friends In Mind.

JOLLY FAREWELL SHOWERS.

At These Her Chums May Say Adieu and Present Her With the Parting Token That Is to Insure Remembrance During Absence.

When Polly or Betty announces that she is to go to college or boarding school when the term opens fond friends and relatives are on the alert, for Polly or Betty cannot be permitted to depart to academic halls without some token to keep the absent in mind. And so there is a patient searching of the shops, a relentless fine combing of memories, to settle the question as to what the Polly or Betty would best like. The majority of conclusions is in favor of something pretty. A gift that is both useful and attractive is, however, more likely to go with her to college halls than the simply pretty, for the number of trinkets that can be taken along is necessarily limited.

say farewell to her under the most delightful circumstances. There should be a little spread at which the decorations are in the future alma mater's colors. Each guest may bring a gift tied with the colors and containing an appropriate sentiment, or all may unite in buying some one useful souvenir.

A reading lamp like the one illustrated is a useful and attractive gift. The modern school is equipped with electricity, and an electric lamp, chafing dish or iron is among the gifts in this line which will be appreciated. With the iron, wrinkled garments may be pressed out in an emergency.

Boxes of all kinds are useful. The little enameled affair shown is nice as a bonbon, jewel or powder box. It is a charming idea to enamel it with the initial of the recipient.

COMPROMISE STYLE.

This Combines the Best Features of the Various Methods of Serving.

In the compromise table service some things are served in the English way, while others are passed as in the Russian. As an example, soup may be served from the pantry in bowls or plates to each guest; the host may carve the roast; the vegetable platters and the salad course, with its dressing, wafers, etc., may be passed by the waitress and the desserts served by the hostess.

This is a favored style with those who cannot command trained service or as many as might be required to serve a large dinner.

The soup plates are removed, then the large meat platter placed before the host, who proceeds to carve, while the various vegetables are being dished in the kitchen. These are then handed to each guest in turn, always from the left hand, by the waitress. She removes everything to serve the salad and can then be preparing the coffee, etc., for the last course while guests are partaking of the dessert served by the hostess.

An Emergency Scheme.

Often it is inconvenient to get a yeast cake at a moment's notice, so one kept on hand would prove convenient. This is the way to keep one, in whole or in part—simply immerse it in flour or salt until needed.

Born of an Odor.

Professor Alexander Graham Bell once gave an account, which is here condensed, of an invention founded on a smell.

First, a chemist detected in sulphuric acid waste an odor which on analysis was found to come from a hitherto unknown substance. This was called silenium.

Second, silenium, crystallized was found to be a conductor of electricity of phenomenally high resistance.

Third, the new resistant, having been put to use in place of whole coils of wire to balance the Atlantic cable during the period of laying, was found to have at night twice its resisting power of the daytime.

KAISER'S BROTHER TRAINED HIS NAVY

Prince Henry of Prussia Had Control During Period of Evolution—Popular in Germany

To fill the role of a monarch's brother is frequently a thankless part. It has been known to be nebulous and decorative besides, and few have played it worthily. Prince Henry of Prussia, brother of the Kaiser, is a striking exception to the general rule.

No man of the reign has rendered his country more effective service than the Sailor Prince, who, as Inspector-General of the German navy, is the ranking officer of the fleet which flies the Hohenzollern flag. If Grand Admiral von Tirpitz may be described as the creator of the Kaiser's fleet, Grand Admiral Prince Henry may be called its trainer.

PRINCE HENRY OF PRUSSIA

Commander-in-Chief of the Active Battle Fleet, as the High Seas Fleet was formerly known, at the moment when it was undergoing conversion into a navy of dreadnoughts, Prince Henry was in supreme charge of Germany's sea forces at the most critical moment of their existence.

The arrival of the all-big-gun and dreadnought displacement era had effected a complete revolution in the naval practices of the world, strategy and gunnery required to be overhauled and remade. It was under the personal supervision of the Kaiser's brother that the German navy rose to the emergency with promptitude and thoroughness and made itself ready, as if overnight, to hold its own in the new conditions of sea warfare.

That is why the Admiral Royal, whose pictures so often make him look like a twin of King George or the Czar, holds a place in the affections of his Fatherland almost second to none. Germans have had few national idols since Bismarck. Prince Henry is one of them.

All the members of the Burton-on-Trent Rugby Club volunteered for service, sixty-nine being in the new army and four in the Legion of Frontiersmen.

Answered.

The professor of economic was discoursing eloquently on the need of leadership in all things, and from the greatness of the leader he plunged into a discussion of the essentials to leadership. "And what," he exclaimed, "is the great characteristic of all born leaders, the first great essential to successful leadership?" He paused that the question and its import might be fully appreciated. "What is it?" he asked again.

A small voice, coming from the rear of the room, answered cheerfully, "Ready ability to satisfactorily explain what the other fellow says about you!"

Made a Record.

Captured as a Confederate soldier at Fort Donelson, escaping and re-enlisting and again captured in Morgan's Ohio raid, and finally dying associate justice of the supreme court of the United States, the late Justice Lurton's career was a remarkable one in many ways, and possible only, perhaps, in the United States.—New York World.

Necessity invents some things which ought not to be.

DISTRIBUTION OF SUPERIOR GRAINS AND POTATOES

A distribution of superior sorts of grains and potatoes will be made during the coming winter and spring to Canadian farmers, in three to five pound packages. The samples for general distribution will consist of spring wheat, white oats, barley, and field peas. These will be sent out from Ottawa. A distribution of potatoes will be carried on from several of the experimental farms, the Central Farm at Ottawa supplying only the provinces of Ontario and Quebec. All samples will be sent free, by mail.

Applicants must give particulars in regard to the soil on their farms, and some account of their experience with such kinds of grain (or potatoes) as they have grown, so that a promising sort for their conditions may be selected.

Each application must be separate, and must be signed by the applicant. Only one sample of grain and one of potatoes can be sent to each farm. If both samples are asked for in the same letter only one will be sent. Applications on any kind of printed form cannot be accepted. As the supply of seed is limited, farmers are advised to apply early; but the applications will not necessarily be filled in the exact order in which they are received. Preference will always be given to the most thoughtful and explicit requests. Applications received after the end of January will probably be too late.

All applications for grain (and applications from the provinces of Ontario and Quebec for potatoes) should be addressed to the Dominion Cerealist, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. Such applications require no postage. Applications, for potatoes, from farmers in any other provinces should be addressed (postage prepaid) to the Superintendent of the nearest Branch Experimental Farm in that province. —Farm and Dairy.

A WEAK CHESTED BOY.

"My boy Frank seemed weak-chested and took a very severe cold," writes Mrs. D. Stevens, Ninga, Man. "The many medicines used did not seem to benefit him, until we tried Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and found it to be exactly what was wanted to cure him." No treatment is so thorough and effective as a cure for croup and bronchitis.

THE ONLY WAY.

He was a very raw recruit, and particularly stupid at that. The drill-sergeant did not know what to do with him. He had tried patience, he had tried language; all in vain.

"Squad — halt-" yelled the sergeant.

The double rank of men obeyed, but the very raw recruit marched gaily on.

"Fitzmoney!" shouted the sergeant.

"Yus, sargint."

"Did ye ever drive a donkey?"

"Yus, sargint."

"What did ye say to him when ye wanted him to stop?"

"I said 'Whoa,' sargint."

Danger Signals Warn You of Approaching Paralysis

Slowly and Surely Exhaustion Goes on Until Collapse of the Nerves is the Natural Result.

You may be restless, nervous, irritable and sleepless, but you think there is nothing to be alarmed at. You have no appetite, digestion is impaired, and there is weakness and irregularity of other bodily organs. You feel tired in body and mind, and find that you lack the energy to attend to the daily task.

MRS. ALLAN.

You may not realize that these are the symptoms of nervous prostration and the danger signals which warn you that some form of paralysis is the next step of development.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the most successful restorative for the nerves that has ever been offered to the public. This has been proven in many thousands of cases similar to the one described in this letter.

Mrs. Thos. Allan, R.F.D., 2, Sombra, Ont., writes:—"Five years ago I suffered a complete breakdown, and frequently had palpitation of the heart. Since that illness I have had dizzy spells, had no power over my limbs (locomotor ataxia) and could not walk straight. At night I would have severe nervous spells, with heart palpitation, and would shake as though I had the ague. I felt improvement after using the first box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and after continuing the treatment can now walk, eat and sleep well, have no nervous spells and do not require heart medicine. I have told several of my neighbors of the splendid results obtained from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

Shackleton says:

Now that times are difficult you can be sure of being nourished if you take Bovril. But, as Shackleton says:

"It must be Bovril."

FOLLOWING THE MASTER'S EXAMPLE

"Now as He walked by the Sea of Galilee, He saw Simon and Andrew his brother, casting a net into the sea: for they were fishers. And Jesus said unto them, 'Come ye after Me.'"—Mark 1: 16, 17.

This verse is typical of the ranks from which Christ drew His first co-workers, not from the rich, the more powerful, the more influential, but from the poorer, the more humble, the less influential. Yet in the majority of our churches it is the former that are sought after, and courted, not the latter.

Why will we not give a welcoming hand shake, nor a condescending one, not a patronizing one, but a close, hearty one, to the man with the ragged coat, the sin-marked face, the discouraged heart; and the worse the rags, the more evil the face, the deeper the discouragement, the more he needs our church and our help.

Passing through a poorer section of a city lately, I saw a stirring, rousing sight. A place was being dug out for the foundation of a new church, evidently to be a very large one. There were working old men and little boys and girls. Evidently the able bodied ones were at their ordinary daily work. The aged ones were digging and filling the wheel-barrows which the younger were carrying off and then emptying elsewhere. As I looked at the happy, busy crowd, all more or less poorly dressed, I pictured the church that was to be complete and when finished the result of love's labor. Judging from the scene I thought the congregation would be such as thronged around our Saviour, such, too, the earliest members of His church.

Recently also a Social Service meeting was held at which many different labor organizations were represented, as well as other societies, including members from the Ministerial Association. In the course of the proceedings the first named upbraided the last for lack of knowledge, sympathy and cooperation with their interests. Two ministers answered; one acknowledged the justice of the charge, and said he would do anything in his power to work with them. He realized the gulf of separation, but was doing his best to bridge it, and the men realized he was. The other minister made a long speech, and in many respects a fine one, but the whole tone was so condescending, though he had not the slightest idea of it, that the gulf was only broadened and deepened.

If Christ's teachings had been conscientiously followed such a gulf would never have existed. If we wish to draw all classes into the church, and help them there, we must follow our Saviour's example, as He mingled with men, and must enter into their lives, their needs, and their work.—I. H. N. —Farm and Dairy.

HAD HYSTERICS AND FAINTING SPELLS

Asbury Park Woman Had Complete Nervous Breakdown—Restored to Health by Vinol.

Asbury Park, N.J.—"I was in such a nervous, weak, run-down condition that I could not sleep nights, every little thing disturbed me, my appetite was very poor, and I was losing flesh. I was so nervous at times that I used to faint and have hysterics. I do my housework for a family of four, and they became alarmed at my condition. I tried beef, iron and wine and cod liver oil emulsions without benefit. One day our druggist suggested that I try Vinol and told me how it had helped others. I did so, and it has simply done wonders for me, as I am a well woman and entirely cured of my nervousness."—Mrs. KATHERINE E. KLEIN, Asbury Park, N.J.

Such reliable testimony should convince others of the value of Vinol, therefore if you are worn out, weak and nervous and want new strength and more vitality, we ask you to take Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic. If it fails to benefit you we give back your money.

Vinol is a constitutional remedy for all weak, nervous and run-down conditions of men, women and children.

WHEN THE WAR CLOUDS HAVE ALL PASSED AWAY

WHEN the war clouds roll away and we calmly survey the developments of the present with the wisdom of the future a feature that will be given a prominent place will be the self-sacrificing service of the women who wait at home. And prominent among them all will be the members of the Women's Institutes of Ontario. Every session of their convention in Toronto last week thrilled with the spirit of patriotism. But it is in deeds that these women excel.

"We have received from the Women's Institutes so far about $30,000 in cash and 525 large packages of material," reported Mr. Noel Marshall on behalf of the Red Cross Society. "To the women of your institutes we owe practically one-twelfth of the entire contribution of the Dominion to Red Cross and relief work." At one of the sessions Dr. Margaret Patterson, who presided, sat behind a mound of Balaclava caps, stockings and kit bags, reminders of the great work now being done by women of the institute. The majority of the speeches dealt with the work of the hour.

For Better Citizenship.

But work incidental to war has not caused the Women's Institute to lose sight of its greater work, the building of a better citizenship in Canada. This object the women hope to attain by public effort as well as individual service. An excellent opportunity to expound the public aims of the Institute was given to Miss E. J. Guest, of Belleville, when she presided at the Wednesday night meeting at which Premier Hearst was one of the speakers. "We are working for medical inspection in the schools," Miss Guest informed her audience. "We already have the best system of medical school inspection in Toronto in the world. We have found through investigation that country school children are just as defective as those of the city. We aim to extend this inspection work through the whole province."

Other "wants" mentioned by Miss Guest were a bureau of child welfare and more liberal provision for the instruction of mothers. "If $50,000,000 isn't too much to give to slaughter people, it isn't too much to give to build up better people," she declared amidst applause. And finally, taking advantage of her excellent opportunity, she informed the Premier in no undecided manner that the women want the vote. "The one thing that women once believed man could do alone, but which they have now found that he can't." Premier Hearst, in his address, which followed, made no pronouncement on the important subject thus brought to his attention.

Women and War

President Falconer, of Toronto University, paid a fine tribute to the humanitarianism of woman. "I am persuaded," said he, "that had the women of Germany had years ago the same influence that Canadian women now have, there would not have been war." He then told of the influence of the Empress Augustine being used to thwart the blood-thirsty policy of Bismarck, who refers in his memoirs with irritation to "politicians in petticoats," whom he, Bismarck, believed were too much influenced by humane English thought.

"We must look to the healthy youth of the country for the recruiting of our universities," said President Falconer in discussing the university in its relation to people. Of the student body at Toronto 1,300 are from the city of Toronto and 2,400 from the country and smaller towns. The group of enlightened young men and women who leave the university each year are a power for democracy, and this the President regarded as one of the greatest works of the Institution of which he is the head. A new tendency in educational development is for the university, through extension work, to carry knowledge to the larger student body without its walls.

Belgium Learns From Ontario

The foremost place occupied by the Women's Institute of Ontario was shown in a striking manner by C. C. James when he stated that their fame had reached Belgium, that the Belgium government had sent an investigator across the Atlantic to enquire into their organization, and that as a result Women's Institutes had been introduced in Belgium. Proceeding to his theme, "The Agricultural Problems of the Day," Mr. James called for two improvements that would hold the people on the land. "Farming must be made profitable and country life must be made attractive." The latter, he thought, depends largely on the women, and they must work through three agencies, the rural home, the rural church and the rural school.

Speaking more particularly of the latter, the speaker made a strong plea for consolidated schools. "It is the surest, readiest solution," he declared. "At present we have five or six little schools in a district, a girl in charge of each, a city girl perhaps, who knows nothing of rural problems. Her hands are full with pupils of all ages and in all stages of learning. It is not her fault that she cannot give efficient instruction. We have never yet measured up in our ideas of the education to which the country child is entitled."

Manitoba consolidated schools were cited as a proof of their practicability. In one district a consolidated school took the place of seven schools and seven teachers. There are now six teachers and a modern school building. All of the teachers are specialists. The average attendance has increased 27 per cent and the children are continuing their studies longer. The principal is paid $1,500. "That means greater efficiency," concluded Mr. James. "You can't get efficiency unless you pay for it. You can't pay for it unless you consolidate."

Community Hospitality

"The Stranger Within Our Gates" was the subject dealt with in a sympathetic and enlightened manner by Mrs. J. M. Godfrey, of Port Credit. Mrs. Godfrey called attention to what the European immigrant has done for Canada. It is now our problem to do something for the immigrant to make him a good citizen. His children, the speaker contended, were equal mentally and morally to any Canadian child. To give them proper education she suggested securing the assistance of the school trustees, so that the village school might be made a community centre as a basis for bringing the foreigner into the life of the people. The agricultural laborer, she said with truth, was prone to desert the agricultural district from pure lack of sympathy and companionship.

The foreign woman in our midst whose children will be Canadians, and, therefore, whose environment should be considered as having effect in their after life as valuable citizens, was the object of a sympathetic talk from Mrs. Dawson, of Parkhill. She, too, laid much stress on the importance of the school. They should be looked after morally and literally. The children sent from careful nurture in sanitary homes must have these surroundings not lowered among intellectual efforts; and who can better supervise the school work than the mother. "Twenty-five years devoted to home still leaves 20 years for state and community," said Mrs. Dawson. "An intelligent mother never stops growth, but widening in knowledge, judgment and sympathy may well be a power for good in a community."

Education for Defective Children

A strong plea for the education of children, either mentally or physically defective, was made by Dr. Helen MacMurchie. "At present, she said, absolutely nothing is being done for these unfortunates who really require more attention and consideration than normal children. It is from their ranks, due to this neglect, that criminals are largely recruited. Another medical authority of the Women's Institute, Mrs. Wilson, of Parkhill, estimated that 50 to 90 per cent of the children in rural schools were suffering from defective eyesight. Was it any wonder, she asked, that the rural districts were unpromising to the benefits of medical inspection.

Probably no feature of the proceedings bore stronger testimony to the vigor with which the Institute is pursuing its work than the reports from the various branches. The spirit that dominates everywhere is that of helpfulness to each other. Of all the work of the branches, Superintendent Geo. A. Putnam considered the rest room one of the best.

It would seem that the appreciation in which Mr. Putnam holds the Women's Institutes is equalled by the appreciation in which Mr. Putnam is held by its membership. "The one man in Ontario who can get along with 25,000 women," with all due ceremony, was presented with a purse of gold at the meeting in Convocation Hall, with which it was suggested that he buy a car in which to visit the branch Institutes "in case the government is willing to supply the gasoline."

Altogether there were some 500 or 600 delegates present at the 13th Annual Convention. They packed the Foresters' Hall to the doors. If one may judge from the spirit of the convention the outlook for still better work in the future is surely promising.

"It ain't everybody I'd trust my little gal to," said old Farmer Skinner to the love-lorn swain who in the far West had become enamored of Miss Sally Skinner, and wished to carry her from the loving care and shelter of her home nest.

The "little gal," who was five feet eleven inches high in her bare feet, as she was at that moment, hid her happy, blushing face on the dear, fond old father's shoulder, and wept happy tears, as he said to Sally's deeply-moved and sympathetic young lover, "You must take good care of my wee birdling, Jack; recollect that she has been raised kind o' tender like.

"Two acres a day is all I've asked her to plow and an acre of corn a day is all she is used to hoeing. She kin do light work, such as making rail fences and digging post holes and burning brush, and all that, but she ain't used to regular farm work, and you mustn't ask too much of her. It's hard for her old dad to give his little sunshine up. He'll have to split his own firewood and dig his own taters now, but go, birdie, and be happy."—London Tid Bits.

"You're trying hard to be a man, it seems," said the disgusted husband the other day to his wife.

"Well," she replied, "don't you think we need one in the family?"

ECZEMA AND SORE EYES.

"My daughter suffered from inflamed eyelids and eczema on her head," writes Mr. E. W. Lear, Port Planford, Nfld. "The child was in a bad state and suffered greatly. The doctor failed to help her and on recommendation of a friend, I used Dr. Chase's Ointment, which made a complete cure. With a grateful heart I write you this letter."

Order of the White Feather.

How the women of England are urging the men to fight for the Union Jack is indicated in expedients adopted in several towns recently to shame able-bodied men who have so far not answered the call. At Deal a group of pretty girls distributed white feathers to a crowd of young men, who accepted them jokingly as "favors" and wore them in their buttonholes. They were greatly discomfited a little later when the town crier announced throughout the city that the men had been "decorated with the order of the White Feather for shirking their duty and failing to respond to the call for defenders of the Union Jack."

Boy Scouts' Work.

Among the duties which the Boy Scouts are prepared to carry out are the establishment of communications as despatch riders, signallers, and wireless operators, guarding bridges, culverts, and telegraph lines against damage by individual spies.

Every Tenth Person Called.

Ten per cent. of the population of Thetford are serving either as Territorials or Reserves in the defence of their country. This is believed to be a record for any town in England.

HOW A HERO DIED

An Englishman returned from France, tells how, making his way by the banks of the Aisne in an attempt to take cigarettes to the troops, he came across a solitary grave near Choisy-au-Bac. Twice he passed it, and his attention was arrested by the fact that kindly hands each day strewed fresh flowers over it. On the pontoon bridge nearby a French detachment was keeping guard, and the soldiers explained that the lonely grave was the last resting place of an English soldier who, quite alone, had there fought his last fight till overwhelmed by numbers.

During the great retreat he had strayed from his comrades and fallen exhausted from fatigue. Unable to find them he took up his quarters in an abandoned carriage, but thirty-six hours later the Germans appeared on the other side of the Aisne and fired at him. Undeterred by the fact that he was utterly alone he replied, and such was his determination and accuracy of aim that, the village declared, he accounted for six German officers, one of them a general, before he fell under a volley. The French buried him where he had fought, erected a cross, and in honor of his gallantry laid fresh flowers each day on his grave.

Standing beside it uncovered they told how the soldier died a soldier's death, and then showed the inquirer the ruined carriage, in which the shot marks bore testimony to the fierceness of the fight. At the Mairie a certificate was issued that there was buried on September 10th, 1914, David M. Kay (No. 2654), of the 5th Lancers.

End of Turkey in Europe

By attacking Russia, Turkey has committed suicide as a European Power. The very suddenness of the act, with no formal declaration of war, reveals its desperate nature. No one will doubt that the original inspiration came from Berlin. Germany could not wait long enough to respect the neutrality of Belgium, and Turkey could not wait long enough to give her a plausible excuse for war.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

TAKING NEW NAMES

Germans in England Getting Rid of Unpopular Cognomens

Nearly 300 Germans in England have changed their names for British ones by legal process since the beginning of the war. All who have done this are either British-born or naturalized British subjects. No alien is granted legal authority to change his name. The following are a few of the German names and the British names which have replaced them, as they appear in the register kept at the law courts:

Klussman—Maclaren.
Rosenthal—Rodney.
Kelsch—Bathurst.
Howits—Howard.
Schnaack—Mayman.
Schwerzi—Vincent.
Stohwasser—Stowe.
Grantwag—Grantway.
Koenig—Kingsley.
Dunkiesbuhler—Duncan.
Weinchank—Wynne.
Eichels—Eccles.
Kuss—Cuss.
Brueggemeyer—Bridges.

A few people contented themselves with simply translating their German names. Thus, "Schloss," became "Castle," and "Von Schwars" became "Black." The most effective expression of change of name, nationality, and loyalty is, perhaps, that of the man who substituted "King" for "Kaiser."

Was Troubled With Eczema.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS CURED HIM.

Mr. R. J. Swales, Hagriston, Ont., writes: "I have been a great sufferer with eczema. I tried all kinds of salves, but they did me no good. Sometimes I would nearly yell with the pain, and would pass little white worms. I was told to get at the blood, so I used four bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters, and it has made a complete cure."

All skin diseases such as eczema or salt rheum, itching or burning rashes, boils, pimples, eruptions, ulcers, etc., are all caused by the blood becoming impoverished, and while not usually attended with any fatal results, may sooner or later develop into some serious blood trouble, and the entire system become affected.

Burdock Blood Bitters will cleanse the blood of all its impurities and by this means cure all skin and blood troubles.

This valuable preparation has been on the market for the last forty years, so you do not make any experiment when you give it a trial.

CHAPTER VII.

A Chief Borrows From a Chief.

ON going into the little street she noticed the chief in earnest conference with his daughter and an old native woman whom Lucille had no recollection of seeing about the village before. Had she but known this was but another servile tool of Hugo Loubeque's what future dangers she might have been saved! Coming closer, she knew that it was a stranger. Moreover from the light upon the crone's wrinkled countenance and the furious gesticulations she made toward her she felt that she was the object of controversy. And the daughter of the old chief seemed adding her pleas to those of the old woman with effect.

Lucille stood a little apart, watching the conference as it disbanded. She had picked up enough of the language to make out an occasional word, but the gestures of the three had been unmistakable. She waited quietly while the trio approached her, feeling that in some way the problem that had been harassing her was to be answered without further worry on her part.

She smiled at the chief's efforts to make her understand what he desired of her, smiled and shook her head as the withered old woman made an equally unsuccessful attempt. But the little girl took the situation in hand.

Without much difficulty Lucille made out from the child that the old woman came from a chief greater than her father, who lived in a village not far distant; that the wonder of her curative ability had reached his ears, and he earnestly prayed the white woman be loaned his own wife for a nurse, that she might be cured of an illness which seemed certain to be fatal.

Lucille saw from the glum expression on the old chief's face that, even though it might bring him into trouble with his neighbor chief, he was more than loath to part with her. She also saw that the child, with the remembrance of her own illness fresh upon her, had allowed her heart to go out to the wife in such sympathy that she had persuaded her father to permit the loaning.

Her heart gave a great throb of delight at this unexpected answer to her prayer. She had known there would be trouble getting away with the papers just as she had determined that she must leave. There was no possible chance of regaining civilization from here. There might be no chance in another place, but there was hope, and, while it was meager sustenance, anything was better than the strain of knowing impossibility. Anything appealed to her so long as it embraced a change, for change spelled renewed hope. Then, too, Hugo Loubeque would be temporarily at least thrown off the trail.

In an hour she had mounted the chief's own horse, her very soul rejoicing at the familiar feel of an easy canter. Beside her rode the old woman, mumbling continually to herself as though she were keeping track of the devious turns in the wilderness of vegetation through which their way led.

Once Lucille was conscious of a vague feeling of mistrust as she looked back at the squat figure of the old woman ambling along stolidly as some heathen idol, only her ratlike eyes emitting flashes of fire from between the layers of wrinkled, brown, drooping lids.

Faster, faster she urged her horse as she saw a clear stretch of trail opening before her, her hand continually reaching up and feeling the precious burden about her neck. Then she looked back for her escort, when the ground seemed to grow soft, to slip up from under her mount's hoofs and send her hurtling down—down—down—she knew not where nor why—down into blackness at which her hands clutched vainly, clutching nothing from the dark—down into a blackness that seemed stifling her until it reached up and mercifully compassed her consciousness.

* * * * * * *

Hugo Loubeque curtly dismissed the withered crone who handed him the sack containing the documents Lucille had worn about her neck. In his eyes glowed no light of triumph. First they had lighted with a strange relief, but now they seemed fastened upon a memory filled with vague regret as he visualized the girl, lying helpless at

Suddenly he sprang to his feet, once more the man of action. Pity this girl daughter of the woman he hated, he might, but she was out the door to the supine while he made away with the papers for which she had gone through so much already. Suddenly he tore open the bag, dumping the contents out before him and running through them nervously. When he looked up the light of disappointment, almost fear, was upon his face.

The amulet, the sacred amulet which had served her so well, would continue to serve her so well as long as she continued in this land, was still in her possession. He had failed to rob the crone to steal that also. And the old woman had reported that she was merely stunned. The sacred amulet which would make her revered by any savage she chanced to meet was still here, while he, Hugo Loubeque, would find every hand against him.

He moved swiftly now, preparing for his long journey through the jungle, away from her zealous pursuit and toward possible relief, for so long as he remained here Lucille had every one for friend and assistant, while he had only those he might gain through fear.

* * * * * * *

Lucille stirred, opened her eyes in bewilderment, unable to piece together any connection between the black hole in which she found herself and the narrow trail through the jungle along which she had urged her horse. Gradually it all came back to her. Her hands sought her bosom, and, with a little groan of utter misery, she gave way to uncontrollable sobs.

The reaction did her good, worked wonders with her. In that spell of self pity father, home, sweetheart, everything, was forgotten before the horror of her own predicament. Finished with it, she gathered every faculty, mental and physical, and scrambled to her feet. Above her as she lifted her eyes she made out a streak of light, threaded between aisles of dense leafiness—the sun piercing home into the jungle. She moved forward, her hands before her, groping. Something soft and motionless and so still it caused her to shudder met the toe of her boot. She drew back in swift alarm, knowing it to be the body of the horse she had ridden, a great feeling of gratefulness at her own escape from a similar fate warming her through and through.

Mastering the innate repulsion within her, she stepped upon the corpse, her hands reaching up and finding the smooth edge of the hole that had been dug across the roadway to entrap her. Her fingers found the roots of a tree, roots so stout they bore her weight. For a moment she waited, gathering her failing strength for the supreme effort. Then she sprang up, gathering her knees under her, relaxing slightly before putting forward every ounce of her strength and drawing herself to the warm surface of the road.

About her on every side the jungle breathed, loathsome, fetid, horrible. Like some giant monster it seemed to spread its myriad tentacles in every direction, barring egress, fastening upon the one who should so stray within it, sucking at one's very vitals. The chatter of monkeys and the shrieks of birds filled the air.

But no odds how bleak the prospect, how forlorn the hope, one always feels courage renewed when one has just glimpsed a greater danger and averted it. Lucille had known within the quarter hour the horror of blindness, and her heart leaped high with joy at being able to see these things. In this same jungle with her, in quite as bad a predicament, was Hugo Loubeque, and with Hugo Lobeque were the papers she had fought so hard to recover. She spoke aloud, her voice trilling a note so foreign to this black abode that even the animal life was silenced in amaze. "He shall not keep the papers long!" were her words.

The thought braced her as would a douse of cold water. To right, to left, before her and behind was naught but jungle. Which way should she turn to come across the international spy? She felt the amulet about her neck with nervous, plucking fingers, as though seeking to read the answer there. Safety lay behind, back along the trail in the village of the chief who had so reluctantly permitted her to answer the trumped up message from his neighbor. But she did not wish safety. She wanted the papers and civilization. In which direction to go she must leave to the power that had guided her steps so far, but she knew she must make quick choice.

As though her question was to be answered for her, she noticed the chatter of the monkeys suddenly changing, observed a wild alarm in their voices, and, looking up, saw a host, an army of them, huddled close together, then slipping swiftly in wild disorder from tree to tree. Lucille felt a thrill of something more than uneasiness coming upon her as she stared into the blackness to make out the reason for their alarm. Swiftly she shrank back before the blazing balls of fire that were fastened upon her from the heavy wall of vines and creepers.

Again that crackling of twigs, this time in greater volume, and where before but one pair of wild eyes had stared at her there were now many eyes. She recollected the fires her savage friends had built of nights that the jungle beasts might not disturb them. But she had no means of fighting a fire. She was alone, with nothing to assist her save her own ingenuity. She retreated slowly, fear hanging upon her feet, holding her back even as low growls indicated that her retreat was observed and would probably be taken for a sign of fear.

At the sound the trees were shaken violently by another rush of the little tree men. It gave her an idea instantly. Even as the apes grew ominously into long, graceful curves Lucille crouched up and grasped the thick walls of creepers dangling from a giant trunked tree. Came a rush so silent and swift record she could hear but the faint pat, pat of the leopard's feet followed by a heavy click of jaws. Instantly she drew her feet up under her and, fear lending impetus to her movements, clambered swiftly up the vines until the welcome crotch of the tree supported her.

Higher and higher she climbed until the terrifying sight of the leopards contorting the tree was shut from her eyes by the heavy foliage beneath. Climbed until her muscles ached, climbed until even the crunching of twigs beneath failed to reach up to her.

Beneath her swayed the jungle. Above her increased a myriad of stars. Like peepholes in some great theater curtain they were through which the master player might watch what was going on in his world. They thrilled Lucille with their familiarity. So long she had been here in this jungle she seemed to have forgotten the existence of stars, regarded them as old friends. These same stars that looked down upon her now were looking down upon Manila, upon her father, upon her sweetheart. These same stars were enablers of truth that would not, could not, unblushingly look upon such a disaster as threatened her being consummated.

And then her eyes were raised, stayed in their review of the stars by the sight of a long, thin spiral of smoke rising and reaching up toward the stars in wispy fragility. It came from miles to the westward. But Lucille knew that smoke for fire and the fire to be that lighted by human hands.

This story can be seen in Photo-Play at the Royal Theatre, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of each week.

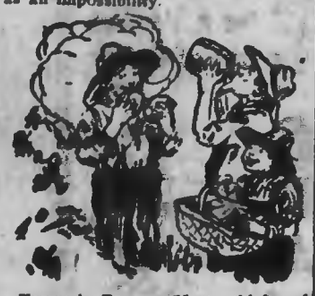
Bring Back Your Appetite

With a Little Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet, the Secret of Perfect Digestion.

You should see our farmers and their boys eating in the fields. On the farm five meals a day is the rule. No one ever has stomach trouble because meals are digested and people live normally.

In the city we lose our "pep" and indigestion, dyspepsia, stomach trouble, etc., make us look on five meals as an impossibility.



Farmer's Boy — "Just think of brother Joe in the city. He can't eat. Why, a sandwich like this would kill him."

A majority of people have come to know the blessings which an occasional use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets confer upon the stomach. They are unquestionably the most popular remedy known, for the reason that dyspepsia is the national disease, and these wonderful little tablets have long since acquired a national reputation as a thoroughly reliable and efficient cure for all forms of dyspepsia and indigestion.

No matter how great the excess of food taken into the stomach, one or two of these tablets will digest every particle of it. A package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets should always be in the house. Many a person has saved himself from a serious attack of acute indigestion by using them after heavy meals, such as are eaten Christmas, New Year's, Thanksgiving and other holidays and festal seasons.

After attending banquets, late suppers, heavy fancy dinners, after-the-atre parties, etc., where one has dined sumptuously and luxuriantly, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets should invariably be used, as they digest the food perfectly and completely, and prevent all possibility of dyspepsia, which, without their use, is more than likely to ensue.

Go to your druggist to-day and buy a box. A small sample package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will be mailed free to any one who will address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

Letters From The Trenches

An officer commanding an Infantry Brigade thus describes an action on October 24:

"We had a great fight yesterday, and were attacked all day —the brigade did splendidly and inflicted great loss on the enemy. The Queen's made a most gallant charge, and the Gloucesters and Welsh did splendid work from their trenches. Two platoons Gloucesters (360 strong) fired over 500 rounds per man, lost all their officers and many non-commissioned officers, had the Germans within 50 yards, and not a man retired. Some of their bayonets were shot off their rifles and they had over 60 casualties —a grand performance. The Welsh also sat out an attack by mobs of Germans and downed them splendidly."

We may contrast this with a description of the German private soldier sent home recently by Mr. H. B. Lees Smith, M.P.:

I have had the opportunity of seeing large numbers of German prisoners. The more I see of them the truer seems Bismarck's description. "He goes to meet certain death in the service with the simple words 'At your orders,' but if he has to act on his own responsibility dreads the criticism of his superior officer or of the world more than death, to the extent of allowing his energy and fear of blame and reproof.

They possess wonderful "mass-courage." But this kind of courage is far more liable to wholesale demoralization than that in which each individual acts for himself. It depends, moreover, upon the officers to maintain it. Germans, without their officers, are like men who have lost their way. The supply of their officers is being exhausted, and, owing to their undemocratic system, others cannot be found from the ranks to replace them. For these reasons there is a hollowness at the heart of the German resistance which leads me to expect surprising results in the future."

THE USEFUL TELESCOPE.

An officer writes:

"The telescope came in most useful its very first day. I was commanding our advance guard, and we were help up in a village by some Germans on our flank. D.—— and I got in the loft of a house and soon spotted where the Germans were with my telescope. We then got up to the machine gun, which D.— fired through a skylight. I saw them crouch low, then one got up and ran for his life, then another and then the whole lot, leaving all their great coats and equipment behind. We were then free and had no further trouble from that party!"

IN A LUNATIC ASYLUM.

A motor-cyclist dispatch rider writes:

"Would you like a true account of yesterday's doings? At 2 o'clock sent to a regiment in action. Last piece of road there considered unridesble owing to rifle as well as shell fire, so will have to be walked by a forest path. As I ride up to where I am about to dismount am stopped by the O.C. sitting with other officers behind pile of brushwood. Informs me third headquarters have been shelled out or now in flames; as we speak roof of same crashes in; houses and hayricks ablaze throughout the village; beautiful and terrible spectacle. Evening, sent out with two dispatches, one to officers supposed, by strange coincidence, to be quartered in lunatic asylum. Approaching same hail a man, slouching along, in English, to inquire best road. He does not stop, so repeat in fluent French. He turns and approaches me; repeat question, and he leaps at my throat, throwing self and motor-cycle. As we grapple I describe him and his ancestors in pointed terms. Suddenly relaxing his efforts, he apologizes profusely, explaining he thought I was a spy, as I addressed him in foreign tongue. Turns out to be A.S.C. man suffering from nerves. Excuses method of assault by fact that he was unarmed. Thank heaven! Proceed, and arriving at lunatic asylum call oudy for concierge, who says officers already left. One out of his crowd of compatriots offers to conduct me to where they now are in the grounds of asylum. Proceed 100 or so yards. Convinced that they are in error and turn to return; they press about me more closely; am certain they are lunatics; return to asylum, which has actually been vacated by the officers. Return to gates untouched, but hustled; just before I reah them asylum director appears with lantern, examines me and apologises for the others mistaking me for spy; assures me there are no lunatics now at asylum; refuse to believe him, but proceed onwards, and eventually find officers required."

MISTAKEN.

He—They asked me to their reception, but it wasn't because they like me; it was only because I can sing.

She—Oh, I'm sure you're mistaken.

Had Stomach Rumblings Distress Before Meals

Was Seldom Free From That Weary, Drowsy, Half-dead Feeling

How Cured and Gives Good Advice to Others With Dyspeptic Tendencies

If you have any stomach distress at all you will certainly be interested in the following experience which is told by Mr. Edward Dawkins:

"When I was working around the farm last winter I had an attack of inflammation," writes Mr. E. P. Dawkins, of Fort Richmond. "I was weak for a long time, but well enough to work until spring. But something went wrong with my bowels for I had to use salts or physic all the time. My stomach kept sour, and always after eating there was pain and fulness, and all the symptoms of intestinal indigestion. Nothing helped me until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Instead of hurting, like other pills, they acted very mildly, and seemed to heal the bowels. I did not require large doses to get results with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and feel so glad that I have found a mild yet certain remedy. To-day I am well—no pain, no sour stomach, a good appetite, able to digest anything. This is a whole lot of good for one medicine to do, and I can say Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the best pills, and my letter, I am sure, proves it."

Refuse a substitute for Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut. 25c. per box or five for $1.00, at all druggists and storekeepers, or post paid from the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

DISTRIBUTES THE BURDENS OF WAR

MOSCOW, Nov. 26.— The ancient Communes, or Zemstvos, which the Tartar invasion and the Romanoffs have been equally powerless to destroy, gives the peasants full right to organise their own internal affairs. That huge country is covered with a network of small funds, committees and self-help societies, which are giving speedy relief to war victims, wounded and non-combatants, and work to war prisoners. Each village bears the burden of its own men sent to the front. And the machinery of this was set into motion the moment war began. So the expense of war automatically divides itself over each district. Modern Socialism has thought of no better way than these prehistoric Zemstvos.

While all the sick and wounded in Austria are congested in Vienna those of Russia are being spread all over Russia. Each village can always find help and sustenance for its own; each village sends a certain number of peasant carts loaded with clothing and grain for the needy; each peasant sends his share of grain and wood as gifts to those poorer than himself.

This is the great reason why Russia will suffer less from the war than any other fighting country, economically.

Each Zemstvo is getting its quota of war prisoners, whom they employ to build much-needed roads and bridges. These men are not paid, but are fed, warmly clothed and housed at the Zemstvo's expense. One of the bottom-brick principles of this ancient Russian democracy is to dispense with cash and to trade in kind, the advantage of which in war time is enormous.

WASHING WON'T RID HEAD OF DANDRUFF

Dissolve It, That's Best Way.

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to disolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this to-night, and by morning most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy, every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

If you want to preserve your hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for nothing destroys the hair more quickly. It not only starves the hair and makes it fall out, but it makes it stringy, straggly, dull, dry, brittle and lifeless, and everyone notices it. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

1914 HONEY CROP IN ONTARIO IS SHORT ONE

The 1914 Ontario honey crop will be a short one. President Byer, in his address to the Ontario Beekeepers' Association, assembled in augural convention at Toronto last week, deplored the crop failure but did not regard it as an unmixed evil as it would check the rush into beekeeping and enable the members to dispose of their surplus of last year's large crop.

The fact that there is a surplus from last year called forth a discussion on ways and means of extending the honey market. An advertising campaign that will make the merits of honey better known was favored by some. "Make it known like breakfast food" suggested one. The privilege of selling honey in connection with their exhibits at the Canadian National Exhibition was craved by others, a privilege which the management denies.

It was agreed that recent tariff changes will cut a slice from the beeman's income as many keepers use hundreds of pounds of sugar in a season. At the same time many of the members were willing to tax themselves five cents a colony to further foul brood inspection work. Mr. Morley Pettit, Provincial Apiarist, reported some progress in fighting the disease. In the year 600 visits in the European foul brood district had revealed 200 cases of infection. American foul brood was located for in 713 yards and found in 219.

Of particular interest was the address of Wm. Linton, Aurora, Ont., who advocated the use of sweet clover as a honey producing, soil building crop that is more valuable for forage than most farmers suppose. The rest of the discussions were of a technical nature and designed primarily for advanced beekeepers. The election of officers resulted in the return of the entire directorate.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Grey, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural colour and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or grey; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the grey hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

THE BLACKEST LIE.

(London Daily Mail.)

(The Frankfurter Zeitung states that Belgium intrigued with England and France to draw Germany into war.)

Big bully Belgium,
Breathing blood and flame,
Crafty as a serpent
In a cunning game,
Sent a note to England,
Sent a note to France,
"Let us crush the Fatherland
When we have the chance!"

Poor little Germany,
Gentle land of peace,
Seeking the Millennium,
When armaments shall cease;
Rather grieved than angry,
Called her sons to fight,
To protect their Fatherland,
As was only right.

Hurry with the whitewash,
Pour it out in streams!
Bleach the ravaged country,
Louvain, Antwerp, Rheims!
Belgium concocted war,
Thus deserves her fate!
That's the blackest Teuton lie

HOME INFLUENCE COUNTS

It is the home which moulds the minds of our boys and girls—home influence, home example. Mothers and fathers should never forget that during the first years of their boys' and girls' lives they look up to their parents as gods—to be obeyed, to be imitated in all things. Then comes the critical stage, when children have passed beyond the blind faith of childhood and learn to know their parents. Happy the mother and father who can fearlessly face this period, knowing that their efforts and their lives, though very faulty, yet bear the stamp of sincerity.

It argues ill for the home influence when "a long talk with mother" is not regarded as a privilege by the girls, for there are many subjects that only her handling is delicate enough to touch upon, and, on the other hand, it is sad when "a chat with father" is dreaded by the boys.

The parents' treatment of each other does much to raise or lower them in the eyes of their children, and also influence the boys and girls in their behaviour to each other. If the boys see father offering mother the most comfortable chair in the room instead of taking it himself, they will be equally unselfish with their sisters. If father opens the door for mother, the boys will almost unconsciously learn a lesson of politeness.

"Selfish parents make selfish children." Unselfishness is too fine a thing to act otherwise than as an inspiration and incentive to imitation. —N. Z. Dairyman.

CHEESE AND BUTTER— RELATIVE CLAIMS DISCUSSED

The relative claims of cheese and butter on the dairymen is discussed in a recent issue of the New Zealand Dairyman. The views of our brethren on the other side of the world will be of interest to Canadian dairy people. Here they are in part:

The fact remains that the making of butter will always be faced with the need for the greatest care and watchfulness to maintain the lead over the rival, margarine Now, cheese has no rival of any sort in the markets of the world. More than that, there is only one country outside of Europe which promises to be able to supply cheese at remunerative prices, and that country is New Zealand. This is no theory. It is a fact proclaimed in all the lists of dairy exports, and all the details of the sale returns from the markets. Canada had the premier position, but Canada wants her milk for her people to drink, and cannot afford to make it into cheese As some figures showed which we published last month, the cheese of New Zealand is rapidly gaining on the Canadian record in the sale market, this, though admittedly there is room for improvement in the manufacture.

While the field is growing large for the cheesemaker, there is no sign of any rival in the shape of a substitute, and there are no probable rival makers of cheese. The United States is falling back on account of its home wants, like Canada, only more so; the cheese of Britain keeps its supremacy of quality and price, but cannot keep pace with the demand; foreign countries are not entering into rivalry, though they make some of the best and most tasty of cheeses. But for work on the great national scale of production there is no country in the field except New Zealand. All New Zealand cheesemakers have to do is to make sure their cheese is good, and then proceed to make as much as ever they can find the means to turn out.

IS THE ART OF PLOWING LOST?

F. C. Nunnick, B.S.A., Commission of Conservation, Ottawa

The art of plowing, if not lost, has certainly been much neglected during recent years and very few of the younger generation of farmers have really acquired it. In travelling through the country one sees repeated evidences of the lack of interest in this very important branch of tillage operations. Plowing, as the first and heaviest operation in preparing the soil to receive the seed, should receive particular attention.

Many attribute the present-day lack of interest in plowing to the advent of the two-furrow and machine plow. In using two-furrow or machine plows, it is necessary first to acquaint oneself with the workings and mechanism of the plow, to be thoroughly familiar with it when in operation; little or no difficulty will then be experienced in obtaining satisfactory results. A plow suitable to the soil should be chosen. If the soil is loamy, and requires to be turned flat, choose a plow with sufficient width of share, a board with ample turning capacity, a beam high enough to permit the use of the jointer when turning under green or coarse manure, and sufficient length of handles to enable the plowman to control it with ease. If the soil is heavy and inclined to cement, use a narrow plow—one that will set the soil up, give a good harrow edge, and have sufficient press to the board to place the furrow over so that it will not fall back.

In using either a single or two-furrow plow, care should be taken to turn over the whole furrow and to leave no part unplowed. Get away from the cut-and-cover plan. Teach the boys that anything worth doing is worth doing well, especially plowing. The old adage that more grain grows on crooked furrows than on straight ones is a poor incentive, and is not helpful in building up a reputation as a model farmer. Plow the back field as carefully as the field adjoining the road, and see that all fields are plowed in such a way as to attract attention by their neatness. It is cheap and efficient advertising. Good plowing pays; if a fair crop can be grown on a field which has been poorly plowed, a better crop can be grown on a well plowed field.

LITTLE FIGHTING ON WESTERN LINE

BERLIN ANXIOUS OVER EASTERN SITUATION

MINOR ENGAGEMENTS AT SEVERAL POINTS

Two Infantry Attacks Along the Yser Are Easily Repulsed By the Allies--Rheims Bombarded While Neutral Journalists Were Visiting the City.

Examiner Special:

PARIS, Nov. 27.—The official communique issued this Friday afternoon states: "The slackening of the artillery fire of the enemy was noted all along the line during the day of Nov. 26. Two infantry attacks directed against the heads of bridges which had been thrown down on the right bank of the Yser, to the south of Dixmude, were easily repulsed.

"There was no other engagement on the rest of the front in Belgium and as far as the Oise, nor was there any attack on the Aisne or in Champagne.

Nevertheless, Rheims was rather violently bombarded during the time that a number of journalists from neutral countries were making a visit to the city.

"In the Argonne some infantry attacks resulted in the loss and then the recapture of certain trenches. The ground lost and then retaken was never more than 25 yards.

"Along the heights of the Meause and in the Vosges there is nothing to report."

TORONTO, Nov. 27.—That Berlin is extremely anxious regarding the situation on the Eastern battle front is indicated by the following, Berlin via The Hague, Nov. 27: Although there is a growing desire for more definite news from official statements covering the operations in the east, every confidence is held here that a victory will ultimately be reported for the German troops. The Russian forces are being heavily reinforced, it is stated, but fighting has not yet reached a decisive stage. Practically all interest is now centred in the fighting in Poland. The situation in the West is declared to be unchanged and operations are now in the nature of a siege.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 27.—Kaiser Wilhelm spent several days at Kiel last week. It is believed this foreshadows pronounced activity on the part of the fleet. The Germans will soon be relieved of the necessity of watching the Russians in the Baltic. This sea will soon be ice bound, and the Russian operations rendered impossible.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—The United States owes England about five billions, Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, told the House of Commons to-day. Describing the financial breakdown caused by the war, the Chancellor declared: "For the moment we can neither buy nor sell, although the whole world owes us money." The war loan of three-quarter billions for which bonds were issued, has been over subscribed. Lloyd George said it is the largest loan ever raised. He stated that there were over a hundred thousand applicants to subscribe.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—Special Cable from a United Press Correspondent, with the French army at front, via Paris—Caught like a giant in a trap, largely of his own making, Germany is slowly bleeding to death, without any apparent means of extraction. After three weeks' observation on the western battle front, this, it appears to me, is the situation at present. I am convinced that the Allies are highly satisfied with the situation, and are perfectly content to let Germany wear herself out. From a notably trustworthy source, I gather that Germany is very much dissatisfied, but is unable now either to force the issue or to withdraw. The only remedy for Germany is a decisive battle which she is unable to force despite constant endeavours, owing to her extended lines and consequent impossibility of concentration. Officers are enthusiastic over the tactics of Generals Joffre and French, the French and British commanders. One foreign neutral observer likened the Allies and the Germans to two heavyweight boxers, each blocking the onslaughts of the other until one is weakened by his own exertions, and the stronger lands a knockout blow.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 27.—An official made the statement this morning that it comes as a great surprise to the alien Austrians here to learn that they are enemies of the British Empire. The Germans know it all right but the Austrians seem to think that they are still our friends. It is believed it will be decided to have the aliens clear arable land along the line of the N.T.R., on which they will be given an opportunity to settle after the war is over.

PRICES OF LOBSTERS DROP

ST. JOHN, Nfld., Nov. 27. — The canned lobster industry of Newfoundland and Canada has been hard hit by the European war. As Germany is the largest consumer of this product the principal market has been cut off. A case of forty-eight tins, which brought $24 in Newfoundland before the war cannot now be sold for more than eight or ten dollars. As one merchant put it "canned lobsters are as great a drug on the market in Canada and Newfoundland as bales of cotton in the United States.

Ordinarily the returns from the industry amount to about three million dollars a year in Canada, and a half a million dollars in this colony.

Many of those interested favour the enforcing of a close season on lobsters during the whole of next year, thus taking advantage of the opportunity to replenish the fisheries which have been greatly depleted by extravagant methods of lobster taking.

GROVE SCHOOL BOY DROWNED

Sydney Craven Broke Through Ice While Skating at Lake Katchewanooka and Loses His Life.

COMPANION RESCUED

A sad fatality occurred at Lakefield yesterday afternoon, when Sydney Craven, a pupil at the Lakefield Preparatory school broke through the ice while skating on Lake Katchewanooka and was drowned. A number of the pupils and others were skating on the lake, one part of which is considered quite safe. The unfortunate boy, who was about fourteen years of age, accompanied by another pupil, went beyond the mark of the safety limit and the two went through the ice. Floyd Rogers of Lakefield, at considerable risk to himself, succeeded in rescuing Craven's companion by pushing a rail out to him. He afterwards dived into the icy water in an effort to save Craven, but his plucky attempt was unavailing.

Prof. McKenzie, principal of the Preparatory school was summoned, and he hurried to the scene and dived into the water, finally bringing the body of the young boy to the surface. All efforts at resuscitation were fruitless.

The victim of the accident has attended the Grove school for several years and was a general favourite. He had been prominent in different branches of school sport and his death has cast a gloom over the pupils and staff. His relatives in Annapolis have been notified, but no arrangements for the funeral have yet been made.

PRESENTATIONS TO MR. KNIGHT

Local Bank Manager Honoured by Customers and His Colleagues

Mr. A. F. Knight, acting manager of the local branch of the Bank of Ottawa, was the recipient of two handsome pre-nuptial presentations yesterday, one from the customers of the Bank of Ottawa, and the other from the bank managers. Mr. McKnight will be married in St. Catharines tomorrow and will take up residence in Peterborough.

From the customers of the bank Mr. McKnight received a large silver salver and a beautiful cut glass berry set. The address was made by Mr. G. W. Hatton, solicitor for the bank, and among those present were Messrs. T. E. Bradburn, G. N. Gordon, City Solicitor, Alex. Gibson, S. Clegg, A. E. Coulthard, W. H. Bradburn and others.

Yesterday afternoon at the Peterborough Club, Mr. Knight was the recipient of a handsome presentation from his fellow bank managers. The bank managers present were: Messrs. R. W. Travers, W. H. Dunsford, John Crane, V. Eastwood, C. H. Pennefather and P. Campbell.

Mr. Campbell, on behalf of his colleagues, in a neat speech, presented Mr. Knight with a handsome cellarette in cut glass. Each of the managers, in well chosen remarks, extended their best wishes to Mr. Knight and his future bride, for many years of happy wedded life.

Mr. Knight made a suitable reply, thanking his friends for their splendid gift and good wishes. He was looking forward with great pleasure to his residence here.

Charge Against Joseph Tobin Is Dismissed

Joseph Tobin in this morning's police court was acquitted by Magistrate Dumble on a serious charge. The Magistrate ruled that what had happened in the case that night was not shown to be pre-arranged or intended, but that from the evidence could only be considered incidents in the course of a very disgraceful night. To Tobin he said:

"You are the lowest creature I have ever seen. I am sorry that I cannot convict you on the evidence as I have heard of it. You are discharged, but I advise you to leave this place and never show your face here again."

Mr. Joseph Wearing defended the accused and Crown Attorney Hatton conducted the prosecution.

REPORTS OF THE RUSSIAN WIN ARE OPTIMISTIC

Military Authorities in London Are Waiting for a Statement From the Russian War Office

TERROR IN BRESLAU

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—Lacking an efficient statement from the Russian War Office as to the extent of victory over the Germans in Poland, military authorities here to-day were inclined to believe the unofficial despatches from Petrograd may prove overly optimistic, despite the assertions that the army of Gen. Von Hindenberg has been cut in two. All indications are that the really decisive battle has not yet been fought in the east. It is admitted here that so long as Gen. Von Hindenberg holds the Russians on their own soil and German territory is not seriously menaced, the Allies are not being aided in the west by the withdrawal of the German forces to protect their frontier from Russian invasion. That the reports of the Russian victory have crossed the German frontier is evidenced by despatches to-day stating that several thousand refugees from Breslau have reached Munich fearing an attack from the Russians. The greatest uneasiness is felt in Breslau, these refugees declare.

HOME GUARDS' BIG TURNOUT

A SHOOTING TROPHY

The interest in the Home Guard movement shows no indication of falling off. At last night's drill of the Rifle Association twelve companies, comprising in all about six hundred men, were on parade, and five hundred took part in the march-out, which was one of the big features of the evening. The Guard fell in at 7.30 o'clock, and for forty-five minutes company drill was practised. The companies all had competent instructors and good progress was made, especially in view of the fact that many of the new members were drilling for the first time. New companies out were the Merchants and Engineers, while the C.G.E. had four companies on parade, and the De Laval, Bankers, Professional Men, Building Trades and other units were well represented. While company drill was in order in the main hall a number of members were detailed for shooting practice in the gallery in the basement, and a profitable evening was spent in demolishing the targets.

Before the march-out a flashlight photograph of the Guard was taken by Mr. Fred. Roy, of the Roy Studio. This will be used by Lt.-Col. Miller and Major R. E. Layfield, who are in Kingston to-day, calling the attention of Col. Hemming, commandant of the 3rd Military Division, to the formation of the Guard and seeking advice as to the securing of rifles and other important matters.

The march-out was the big event of the evening. Headed by Sergt.-Major Chas. Peters and the Temple Band, the Guard, twelve companies strong, marched from the Armouries shortly after 8.30 o'clock. In front of the regiment were Lt.-Col. Young, of the 10th Brigade, C.T.A., Lt.-Col. Miller and Lt.-Col. Stevenson, honorary colonels of the Guard, Lt.-Col. Goodwill, commanding officer of the Guard, Capt. Hounsell of the 57th Regiment, and Majors Layfield and Mason. The parade was not a surprise affair as was last week's, and the result was that big crowds lined George Street to see the new organisation. At many points along the route the Guards were applauded vigorously. Several of the companies wore small Union Jacks and these units received a special share of the applause from the spectators.

The route of parade was down George Street to Charlotte Street, west to Aylmer Street, north to Simcoe Street, east to George Street and return to the Armouries. As the regiment passed the Fire Hall they found the fire department of the Guards drawn up in front of the station, and the order was given "Eyes left," Chief Howard taking the salute as the Guard passed by.

On the return to the Armouries Lt.-Col. Goodwill made two announcements. One was a statement of the following letter, which was received with cheers:

Peterborough, Nov. 26th, 1914.

J. E. L. Goodwill, Esq.,
Officer Commanding,
Peterborough Home Guard.
City.

Dear Sir,—Our President, Lieut.-Colonel Frederick Nicholls, on behalf of the Canadian General Electric Company, advises me that he will be very pleased to donate a silver cup for competition amongst the members of the Peterborough Home Guard for rifle shooting. You can arrange the details with your Executive. — Yours truly,

Canadian General Electric Co., Ltd.,
(Sgd.) E. G. Patterson,
General Superintendent.

The other announcement was that Lt.-Col. Young had placed at the disposal of the Guard the orderly rooms of the 24th Field Battery, situated at the south-west corner of the Armouries. This will be of great convenience to the Adjutant and other officers.

Parade was then dismissed, after the Guard had sung the National Anthem.

Before parade last evening No. 6 Company met and elected their officers: Captain, W. H. Munro; Lieutenants, T. Hendry and H. Oland.

Members should understand in connection with the shooting that a record of every shot is kept and sent to the Government, so that every man should do his best, not only for his sake, but for the sake of the regiment as a whole.

The matching of colours has been brought down to an exact science by the invention of a machine for the purpose.

AN INQUIRY INTO THE DESTRUCTION OF BULWARK

Loss of Battleship is Sole Topic of Conversation in London To-day---Losses on Bulwark Bring the Total British Naval Losses Up to 8,142.

Special Cable:

LONDON, Nov. 27.—An investigation started to-day into the blowing up of the battleship Bulwark off Sheerness yesterday, when 800 officers and men were lost. Naval experts are totally unable to explain the destruction of the Bulwark upon the theory that the explosion was accidental unless it was caused by deteriorated ammunition. That such could be the cause, however, is considered most unlikely because of the frequent tests made aboard ship and the fact that the Bulwark's magazines were protected by all the latest devices. The spies and submarine terrors ran rampant in London to-day. The contention of the Admiralty that the explosion was certainly internal has by no means satisfied the public. Some of the papers criticize the authorities for lack of vigilance about the government docks, as all London has been wild upon the subject of spies for months. It is insisted that German agents would have little trouble in operating in some of the ship yards. It is believed that the destruction of the Bulwark will go down in history as great a mystery as the blowing up of the battleship Maine in Havana harbour.

SHEERNESS, via London, Nov. 2.—It is believed here that the explosion on the Bulwark was caused by the fall and bursting of a 12-inch lyddite shell in her magazine.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—On the streets, in the lobbies of the House of Commons and in the Admiralty offices, the destruction of the Bulwark was the sole topic of discussion to-day. Despite the assertions of the Admiralty officials, it is believed the warship may have been sent to the bottom by a torpedo launched by a German submarine, or her magazines exploded by a spy or traitor. That spontaneous combustion could have caused this terrible disaster, is believed impossible. Whether there is enough left of what was once a battleship of 15,000 tons displacement to permit of a satisfactory investigation as to the cause of the explosion is considered doubtful. The losses on the Bulwark yesterday bring the number of officers and men lost to the British navy since the opening of the war up to 8,142. The naval inquiry into the loss of the Bulwark opened at Sheerness to-day, while an inquest was held at Chatham.

FIRE IN CLOTHING STORE LAST NIGHT

Overheated Stove Resulted in Blaze in George Street Establishment

A fire broke out last night, about half-past ten o'clock in the clothing and furniture store of Messrs. Zacks Bros., on George street, opposite the Examiner Office, which was evidently caused from the stove, although it had been in the same place for six years, but on this occasion must have become overheated.

The Brigade was summoned by telephone and extinguished the blaze, which had spread to the stairs leading to the second storey.

The loss was principally to the stock of ladies dresses, skirts and coats, waterproof goods, etc., in the rear of the store, and will be considerable.

The building was literally filled with smoke for a time and a large crowd gathered in front of the store, attracted by the volume of smoke issuing from the doors and windows. No blaze, however, was visible from George street.

The firm carried a stock of about $12,000 and the unfortunate part of the affair is that they dropped about one-half of their insurance, which is held by Mr. T. E. Bradburn, a few months ago.

Zacks Bros. have been in business in Peterborough about six years and have proved themselves to be progressive and energetic citizens, and their loss will be regretted.

The store will be closed for a few days until the fire loss is adjusted.

Railway Company Was Exonerated

From All Blame in Connection With Death of Robert McMahon

PORT HOPE, Nov. 26.—The jury empannelled to enquire into the cause of the death of the late Robert McMahon met last evening, Coroner Aldrich presiding. Mr. W. F. Kerr, County Crown Attorney, conducted the enquiry.

Reuben Barr, sworn, stated that he was the brakeman switching No. 1023 train on Midland Branch of G. T.R on the 23rd of Nov. He found the body of the late Robert McMahon, when he went to uncouple the car at 11.30 p.m. The body was on the west rail, the head pointing west. He was lying on his back. The engine had gone towards the town. Barr got off the train to throw the switch when the train passed up. Just after they placed the car at Philip and Greenway's he saw the body lying between the first and second cars.

Geo. Coburn, another of the train crew, said Barr called to him and he got off the car. It was quite dark where the accident took place. He saw the deceased and he was living. He took three long breaths and opened his eyes. Coburn took him off the rail. He did not know whether the car passed over him or not, while they were backing in the train; he was busy putting on the brake of the leading car and did not knew whether the car passed over him or not, while they were backing in the train; he was busy putting on the brake of the leading car and did not know whether he could be seen from the top of the car if he were lying on the track.

Conductor Sherry stated that he was conductor of the switching engine. He knew who it was when he saw him. He was just breathing when Sherry reached him and he died immediately afterwards.

Frank Hill, the engineer on the train, on the night in question, did not notice any person on the track, or alongside of it when the train moved up. Brakeman Barr told him of the accident. The engine bell was ringing while they were shunting.

Frederick Nicholson, the fireman on the train, was on the west side of the engine. He saw no one beside the track. The first he knew of the accident was when Brakemen Barr told him. It was on the south-east corner of the Midland House property where the body was lying.

Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

TWO KINDS OF BOND.

We often speak of the intangible character of the bond that unites the central and outlying units of the British Empire. But this war has changed things and converted an intangible sentimental bond into a material one. We in Canada have been one with the Empire in spirit and affection, we are now a bond of flesh and blood, with at present 30,000 strands, represented by our Canadian troops on duty. And not only that, but the bond has taken a material form in other ways. The women of Peterborough in our quiet homes are knitting the bonds of Empire, stronger in meaning and matter than hooks of steel. The bond is grey knitting yarn, which reaches from the quiet fireside of Peterborough homes to the camp-fire on the battlefield bivouac of our Canadian soldiers. Our women who pray and knit are helping on the fight more perhaps than we know. The effective resources of troops in the field are of two complementary kinds—the spirit and the physical force and fitness. The spirit, the morale, of the soldier, will be strengthened by the knowledge that he has the home interest behind him; and the physical force and fitness will be increased by physical comforts, warm clothing. A warmly clad, physically comfortable and well-fed soldier will do better fighting, do better shooting, get his rifle "on" better, if his mind, at ease as to the welfare of those he leaves at home, steadies his nerve. We are justified in assuming that the women of Peterborough are "getting down to their knitting" in doing their share for the comfort of the soldiers in the field in the way of providing sweaters, socks, etc.; and the rest of use are in duty bound to set their minds at rest, to assure them that, while they are fighting for us, we are feeding and clothing those, left in straitened circumstances, by the absence of their bread-winners. While our women knit sweaters and socks for our soldier boys, we men might busy ourselves in looking after the interest and welfare of their dependents, by working energetically to make good the slogan—

MORE THAN ONE WAY TO FIGHT.

We are allies of France in the fighting now going on upon French and Belgian soil. Naturally we take the greatest interest in the fate and feats of our own troops, and our admiration goes out to the splendid fight they are making; but we must not forget that the French armies, six in number and totalling nearly two million men are bearing the brunt of the battle. An English paper points out that on the long line from the North Sea to the Swiss border, "nine-tenths of the fighting is being done by French and Belgian troops and one-tenth by the British forces." Britain, however, does not confine its efforts and usefulness in holding the German legions in check to fighting on the land. France and Belgium had their armies on the spot, ready for the invasion they expected. If the position had been reversed, and it was Britain's soil that was invaded, there would be a different story. With all their willingness and readiness, the French forces, if they had had to depend upon their own navy to secure transport to England, might have been represented in the fighting line with fewer than two million men. Great Britain's navy has been a mighty factor in the success of the alldied armies. True this help has been in a degree negative, but it had a positive influence. Thanks to it and its repressive influence, France has had the ways open to the sending in of supplies, alimentary and military, and thanks to the British navy poor battered Belgium's starving citizens are supplied with food. If we come to count influences it may be easily a debatable question as to what nation is doing the most to neutralize the power of Germany, and pave the way for her defeat. Next spring, when Great Britain will have some two million men on the battle line, the condition as to land forces will be more equal in numbers and fighting effectiveness.

But we cannot deny a generous meed of praise to the French, and especially the heroic Belgians, for having done such splendid work in checking and defeating the designs of the invading enemy. This, however, is no time, when victory hangs in the balance, to invoice the respective contribution of the allied armies to the imminent victory. They are all in their own way doing magnificent work in the great struggle in which they have colectively put out of commission fully as many German soldiers, as the whole of the Belgian army. The role is to keep on fighting and doing our best. Each of the allies is in the fight to win, and each is nobly doing its best. Canada has done, or is doing its share; Peterborough has done or is doing its share in contributing fighting strength. But there are other battlefields to be held and won, than those in the war zone. We at home have a share in the fight; we can and should uphold and strengthen the hands of our forces in the field. Our soldiers in camp or trench will have higher spirits, will fight with more courage and hope, if they know that we they are fighting for at nome, are true to them, are true to our trust in looking after those who have been left defenceless or destitute by their breadwinners going to the war. We can and must do our share of fighting by a vigourous advance in the direction of realizing the slogan—

CRUSHING TWO "KAISERS."

General Botha has pretty well smashed the ubiquitous De Wet, in South Africa. His rebellion has been pretty affectively flattened. Now for the other Kaiser. Emperor William's brag and bounce have been infectuous, and we have the slippery De Wet imitating him in manner and method. A report from the Governor-General of South Africa, giving an account of "General" De Wet's announcement of his rebellian and speech made on the occasion, is worth reading, so much does its matter and manner of the procedure threatened and carried out remind one of a proclamation of the Kaiser. De Wet ordered the inhabitants of the place, Vede, to come together and, in the course of his address, said:

"I signed the Vereeniging treaty and meant to be faithful to the British flag, but we have been so downtrodden by the miserable and pestilential English that we can endure it no longer. His Majesty King Edward VII. promised to protect us, but he has failed to do so, and allowed a magistrate to be placed over us (he is one of the pestilential English) who is an absolute tyrant, and has made it impossible to tolerate it any longer. I was charged before him for beating a native boy; I only hit him with a small shepherd's whip, and for that I was fined 5c.

"England has got her hands full enough. I have the lies that are constantly being spread to the effect that thousands of Australians, Canadians and Indians can be sent to fight us. Where could the English get them from? She has not enough men to fight her own battles. I am going through the town to take the following six articles, namely, horses, saddles, bridles, halters, arms and ammunition, and if anybody should refuse to hand my men these articles, if they should refuse to hand my men these articles, if they should be found in their possession, I will give him a thrashing with a sjambok. I now order the storekeepers to go and open their shops, and I will select men to go round and take whatever I require from the above articles and they will give receipts for what they take, and if they do not open their shops willingly, I will open them in another way."

There you have the true Kaiser tone and method. But Botha has smashed the South African Kaiser, and the other is in for a similar trouncing. The doom is closing in and the time draws near when Kaiser William will be as completely down and out as his South African counterpart.

SIR ERNEST SHACKLETON.

The cool imperturability with which Sir Ernest Shackleton, who is now reported at Buenos Ayres, pursues his voyage toward the southern ice field for the purpose of pursuing his Antartic explorations is one of the most remarkable phenomena of the war time, and characteristically British. It is doubtful whether any other of the present belligerents would allow an officer of high ability and courage with his aids and crew to remove themselves in such a manner from the desperate arbitration purely scientific reasons. As for Shackleton and his men, it needs far more moral courage to turn their backs on the fighting than physical courage to face the polar perils.—New York Sun.

DELUDED PATRIOTISM.

There is a tone of generous pity in the British reference to the young Germans who were hurled to death singing "The Watch on the Rhine." But the boys were deceived and murdered by their leaders. They were not guarding the Rhine. They were fighting near the western boundary of Belgium, which they had lawlessly invaded.—Toronto Star.

IRELAND WON TO THE EMPIRE.

We believe that the future historian will single out Sept. 18, 1914, as one of the memorable days in the history of the British Empire. On that day, he will say, was closed the devastating quarrel that had raged between Great Britain and Ireland for over 100 years, a quarrel that weakened the one country and impoverished and nearly ruined the other, and whose continuance impaired the strength of England's right arm at every crisis in her history.—London Chronicle.

SHOW "TOMMY'S" FATALISM

Letter of British Soldier Speaks Cheerily of Annihilation.

MANCHESTER, Eng., Nov. 21. — The Manchester Guardian quotes the following passage from a soldier's letter as "another evidence of the cheerful fatalism of the Britisher":

"We are going strong. At first we had a day or two of starvation. Then vaccination. Next, inoculation. Some have had isolation. We're going out soon, and some of us will meet annihilation. What, no"

EXPERTS ARGUE QUESTION OF THE DOMINION NAVIES

Naval experts in Great Britain are engaged in an academic discussion on the way in which the naval war is affecting the dominions. Canadians are peculiarly interested in this discussion, as events now taking place will have a decisive influence on the permanent naval policy of Canada. Mr. Achibald Hurd has argued that so far the naval experience of the war has justified those who contended for the permanent strategical concentratin, under centralised control, of all the naval forces of the Empire, in opposition to the policy of local navies which Australia has so signally exemplified. Mr. Richard Jebb, on the other hand, maintains that the war experience so far tells precisely the other way, vindicating the policy of Dominion navies.

Mr. Hurd argues that if the other Dominions had emulated New Zealand in presenting Britain with Dreadnoughts, the Imperial forces would have been stronger by twelve or thirteen of the most powerfully-armed, well-armoured, and swiftest ships under any flag in the world, and these could have been used for hunting down the German cruisers, which have done so much injury to British trade and shipping." Mr. Jebb replies that this is quite the opposite of what the centralists have been arguing all along—their contention being that more Dreadnoughts were wanted in 'the decisive theatre' of the North Sea, where so far there does not seem to be any deficiency.

Moreover, it is not a squadron of Dreadnoughts that is wanted for hunting corsairs, but fast cruisers? Mr. Jebb adds on this point that if the agreement which the Admiralty entered into in 1909 "with certain Dominions" had ben carried out by these Dominions instead of by Australia alone, there would have been this year a brand new Eastern fleet to look after the Pacific and Indian oceans. Even without enlarging the original programme, it would have comprised at least three Dreadnought cruisers and ten light-cruisers of twenty-five knots speed, besides a number of fast ocean-going destroyers.

Thus as far as the Pacific is concerned, to say nothing of the Atantic, the programme of 1909, had it been carried out, "would have met a strategical deficiency which is now being felt."

Mr. Hurd hints that the Admiralty acquiesced in the 1909 programme with reluctance because it was strategically unsound, to which Mr. Jebb replies that the principle of Dominion navies, on which the project of a new Eastern fleet was afterwards based, "was set forth in a memorandum which the Admiralty prepared in anticipation of the Conference, not after it had assembled," and that at that time the professional head of the Admiralty was Sir John Fisher.

Regarding naval protection in the Pacific, Mr. Hurd frankly relies on the Japanese, saying that from the moment Japan declared war on Germany "the main defence of the interests in Pacific waters of every British subject in the Mother Country and the Dominions devolved upon the Japanese navy and army, and that this development was "in accordance with the intentions entertained by the Foreign Office and Admiralty for many years." Mr. Jebb thinks a sufficient commentary on this argument is that while the war started on August 4, Japan did not declare war till August 23, and that in the intervening nineteen days the "main defence" was wholly lacking. Moreover, for all that Australia has done we should have had to look to Japan.

These arguments may be commended to the attention of the two two schools of politicians in Canada, as may also the further remark of Mr. Jebb, intended not for anybody in Canada but purely for the centralists of Great Britain, that "the destruction of the 1909 agreement which would have multiplied up-to-date local navies of the same kind in the Eastern seas is an achievement of the centralist school whech the experience of this war already shows to have been strategically disastrous, centralist school which the experiquences may come home to roost in an awkward shape." — Montreal Herald-Telegraph.

BELGIAN WOODEN SHOE HOLDS $25 RELIEF FUND

Baptist Clergyman Uses One He Bought to Take Up Collection for War Sufferers.

APPLETON, Wis., Nov. 25. — While passing through the streets of a Belgian town four years ago, Dr. W. J. Pearce was stopped by a nine-year-old girl, who tried to sell him postcards. Instead he offered to purchase her wooden shoes and she accepted the offer. He made a pin-cushion out of one of the clogs and on Sunday displayed its mate in the pulpit of the Baptist church. He spoke of the sufferings of the Belgian women and children and following his sermon he stood at the door with the shoe in hand receiving offerings for relief of the women and children of that country. Twenty-five dollars was collected. One travelling salesman contributed $5.

BRITAIN RAISES LEAST FOOD.

Russia and Canada Only of Nations at War Can Feed Selves.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Of the nations at war, England produces less of her foodstuffs than any other. An investigation as to the various countries made by the department of agriculture's bureau of statistics made public to-day indicates that England produces about 53 per cent. of her food requirements; Belgium, 57 per cent.; Germany, 88 per cent.; France, 92 per cent.; and Austria Hungary, 98 per cent. Russia produces about 110 per cent., exporting about 10 per cent. Canada produces 23 per cent. more than she consumes; Argentina produces 48 per cent. more than she consumes, and the United States produces no more than she consumes, as exports and imports almost balance.

Sees End of War in June

American From Berlin Says Germans Now Realize Defeat is Inevitable—Short of Gunpowder

STILL WEAR SMILES

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The Daily Telegraph publishes a long article by an American, just returned from Germany, which gives an interesting picture of that country and the attitude of the population toward the war. He says:

"Let me say at once that the patriotism and determination of the Germans is not one whit behind that of the allies. At no time have the Emperor and the Crown Prince been more popular than at the present. At no time has the personal ascendency of the Emperor been greater. Those who expect to see a sudden outburst of Socialism, which will force the Government to make peace, are living in a fool's paradise.

Intend Finish Fight.

"I am fully convinced that the German people intend to fight to a finish. At the present moment the Germans have sixty-eight corps, fully mobilized, each of an average strength of 43,000 men of all arms. This, you will see, makes nearly 3,000,000 of men fully mobilized and in the field.

"The military authorities have created ten fresh corps out of the surplus of the Landwehr, and from the vast numbers of volunteers who have come forward. They claim that they have applications from no fewer than 2,000,000 volunteers, but this, I think is an exaggeration. To my certain knowledge very large numbers of the Landstrum have not yet been called up, and comparatively few of this class have been sent to the front.

No Food Shortage.

"There is absolutely no shortage of food supplies in the country. Of wheat, rye, and meat there is plenty.

"Where Germany will fail is in those articles, essential to war, which require raw material that she cannot produce herself.

"I have seen great hopes placed on the failure of her supply of petrol. These hopes are ill-founded. Officials assure me that there is still enough petrol in this country to last for another year and a half. My own personal investigations bear out this statement.

"On the other hand, every one admits that there is a terrible scarcity of rubber.

"More serious still is the shortage of copper, which is essential for the manufacture of shells and ammunition.

Gunpowder Scarce.

"I have every reason to believe that the supply of gunpowder is causing the General Staff the greatest anxiety. They lack the saltpetre and nitrates necessary for its manufacture. They carefully avoid giving direct answers to all questions on this subject, and prefer to turn them away with some feeble excuse. When asked why they are using old ammunition they say: 'We wish to get rid of it.'

"I do not mean to imply that there are not still immense reserves of ammunition in the country, but from my inquiries I am convinced that, even on a scale vastly below that of the present time, they will, for this reason alone, be unable to carry on the war after next June.

"I am sure that the most vital considerations of this struggle are Germany's lack of copper and gunpowder, or the essentials necessary to make the various explosives now in use."

To Bitter End.

Summing up, the writer says:

"In their inner hearts the German official classes realise quite well that there can be only one result to the present struggle. They know that they are beaten. They realise that the odds against them are too great. They are fighting now to obtain the best terms possible.

"They are determined to fight to the bitter end rather than yield, and are equally determined to hold on to Belgium and preserve their fleet, as they are the only two weapons left with which they can obtain favourable terms.

"They hope by prolonging the war to exhaust the patience and endurance of the allies. They hope to offer such strenuous resistance on both frontiers that rather than continue the war the allies will meet them half way.

What They Hope For.

"I have spoken with many who frankly admit that they expect to lose Alsace and part of Lorraine. On their eastern frontier they expect to lose part of East Prussia, so that Russia can straighten out her frontier. They expect Austria to lose Galicia for a like reason. All they hope is to preserve the unity of Germany and to save what remains of the Empire.

"The official classes, society — in fact, all those who know — keep up smiling faces. At heart they are in despair because they know that, however long they continue their resistance, before a year is out the lack of certain essentias in the destruction of mankind will bring them up against a stone wall in which there is no exit except by the acknowledgment of their defeat."

WILL NEED MORE MEN

Kitchener Will Let Empire Know When Time Comes

LONDON, Nov. 27.—Field Marshal Earl Kitchener yesterday afternoon made a speech in the House of Lords, where he summarized the war's operations. Among other things, Earl Kitchener said:—

"The Russians have defeated the Germans with the heaviest losses yet suffered; the Germans have made no advance since I last addressed this House; the British are in touch with Turkish forces thirty miles east of the Suez Canal."

While the losses of the allies were admitted by Earl Kitchener to be great, at the same time, he said, they have been slight compared with those of the enemy. He added that the allied troops are in excellent spirits and confident of success.

Regarding recruiting, Earl Kitchener said that he still had room for men, and he was confident that the men would answer the country's call and see that the war was brought to a successful conclusion.

"The time will come," said Earl Kitchener, "when we shall require many more and I will then make it thoroughly well known."

Sir John French's successful resistance to the German advance, Lord Kitchener told the Lords, was maintained, notwithstanding that the German supports had been pushed up in large numbers. "In the early days of November," he continued, "no less than eleven army corps were attacking the British position. At this critical period the eighth division was despatched from England to join the forces in the field, and the valuable co-operation of our allies on our left materially strengthen the British position.

"Strong French reinforcements occupied a considerable portion of the British trenches in front of Ypres, and with their front thus appreciably shortened, the British troops which for over 14 days and nights had never left the trenches or allowed the enemy to maintain a footing in them, were enabled to enjoy a partial well-earned rest."

120,000 SUSUPICIOUS CASES INVESTIGATED.

Six Thousand Houses Ransacked; 342 Persons as a Result are INTERNED.

LONDON, Nov. 26—Reginald McKenna, Secretary of State for Home Affairs, stated in the House of Commons this evening that 120,000 cases of suspicious aliens had been investigated by the police. Six thousand houses had been ransacked, with the result that 342 persons had been interned.

With regard to the suggestion that all Germans and Austrians in this country should be interned, Mr. McKenna said that not all the British in Austria and Germany had been interned, and that if all the alien enemies in the United Kingdom should be locked up a useless and gross injustice would be done.

Building Is Quiet at the Present Time

The following is the review of labour conditions in Peterborough for the month of October, as reported in the Labour Gazette:

The condition of the labour market for the month of October was about the same as last month—rather quiet. Very few new buildings were being started, and only a few large buildings under way. The city has been going ahead with a lot of work on the streets. This has given a lot of people employment but the work will only last for a short time, possibly until the last of November. The city is going to start some big sewer work to help those out of employment.

A branch of the Industrial Association of Ontario has been established in this city. The city has donated $50 to help the association, which is going a good work in giving assistance to those out of work. The Canadian General Electric Company have been awarded a contract approximating $125,000 for three electric locomotives and electric equipment for five cars. The factory has been working only four days a week.

Ackerman, Son & Company, harness makers, have been working thirteen hours a day on harness and equipment for the militia department. The Bonner-Worth Company was enjoying very busy conditions, supplying yarn for the woollen mills.

The Vermont Marble Comany has received an order for a large quantity of their Brocadillo marble to be installed in Buckingham Palace, England. This firm has done a good business since starting here about a year ago.

The population of the city has increased by over five hundred during the year, and the assessment also shows an increase. Building permits for the month showed a decrease, only 17 for work costing $6,580; last year for the same month there were 39 permits for work costing $29,985.

The bakers have raised the price of bread from 11 cents for 3-lb. loaf to 12 cents for cash and when charged 13 cents.

Farmers have had a good year. They were busy getting in the root crops. Potatoes were very plentiful. Apples also were plentiful. An epidemic known as black leg was affecting the cattle in this district.

Owing to unsettled conditions there will not be much activity in lumbering operations. Some of the mills have already shut down, the Peterborough Lumber Company and two at Haliburton.

The Grand Trunk Railway is laying new heavy steel rails. The distance to be covered by the construction gangs will be about 100 miles.

Accommodation Not Very Good

Andrew Hall, a "cultured gentleman" from Georgia, decorated the prisoners' box in the Police Court this morning. Andrew was called upon to answer to a charge of vagrancy. As his chocolate countenance appeared above the wall of the box to answer to the charge the Magistrate asked:

"Are you a Scotchman?" Hall pleaded not guilty to that charge, but to the charge of vagrancy he said he was "guilty alright."

He explained that he came from the south to meet his brother in Hamilton. When he got there he found his brother had gone south with some race horses, and while he would have liked to follow him he ran short of funds. He therefore started to Niagara Falls, where he intended to cross the border and join his brother if possible.

"How long has this man been in town?" asked Mr. Dumble.

"Just last night," was the Chief's reply. "He is just passing through."

"Well, we won't stop him," said the Magistrate. Then, turning to Hall, "You'd better get away from here, our accommodation in this City is not very good."

Hall expressed his gratitude and left the Court room.

BELGIAN SAND DUNES HOLD MUCH OF JOLLITY & DEATH FOR MEN AT ARMS

B——Bains, Belgium, Nov. 12. — Never was stranger history than is being made on these Belgian sands. Of course you have heard much of the tragic side of life among the dunes, of the monitors over in the sea sandbanks, blazing death among the Germans in the trenches miles away; of poor, devastated Nieuport, another fine old town crushed to powder under the Prussian heel; of the play and counter-play of the great death machines in and among the dunes and the shifting sands of the River of Iron; for Yser means iron, and an iron barrier the Germans surely have found it.

But there also is a quaint and merry side of the sand dunes history. The Belgian army's three months have been three months of concentrated hell—regiments reduced to companies, companies to individuals. But man is the most resilient of conceivable things. To-day these survivors of Belgium's host are taking their holiday cheerful as children, merry as sandboys, larking among the dunes. Nearly every one has lost a relative; many have lost everything in this world but their own individual lives. But "you cannot be always grieving," says the Belgian in his plucky way. Therefore they are making the most of their seaside holiday.

It means great days for this place. It has one of the most magnificent heaths in Europe. It is full of luxurious litle villas that the wealthy of Belgium used to rent for the season. Now 50 wil hire you a furnished flat for a month, and $19 a villa that let before the war for ten times that sum. In the main street stands a train of tram cars, motionless, imprisoned by mud and sand and growing grass that chokes up the rails. They have not moved for three weeks. There they stand, the home of refugee families who have each acquired a corner by squatter's right. Their washing flops out of the tram car window; their provisions hang from nails in the roof. Straw for their beds covers the floors, and many children play about the steps. Sure enough homes they are, though coldish for winter.

But winter has not come yet. Imagine the great golden stretch of sand, bright, flashing sea, blue sky, brilliant sunshine. November! It is August here. Far away, knee deep in the water, rides a long line of cavalry, a beautiful sight among the sea foam. A mile away is another mass of men and horses. Close by yet more come cantering out from the dnues on to the beach. There are thousands of them making merry over this vast playground. There are the —— Cavalry Division, that a few days ago tried to penetrate along the sands to Ostend, but were driven back by machine gun fire.

Half a mile out lies one of the monitors, a gaunt, gray shape, all guns and angles. Later it will move up shore and drop some more of its merry shells among the German trenches. Out from the shelter of its mothering wing roars a seaplane on reconnaissance northward. It tears away to the Germans, rising and falling over the crisp seas flashing in the sunlight.

Here we have already horses, ships and seaplane. The beach is finding room for most known forms of locomotion. A troop of cyclist scouts tear over the firm sand, racing for sport, as often enough they have raced after the Germans in grim earnest. Further on a little party of officers is navigating a sand yacht. Away down among the foam again half a cavalry squadron are in swimming, the other half holding their horses and awaiting their turn. Close beside them a little infantry group is playing football.

From Somewhere a merry villain out of a motor maxim has commandeered a donkey, upon which he goes rioting gloriously up and down. Indeed, this place is affording the Belgians most kinds of sport.

But go a little northward out of all this life and movement into the region of death. The monitor, in a different place from its old position of the morning, is spitting shells in couples on to the far invisible shore that the Germans hold. Over the dunes the shrapnel is bursting. Into Nieuport, that sorry and desolate town, the German shells come dropping, continuing with a weary futility their work of devastation. For a long time I stand watching those silly shells and the clouds of dust they raise from the ruins that lie like a child's box of bricks hurriedly emptied out.

GERMAN BEER IN DANGER

Paris Paper Chortles Because Barley is Short in Germany.

PARIS Nov. 26—The Figaro joyfully announces that the supply of beer in Germany is endangered, owing to the scarcity of barley.

Germany used 13,200,000,000 pounds of barley in the brewing of beer every year. She produces one-half of that quantity, and imports the other from Russia. The Russian imports have been shut off by the war.

GERMANS MAY TRY TO BREAK THROUGH THE LINES AT ARRAS

Enemy is Being Reinforced on Northern Front and Trainloads of Pontoons Have Been Sent.

ATTACK IS EXPECTED

LONDON, Nov. 27. — The correspondent of The Daily Mail at Dunkirk, France, telegraphs that Dixmude has been retaken by the allies. He says: —

"The French marines attacked the town strongly on Tuesday night and drove the Germans out of three lines of advanced trenches. On Wednesday they followed this up by entering the town in an irresistible charge.

"The enemy did not halt in their retreat until they were seven miles out of the town. The marines lost 300 men."

New movements of German troops into western Belgium from Germany are under way on a large scale, and much heavy artillery is being sent forward from Essen.

Train loads of pontoons have been sent to the canal region between Arras and the coast.

The next attack is expected to be delivered with its greatest force near Arras.

The correspondent of The Daily Mail says:

"Two days ago to the south of Dixmude, where the Germans are still concentrating large bodies of infantry and cavalry, the enemy has made an attempt to threw a pontoon across the Yser. Nearly 200 men engaged were covered by a powerful German battery. So well was the German plan arranged that the Franco-Belgian forces could not possibly have prevented the construction of the bridge without losing heavily. The Germans completed three parts of the task when up came a British armored train roaring and spitting death. It raced into sight quite suddenly not more than a thousand metres from the nearly-completed bridge, and the 200 German sappers were taken completely by surprise. They dropped their tools and bolted. Many did not get far, as four of the train's guns and half a dozen mitrailleuses hurled a perfect tornado of shot and shell at them. In less than five minutes nearly a hundred engineers were killed, about fifty more were wounded, and their handiwork had been blown to splinters. It was undoubtedly a magnificent bit of work. The armored train did not have everything its own way. To get within range of the bridge, the train had to be exposed to the fire of a German battery which had been keeping a watchful eye on the construction of the pontoon. The enemy's guns managed to hit a store truck at the end of the train and one of the guns was also put out of action.

The official communication issued last night by the French War Office reported comparative quiet throughout the day. Heavy snowfalls occurred at various points along the line. The communique says:

"In Belgium complete calm prevailed.

"In the centre there was cannonading, but no infantry attacks.

"There is nothing of importance to report from the Argonne.

"There was a small engagement to the east of Verdun."

FRENCH AVENGE THE LOSSES AT CHAUVINCOURT

PARIS, Nov. 26.—An officer arrived to-day says the French losses were 130 killed and 70 wounded when the Fourth Bavarian Corps dynamited a part of the village of Chauvancourt, on the Meuse. After three houses in the village were blown up the French Commander rushed troops from the barracks. One company remained, however, when the immense building was hurled to the ground. The French avenged the disaster the same night, annihilating one-half a division of reserves with artillery, while they were hurrying to reinforce the Bavarians.

COMMISSION FOR CANUCKS

Queen's Own Rifles Men Are Drafted into the Gordon Highlanders

SALISBURY, Eng., Nov. 27.—Two privates in the Queen's Own Rifles have fallen into luck. They are W. F. Eardley Smith, of the Bank of Montreal, Toronto, and Sydney H. Griffin, formerly an employe of the T. Eaton Co. They are now second lieutenants in the famous Gordon Highlanders.

The British regiments are greatly in need of officers owing to the heavy casualty lists, and the fact that the Canadian force has more than 200 officers, who are not required, will be considered more or less of a blessing. There is every chance that many of these officers will be found within a short time attached to Kitchener's huge army, which is now training all over the country. They can get placed easily, according to reports.

Smith and Griffin had been members of the machine gun squad of the Queen's Own for two years. Lieut. "Mato" Macdonald, who is in command of this section, stated that they were about the most experienced men he had.

The Empire Theatre Gets "A Million Bid"

A Stupendous Photo Play in Five Parts, Three Days Next Week

If you care to see a modern illustration of the thrilling way in which a splendid story can be reproduced by the moving picture process, go and see the Vitagraph masterpiece, entitled, "A Million Bid," in five parts, to be shown at the Empire Theatre, Charlotte Street, on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. It is claimed to be "the most stupendous photo play ever staged," and is recognized as "the world's finest motion picture."

A lovely young, wealthy girl is sacrificed by her mother for social ambition. The mother, in her avarice, meets a terrible fate. Her daughter's "purchaser" is saved from a worse one. Agnes narrowly escapes —to enjoy happiness with the man of her choice. It possesses every element of dramatic and human interest. Every scene is a thrilling one and the climax a superlative of art. Agnes is swept overboard a wrecked yacht but is rescued. She is convinced that her husband, whom she was obliged to abandon, and whom she last saw going down with the ship, has been drowned. Duing the interval of five years, a Dr. Brent is happily married to Agnes, and a proud father of a little son, awaits the arrival of an interesting case. Mr. de la Mer, a stranger, on whom he is to perform an operation that will restore to him memory of the past, which was lost to him in an accident five years before. Agnes, interested in the case, is given permission by her husband to see the patient, and recognizes him as her husband, Geoffrey Marshe. Hoping against hope that she may be mistaken, and that it may be only a resemblance, she listens breathlessly to his story of the last five fears, which is all he can remember of his life. He tells how he was fished out of the sea by a French fisherman; how the roulette wheel gave him a small fortune; how a friend invested it and made it a larger fortune, and how, in three years, he was prosperous, but troubled with wonder as to what his past might have been.

The doctor is called away. Agnes tries desperately to dissuade Mr. de la Mer from having the operation performed, but fails. Next morning, the operation is performed before the expected time, and Agnes has not been able to tell her husband. In scenes of intense emotional acting, she tries to get word to her husband. The patient finally calls out, recovering from his memory for instant, but the shock is too great, his heart stops beating and he dies.

MEDAL OR TROUBLE FOR THIS IRISHMAN

LONDON, Nov. 26.—A new story of a British encounter with the Prussian Guard was told by a Corporal of the Warwickshire Regiment, who is now at home wounded. He said: "The night the Prussian Guard attacked us around Ypres it was only by the merest chance and a fine piece of heroism that we were warned in time. There was an Irishman of the King's Liverpool Regiment who had strayed out of bounds to meet a girl whose home was off the line of attack. Coming back late, he stumbled on the Germans stealing quietly towards our position. Without thought of the consequences to himself, but only concerned for the safety of his comrades, he dashed towards the spot where he knew our guard to be to give the alarm. The Germans spotted him, and the cavalry patrol were at his heels instantly. He had a good start, but towards the end he was hit in both legs. He got through with a warning, and is now in the base hospital pulling through. He doesn't know whether he will get a medal or a wigging for being out of bounds, but he is hoping for the best."

Wins Wife But Loses Stripes

SALISBURY PLAINS, Eng., Nov. 10.—Geo. G. Tyrrel, a six-foot Canadian, who enlisted at Toronto on Sept. 25 in the company recruited there for the Nova Scotia regiment, is the hero of one of the prettiest little love affairs any Canadian soldier has figured in.

Tyrrel is a fine built fellow, whose height and bearing made him prominent among the one hundred and fifty men who left Toronto, bound for Berlin—on Sunday, Sept. 27. Previous military experience rapidly paved the way to his promotion from a private to a lance-corporal, quickly followed by a further advance in rank, and he was a full corporal when he obtained leave of absence from the camp at Salisbury Plains to visit the City of Bristol.

English Rose.

There he met Miss Rose Owen, a charming Somersetshire lass. Her slight figure and fair face attracted the stalwart Canuck at first glance. Within an hour of meeting, the two were fast friends, and within twenty-four hours, they were man and wife.

During that short space of time Tyrrel had seen Miss Owen's relatives, and proved his fitness to become the husband of the girl who had so quickly won his heart.

Lost Stripes.

Brief as was his wooing, and short his honeymoon, the young soldier outstayed his leave, and when he returned to camp, he was reduced to the ranks, for discipline must be maintained in the Canadian contingent enlisted for service overseas, and even the little god, Cupid, must give way to the necessities of martial training.

The new poison extracted from seeds of the castor plant, by a German chemist, is said to be so powerful that a single grain would kill a million and a half guinea pigs.

DR. BELAND IN HOSPITAL

Canadian Doctor and M.P. Wounded at Antwerp

OTTAWA, Nov. 27—Hon. Dr. H. S. Beland, M.P. for Beauce, and member of the Laurier Cabinet previous to 1911, who has been serving British arms in Belgium since the outbreak of the war, was seriously wounded in three places by a German shell in the defence of Antwerp.

Letters to Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. E. M. Macdonald, M.P. for Pictou, Nova Scotia, just received from officers of the British marines who escaped to Holland, tell the story of the former French-Canadian Minister's bravery and devotion. These letters are dated Nov. 2, and pay glowing tribute to the service and sacrifice of the gallant Canadian.

Hon. Dr. Beland was, according to the letter received by Mr. Macdonald, who was in Toronto yesterday, ministering as a medical man to four British marines who had been wounded in the German bombardment of Antwerp. Despite the British officer's caution, he went forward to the field to dress their wounds making the comment, "I am here to serve." The bombardment at the time was, the writer says, "very severe," and a shell bursting within a few feet of where he was dressing a bluejacket's leg, struck him in three places, inflicting ugly, but it is hoped not fatal, wounds. Dr. Beland was carried back, and the marines were anxious that he should accompany them to Holland. He absolutely refused, however, telling the subaltern who was sent for him that he wanted to stay at his post. He was, when the British forces left Antwerp, at the St. Elizabeth Hospital, Antwerp.

"Tell my friends at home not to worry," was the message sent by Dr. Beland from his bed. "Tell them I am all right."

GERMANY WILL FEED HER OWN PEOPLE FIRST

Would See Belgians Starve Before Soldiers Went Short Says Journalist.

LONDON, Nov. 26. — Frederick Palmer, the American war correspondent, who has just returned from Germany, said in regard to the position of Germany in connection with the feeling of the people of Belgium today:

"The food required to keep the Belgians from starving this winter would feed five army corps for a year. Any German governor who diverts that amount from Germany's supplies will have to reckon with German public opinion.

"Germany is not in want of food at present. If the crops are good next year she will have enough, economically managed, to last two years, but she has garnered every grain of wheat planted on big acreage and is husbanding foodstores in case the war lasts a year. Her people look forward to short rations.

"Germany can think of Belgium only with angry bitterness, and not humanity; but do or die patriotism governs their emotions. They blame the Belgians for spoiling their plan of campaign. Nothing is too bad for the Belgians. The lot of the Belgians is to take care of themselves, and represents German public feeling. The Germans are at war, their ports closed, and they are desperate in their determination not to be starved out. There is a plentiful supply of food in Antwerp or Brussels restaurants frequented by German officers.

"If Germany proposed to feed Belgium, let her begin, not talk. Germany will and must think only of her soldiers. Belgium needs food. It can only come from outsiders. Belgians are sure of getting it only under outside directions. Let Berlin appropriate food and the German troops at the front will get it. That is bound to result, of military necessity. Commanders of other countries than Germany would do the same.

"If America feeds them, we know they will be fed."

Splendid Entertainment In The Gymnasium of "Y" Last Night

Proceeds Will Be Used to Send Local Representatives to the Boys' Work Conference.

In the gymnasium of the Y.M.C.A. last night a fine entertainment was given, the proceeds going to help the sending of local representatives to the Boys' Work Conference in Belleville. The gallery of the gym was crowded and everyone present thoroughly enjoyed the programme.

Perhaps the most interesting feature of the evening was the basketball match between the Veterans and the All-Star teams. The game was a very fast one, the majority of the speed, however emanating from the Veterans who, at stages of the game played their opponents off their feet. The final score was 30 to 12(and indicates the play. There was only one five-minute period during the contest that the All-Star aggregation looked equal to the quintette in red. The losers checked fiercely but not systematically, but the Veterans had speed to burn. Their play was so fast that the Whites had seldom a chance to take the offensive. The game was a splendid exhibition of basketball, however, and held the intense interest of the spectators.

The teams were:

Veterans—G. Robertson, F. Cressman, R. Best, R. Dobbin and T. Palmer.

All-Stars—M. Turner, C. Bartlett, W. Flowers, W. Heaslip and H. Reir.

During the evening some splendid physical work was shown. The intermediate boys gave a good account of themselves in their class work. There was a good turnout of boys for their part of the programme, and their performance was a good sample of what is being done day in and day out for the physical development of the young fellows. The Senior Leaders contributed some really clever work on the parallel bars, their difficult and ingenious feats being watched with interest. The Employed Boys also gave a good demonstration of their ability on the horse.

Messrs. Flowers and Carte were responsible for a number of unusual feats in diving, taking headlong leaps over a row of youngsters in fine style.

During the evening Mr. T. Weller rendered a very acceptable solo, and Messrs. Irwin and Quartermaine gave a much appreciated mandolin duet. These two musical numbers were very heartily received.

Mr. Meserve, in a brief speech, outlined the splendid work the Y.M.C.A. was doing along the other two sides of the young men's character. He said that those present last evening had a good example of what was being done in the physical work, and he gave an interesting description of the moral, mental and spiritual accomplishments of the institution.

Mr. G. Galley was in charge of the affair, and much credit is due him for its success.

Zoline Makes Good In a Two Day Test

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 25—The test of the new substitute for gasoline as a motive power for autos, which caused the eyes of the auto world to be turned toward Indianapolis for the last two days, was completed to-day at the motor speedway, when a stock car finished 1,030 miles on the new fuel with an average of more than 55 miles an hour to its credit. Auto manufacturers from here and elsewhere, officials of the American Automobile Association and others stood all day to watch the 'zoline' (2 cents a gallon) fuel in operation, and at the conclusion of the test they were highly elated at the success of the invention or discovery of John Andrus, the McKeesport chemist. The 1,030 miles was run in 20 hours 38 minutes and 4 seconds, or at an average of 55.95 miles an hour.

To-morrow the engine of the machine will be taken apart to determine what effect the material has had on the mechanism of the car. The new fuel has been so highly successful thus far that it was predicted to-night that the effect will be no different from that gasoline has had on cars.

Judge Huycke In Brantford

BRANTFORD, Nov. 27—The adjourned arbitration between the L. E. and N. Railway Company and J. Nightingale, the owner of the Brantford Ice Company property, was resumed at the County Court, yesterday. Judge Huycke of Peterborough, A. E. Watts, K.C., and J. McGee, formed the board of arbitration. M. K. Cowan of Toronto, represented Nightingale, while W. S. Brewster, K.C., appeared on behalf of the L. E. and N. Evidence of the value of the property was taken.

PRETTY WAR ROMANCE WITH WELLAND PRINCIPALS

Pte. Bishop of 44th Proposes by 'Phone, Gets Leave of Absence and Weds.

WELLAND, Nov. 26.—Private Wm. T. Bishop, who went to the training camp at Toronto two weeks ago with the quota from the 44th Regiment, and Miss Nellie Grace Shackleton of Welland are the principals in a war romance which made them engaged and married in the same day. The parties were acquainted prevoius to the soldier's departure. This week he proposed by long distance telephone, was accepted, and that night on his arrival at Welland, after securing leave of absence, she became his bride.

WIFE QUITS HIM 51 TIMES.

Last Time Was for Good and Husband Gets Divorce.

BRAINERD, Minn., Nov. 25.—Albert R. Adkins has been granted a divorce from his wife, Elizabeth Adkins, and the custody of the minor children. The case was heard by Judge W. S. McClenahan.

It was a regular thing for his wife to desert him, remain away from home over nights, the complaint stated. Fifty times she packed her clothing, squandered his money in telephone, telegraph, livery bills and railway fare, and would go to her parents or relatives and stay for days and months at a time.

HOBOES FOLLOW WILD DUCKS TO SUNNY CLIMES

DUBUQUE, Ia., Nov. 21.— Winter is just about here. If you don't believe it drop into the police station at 10 o'clock any night in the week and see the hoboes pour in. The "bos," like the ducks, are beating it for the sunny southland and when they appear at the police station for lodging it is a cinch the weather outdoors is getting too chilly for comfort. Recently twenty-two Wandering Willies made their beds in the city jail. That is, they didn't exactly make their beds—they just stretched out on the hard concrete floor and went to sleep. No springs and mattresses for them—just plain concrete.

Like pieces of cordwood scattered about on the floor the "bos" stretched out, about a foot and a half apart, around a big stove in the middle of the room. Some of them removed their shoes—others didn't. Some of them didn't even go to the trouble of taking off their caps, pulling them down over their heads to serve as pillows.

Alternate as Firemen.

But they managed to keep warm by a little system all their own. A hot fire was ever kept going in the stove. One "bo" would act as fireman for an hour or two and then wake up a sleeping pal to do the firing for the next shift. With an ever-changing shift the fire was never permitted to burn low. The city, of course, pays for the coal, so who cares?

The first "fireman" on duty was an elderly hobo, one who had been hitting the grit for years. When he wasn't poking the fire or putting in fresh fuel he mended his tattered shirt. He did the job so neatly that it was no trouble at all to discover that he had once been a tailor —at least, he said that was his business whenever he felt like working, which wasn't very often.

The 1129 Sign.

Then there was a young fellow in the bunch. He was only seventeen years old, but he seemed to be perfectly at home in the gang. He said that his home was in Minneapolis and that he had gone on a jaunt to the South with the intention of getting a job picking Florida oranges during the winter. But, according to his story there was no "soft pickings" in the South.

"When I got to Memphis," he said, "I saw de 1129 sign so I turned around and started back home."

"What d'ye mean by the 1129 sign?" asked a copper.

"Why dat's de sign dat means nuttin' doing' in de work line," he replied.

"According to that," said another intellectual bluecoat present, "all the 'bos' in the world will be piking into Memphis."

Mustered Out.

All night long the motley crew in the basement slumbered soundly, even the clanging of steel cell doors shutting other unfortunates from the outside world failing to awaken them.

Then, at 6 o'clock, came the big noise.

"Come on, you guys, get out o' here," shouted the desk sergeant as he roused one sleepy "bo" with his boot. "Come on—beat it—come upstairs and get your junk."

Stretches and yawns, moans and groans, and the "bos" ascended the stairs, to the desk room, where they claimed their 'valuables" (a hobo usually has a knife and some other trinkets, but always a knife), shuffled around the warm stove for a few moments and then disappeared through the various doors. They were up bright and early to start their campaign for "hand-outs" at the back doors and then get an early start south on a "foot and mouth disease special."

GOOD PROGRAMME FOR LADIES' "LIT"

Two Papers on Russia and France Will Be Features

The Ladies' Literary Society of St. Peter's T.A.S. will hold a regular meeting to-night. An interesting programme will be presented including musical numbers and a paper on Russia by Mrs. McElderry. Mrs. Law will give a paper on France.

It will be the last meting at which the Honorary President, Rev. Dean McColl, will attend in his present capacity. His removal to the East City parish will remove him from the activities of St. Peter's and of the Ladies' Literary. A large attendance is expected this evening.

Highway Robber's Heavy Sentence

MONTREAL, Nov. 26. — One of the longest penitentiary terms ever imposed for highway robbery, was given to Edouard Mousette, this morning by Judge Bazin in the Court of Special Sessions, when the accused, who pleaded guilty to five charges of robbery and purse snatching, was condemned to serve terms amounting to twenty-seven years. This record condemnation will be added to by three years more which he will have to complete as the unexpired period of a five year sentence, as he was on ticket of leave at the time of his arrest.

Mousette when arrested, was running away from two citizens of Westmount, who had heard the scream of Mrs. E. A. Cassils, of 41 Grosvenor Apartments, from whom he snatched a purse. Constables Gorman and Borden fired three shots before Mousette gave up the chase and was placed under arrest.

The Rumour Is Denied

That the Use of the Armouries Will Be Denied to the Home Guard

A persistent rumour has been going the rounds to the effect that the use of the Armouries is to be denied to the Home Guard. Mr. E. L. Goodwill, officer commanding the Guards, said this morning that the rumour had come to his notice, but so far, he was aware, was without foundation. In fact he was emphatic in his appreciation of the service rendered by the officers of the various military corps in Peterborough for their assistance in the work of forming the Peterborough Home Guard Regiment. Without the co-operation of the officers, the formation of a Home Guard Regiment as it exists to-day would be handicapped. "The military authorities in Peterborough have given us their heartiest co-operation," said Mr. Goodwill. The rumour probably originated with the instructions that were given to Mr. George Grange, caretaker of the Armouries, to exclude the public from the private quarters of the officers, also the recreation room. This room contains billiard tables and other expensive equipment that must be preserved for the use of the regiment.

Groom Leaves To Join Regiment

Young Couple Married on Wednesday Night Prior to Groom's Departure for the War

Mr. George Louis Martin, of this city, and late of Bridgenorth, Shropshire, England, and Miss Maud Emily Cole, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Cole, McGill Street, were married at St. George's church Wednesday night by the rector, Rev. Mr. Price, in the presence of only the immediate relatives and friends. Mr. Martin leaves to-night for Kingston, from where he will be sent on to the Old Country to join a Northamptonshire regiment. Mr. Martin is a reservist, and has seen service on three previous occasions. He has two service medals. He was through the South African war from beginning to end and took part in the relief of Ladysmith. He was also with Kitchener at Khartoum.

The many friends at St. George's of the bride and groom will join in extending best wishes and trust the groom will safely return to his bride for many years of happy wedded life.

A WHITE MINK SKIN IS SHOWN

In the window of Mrs W. E. Loch, furrier, near Simcoe street, is shown a skin of a white mink, tanned and dressed. This is a freak of nature in the animal world, and it is doubtful if half a dozen people in the City, outside of the fur men, have seen a white mink skin before.

The skin is pure white, with a very slight cream tinge on the nose and the tips of the four feet and the tail.

For the use of naturalists there has been invented a case containing a compass, double lens, thermometer, and glass and bottle to hold flowers or insects.

CITY HALL PARAGRAPHS

The Patriotic Fund disbursements are now made through the City Treasurer's office Mr. Miller reporting on each case, as formerly. The fund has now reached a total of $7,214.70.

The Relief Department.

Imposters innumerable are making daily application to the Charity Department for relief. Few, if any, ever secured in getting by the watchdog of the relief treasury, namely Mr. Finch Miller, who takes every precaution to investigate the cases that come before him.

Short-term Debentures.

The City's short-term debentures still find a ready sale. About one hundred and twenty thousand dollars worth have been sold to date.

Rate is Increased.

The Town Council of Lindsay has authorized the Treasurer to accept funds by issue of the corporation notes at the rate of 5 1-2 per cent. for one year. This rate is to apply to notes now in force from date of issue.

City is Economizing

The tax rate for the City of Sarnia next year will be 24 1-2 mills, which is a couple of mills less than last year. The Council decided that on account of the war expenses should be kept down as low as possible. The Board of Education asked for and received $42,000, while increases in salary were given to several city employees.

The tax rate in Peterborough is 25 mills, with an additional mill added for garbage collection.

Snow Removal.

Chief Gorman of Galt intends to enforce the snow by-law. There are some people who have made no effort to live up to the law. The Chief states that people who have their sidewalks cleaned by the Town should make their application at once, so there will be no excuse to offer later as to why the sidewalks were not cleaned. The town men will clean sidewalks; but to have this done application has to be made every winter.

MISS R. COMSTOCK ENTERTAINED CLUB

The W.I.T.Y. Club were entertained very acceptably by Miss Ruby Comstock at the home of Mrs. Mann, 246 Murray Street on Wednesday evening. The evening was spent in games and music and all were delighted at the charming manner in which the young hostess acquitted herself.

The prize winners were Miss Elliott, Miss and Mrs. Kennedy, Miss Long and Mr. Riley, while the "booby" prize was won by Miss Regan and Mr. Riley.

FINSMITHS WORKED ON HIGH EDGE OF SHEER ROOF OF MILL

Two tinsmiths, Robert Armstrong and George Panter, employed with W. R. Turner, were engaged this morning in eave-trough work high up on the edge of the elevator at the Campbell Milling Company's building. Mr. Armstrong was out at the edge of the sheer roof and at the end of a stout rope, tied about his waist, Mr. Panter duty was performed in a window above, where he anchored the rope. It was an unusual piece of work, and so high up were the men that from George Street one paid more attention to the long drop than to the rope held firmly in the window.

LATEST SOCCER GOSSIP.

A Great Amateur Centre.

The Baches were at work on Saturday. The generalship and genius of Joseph Bache was largely responsible for Aston Villa dividing the points and making a gain at Middlesbrough. He was much missed in the first seven engagements of his club, and it is either a significant fact or a coincidence that the Aston eleven have not lost since he reappeared, as they have drawn with Burnley and Middlesbrough and beat Tottenham and Newcastle. He is a captain who commands his company. So many football captains begin and end their leadership with tossing for choice of goals.

The other Bache, "H. G.," the old Cambridge blue, who has now received his commission in the 11th Battalion of the King's Royal Rifles at Aldershot, where he will meet scores of other footballers, was able to play against Notts County, with the inevitable result that Notts had four goals notched against them. This is their heaviest reverse. His influence on the Albion is obvious, both in opening out the game and in providing opportunities for the inside men.

Mr. William I. Bassett, whose opinion is entitled to carry much weight, not only as a celebrated player, but as a shrewd observer who has never lost touch with the game, declared the other day with much emphasis that h considered H. G. Bache as great a centre forward as G. O. Smith. He did not play up to that appreciation in the Inter-League match with Ireland, but he never had a return pass, and he was, if anything, too unselfish. A famous jockey once told his patroness that he could not "come along" without the horse. In the same way a centre-forward cannot get goals without the ball.

We hope H. G. Bache, who is now about to play for England is a sternet game, will return to the playing field and gain his place in another English team. His loyalty adds to his lustre.

A Note From the Front.

It is pleasing to hear that Firth, the Nottingham Forest right wing forward, who was called upon just as the present season was about to open to rejoin the Royal Artillery, of which he was a reservist, is in good health. He writes cheery notes from the front to his football colleagues and in one which he sent to Mr. Masten, the secretary last week he says that he continues in good trim. He expresses his regret that the Forest are not doing better, and hopes that he and Fiske, who had to leave to rejoin his regiment at the same time, will be back before Christmas.

Firth has not seen Fiske, and he jokingly says of him that he trusts he is not trying to stop any German shots, especially those they call "coal boxes." Referring to Stephen Bloomer Firth says he does not think he has coached the Germans well in their shooting, and he concludes by expressing the view that they are pretty certain to finish at the bottom of the league.

SHEA'S POWER BEFORE GOAL.

Everton, too, were conquered at home on Saturday, after gathering points with unfailing regularity from Sept. 26, their last disaster having been a week earlier than that date. Blackburn Rovers confirmed the Lancashire Cup form against the same club by the sensational manner in which they finished the match.

All the four goals of the game were registered in the last eighteen minutes, but the Rovers took the first three. Everton being quite disorganised after a penalty kick had been given against them. There has not been such sensational scoring in an Everton-Blackburn match since 1908-9, when the Rovers, chiefly through their Welsh centre, Davies, registered four goals in the second half and drew the match. Saturday's achievement served to recall that game, although it was not quite on the same plane.

The holders of the League championship had not won away from Ewood Park since the first Saturday of the season — a fact which made their experience all the more exhilarating.

As Daniel Shea, the inside right, scored twice, he had the satisfaction of completing 50 goals for his Lancashire club in the league games. Commencing with 12 in 15 matches at the end of 1912-13, he obtained 28 last season in 36 matches, and has supplemented those figures with 10 in 12 games this autumn. A return of 50 goals in 63 matches of the highest class is a record of which Shea has reason to be proud. Since coming north he has fully maintained the standard that he set up with West Ham United. Nor can it be said that he is a selfish forward. By his power to accomplish a great deal in little space with electrical quickness, Shea serves to recall James Settle at his zenith.

Shea is a wonder for his size. But he has a remarkable partner in John Simpson.

FOOTBALL NOT TO BE SUPPRESSED

LONDON, Nov. 27.—"The situation at present does not demand legislation for the suppression of football," said Premier Asquith in the House of Commons, replying to a question as to whether such a move was under way. The premier added that negotiations with the football magnates were progressing from which satisfactory results were expected. The agitation against football because it is interfering with recruiting, continues in the British press.

Shop Teams Won From Unknowns

In the Y.M.C.A. Bowling League last night the Shop team defeated the Unknows in three straight games:

The Shop team uncovered their masked guns for a while and took three straight games from the Unknows by their best bowling thus far. They promise some further surprises for some other teams later in the season.

Games to-night (Nov. 27) between Examiner and Belmont Clubs, should be a good contest. It is understood that the Belmonts will produce a dark horse.

CHECKER TOURNEY

Arrangements Made For One at the Y. M. C. A.

A meeting of the Social and Educational Committee of the Y.M.C.A. was held preceding the gynasium entertainment last night, and it was voted to hold a checker tournament on the evening of Dec. 8th. A conference of all men interested in evening educational classes will be held at 7.30 o'clock, Monday, Dec. 7th. This committee has many lines of activities under way.

Russian Troops at Servia.

LONDON, Nov. 27. — The Times' correspondent at Sofia, Bulgaria, reports that Russian troops have arrived in Servia to assist the Servians in fighting the Austrians.

"Fifteen regiments of Russian troops with seventy barge loads of ammunition and supplies have arrived at the Servian town of Radujevats," The Times' correspondent says. "They made the 800-mile trip up the Danube from Russian territory. They will be rushed to the front to assist the Servians."

Cold on Fighting Lines.

BERLIN, Nov. 27.—(By wireless to London.)—In the eastern theatre of the war the weather generally is clear but frosty, the temperature averaging 10 degrees centigrade, below zero. At Cracow fog alternates with snow.

In Flanders the rain continues and the temperature is near the freezing point. A low temperature prevails in the Lorraine plateau. In the Vosges the crests of the mountains are covered with about six inches of snow.

TO BAN WARSHIPS.

Latin Republics Would Co-operate Ignore Neutrality.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. — The U. S. Government has been asked by the principal nations of South America to co-operate with them in negotiations with the belligerent powers of Europe to bring about the exclusion of all belligerent warships from the waters of the two Americas and safeguard the trade of pan-American countries with each other.

Argentina, Chile and Uruguay have laid their suggestions before the Washington Government, while Brazil is considering the advisability of taking a similar step. Practically all the Central and South American countries have been circularized by some of the principal nations, resulting in a series of diplomatic conferences in Washington and the capitals of South America, which are now in progress.

While the proposals are different in character and scope, they all seek the same end—the restoration of the trade between North and South America, paralysed by the European war. The movement also has for its object the removal of possible causes of serious friction between the countries of this hemisphere and the European belligerents on questions of neutrality.

Already Chile, Ecuador and Colombia have had serious difficulties with the belligerents over the use of the wireless and the coaling of foreign warships, whose presence in the Atlantic and Pacific is growing obnoxious to South American countries.

The Peruvian cruiser Colonel Bolognesi, has been assigned to patrol the coast of Peru in order that the neutrality of the country may be preserved.

Another cruiser will sail to-day to do scout duty along the southern coast. Both cruisers are under orders to protect British steamers, by force if necessary. As a result of this action by the Government, steamships will renew their voyages immediately.

WILL SUPPRESS DISORDER.

Villa Promises a Peaceable Regime In Mexico City.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. — The forces of Gen. Zapata are preserving order in Mexico City, according to advices reaching the State Department yesterday through various channels, and the agents of Gen. Villa in the capital are co-operating in these efforts. It was not known last night whether any of Villas' troops had entered the city.

An official report from American Consul Carruthers, who is accompanying Gen. Villa, was received last night, however, which said Villa had renewed his promises that there would be no looting or disorder after he entered the capital, and that the rights of all residents, native or foreign, would be respected.

Gen. Carranza has arrived amid acclaim in Vera Cruz, where he has established his provisional capital, from which he will conduct his campaign against Villa.

GALICIANS OPPRESSED.

Austrians and Hungarians Charged With Many Atrocities.

LEMBERG, Galicia, Nov. 27.—(Via Petrograd and London.) — A committee appointed to investigate conditions in Galicia reports that there have been wholesale murders, executions and excesses of every description in war-swept Galicia. Thousands of starving and homeless families give evidence of these conditions.

The Russian population, the committee says, suffered most severely, less from natural consequences of war than from the cruelty of Austrian officials, who always suspected the loyalty of the Galician population.

The committee reports it established the fact that in seven counties 258 men have been shot or hanged, including two priests. Throughout Galicia it is estimated 10,000 arrests have been made and 1,000 executions have taken place.

Most of these outrages are said by the committee to have been committed by Hungarians. It is stated that Cossacks, who were pursuing a detachment of Hungarians, found the body of one Russian girl who had been crucified.

Bomb Factory In New York.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27. — Chance may have placed in the hands of the police information which the most careful search had failed to reveal. As the result of an explosion which took place in a dingy six-storey tenement house at No. 132 Cherry street Wednesday night, it seems likely that a bomb factory has been brought to light, where missiles which have imperilled the lives of many people may have been made. Not only are the police hopeful of finding the materials from which these bombs were made, but the men who manufactured and planted them, as well.

Actor Robert Lorraine Wounded.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—Robert Lorraine, the well-known English actor and aviator, who is a second lieutenant in the British flying corps, is among the wounded reported from army headquarters under date of Nov. 23. Mr. Lorraine, who was one of the earliest and most enthusiastic of the English aviators, narrowly escaped death in a flight across the Irish Sea three years ago.

Fears Anti-Christians Riots.

ROME, Nov. 27.—The Italian consul at Jerusalem has requested the Foreign Office of his Government to despatch warships to Jaffa, fearing anti-Christian riots there. It is reported that the subjects of the allies in Jerusalem have been imprisoned and maltreated by the Turks, who have also looted houses there.

Relief for Farmers.

OTTAWA, Nov. 27.—The sum of $1,150,000 was appropriated by the Government yesterday to meet the situation created by the crop failures southern Alberta. This was done at the initiative of Hon. Robert Rogers.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 26.—Trading was quiet on the wheat market today, few transactions, and options and even these of small amounts. There were no cables from Liverpool until very late and with American markets closed, today being Thanksgiving Day in the United States, the news was scarce. Wheat opened unchanged to ⅛c lower, oats unchanged to ⅛c lower, flax being unquoted.

Cash demand was good for Nos. 1, 2 and 4 wheat, and exporters were the buyers. Demand for cash oats and barley was practically dead, there being no buyers, while offerings were fair.

Inspections Wednesday were 604 cars as against 1333 last year, and in sight were 600 cars.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, Nov. 26.—There was no improvement in the demand from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat today, and the few bids that did come forward were 1s to 1s 6d per quarter under what exporters offered to sell the different grades at. A fair trade continues to be in coarse grains for domestic account, there being a steady demand for carlots at unchanged prices. The demand from foreign buyers for low-grade spring wheat flour is good, but as millers are closely sold up of such for some little time to come they are not in a position to accept any of the orders, but sales of 10,000 sacks of export patent were made for December-January shipment to London at 34s 6d. Demand for millfeed is brisk, and millers have turned orders for round lots for December delivery at full prices.

Butter is quiet with an easy undertone, but the feeling in cheese is very firm with a good enquiry for supplies from English importers.

Eggs active and firm. Potatoes easier at a decline of 5c per bag. Dressed hogs weak at a further decline of 50c per 100 pounds.

CHEESE MARKETS.

Yeggmen Accuses Detectives.

SASKATOON, Nov. 27. — Chief of Detectives Fred. R. Springers and Detective Fred. W. Reeves were formally suspended from police force and placed under surveillance at a special meeting of the police commission held yesterday. This action was taken as the result of the confession of Frank Heaton, a yeggman, arrested some time ago in Edmonton, who said that the two detectives in question, who constitute the whole detective force of this town, had permitted these men to remain in Saskatoon, although they knew them to be crooks, and had promised them protection, provided they did not operate in the city.

After three years continuous work a five-mile tunnel recently was pierced through the Jura mountains to shorten railroad routes from Paris to Rome and Milan.

IDEAL HUSBAND MUST BE IDEAL LOVER, SAY WIVES

One Hundred Matrons Give Pastor Details of Model Mate for Use in Sermon.

DETROIT, Nov. 21.—Happiness in married life depends first of all on the ability of the husband to maintain as ardent a wooing after marriage as during the courtship. This is the opinion of one hundred Detroit wives expressed in letters to the Rev. Howard A. Field, pastor of the Simpson M.E. Church. The letters were requested by Mr. Field and the pastor based a sermon. "The Ideal Husband," on them. All agreed that the ideal husband must be an ideal lover. Other necessary qualities of an ideal husband in the order of their importance were fixed as follows:

He must be a lover of home.

He must be industrious even to the extent of being willing to roll up his sleeves and help tidy the house.

He must be morally pure — there can be no double standard of purity.

He must treat his wife as his equal—not as a servant.

He must be temperate.

WEDDING BELLS

LIVINGSTONE—SHEARD.

Wednesday, November 25th, at 3 o'clock, the marriage was solemnized at the residence of Mrs. Henry Sheard in Grosvenor Street, Toronto, of her daughter, Edna Gertrude, to Mr. Thornton Fleming Livingstone, only son of the late Mr. Robert Livingstone, Aurora, and of Mrs. Livingstone. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. J. Simpson, pastor of the Carlton Street Methodist Church, in the bow window of the drawing room, which was a forest of palms and chrysanthemums, an aisle being formed with heavy white cords leading to the window, where a white and gold kneeling stool was arranged for the bride and groom, the large drawing-room accommodating the seventy guests easily. The wedding music was played by the favourite orchestra, and Miss Gladys Jones, London, sang the "Happy Song" after the ceremony. The hall and staircase was beautifully decorated with palms, ferns and white chrysanthemums, the orchestra playing behind a screen of tall phoenix leaves. The dining-room was arranged with yellow chrysanthemums and ferns, and the bride's table with white roses and lilies. The beautiful fair bride, who was brought in and given away by her brother, Dr. Robert H. Sheard, wore a gown of white satin with basque and court train hemmed with seed pearls, with overdress of Chantilly lace. Her veil was of tulle and was hemmed with pearls, and crowned with orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley, and wore the groom's present, a pearl necklace. Miss Florence McMurty was maid of honour, wearing pale blue satin with white tunic and black velvet picture hat with blue, and she carried an armful of Beauty roses. Miss Pearl Carton, Peterborough, was bridesmaid, in shell pink mirror and lace, with black velvet picture hat, and an armful of pink tea roses. Mr. William C. Gowland was best man. The groom's gift to the bride's attendants were necklaces of pink coral roses and pearls, and to the best man a silver-mounted snakewood stick. Mrs. Sheard held a reception after the ceremony, wearing a gown of black crepe de chine and mirror. Mrs. Livingstone, who was also present, wore black. The Rev. R. J. Simpson proposed the bride's health. Mr. and Mrs. Livingstone left for the Eastern States by the 5.20 o'clock train, the latter wearing a black tailor-made trimmed with fur and a hat to match, and a stole and muff of ermine.

KREISLER HIT IN LEG.

Great Musician Arrives in New York After Battlefield Experiences.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27. — Lieutenant Fritz Kreisler, the Austrian violinist, and his wife returned from Europe on the steamer Rotterdam. Both served with the Austrian army, Mrs. Kreisler as a Red Cross nurse and his husband with his regiment, the Third Grainer Jaeger Regiment.

"We were in the trenches near Lemberg when the Cossacks made a night attack on Sept. 16," said the violinist. "They rode right over our trenches and a horse's hoof struck me a glancing blow. Its rider then jabbed me in the right thigh with his lance. I shot him dead.

"My orderly found me several hours later and got me back to the field hospital. There were so many there that I was sent to Vienna. Mrs. Kreisler came and nursed me. I shall be all right in a few weeks and my wound will not affect my playing."

Kaiser Saw Troops Defeated.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—"The Emperor of Germany last week witnessed in East Prussia from a hill called Obertangen, a German defeat at the hands of the Russians," says the Copenhagen correspondent of The Daily Mail. The Emperor took an abrupt leave of the commander-in-chief, asking him to convey his greetings to the troops.

TELLS HOW KING SHOT CHAUFFEUR

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Etienne Gouraud, who arrived here on the Cameronia from Glasgow, said he was with King Albert of Belgium when the latter shot his chauffeur for an attempt to deliver him to the German army.

Gouraud, who lives in Ironton, Mich., was a Belgian reservist, who became one of the King's bodyguard.

"We were going in one of the royal automobiles from one point in the Belgian lines to another," he said, "when the King realized we were on the wrong road, nine miles from the lines.

"The King stood up in the car and pointing his revolver at the chauffeur ordered him to stop. Then we searched the chauffeur and found in his pocket a check for 50,000 marks drawn on the Reich Bank in Berlin.

"The chauffeur admitted the check had been given to him to get the King within the German lines, and that payment had been promised on it when he accomplished his treachery. King Albert then shot him dead and we sped back to safety."

Three Belgian refugees — Clement, August and Ludwig Van Leeuw, brothers — arrived on the Cameronia on their way to relatives in Green Bay, Wis. They lived in Louvain when the Germans approached. August and Ludwig left and Clement remained to look after their home. He hid in the cellar, but the Germans found him and condemned him to be shot as a sniper. They let him go on his promise to persuade other Belgians to lay down their arms. He said he fled to Ghent and there found his brothers.

Both the Cameronia and the Scandanavian-American liner Oscar II., which arrived in Quarantine a few minutes after she did, escaped mines off the north coast of Ireland by following instructions from commanders of British war vessels until well out on the Atlantic.

400 BELGIAN GUNS ON SCRAP HEAP

DUNKIRK, France, Nov. 25.—The depression of the Belgians quartered here was increased, a few days ago, when a file of nearly 400 field-guns was dragged through by horses that looked as weary and melancholy as their riders. These were the guns that had defended Antwerp as well as they could. For lack of ammunition, bought from the Krupps for delivery in June, but delivery of which was deferred, they were obliged to use French shells that were not fitted to them, and which tore the rifling out. The guns were going to the scrap-heap, and the horses, after being rested, will draw back French 3-inch field guns in their places.

GERMAN GENERALS AMONG THE KILLED

Examiner Special:

LONDON, Nov. 27. — The Russian Embassy at Rome anounces that the Battle of Lodz has been renewed with fresh forces. Several German divisions (a division consists of 14,000 men) were annihilated and many German generals were killed. The German front has been broken in a number of places and a decision is imminent.

The failure of the Russian Government to announce the extent of the victory gained over the Germans in Poland is producing irritation in Petrograd, acording to correspondents of newspapers here, and there is a reflection of the feeling in this city.

Notwithstanding the reticence of the Government, which is accounted for, conjecturally, on the score of conservatism, evidences multiply that the Russian victory is fully as great as has been claimed by the correspondents. Lord Kitchener's announcement in the House of Lords is an indication that the Russian Government privately notified Great Britain

There is little doubt that the total losses of the Germans exceed 100,000. The position of Gen. Hindenburg's army, which is surrounded, has already lost the greater part of its transport and military ammunition, as well as much rifle ammunition. The next stage must be a bayonet fight or wholesale surrender.

50,000 Surrendered.

To-day the Petrograd Army Messenger, the organ of the Russian general staff, published the following:

"The Russian troops have redoubled their offensive. An entire German corps of 50,000 men surrendered when cut off from the main army in Poland. Another corps has been surrounded and will have to surrender.

"The terrific losses suffered by the Germans have compelled them to weaken in their offensive, though they have rushed up great numbers of reinforcements. It is expected that formal announcement of a complete and overwhelming victory in Poland will be made by the Grand Duke Nicholas within a short time.

"Our successes continue in Galicia and the Russian troops that penetrated Hungary have taken several thousand prisoners."

The Petrograd correspondent of the Paris Matin telegraphed to-day almost precisely the same facts. He learns that 50,000 Germans were forced to surrender, and that a similar force is on the point of surrender. He hears that the Russians are increasing the strength of their attacks along the Czenstochowa-Cracow line.

THE GREATEST VICTORY OF THE WAR.—This map illustrates the remarkable success gained by the Russians. The Germans advanced from Posen and from Thorn on the northeast to Lodz and Lowicz and Brzesinanny. Russians in the vicinity of Kaliez were outflanked by the Germans but turned round and attacked the flank of the German army at Lodz from the west. Russian troops from Warsaw pounded the other flank from the east. It is likely that almost the entire German army will be captured.

Von Hindenburg's Army Is Almost Surrounded

Special Morning Cable:

PETROGRAD, Nov. 28.—The Russian forces are now vigorously assailing the Germans entrenched in the vicinity of Lodz, Zgierz, Zdunska and Wola. This is the district in which unofficial despatches insist that a large detachment of the army of Gen. Von Hindenburg has been virtually surrounded and is in danger of destruction or capture. The report to-day from the Grand Duke Nicholas sets up no claims of the rout of the German forces except upon the southern end of the battle line where the Austro-German army is declared to be retreating towards Cracow in great disorder. The Russians are vigorously pursuing the retreating forces. In all more than six thousand prisoners have been taken by the Russian army and many guns captured. It is evident that the most desperate fighting has marked the engagements all along the line, the statement frequently referring to the use of the bayonet in driving out the Germans.

RUSSIAN WINTER PLAYS HAVOC WITH THE ENEMY

PETROGRAD, Nov. 27.—The weather has turned suddenly cold, and the army of invasion has been caught in front, flank and rear by the redoubtable Russian, General Frost. North Russian sleeps under a blanket of snow.

The weather conditions in Poland will be an important factor in the future campaigning of the German troops, for the most part recruited from cities and small towns, where it is the custom to coddle one's self against the cold during the winter. At home they keep their houses well heated, eat well, and are warmly clothed. Now they are burrowing in frozen ground to find protection from the shot and shell of an untiring enemy. This is in direct contrast to the circumstances of the Russian. To him long, cold winters are an old story. He is inured to the severest frost. Short, depressing days mean nothing to him, and gloomy, interminable nights mean nothing to him. The Russian winter nights will in time sap the fibre of the finest troops.

BATTLE OF LODZ IS NOW IN ITS LAST STAGE

The battle of Lodz is in its last stage. Such German corps as have been able to hold together, in spite of the hammering they have received, keep up the desperate struggle. German forces retreating from Kolushki have been caught by pursuing Russians at Brzesiny. They are trying to fight their way through to Strykow, but this road is no longer open, and every hour their position becomes more desperate. Unless they can replenish their ammunition they are lost.

The thought of a winter in Siberia made more vivid by the cold has given the remnant of the Germany army the fury of despair, but relentlessly the Russians close in on them. If the enemy break through, but a straggling remainder will ever find the trail to Thorn. If they fail, the battle of Lodz will be the greatest catastrophe ever suffered by German military power.

ENEMY IS RETIRING

Evidences of the Withdrawal of the Germans From the Belgian Coast

Special Morning Cable:

LONDON, Nov. 28.—The Germans are withdrawing from the Belgian coast and concentrating at Antwerp, according to a Rotterdam despatch to the Daily Mail to-day. Heavy gunfire was heard at Zee-Brugge on Friday afternoon, the despatch stated. The allied warships were apparently again bombarding the German naval base.

French and British aeroplanes are now circling the plains of Flanders with impunity. The German guns especially designed for attacks upon aircraft have been unable to hit the allied fliers.

BRIDGENORTH LADIES TO GIVE LUNCHEON

The ladies of Bridgenorth will serve lunch in the C.O.F. hall on Dec. 1st and 2nd, in connection with the live-stock exhibition in the village on those days. The receipts will be given to the Patriotic Fund, and it is expected that Peterborough people attending will join with the farmers in helping the ladies make their efforts successful. The C.O.F. have not only placed their hall at the disposal of the ladies for patriotic meetings, but last night they also voted $10 for the purchase of yarn to be given the ladies for knitting.

FELL IN A FAINT.

Mrs. Edwin Martin, Ayer's Cliff, Que., writes: "Before using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I was in a terrible condition. Dizzy spells would come over me and I would fall to the floor. I could not even without fainting. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has so built up my system that I can walk and do my housework. Your medicine cured me when doctors had failed."

JOFFRE IS HONOURED

Receives Medaille Militaire, the Greatest Recognition France Can Offer for Military Exploits

ABOVE LEGION OF HONOUR

PARIS, Nov. 28. —President Poincare has conferred upon General Joffre the Medaille Militaire, the highest honour that can be conferred on a General. The presentation was made in the presence of Premier Viviani, Minister of War Millerand, the Presidents of the Senate and the Chamber of Deputies, and the members of the General Staff.

In the making of the presentation President Poincare said the simple medal, which was the emblem of the highest military virtues, and which was worn with equal pride by illustrious Generals and humble soldiers, was a mark of the nation's gratitude to their Commander-in-chief. M. Poincare added that he associated with him in his sincere congratulations General Joffre's devoted collaborators of the General Staff and the magnificent armies of France.

"The horrors of this sanguinary warfare," M. Poincare continued, "will not damp the enthusiasm of the troops. The grievous losses suffered by the nation will not disturb its constancy nor shake its will. France exercised all means to spare humanity in this unprecedented catastrophe. She knows that to avoid its [illegible] now he must, in union with her allies, definitely abolish its causes.

"Indecisive victory and a precarious peace would expose to-morrow the genius of France to fresh insults from that refined barbarian which assumes the mask of science the better to slake its instincts of domination.

"France will carry on to the end by a union of all her children and with the unflagging aid of her allies the work of European liberation now begun. And when she has completed the task she will find a fuller life of glory, concord and security."

The Presidential party afterwards left army headquarters for an extended tour of the battle-front.

GERMAN SHIPS REPORTED GONE

Special Morning Cable:

PARIS, Nov. 28.— A Petrograd despatch to Le Matin to-day declares that the German cruiser, believed to be Hertha, has been sunk near Libau. The despatch also carries an unconfirmed report that the battleship Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse has been torpedoed and sunk in the Baltic.

The battleship Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, evidently referred to in Matin despatch is one of Germany's predreadnoughts, having been built in 1901. The warship is of 10,790 tons displacement and carries a crew of 658 men. Her main battery is composed of four 9.4 inch and fourteen 5.9 inch guns. The Kaiser Wilhelm now mentioned should not be confused with the auxiliary cruiser of that name which was sunk off Africa.

Toronto Fat Stock Show

From indications, the Fifth Annual Fat Stock Show, to be held at the Union Stock Yards, Toronto on December 11th and 12th, will be larger and the quality of exhibits better than ever. Entries closed November 25th, and bring out the fact that this will be the largest exhibit of fat cattle, sheep and hogs for staughtering purposes ever held in Canada. The judging will be done by practical men who know market grades and values, and exhibitors and spectators will learn ideal types for butcher purposes. Judging will begin at 10 a.m. Friday, December 11th, and all prize winning stock will be auctioned beginning at 10 a.m. Saturday, December 12th, 1914.

CEASE MOVE TO CALAIS

Enemy Seems to Be Preparing for Retirement From the Coast —Allies Line Intact

GERMAN MACHINE STOPPED

NORTHERN FRANCE. Nov. 27—There are very strong indications that a fresh attempt by the Germans to force their way to Calais by turning or piercing our left wing is being abandoned almost as soon as it was begun. This can mean one thing only—the immediate retirement of the Germans in West Flanders. The allies have maintained their line intact from the North Sea to Switzerland, and they are stronger at almost every point than ever before, mobile reinforcements being ready for emergencies, with excellent railway service to every important position.

The Germans have hurled enormous forces upon the northern portion of the allies' line during the last six weks, and have been repeatedly repulsed. Worst of all for them, is has been impossible to conceal the truth from the German soldiers, whose faith in the invincibility of the German machine is now shaken, if not shattered. Broken faith in the War Lord means divided counsels, and an unsteady morale for the German officers and men alike. The proudest man in Europe is the heroic King Albert. At last, after weeks of anxiety, he sees the Germans about to retreat, balked of the immediate triumph on which they counted as a foregone achievement, the complete conquest of Belgium.

Audacious Now Being Repaired

It Is Said She Was Raised and Towed into the Harbour of Belfast

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.— The statement that the British Dreadnought Audacious, reported sunk on October 27 off Lough Swilly, Ireland, had been raised and towed into Belfast harbour was made by passengers on the Cunard liner Lusitania, which arrived here to-night.

According to the report, the big sea fighter is undergoing repairs in Harland & Wolf's shipyard in the Irish seaport.

The Audacious was sunk in about twenty seven fathoms — about 160 feet of water. When the individuals responsible for the report—who asked that their names be withheld— were reminded that it had taken weeks to raise the battleship Maine in Havana harbour, the reply was that the British Admiralty has perfected an invention by which it is possible to raise even a vessel of the enormous tonnage of the Audacious in a comparatively much shorter time. Ten days was the actual time, it was stated, consumed in performing the feat of raising the Audacious and towing her safely into Belfast harbour.

The passengers on board the Lusitania included Col. G. Patterson Murphy and Col. H. H. McLean, who were attached to the first expeditionary force of Canada. They are returning home, but declined to discuss their mission or the war.

The Lusitania brought 4,000 bags of mail matter, a considerable portion of which is for Canada.

EARL KITCHENER AT CLOSE RANGE

Some Stories of the Famous Soldier's Previous Campaigns—Photography Won First Promotion

The "Man of Iron." That exactly sums up the character and career of Lord Kitchener. Thorough, resolute, and possessing that virtue of virtues, silence, the work Lord Kitchener has accomplished stamps him as one of the greatest soldiers and administrators Britain has ever produced. Work, not talk, is his motto. His thoroughness is proverbial; but he likes things done his own way.

"I understand," a friend remarked to him as he was about to sail for South Africa, "that you intend to reorganise the transport as soon as you arrive."

"Reorganise?" replied Kitchener. "I am going to organise it.' And he did, with the result that the army was able to march on the Boer capital.

It was a cousin of Lord Kitchener who told the story of how the famous Field-Marshal got his first chance. A stall, overgrown lad, nearly 6 feet 1 inch in height, he managed somehow to scramble into Woolwich. He was not high in the lists, and no one thought anything about him. After leaving Woolwich, young Kitchener was gazetted to the Corps of Royal Engineers and appointed on the Palestine Survey—because he knew how to photograph. The authorities at that time wanted someone to go to Palestine to take photographs, and it was his knowledge of photography which led to young Kitchener's appointment, and gave him his chance.

His First Chance

Lord Cromer was one of the first to recognise the abilities of the future Field-Marshal. He was struck by the frequency with which the name of Kitchener, at that time a comparatively little known officer, appeared in almost every document that was put before him.

"This Kitchener," he remarked one day, "seems to have a finger in every pie. I must see him and find out what he is like."

A meeting was arranged and the diplomatist was greatly impressed by the capacity which the soldier's directness of speech seemed to convey.

"That man's got a lot in him," his Lordship afterwards remarked. "He should prove one of our best assets in Egypt."

In those early days Kitchener was daring almost to rashness. He thought nothing of disguising himself as an Arab and living among the sons of the desert for months at a time, in order to acquire a knowledge of the native movements and conspiracies. And so clever was he at disguising himself that even his own comrades did not know him. Indeed, one day a soldier flung a brickbat at Kitchener, whom he mistook for "a bloomin' nigger," inflicting rather a nasty scalp wound.

Says He Will Die in Bed

For two years Kitchener practically lived among the Arabs, carrying his life in his hands, never knowing when he might be brought face to face with a violent death, and all the while communicating to the heads of the Egyptian Intelligence Department information of the utmost importance.

Curiously enough, Lord Kitchener is a fatalist, and on several occasions has expressed some very strong convictions as to his future. During the Soudan Campaign he was once warned not to expose himself so recklessly to the enemy while in action. To this remonstrance he replied, "I shall never be killed. When my time comes I shall die peacefully in my bed."

During the South African War he seldom had more than three or four hours' sleep a day, rising regularly at four or five o'clock in the morning and working hard until night. Officers knew that Kitchener always meant business. He had no use for regimental ornaments; practical soldiers were what he wanted. One officer in command of a column had not been heard of for some days. Telegrams were sent in all directions to find him, bearing two questions, "What are you doing? Have you taken any Boers, and how many?"

TOO SOON TO WRITE.

Congressman Joseph A. Golden of New York smiled largely at a social affair the other evening when reference was made to sending little wifey away for the summer. He said he was reminded of the consternation of Smith.

Mrs. Smith was going to the mountains and the old man had accompanied her to the depot to look after the baggage and whisper a tender farewell.

"Good-bye, dear!" said father affectionately kissing her as the train drew in. "Take care of your health and have a good time."

"Good-by, papa!" returned little wifey, pasting on a few extra kisses and hustling for the car steps. "I will write you the day after to-morrow."

"What's that?" exclaimed father, with a look of consternation. "Why the money you have with you ought to last at least two weeks!"

TIRED-OUT KIDNEYS

Kidney troubles are so frightfully common because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or excesses of eating and drinking. Cure is effected not by whipping them on to renewed effort, but by awakening the action of liver and bowels by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This rests the kidneys and makes them well. Backache and urinary disorders then disappear.

WHAT BADGES TELL

British Officers' Rank Shown by Stars or Crown on Cuffs

Point has been made recently in the war news that French officers' uniforms are so distinct from those of their men that the officers themselves become targets for the marksmen of the enemy. The preponderance of officers' names in the casualty lists proves the accuracy of this contention.

In the British army, however, khaki-clad officers and men, when seen at a distance, blend into a mass from which no distinction of rank can be detected. When close at hand, however, it is observed that each rank among the officers has its own distinctive badge by which at a glance each actual rank may be recognized.

For instance, the badges placed in front of the cuffs on the officers' sleeves define the actual rank: second lieutenant, one star; lieutenant, two stars; captain, three stars; major, a crown; lieutenant-colonel, one crown and one star; colonel, one crown and two stars.

Troop Horses' Burdens

Cavalry are playing an unexpectedly large part in the war, and the weight carried by cavalry horses in the various armies is of interest. The British cavalry is armed with the short Lee-Enfield rifle, the magazine of which holds ten rounds; the sword, which is carried by all ranks except signallers; and the revolver, carried by warrant officers, staff-sergeants, sergeants, trumpeters, and drivers. Each trooper carries one hundred rounds of ammunition in a bandolier over the left shoulder. Lancer regiments carry the lance. Altogether the British troop horse carries about 286 pounds.

Mr. E. Nowlan, the bandmaster of the Chobham (Surrey) village band his father, grandfather, and great-grandfather all served in the 2nd Welsh Regiment, in which he now has a son.

FASHIONS AND HABITS INFLUENCED BY WAR

Popular as the cigarette is now, it did not "come in" till after the Crimean War, when it was introduced by British officers, naval and military. Somewhat similar is the history of the calabash pipe, which was popularised after the South African War.

Through war, too, absinthe drinking became an institution in France. When the French troops were operating in Algiers in 1832-47, the seductive liquor was prescribed as a febrifuge, and the soldiers became so fond of it that they continued to drink it on their return to France.

It is also, owing to the circumstances of war, that Germany's chief military decoration, the Iron Cross, is made of the commonest of metals, and, like the Victoria Cross, is intrinsically worth only a few cents. During the fight against Napoleon gold became so scarce that the married women gave their wedding rings to the Government, which presented them with iron substitutes. To-day they are valued heirlooms. In consequence of the women's self-denial, iron jewellery became fashionable, and when Frederick William III. of Prussia instituted a cross for distinguished services he ordered it to be made of iron.

Fashions, again, have frequently been derived from soldiers' uniform. Many years ago a contingent of Cossacks visited London, and as a result men's dress promptly underwent a great change, short boots and loose trousers "coming in" almost immediately.

The Zouave jacket, which many ladies will remember, was similarly modelled on a distinctive part of the semi-Moorish uniform worn by France's famous troops. Introduced in Paris, it was a vogue all over Europe.

Much the same story belongs to khaki. The material so called was originally worn by the Corps of Guides, a mixed regiment of frontier troops in 1848, and the now familiar color was that of some of the regiments at the siege of Delhi, subsequently becoming very popular in the army generally. But it first came public notice from the circumstance that khaki-colored uniform was worn by the British troops during the South African War. Then khaki—that is, dust or earth-colored—materials of many kinds were placed on the market, and ever since it has been one of the standard shades of the dress trade.

SCULPTORS WENT TO WAR

Consequently Statue to Memory of Montreal Hero Must Wait

Because of the war in Europe and because sculptors have to don their country's uniform and shoulder a rifle like other people, the statue which was planned to commemorate the heroic work of Adam Dollard des Ormeaux, the young Frenchman who saved Montreal in the pioneer days from the Iroquois with 16 French and 40 Algonquin assistants, will have to wait. The committee having the memorial in charge had received four or five models of the statues before the outbreak of hostilities, and others were expected. But the sculptors went to the war and their work is delayed. The secretary of the Dollard committee says that the whole matter will have to be postponed. If the models in the care of the committee are accepted later, and it is found that the sculptor has perished in the struggle, the prize money will be paid to his heirs.

VETERAN GENERALS COMMAND ARMIES

Nearly All Leaders of Hosts in the Field Are Men of Three-score Years or More

A striking feature of the war is the mature years of the battle leaders. Youth, perhaps, may be at a premium on the firing line, but age with military experience is seemingly showing its strategic worth.

Nearly all of the British generals are 50 years old and over. The heaviest burden of active responsibility in the field has been placed by France upon men in the sixties. Germany apparently has looked well nigh askance at any general of less than three-score years. Austria has seemingly placed a premium upon men that have passed by a goodly margin the half century mark, and this is equally true of Russia and Servia.

The problem of England's battles on land rests to-day in the hands of Earl Kitchener, a man of three-score years and four, whose years of maturity have been spent either in warfare or in responsible military positions of administration. Kitchener is the same hard driving soldier to-day that he was when he tirelessly blazed his way against grave physical obstacles in Egypt and never rested until he drove the enemy out of his stronghold of Khartum.

On the field Britain's supreme in command is General Sir John French, born sixty-two years ago, and one of England's most striking military figures. Nearly all of the men who are his division leaders are tried soldiers of more than fifty years of age; some of them are older.

General Joseph Joffre, the French commander-in-chief, is 62.

Major-General Paul Pau is a one-armed veteran of the Franco-Prussian war; he numbers three-score years and six.

General de Curieres de Castelnau of the general staff is the third of the commanding trio of the French army and is well up in the sixties. General Gallieni, in charge of the defences of Paris, is in the neighborhood of 70.

Old age in the German army might almost be said to be the hall-mark of military aggressiveness, for one of the most active men in the field is Count Gottlieb von Huelsen-Haessler, in his seventy-eighth year.

Field Marshal Kolmar von der Goltz is the second eldest German general, being 71.

General von Kluk, the Kaiser's main reliance against the allies, is sixty-eight. General Karl von Buelow, who has worked shoulder to shoulder with Von Kluk in the centre and in supporting his brother general on the right wing, is 68, and General Max von Boehn is but three years younger. General Paul von Hindenburg, the Kaiser's hope against the Russians, is 67.

Count Ferdinand Zeppelin, directing the operations of the German dirigibles, is 76 years old.

The Russian leader, the Grand Duke Nicholas, is 58. He has had the helpful advice of General Sukhomlinoff, a well trained soldier, verging upon 70 years.

General Ruzsky, the hero of Lemberg, and the commander of the Russian army in Galicia, is well up in the fifties.

The Archduke Frederick of Austria is 58, and into his keeping the Emperor has placed the responsibility of Austria's battle honors. In Galicia General Moritz von Auffenberg is 52 years old, and General Viktor Dankl, just short of 60.

Servia turned to General Radumil Putnik in the present crisis, and as commander-in-chief of the Servian forces he has shown the fitness of the choice. General Putnik was born in 1849, and though from southern Austria is Servian in every fibre.

TWO WOMEN TESTIFY

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did For Their Health—Their own Statements Follow.

Haliburton, P.E.I.:—"I had a doctor examine me and he said I had falling of the womb, so I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has done me a lot of good. All the bearing-down pains have vanished. I have gained ten pounds in weight, the discharge is all gone, and I feel better than I have for a long time. I think any woman is foolish to suffer as I did for the sake of a few dollars.

"You can use my letter as a testimonial. It may encourage other poor women who suffer as I did to use your Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. GEO. COLLBOUTT, Haliburton, Lot 7, P.E.I.

I had bearing down pains, was dizzy and weak, had pains in lower back and could not be upon my feet long enough to get a meal. As long as I laid on my back I would feel better, but when I would get up those bearing down pains would come back, and the doctor said I had female trouble. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was the only medicine that helped me and I have been growing stronger ever since I commenced to take it. I hope it will help other suffering women as it has me. CHUMS WOUNDED BY SHELL

Congratulating Themselves on Lucky Escape When Shell Burst

Private F. S. Smith, of the Queen's Royal West Surrey, wrote to a friend at Forest Gate:

"We are roughing it all right, but are having a hot time in the trenches. You remember Dennison? Well, we were side by side when a shell burst above us; a piece of it caught me in the right shoulder and came out below the right arm, knocking me over properly. A 'bullseye five' wasn't in it. Another bit caught poor Dennison in the leg. His foot was almost blown off. We had been soaked through with rain all the week, and had only just said to each other how lucky we were not to be hit, when 'bang,' and we were hors de combat. It would have done your heart good to see our chaps advancing under a deadly fire without flinching, everybody bent on the immediate business before him. The Germans can't stand either our rifle fire or our bayonet charges."

NEW GERMAN VIEW OF BRITAIN'S NAVY

Before the War it Was Held in Contempt But Now It Looms up as a Real Fighting Power

A journalist who is particularly well informed with regard to naval affairs is Mr. Hector C. Bywater, who for some years was the Berlin correspondent of "The Navy," the organ of the Navy League, and of the Naval and Military Record. In the latter paper he not long ago made some interesting remarks upon the German attitude towards the British navy. He said in part:

"German papers recently to hand have contained allusions to the British navy which read somewhat strangely when contrasted with German Press utterances on the same subject before the war. We are now given to understand that the enemy entertains a wholesome respect for our fleet. A great change in the tone of their Press comment set in after the fight off Heligoland. The consummate skill dash, and courage which distinguished the conduct of that engagement obviously came as an eye-opener to the Germans. Even the leading German papers now admit that the Fatherland must look to the land campaign both for its laurels and substantial successes, as the prospect at sea is not encouraging. In a word, they are beginning to realize that the British fleet is a factor whose power had been grossly under-rated, and it is clear from their guarded admissions that they have no great confidence in the ability of the German navy to fulfil its much-advertised mission of protecting the commerce and the colonies of the Fatherland.

German patriots, we may well imagine, are beginning to ask themselves what return they are getting for the enormous expenditure on naval armaments during the last fourteen years. It is literally true that up to the present this great fleet has been utterly powerless to affect the course of the campaign in any direction whatever. It has, perhaps, prevented a hostile landing on the German coasts, but this elementary form of coast defence could have been equally well undertaken by small flotillas costing but a fraction of what the high sea fleet cost. Indeed the reliance which has always been placed on shore batteries and mine fields proves that the navy was never intended for coast defence, in the narrow sense of that term.

One of the most widely-held opinions in Germany before the war was that British navy was a thoroughly effete institution. Time after time it has been the writer's duty to record statements by prominent Germans which showed how completely they believed this to be the case. Every type of vessel in the British navy, from super-Dreadnought to submarine, was subjected to the most scathing criticism by German wiseacres. Our ships were ill-designed, badly built, unstable and unseaworthy, owing principally to the absence of scientific methods in naval design and the decadence of the British workman. Our guns were of very inferior quality, inaccurate, and short-lived, while the very latest issue of "Nauticus," contained an article in which British gunnery methods were treated with supercilious contempt. It was the personnel however, which these critics professed to consider responsible for the alleged decline of British naval power. Certain amiable writers, who were supposed to know the sentiment of German naval officers, were wont to assure us that these gentlemen had a high respect for the personal character and professional attainments of the British naval officer. Such, however, was not the impression one gained from a perusal of German service literature, in which our officers were uniformly set down as lacking in that zeal for hard work and the purely professional side of their duties which were held to distinguish the German "seeoffizier." As for the men, they were mercenaries who had taken to the sea because they were not much good for anything else. Drunkenness was rife among them and insubordination frequent, with the result that discipline was at a low ebb, and the war training of the fleet suffered in consequence.

THE SHATTERING SHELL

It has been proved that the comparatively harmless bombarding, so far as wounds are concerned, of a besieged town is terribly demoralising to the bravest men.

When a shell bursts near a group of twenty men, it may kill one and wound two, while the remaining seventeen escape without a scratch. It will be found, however, that many of these are never the same men again. No matter how iron-nerved they were before, they are now irresolute and timid, and all their faculties are weakened. Very often they are jeered at by their comrades because of this change. But this is utterly unjust—in fact, their brain and spinal cord have been injured by being violently shaken against the walls of their bony cavities.

The same thing occurs in railway collisions. People who were robust become quite feeble and nervous though they may not have received a scratch.

This curious state in the case of soldiers is well recognized by doctors under the name of the mental injuries of explosies. The injuries are juries of explosives. The injuries are really quite as physical as a shattered leg, for they consist of a kind of bruising of the very delicate tissue of the spinal cord and brain.

Is War Declining?

During the nineteenth century 536 battles were fought in which British troops participated. This is excluding all the smaller engagements, which, if reckoned along with the rest, bring the total to 8,102—that is, eighty-one battles per year, or a fraction over one and a half every week during the full hundred years.

Britain's battlegrounds were spread over the following nineteen countries: France, India, Austria, Russia, Belgium, Egypt, America, Ashanti, Soudan, Afghanistan, China, New Zealand, Zululand, Persia, Abyssinia, Burmah, Mashonaland, Corea, and the Transvaal.

Godalming supplied a recruit to Lord Kitchener's army who bears the name of Julius Cæsar.

THE LADIES' AID.

We've put a fine addition on the good old Church at home,
It's just the latest kilter, with a gallery and dome.
It seats a thousand people — finest
Church in all the town.
And when 'twas dedicated, why, we planked ten thousand down;
That is, we paid five thousand —
every deacon did his best
And the Ladies' Aid Society, it promised all the rest.

We've got an organ in the Church—
very finest in the land,
It's got a thousand pipes or more, its melody is grand.
And when we sit in cushioned pews,
and hear the master play,
It carries us to realms of bliss unnumbered miles away,
It cost a cool three thousand, and it's stood the hardest test;
We'll pay a thousand on it — the Ladies' Aid the rest.

They'll give a thousand sociables,
cantatas, too, and teas;
They'll bake a thousand angel cakes,
and tons of cream they'll freeze.
They'll beg and scrape and toil and sweat for seven years or more.
And then they'll start all o'er again,
for a carpet on the floor.
No; it isn't just like digging out the money from your vest,
When the Ladies' Aid gets busy and says: "We'll pay the rest."

Of course, we're proud of our big
Church, from pulpit up to spire;
It is the darling of our eyes, the crown of our desire.
But when I see the sisters work to raise the cash that lacks,
I somehow feel the Church is built on women's tired backs.
And sometimes I can't help thinking
when we reach the regions blest,
That men will get the toil and sweat and the Ladies' Aid—the rest.

Steady Nerves are Demanded

At Home as Well as on the Battle Line the Strain on the Nerves is Tremendous

These are trying times on the nerves. There is worry over business affairs, anxiety for those gone to the front, discouragement from lack of employment—everywhere you find cause for sleeplessness and the wearing down of the reserve nervous force.

The demand for a nerve tonic was never so great, and this demand is being supplied by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. By restoring and building up the wasted nerve cells this food cure sharpens the appetite, improves digestion, overcomes restlessness and sleeplessness, and brings back health and vigor.

FEARED PARALYSIS.

Mr. Victor Higgs, Windham Hill, Cumberland county, N.B., writes:—"My case was a peculiar one. It was one of those strange nervous diseases which are so difficult to describe. The doctor said that my nervous system was all run down. I experienced that uncertainty in walking which indicates the approach of paralysis and locomotor ataxia, and I now realise that I am greatly indebted to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for the great good it has done me.

"I could not work, read or write, or do anything requiring energy or the concentration of mind. Before using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I could not get an hour's sleep all night. My brain and nerves seemed to be all unsettled. I sleep well now, and believe that my nervous system has been fully built up by this splendid medicine."

Radway's Ready Relief

Mrs. L. Dittmar, 710 E. 135th St., New York City, writes: "I caught a cold. I used one bottle of your Radway's Ready Relief with wonderful results. I have also found it acts like a charm for sore throat. I used it with great benefit for several ailments my children have had, and recommend it to my friends."

NEURALGIA

The Relief is the best counter irritant known, and therefore the best embrocation that can be used in Neuralgia. Rub it on the part affected, and keep flannels soaked with it on the seat of the pain until ease is obtained, which will usually be in the course of ten or fifteen minutes.

German Revolt Now Threatens Asserts Writer

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The Standard's Amsterdam correspondent writes what he calls authentic particulars of the general state of affairs in Germany, "obtained from an impartial and reliable source." He says:

"The number of unemployed in Germany, without counting those who have joined the colours, total fully 2,000,000. The result is a growing discontent on all sides. The people are sullen, but are liable to burst forth at any time. The authorities are taking no chances, and, despite the urgent need of men in the field, keep large bodies of troops in reserve for emergencies in all large cities, but especially in Cologne, where the situation twice has assumed a threatening aspect.

"Only recently has the truth with regard to the war begun to trickle through, notwithstanding the precautions taken. Swiss, Swedish and Danish papers have been smuggled into the country, and the better classes now know that not only is Paris not besieged, but neither Calais nor Havre is in danger, and that it is quite untrue that the Germans are at Dijon. These revelations have had an upsetting influence, and have convinced the most optimistic that the Germans will have a hard fight to win.

REFUGEES WORRIED GERMANS.

"Things had reached this state before refugees came pouring in from East Prussia. Their appearance caused positive consternation. It is estimated that German losses in Prussia, by reason of the Russian invasion, already reach $75,000,000, most of which is suffered by the Junkers, who are all powerful there. This fact is likely to have a considerable bearing on the future of the war, for the Junkers have a large voice in the conduct of affairs, and their enthusiasm for war has diminished visibly since the Russians started advancing in earnest.

"There is no moratorium in Germany, and the result is the smaller shopkeepers are completely ruined already, chiefly owing to the wholesale collapse of local banks and the closing down of 80 per cent. of the provincial branches of all the large credit banks. No one has any money through this, while credit has entirely disappeared.

"Those who saw what was coming, or who had time to save anything out of the wreck, sent all their money and securities to Switzerland, or as much as they dared, for through the income tax returns the fiscal authorities knew the exact standing of everybody and used the information to advantage for the purpose of forced subscriptions exacted for the national defence. Loans for this operation were exacted of every savings bank and friendly society, and such institutions were denuded of every pfennig of their reserves, while private banking accounts were raided to the same extent."

MAKE FRANCE PAY TOLL.

The Standard's Paris correspondent says that details have filtered through of the manner wherein the inhabitants of provinces in Northern France occupied by the Germans are made to feel the weight of German rule.

"The invaders' chief object," he says, "is to get everything possible out of the country while they have time. Everything is subordinated to this end. The Germans first got in all crops they could and now are keeping the mills busy making flour. They now run sugar refineries and work all the coal mines that were not destroyed. A clean sweep has been made of all manufactured goods. Linen, haberdashery and similar stocks have been seized wholesale and sent back to the Fatherland.

"It goes without saying that wine cellars and cigar shops have been devastated. The Germans have a very simple system. Everything is for the troops first. If anything is left, it goes to the population. The inhabitants come off badly. They especially lack salt, and are reduced to treating all cinders they can get to extract the soda for salting purposes.

"In general, the inhabitants are unmolested. Whenever they are wanted for army purposes, however, they are commandeered and made to work hard. The chief task is roadmaking, the enemy requiring good roads for motor traction. These are profusely decorated with German signposts.

"The Germans run the local papers, and news is scant, except that scarcely a day passes without a fresh German victory being recorded. The papers now admit that Paris has not been taken. They explain that Germany wishes to spare France this humiliation, now that they see that France was only England's tool. The German soldiers, however, know only one reason for not taking Paris — that is, that cholera rages there, and you can't make them believe anything else."

AN INVESTIGATION

(Toronto Mail and Empire.)

It is understood that the Ontario Government is to appoint a commissioner with a view to having a full investigation of the estates of the late Senator Cox and the late E. W. Cox. This move, it is stated, is due to an impression that the inventory of the two estates does not set forth the full amount upon which the province is entitled to collect succession duties.

Last session, in bringing down the legislation amending the Succession Duty Act, Hon. I. B. Lucas explained to the House that power was being taken to deal chiefly with cases where rich men, in order to save their heirs the heavy charge of succession duties, were making transfers of property before death. The new clauses made it clear that no such transfer of property relieves the estate of the liability to pay succession duty. One new clause declares that an estate shall include any property, or income therefrom, voluntarily transferred by deed, grant, bargain, sale, or gift made in general contemplation of the death of the grantor, bargainor, vendor, or donor, and with or without regard to the imminence of such death and made or intended to take effect in possession or enjoyment after such death."

Hon. I. B. Lucas refused to discuss the matter yesterday, but it is believed the Department considers that the valuation of $900,000 on the estate of the late Senator Cox and something under half a million on that of the late E. W. Cox is away below the amount upon which the province is entitled to collect.

The appointment of a commissioner is provided for by last session's legislation which gives such power to the Provincial Treasurer. The commissioner, vested with all the powers which may be conferred under the Public Utilities Act, will make a full examination of all books, papers, etc., of any corporation in which the deceased held shares to determine the value of any property transferred before death or omitted from the inventory filed.

Several names have been mentioned for the commissionership, with Mr. Justice Middleton a likely choice.

AN EASY WAY TO STOP HEAD NOISES

Good Advice For Those Who Fear Deafness

Men and women who are growing hard of hearing and who experience a stuffy feeling of pressure against their ear drums, accompanied by buzzing, rumbling sounds in their head like water falling or steam escaping should take prompt and effective measures to stop this trouble. Headnoises are almost invariably the forerunners of complete or partial deafness and most deaf people suffer from them constantly. Sometimes these head noises become so distracting and nerve racking, with their never ceasing "hum" they drive the sufferer almost frantic and complete nervous breakdown and even violent insanity have been known to result.

Thanks to a remarkable scientific discovery made recently in England it is now possible to almost instantly lessen the severity of these headnoises and in a very short time to completely and permanently overcome them. With the disappearing of the head noises, the hearing also greatly improves and very frequently can be restored to normal. This English treatment is known as Parmint and can be easily and safely self administered at home. Leading druggists in Peterborough and vicinity now have it in stock. Get from your druggist 1 oz. Parmint (Double Strength) and mix it at home with ½ pint of hot water and 4 oz. of granulated sugar. Stir until dissolved and then take one tablespoonful four times a day until the noises disappear and hearing improves. Parmint is used double strength in this way not only to reduce, by tonic action the inflammation and swelling in the Eustachian tube and thus to equalize the air pressure on the drum but to correct any excess of secretions in the middle ear and the results it gives are both remarkably quick and effective.

Important: In ordering Parmint always specify that you want double strength; your druggist has it or he can get it for you; if not, send 75c to the International Laboratories, 74 St. Antoine St., Montreal, P.Q., who make a specialty of it.

ATMOSPHERIC PRESSURE.

Changes That Come When the Barometer Falls an Inch.

Few persons have any idea what tremendous changes in the atmosphere are indicated by such a rise or fall of an inch in the barometer.

A cubic inch of mercury weighs a half pound. When the mercury falls an inch a weight of one ton is removed from every 4,000 square inches of surface. This is a ton for every area five and one-quarter feet square. If your house, for instance, is 25 by 40 feet, with an area of 1,000 square feet, a load of about thirty-six tons is lifted from the roof every time the barometer shows an inch fall—that is, a thirty-six ton load would be lifted if the house were air tight. But as air presses in every direction there is as much of a push upward against the roof from below as there is of a push downward from above. So the roof actually feels no effect from the removal of this heavy load.

In the same way a man of average size would be relieved of a weight of about a ton and a half if there were no air chambers in the human body.

It has been figured that a fall of an inch in the barometer over a territory 400 miles square removes a weight from the surface of the earth of 160,000,000,000 tons. If this were loaded on freight cars, twenty tons to the car and thirty cars to the train, more than 200,000,000 trains would be required to move it. If each train were 500 feet long they would stretch out in a line more than 25,000,000 miles long.

The only noise that accompanies this great transportation feat is made by the wind, which does considerable roaring in the course of such violent atmospheric changes.

Light Without Heat.

Considerable progress toward realizing one of the dreams of the physicists and chemists—cold light—has been made by Professor W. D. Bancroft, of the University of Pennsylvania. The Sredly has been his example. He has worked out the idea by burning mercury electrolytically under water in a solution of bromide potassium. The result is a brilliant orange light, with scarcely any heat. The experiment has been demonstrated before the chemical society and received wide indorsement.

ENERGY IN ATOMS

Likened to Infinite Power in an Infinitesimal Space.

EACH ONE IS A TINY WORLD.

If All Should Burst Their Walls at Once the Universe Would Dissolve in an Instant—A Magic Force That Science Is Seeking to Control.

Do you remember when Aladdin last, at last, got down into the cave under the tree, what inexpressible marvels he found around him? But among all the riches of the cave there was only one little dust covered thing that was really worth the risk he had run, because it alone was truly novel and unlike anything else in the world—the necromantic lamp that had the genie for its slave. With that in his possession the poor boy was more powerful than all the monarchs in the world—provided that he knew how to handle the lamp, and that knowledge came to him by accident.

I have just been pondering over some statements by Jean Becquerel, the French physicist, about the contents of the atoms of which matter is composed, and they have forcibly recalled Aladdin's adventures to my mind. The interior of an atom is a little world infinitely more marvelous than the cave that contained the magic lamp, and it conceals powers incomparably greater than that of Aladdin's good genie.

To the scientific imagination the inside of an atom is inversely as wonderful as the starry heavens. It is infinite power packed into infinitesimal space. That, of course, is an exaggeration; but this is a case in which one has to speak in imposing figures, because the facts surpass all ordinary experience.

"The atom," says Jean Becquerel, "is a closed world, or almost closed, and it is that fact which constitutes its individuality."

This "closed world" of the atom is so small that if we could increase the powers of our microscopes a thousandfold we could not render it visible, and yet that minute speck of matter incloses a "solar system" as elaborate as that of the great sun with its planets, and keeps locked up there an energy so colossal that the plainest statements of fact that can be made about it seem like wild dreams.

"The emanation from radium" (a substance whose atoms spontaneously give out at least a part of their energy) "is capable of liberating 2,500,000 times more energy than the most violent chemical reaction known."

The world within the atom ordinarily behaves as if it had no concern with the world outside. It is sufficient unto itself. It is a little mediæval China, with closed ports and impenetrable walls all round. Still, a very few atoms, like those of radium, have a tendency to communicate with the outer world by a kind of explosion.

If all atoms should burst their walls simultaneously the whole universe would be dissolved in an instant.

The atoms that do disintegrate pass from change to change. Within their limits the foundations of matter are broken up; the distinctions of the fundamental elements are confounded; things lose their nature and shift into other things; uranium gives birth to radium and to polonium; radium brings forth helium, and the last transformation of polonium that has thus far been observed is into plain lead! It is like a transmigration of atomic souls.

But this is not the only consequence of the opening of the world of the atom. That opening releases energy in forms which we can recognize and which some day perhaps we may be able to utilize.

Atomic energy is the magic lamp that the Aladdin of science has found in nature's secret cave.

One day Aladdin's mother found the rusty lamp where he had cast it aside as useless and thought that she would polish it up. Instantly, at the first vigorous rub the slave of the lamp stood before her, ready to do her bidding!

The Aladdin of science has not thrown his lamp aside. He knows it is full of magic. He is sure that if he rubs it aright the genie will appear before him, but he has not yet learned the right stroke. And perhaps after all it will be with him as it was with the other Aladdin—accident will teach him the secret.

When that day comes, if ever it does, there will hardly be any limit to the transforming power of man over the world he lives in.—Garrett P. Serviss in New York Journal.

This trouble is most distressing, and caused from a cold which has settled in the throat. How many people have lost a good night's sleep by that nasty, tickling, irritating sensation in the throat? The dry, hard cough keeps you awake, and when you get up in the morning you feel as if you had had no rest at all.

What you want to cure the cold is Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. This valuable preparation is composed of the most soothing and healing expectorant herbs and barks with which is combined the virtues of the world famous Norway pine tree.

Thousands of testimonials prove that what we claim is true. All we ask you is that when you ask for Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup see that you get "Dr. Wood's," and not some no-account substitute.

Mr. Charles S. Chase, Shelburne, N.S., writes: "Coming to Nova Scotia from the State of Maine, I caught a severe cold which persisted for many weeks, and was accompanied by a bad cough and a constant throat irritation. After trying many remedies, a friend handed me part of a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. It helped me so much I bought another bottle which completely cured the cough and allayed the irritation. It is certainly the best cough medicine I have ever tried."

The price of "Dr. Wood's" is 25c and 50c.

"Sir," replied the indignant seeker after higher culture, "you misunderstand me. The interrogation I put to you was a mathematical problem which I thought might interest a student from Yale college."

"It does, it does," said the junior as he twirled his light mustache, "but if it's a hundredth I give it up."

Buried Their Guns.

A despatch from Petrograd declares that Polish peasants in the neighborhood of Warsaw have found many German quick-firing and large amounts of ammunition buried in mounds surmounted by crosses and German helmets, the crude marks of soldiers' graves. The peasants became suspicious of those hillocks and investigation showed that they contained material and guns abandoned during the retreat of the Austro-German forces.

The Microbe Menace.

Our wide general information, in this day of the Sunday newspaper, tells us that the real danger of the time is the quiet microbe. We could even wish that microbes clanked chains, and then we would know they were about and speed for the prophylactic. The innumerable devils of the middle ages, invisible but always somewhere in the neighborhood, have been neatly replaced by the discoveries of bacteriology and if we hadn't got used to them, living would be an almost impossible anxious performance. The vaccinationist, reading the warning issued by his government against the bacterial dangers of simple country living, would stay hopelessly in the city—and then, learning of the bacterial dangers of summer life in town, would eventually be driven to suicide by drowning as the coolest way out of his troubles.

Microbes, microbes everywhere,

In the product of the cow.
You can almost hear them mutter
In the milk and in the butter.

CHAPTER VIII.
Louboque Fights Down a Strange Emotion.

LOUBEQUE could not have explained why had he tried, but the thought that Lucille still possessed the mystic amulet given her by the savage chief for saving his daughter's life and which had served in such good stead against his machinations worried him more than a little. True, his plot had succeeded, the pit his servant dug across the trail had swallowed her up and the old native crone had brought him the precious papers. But he was worried. He felt himself at times almost wishing to be rid of the qualms which had forbade his serving her with a death sentence.

She had the mystic amulet still and, always plotting in advance those things he wished done, it bothered him not to know exactly how great the power of that amulet was.

Together with the uncertainty of his position, with realization of the intense loneliness, his inability to speak the language of any people he might chance to meet, the international spy fought his way through the jungle in more of a spirit of terror than he ever experienced before. Nights, when he would build fires to fend off wild beasts that gathered in a circle and stared with their blazing eyes from out the blackness, he would find her face emerging from the flames.

"Is it possible that I love her as I loved her mother?" he asked himself. But he fought against the thought.

Forcing his marches in mad desire to weary his body so at night his brain would succumb to the utter weariness that gripped him, Hugo Loubeque tried to fight away this change that was struggling to take place within himself.

He noticed a growing sullenness on the part of his servant, a sulky obedience which came only grudgingly after rage had tipped his master's tones with menacing decisiveness. He decided to watch the fellow more carefully, though at the same time laughing at himself for the nervousness which was growing upon him.

It was late in the fourth night that he finally saw to the fire his servant had prepared and stretched out, sinking almost instantly into profound slumber. He had fought against heavy sleep, for the actions of the native had been unusually furtive and restless all day. The wakeping was of the most abrupt.

He started bolt upright, looking instinctively toward the place where his servant should have been. But the man was gone, and the fire was scattering wildly about, as though some one had intentionally disturbed it that the jungle beasts might lose their fear of this man and pounce upon him. He heard the crackling of twigs under feet too swift to be other than those of man in terror, caught a glimpse of a wavering, flashing flare of torch light, heard the piercing wail of a man's voice.

Grasping his revolver, Louboque sprang to his feet, instantly wide awake. For just a second he waited there, then drew a steady aim upon the leaping torch. The gun spoke, followed almost instantly by the shrill voice of Lucille.

"Don't shoot! It's a lion"—

Louboque allowed the revolver to drop to his side. Suddenly the wonder of her being at his camp site struck him, and simultaneously his hand sought the sack about his neck. It was gone.

Even as he darted forward, fighting madly against the black tangle of vegetation that barred his way, he was withheld by some feeling within from firing the revolver at that torch. He could hear the low growls of a wild animal, caught a stray glimpse of Lucille standing over a dark, shapeless figure of a man beside the bank of a little stream, while, before the waving torch she had snatched from the camp fire of her enemy, a great lion was silently retreating.

Louboque caught a glimpse of this; then in his efforts to reach her side he was shut from sight completely. He tried to stumble back to her when the ground seemed to kick up its heels and slide backward. He clutched vainly for support, his hands encountering the arm of a man. Cold water closed upon him, and, still clutching the arm, he allowed himself to float down the stream for a way. Then, in a turn, he managed to secure footing and drag the body of his dead servant, horribly mutilated by the claws of the lion, to shore. But, search though he would, the little bag that contained the papers was not to be found.

Louboque fought his way back to the spot where he had made his fire, readily locating the spot where Lucille had driven away the lion from his prey. But Lucille had disappeared, vanished as completely as though the earth had swallowed her up. The international spy stood a long time in silence beside the place where he had seen the waving torch. And there was that in the eyes that looked down at the revolver in his hand which told that next time he would not hesitate to use it.

* * * * * * *

For three days Lucille kept very near that campfire light, furtive as any of the animals that prowled about, guarding herself against them by the same fire that protected her enemy. At times only the watchfulness of Louboque, his catlike slumber, prevented her carrying out her audacious plot to steal the little bag in which he still carried the papers.

It was the night of the fourth day that she decided to take a desperate chance, the same night that creeping close upon the camp she saw something about the actions of the native that made her keep very still. She caught her breath with a little gasp as she saw the man creep stealthily toward his master and purloin from about his neck the precious bag which carried the papers she had come so far to rescue.

As he crept away from his victim Lucille slowly rested her feet, her whole soul quivering with delight, for there would be no difficulty with this native compared to the coping of wits and resources with the powerful brain and body of Louboque.

Louboque Kept a Careful Watch.

Lucille's trailing of the native was halted abruptly by a wild cry of alarm, followed by a loud screech of pain, the thud of bodies falling heavily, a horrid, ripping sound. Dimly she glimpsed the shadowy outlines of a magnificent lion, head lifted as though he listened for some one, his paw reaching out and resting upon a shapeless, groaning mass she knew for the thieving servant. Without a thought of consequence, with nothing save the primal urge of saving life, she leaped across the narrow space that separated her from the spy's campfire, kicking the embers right and left, grasping the hardest flamed knot of them all and, darting toward the lion, waved the torch fearlessly.

The animal uttered a low growl and stood his ground for a moment before this menace that darted at him, then tucked his tail between his legs and slunk back into the jungle from which he had appeared so unexpectedly. Lucille bent over the wounded man, uttering a low cry of sympathy as she turned away in terror from the horribly wounded torso. Gradually it dawned upon her that the man was dead, quite dead. She could not realize it instantly; then the voice of Louboque's revolver spoke, and she utter ed her warning cry.

The shot brought everything back to her. She was here, not to sympathize even with one wounded to death, but to save her sweetheart's honor. She found the sack and looked back to where she could see Louboque advancing.

For just a second she paused. Then some impulse governing her, she threw the burning knot of wood between the interstices of a nearby latticework of vines and slunk stealthily to the right knowing the spy would follow the light instead of herself. Even as she watched his movements, glorying in the success of her strategy, her hand pressed against something cold and damp. She looked swiftly down at the stone ruins beside her, along which she had been walking, ruins covered with thick tropical vegetation. She passed her fingers over the stone she had first encountered, rubbing away the mud and creepers that covered it so completely.

Suddenly, without the slightest warning, she saw the ground moving, moving restlessly as it would move had some monster mole been burrowing beneath its surface. It was moving moving directly under Louboque. She started back, wide eyed at the spectacle of a great stone door suddenly springing wide and hurling the man who had stood upon it to one side completely out of her sight. She advanced timidly, staring about for sign of the spy, but he was not to be seen. She peered down the black hole that had opened, wonderingly, half inclined to believe herself in a trance, for a flight of stone steps reached up to her, reached up from the blackness, a blackness which her eyes could not pierce, try though they would.

A bit terrified, yet with curiosity irresistible, Lucille timidly put a foot upon the first step, then halted. She waited a moment, then followed her right foot with the left. As though some giant hand urged her down, her reluctant feet moved slowly, step by step, down the long flight. And always would she stare in nameless terror lest the door be suddenly closed and her means of exit barred. And even as she yoked her premonition of evil was verified.

Slowly, very slowly, the stray light that opened down to her through the passage narrowed, disappeared. To her ears came the sound of feet, swift, sure. About her was such blackness as she had never even imagined before.

Slowly she groped her way back to the steps, finding the last one and feeling about for some means of throwing back the opening. The steps beneath her feet were slippery, worn as though the feet of thousands and hundreds of thousands had passed that way for as many years. And always about her, yet never so close as to come in contact with her, were the owners of the feet that slipped and glided sure footedly upon the steps. Above her that solid wall; beneath her steps that led down into the bowels of the earth; about her human beings whom she could not see.

Curiously clawlike hands, but human hands, sought out her wrists, drawing her down the steps, silently, with undeviating purpose, but never harshly. Realizing the futility of resistance, her utter helplessness, Lucille numbly allowed herself to be conducted down the long flight. A veritable army seemed to swarm before and about her, judging from the footfalls. The hands upon her wrists were cold, unhealthy, hairy, yet the sounds of the voices of her captors were harsh gutturals, incomprehensible, yet human.

"This is the end of all for me!" she said in her terror.

The Wizard who put Music into millions of homes
AS you sit in your own home and listen to the stirring strains of a military band—or the liquid, luscious notes of a far famed singer—do you realize the thanks that you, and all other music lovers, owe to Thomas A. Edison? As you know, Mr. Edison invented sound-recording and sound-reproducing instruments. It was due to his genius that millions of homes are able to enjoy everything in music.
It was due to Mr. Edison's efforts that you—no matter where you live—may have the great artists, the famous bands, the cleverest entertainers, the brightest public speakers, right in your home.
For more than thirty six years, Mr. Edison has developed and improved the Edison Phonograph and Edison Records.
The Edison Phonograph today — with its diamond reproducing point (requiring no needles) —has a softness, a richness, a velvety smoothness, a wealth of delicate overtones, that cannot be obtained with any instrument using metal needles which must be changed with every record.
You really must hear the Edison to appreciate it to the full. Won't you come in and let us play all your favorite pieces for you? 134

Star Sight.

By all the rules of the game of nature we should not be able to see a star at all, for it appears from the earth as a geometrical point, a thing without dimensions, and cannot be measured even in the most powerful telescope. A star appears in a telescope just as it does to the naked eye. Now the question naturally comes up as to why we can perceive a star, a thing with no dimensions. We certainly cannot see so small a thing under the microscope. The whole answer is a peculiarity of the human eye and, in fact, of all optical instruments, called diffraction. A lens does not focus parallel rays of light to a geometrical point, even though they come from a point, and so a small disk is printed on the retina by a star, and the star is perceived. Remember, though, that only the star's effect is perceived with the eye. A planet of course is different, as it is comparatively close to us, and its actual disk may be seen and measured in the telescope, just as that of the moon can be seen with the naked eye.—Chicago Herald.

By Chas. Ashwell, Special Correspondent, London, Eng.

Each week in this department I will endeavor, by careful clipping from the London papers, to keep my Colonial readers informed on the latest and best advice of the London beauty experts. Owing to the persistent demand most London newspapers and periodicals are now devoting much space to the serious consideration of beauty culture. Many of them now employ high salaried experts to advise and instruct in methods most efficient for embellishing or restoring beauty of face and figure. I append herewith a few clippings from leading English publications. Any of the ingredients mentioned could be obtained from Canadian chemists or druggists, so I am told. Look out for more hints next week. I shall endeavor to keep right up to date.

Shampoo and Hair Beautifier.

You complain of brittle, faded hair. You will find that keeping the scalp clean and healthy is the most effective way to restore the natural beauty and softness, but in selecting your shampoo avoid soaps or mixtures containing "free" alkali. By dissolving a teaspoonful of stallax in a cup of hot water you will have a mild, soothing, cleansing mixture that makes the head feel free and removes all dust, dandruff, and excess of oil, leaving the scalp clean and pliant, and assuring a beautiful growth of long lustrous, fluffy hair.

Don't Shave Off Superfluous Hair.

Hair on face, neck or arms should never be shaved or clipped off, as that encourages its growth. The most effective method, which at the same time is perfectly harmless, is to mix a little powdered phemimol into a paste with water and apply directly to the affected surface. When this is removed in two or three minutes the hair will have vanished completely, leaving the skin quite smooth and clear. Since the virtues of powdered phemimol as a hair remover have become generally known, most druggists now supply this in convenient one-ounce jars.

For Falling Hair.

How often one hears the lament, "I have tried everything on the market, and my hair comes out in handfuls." Not so surprising either when you come to think it over. Hair tonics to be effective must be fresh, and there is no earthly reason why every woman should not make her own lotion at home. The finest vegetable tonic I know of is made by mixing a packet of borasilum with ¼ pint of bay rum and addibe sufficient water to fill a half-pint bottle. This lotion rubbed briskly into the scalp sets the hair roots tingling with new life, and will, if persevered with, give you back your "crowning glory."

Invisible Face Powder Substitute.

Face powder frequently is neither invisible nor harmless. Not only can you see it sticking out sideways, but its daily use is apt to coarsen the skin. It is more satisfactory to use a simple lotion made by dissolving an ounce of elemisite in four tablespoonfuls of water. This serves every purpose of powder, and has the advantages of being invisible, non-injurious and more lasting. When the face becomes moist with heat or exertion, the lotion still clings, the skin appearing soft and peach-like all day long or all evening. The lotion is applied with the finger tips.

Supersedes Hot Curling Iron.

Straight, lank hair is becoming to but few women and there is no excuse now for anyone looking heavily and unkempt on that account. Those who have foresworn the curling iron because of the damage it does by drying and breaking the hair, will be glad to hear that plain liquid silmerine will produce a far better and more lasting effect, without any injurious result whatever. If just a small quantity be applied to the hair at night with a clean tooth brush, a lovely curliness and natural wave will be in evidence in the morning, with no sticky or greasy reminder of the method employed. A couple of ounces of liquid silmerine, obtainable at any drug store, will prove a welcome addition to many a dressing table.

Captivating Eyebrows and Lashes.

Those who would have luxuriant, dark, silky eyebrows and lashes, will be surprised at the results from applying ordinary moonaline daily for awhile. Being perfectly harmless, no one need hesitate to try this. The smallest jar the druggist carries will do, so little of the moonaline being required at a time that it will last for months. It should be stroked into the eyebrows from the nose outwards and applied to the lash roots with thumb and forefinger.

USE PILENTA COMPLEXION SOAP. THE GREAT ENGLISH COMPLEXION CLEANSER. ALL DRUGGISTS.—Advt.

To Ward Off Winter Complexion Ills

To keep the face smooth, white and beautiful all winter, there's nothing quite so good as ordinary mercolised wax. Rough, chapped or discoloured skin, inevitable in this weather, is gently absorbed by the wax and replaced by the newer, fresher skin beneath. The face exhibits no trace of the wax, the latter being applied at bedtime and washed off mornings. Creams, powders and rouges, on the other hand, are apt to appear conspicuous at this season, because of alternating expansion and contraction of the skin, due to changing temperatures. I advise you to try this simple treatment. Get an ounce of mercolised wax at any drug-store and use like cold cream. This will help any skin at once, and in a week or so the complexion will look remarkably youthful and healthy.

Winds and flying dust often cause squinting and other contortions which make wrinkles. You can quickly get rid of every wrinkle, however produced, by using a harmless face bath made by dissolving 1 oz. powdered saxolite in ½ pt. witch hazel.

NO SUCH WORD.

"Remember, boys," said the master, "that in the bright lexicon of youth there is no such word as fail."

After a few moments a boy raised his hand.

"Well, what is it, my lad?" asked the master.

"I was merely going to suggest," replied the youngster, "that if such is the case it would be advisable to write to the publishers of that lexicon and call their attention to the omission.

SAYS "TOO MUCH RED TAPE"

British Weekly Tells Government It Must Be Frank With Nation.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—In the current number of the British Weekly there is a strong indictment of the Government from the pen of Sir Robertson Nicoll. The British Weekly is the organ of the Nonconformists, and has usually lent full support to the Government.

The editorial urges that four grievances now existing should be removed before Parliament adjourns. These are, first, the refusal of the authorities to take the nation into their confidence on the question of recruiting; second, the refusal to consider devolution with regard to War Office and Admiralty work; third, inaction on the drink question, and four, the censorship on the recruiting problem.

The British Weekly says: "We think the nation will by and bye express its mind." Of the drink question, the editorial says: "Of the crying necessity for more drastic measures we have abundant proof, which we may be forced to publish. The state of matters in many towns is indescribable." As to the censorship, The British Weekly says: "The Fourth Estate will decline to cower beneath its pretensions."

WAR'S RICHEST PRIZE IS INDIA TO RUSSIAN EYES

So Sure of Winning is the Russian Bear That Constantinople, Her First Gateway, She Now Calls "Tsargrad," and She Sees the Fulfilment of the Testament of Peter the Great.

With Turkey's entrance into the war a perilous undercurrent is struck beneath the ships of state of Britain and Russia, sailing ostensibly side by side in the calm waters of friendship and alliance, an undercurrent which will ebb and flow with the swift force gathered through one hundred and fifty years of opposing interests vital each to its own plans of expansion.

The undertow of a mighty river changeth not, and among the great nations the undertow of the stream of aspiration in expansion changeth not, the sublime passion of the creators of its first power stamping their purpose upon the nation's ambition with enduring vitality.

Russia is—officially—outraged at Turkey's entrance into the war, the ally of the two Kaisers, at a time when the Tsar's own allies, Britain and France, are not free to come to his assistance with the full quota of their reinforcements, and she must punish Turkey by himself. There are, however, members of the Turkish Government who profess to be equally outraged at Russia, intimating that Russian bribes accepted by renegade Turkish officers brought about the overt acts of hostility, the bombardment of Odessa without warning and the attack upon the Russian coast of the Black Sea, which forced the declaration of war.

Outraged—But Prepared.

The Tsar's Government, if outraged, was prepared up to the last detail, even regarding instructions to the Press Bureau, for this latest move in the war game, so advantageous to her ambitions. In less than a week the newspapers throughout the vast empire had learned that Constantinople had disappeared from the Russian map, that "Tsargrad" had taken its place. The suspicion of the bribery of Turkish officers by Russia can be borne with serenity now that Russia has the coveted chance to strike once more for the possession of Constantinople, the objective point of her expansion since Peter the Great made the semi-barbarous state into a great nation.

Ascending the throne when he was but seventeen, an uncouth giant in appearance and a cruel savage at heart, securing autocracy by the imprisonment of his mother and the torture of his brother, he found Russia a small congregation of Asiatic tribes almost cut off from the civilized world, with only the one seaport Archangel on the White Sea, which was sealed by ice against navigation during the greater part of the year; and he left Russia an empire, with ports on the Baltic, the Caspian, and the Black Seas, pushing out with unflagging persistency into Asia. The full realization of his dream, a far-stretching empire balanced between Europe and Asia, with Constantinople—the capital of the Caesars for eleven hundred years—as the capital of Russia, he left to his successors, with this injunction:

"Keep in mind that the commerce of India is the commerce of the world, and that he who can exclusively control it is the dictator of Europe."

Always "To Constantinople."

The authenticity of Peter the Great's political testament addressed to the occupants of his throne has been questioned. But there can be no question that the plans he formulated are the plans to-day of Nicholas II., his ministry, his army and navy. The Russians have followed these plans for 300 years with Peter the Great's barbarous spirit and cruel methods, unbaffled by temporary defeats, returning anew to the attack without deviation from the main point of achievement, the occupation of Constantinople as the centre of an eastward advancing empire toward India.

Catherine the Great turned aside to accept from Frederick the Great of Prussia her share of Poland, the "door mat upon which she could step into Europe." But she did not forget to seize the Crimea from Turkey, to name one of her grandsons Constantine, nor with flaunting arrogance to set up in Moscow a gate called "On the Way to Constantinople" and another at the mouth of the Dneiper "Opening Toward Constantinople."

Britain has been steadily for 400 years pursuing the imperial policy of the Elizabethan statesmen, Cecil, Raleigh, Bacon and Walsingham, who lifted their country from its island obscurity to a position of commanding world-wide influence. The winning post of the race they set the nation to run was gained when Disraeli proclaimed Queen Victoria Empress of India in 1876, plucking the fruit of the tree planted in 1600 by Elizabeth when she chartered the East India Company. In between is the seventeenth century, which is the history of Britain's bitter rivalry with Spain and Britain's victorious onward march over her enemy's prostrate form, never again to rise in its full stature of former glory.

The eighteenth century is no less the history of Britain's herculean struggle with France and her increased importance and power at the cost of France, with Canada wrested from the weakened enemy and the death blow inflicted upon her imperial ambition at Waterloo one hundred years ago. These are stories finished to the concluding chapter. Spain is not sought as an ally by either side in the war of 1914, having so little to give. France, which in the eighteenth century under Napoleon I was the conqueror of Europe, and could only be conquered because all of Europe joined with Britain against her—France to-day braves war with Germany because, in addition to Russia, Great Britain is supporting her. The republic accepts with gratitude the alliance which Delcasse made so humbly with France's one time rival, now so infinitely her superior.

The twentieth century will mark the history of the struggle between Great Britain and Germany for the command of the seas. It has but just begun.

India the Great Prize.

But the history of the nineteenth century, filled with the rivalry between Great Britain and Russia, as poignant and as relentlessly pursued on both sides as any rivalry in ancient or modern annals, its concluding chapter has never been written. Neither has vanquished the other. Neither has deviated one jot or tittle from the main issue. Both cannot win, because both aim at the same thing—Britain to keep India, Russia to wrest it from her and add it to her own possessions.

Russia has had Constantinople within her grasp more than once. The Tsar Nicholas I. obtained in 1833 from the Sultan Mohammed Ali the exclusive right of way through the Dardanelles. Great Britain, alarmed that such a short route to India was to be closed to her and opened before the Northern Bear, laboured feverishly until in 1841 Palmerston could command Russia to relinquish her prize. The Crimean War, in which Turkey had the assistance of Britain and France against the Tsar, left Nicholas unsubdued. His brother Alexander II. quietly extended his Asiatic frontiers across the Caucasus without war; then through a successful war he was able in 1871 to look forward to the day when Russia could once more call Constantinople her own.

It was a British fleet anchored in the Dardanelles within sight of the Russian fleet, and a British fleet anchored in Finnish waters within sight of St. Petersburg, which once more thwarted the Russian plans and returned Constantinople again to the Sultan.

But the Russian bear has been softly and stealthily moving eastward ever since, eastward toward India. Profuse with expressions of friendship for Great Britain, politely acknowledging again and again that "the Persian Gulf is a British lake," blandly conceding, when invited to do so, that "circumstances make it necessary for Great Britain to have exclusive control over Afghan affairs, Afghanistan lying next to India"; cordially assenting to the wisdom of keeping Tibet on the Indian northern frontier, an independent state; Russia has all the time secured for herself by bribery and secret pacts every right she has so glibly given to Great Britain, not only by word of mouth but by treaty, solemnly signed, sealed, and delivered.

Afghans March Against India.

It was only a few days after the declaration of war between Turkey and Russia, at November, that the Ameer of Afghanistan, Habibullah Khan, started to march against India with an army 170,000 strong. The announcement has since been made that the Ameer's object is war against Russia as well as Great Britain. It is inconceivable that Sir Edward Grey in London and Lord Hardinge, the Viceroy of India at Calcutta, should view it in that light. Afghanistan, nominally under the enforced protectorate of Great Britain, is in actuality as Russian as the Tsar's gold and the intrigues of his emissaries can make it.

It was in 1809, one hundred and five years ago, that Great Britain, discovering the project of the Tsar Alexander to invade India through Persia, began her first negotiations with the then Ameer of Afghanistan, and erected it as a buffer state between Persia and India, to be isolated from all European influence except the British. Russia made an official acknowledgment of her acquiesence and pledged herself to make her own communications with the Ameer only through the British. The historians had scarcely the time to record this fact about the presence of a Russian mission at Cabul, the Ameer's capital, brought about the First Afghan War of the British, 1838-1842. In 1868 Shir Ali Khan became Ameer through the assistance of the British, and the Governor-General of India supplied him with money and ammunition to protect his western frontiers against the Russians. But Russia so openly ruled at Cabul that the Second Afghan War of the British was precipitated in 1878. The Third Afghan War, 1879-1880, was led by Sir Frederick, later Lord Roberts (recently deceased), and he achieved such a brilliant victory over the Afghans at Kandahar that the name became linked for all time with his title.

But in 1880 the Russians succeeded in persuading the Afghans to elect as Ameer, Abdurrahman, whom the British had driven out of the country during the previous war. Lord Dufferin, then Governor-General of India, made a masterstroke in inducing Abdurrahman to visit him at Calcutta in 1885, and to accept British subsidies to reorganize his army and improve the civil administration of his country. This accomplished, the Ameer haughtily declined further British advice or British visits, either in Cabul or Calcutta, although not declining the allowance still regularly sent him from the Governor-General's treasury.

Thanks for Tops, but No Treaty.

His son Habibullah Khan, the present Ameer, cannot be accused of duplicity by the British. He has remained coldly indifferent to all their overtures, thereby probably incurring the displeasure of his friend the Tsar, who at frequent intervals, "when invited to do so," glibly acknowledges Great Britain's right to exclusive control over Afghan affairs.

The Ameer's reception of the British mission sent to Cabul in 1904, headed by Sir Louis Dane, Foreign Secretary at Calcutta, would furnish material for a roaring farce. Short, stout, and sallow, bearded like the pard, with an active intelligence and a vast vanity, the Ameer received with condescending aloofness the presents so carefully selected by Calcutta, a $3,000 motor for his own use and a cinematograph for his harem among them, his childish delight over the new toys escaping in spite of himself. The British presented the draft of their new treaty with confidence. It was curtly declined, and the Ameer offered one of his own. Dane had to wait six weeks to communicate with Calcutta and London, and during that period the Ameer, to avoid the dangers of succumbing to the blandishments of his guests, took to his bed with an attack of gout lasting until the hour of the British departure, and so severe that he could see no one but his own household, each member of whom is known to be in the pay of Russia. When Dane received authority to sign the Ameer's treaty the Ameer had changed his mind and would only renew the declaration of friendship signed by his father. The British left, to the orchestral accompaniment of seven gramophones simultaneously discharged in wildly discordant glee by the ladies of the harem.

In 1907 the Ameer made his memorable visit to Calcutta, the first acceptance of British hospitality since the visit of his father, in 1885, appeasing the discontent of his pro-Russian subjects by posting up a declaration that he had abrogated the treaty signed with Dane.

Russian intrigue has accomplished in Tibet the same preponderating influence as in Afghanistan. In Outer Mongolia, which rests its northern border against Siberia, the Russians have constructed one of the finest roads in the world, seven hundred miles long from Siberia south and eastward, the shortest route for the Tsar's Siberian troops to get to India through that part of China furthest away from remonstrance from Pekin, building this road almost to completion before the enterprise was suspected by the other Powers. The integrity of Outer Mongolia has been agreed to by Russia, a fact which, however, does not prevent the Tsar from keeping a surprisingly large number of soldiers in the country and having at Petrograd a confidential emissary from the ruler of Mongolia, a Russian stationed in Mongolia for his own Government for many years.

The Prize of War.

India covers an area of 1,766,000 square miles, about equal to the whole of Europe without Russia, and contains a population more than double the historic 120 millions which obeyed the rule of Imperial Rome. Its revenue in 1913 was close to 800 million dollars. It is Britain's richest Imperial prize. What is known of the Russian efforts to obtain it is learned only through British sources, from former Government officials stationed in India and travellers attempting to awaken Britain to her danger.

The Tsar's representatives dog the footsteps of even the most distinguished travellers with passports from London who are curious to study Afghanistan, Tibet, or Outer Mongolia, overwhelming them with courtesy, refusing to be parted from them, but discouraging them, to return. The Russians themselves say nothing.—New York World.

FILIPINOS EAT 3,000 TONS OF GRASSHOPPERS A YEAR

Keep Down Insect Plague by Driving Them Into Tank—Dry and Sell Them.

MANHATTAN, Kan., Nov. 28.—"Dried grasshoppers are used as food in the Philippine Islands," said Henry Jackson Waters, President of the college, in a talk before the Agricultural Society in the Kansas State Agricultural College. "Three thousand tons of grasshoppers were marketed in Manila in a year. Some good and tempting dishes are prepared from them.

"There is a grasshopper plague every ten years in the Philippines," says President Waters, "and the problem of combating the grasshoppers in a warm climate like the Philippines is more difficult than in countries where cold weather serves as a check. "There are many acres of unsettled country which serve as breeding places for the grasshoppers. The method used in capturing the grasshoppers is to organize a drive. A large shallow tank is constructed which has wings of galvanized iron. The tank is filled with kerosene. The natives then start the drive three or four miles away and close in gradually, driving the grasshoppers before them into the tank. The grasshoppers are then dried and sent to market."

How to be Sure

Shopkeepers and merchants throughout the Dominion are giving magnificent support to the "Made in Canada" movement.

Occasionally a shopkeeper, through lack of accurate information, may express the opinion that a certain class of article is not made in Canada, or is made only of an inferior grade.

If you are conscientiously trying to give "Made in Canada" goods first call in all your purchases, do not be content to relax your efforts just because you happen to receive this answer.

The shopkeeper may be perfectly sincere in his opinion, but there are other people who are more likely to have full and accurate information.

Why not write direct to the Canadian Manufacturers Association, Montreal, Toronto or Winnipeg? They have agreed to constitute themselves a general information bureau for the assistance of those who are trying to live up to the "Made in Canada" idea, and a line to them will always bring you prompt and reliable information, as to how and where to obtain the article you desire most conveniently and most quickly. If it is not made in Canada they will frankly tell you so.

THREE GERMAN ARMY CORPS CUT OFF

STILL CALM IN WESTERN THEATRE OF WAR

GERMAN ARMY CORPS SURROUNDED AND IN DANGER OF ANNIHILATION

Reports of Russian Success in Poland Continue to Grow in Magnitude Although From Official Sources Little Information is Being Given Out.

DESPERATE FIGHTING SAYS BERLIN

Examiner Special:

PARIS, November 28. — Three German army corps are now practically surrounded in the Brzez-in-strykow region in Poland. One corps has been captured and another routed, according to a Petrograd despatch to the Matin to-day.

"It has been learned on the highest authority," the despatch states, "that the German losses are considerably more than one army corps in men who have been captured. Another corps has been routed, and other corps are now practically surrounded in the Brzeg-in-strykow region. They are subjected to a heavy fire from cannon and quick firers. Two corps are making a desperate attack in an effort to gain their release, but it is believed that only an infinitesimal minority will be able to escape."

RUSSIAN SUCCESS GREETED WITH JOY BY LONDONERS

LONDON, November 27.—Hamilton Fyfe in a despatch to the Daily Mail, says:

"There is an under current here on this snowy day, which is setting everybody on the tiptoe of expectation. Great news has not been made public, but this morning's official despatches were so worded as to arouse high hopes. News from trustworthy sources which is known at the Embassies, has been spreading throughout the city.

"The policy of the Russian headquarters staff has always been to under-estimate their successes until they are able to announce them complete but to-day the modest statement, 'We have taken a number of prisoners,' read in the light of the past, indicates that what has happened is that the Russian staff has outgeneraled the Germans, lured them into a trap, and then closed in upon them with an iron grip which cannot be resisted.

"The Kaiser's hysterical telegrams, alternately imploring and commanding his generals to save their country from invasion by hurling back the Russian armies, appear to have flustered and worried them so much that they did not stop to form plans, but advanced blindly and put their heads into the trap.

"They are in a noose which the Russians are waiting to pull tight. The haul of prizoners, already enormous, must be within a few days greater still.

"It seems impossible from the information available for the northern half of the German force to join up once more with the southern half, or for the capture of the best part of an army corps to be avoided."

TORONTO, November 28.—Without the aid of a good map, the Russian official reports would not appear to be the rout, the highly optimistic statements sent by the newspaper correspondents from Petrograd describe. But a full significance of the situation will be seen when it is known that the German forces between Strykow and Zgierz are being driven southward and the German troops between Razgow and Tuszin are being driven to the eastward, while absolutely their only hope of escape is northward or westward.

Nothing but a miracle can save from annihilation the entire German army that invaded Poland from Thorn and Posen. From a human standpoint its doom is sealed.

News almost as good comes from the south of Poland and Galicia. The Russians have crossed the Raba River and are now only 18 miles from Gracow. Such news would have a tremendous import and we dare not believe it until it is more clearly stated, but we have enough reliable information to justify the hope that the news from the Gracow region next week will be even more glorious than the present news form Poland.

FINE REPORTS OF 57TH MEN AT KINGSTON

Captain Gray, Their Commanding Officer, Says Their Conduct Has Been Above Reproach

NO COMPLAINTS HEARD

Special to The Examiner:

That the 57th Contingent at Kingston is living up the reputation set up by the first 57th quota at Valcartier, is evidenced by the glowing reports brought back by Lt.-Col. Miller and Mr. R. E. Layfield, who were in Kingston yesterday on business in connection with the Home Guard. Mr. Layfield informed The Examiner that Capt. Gray, the officer in command of E Company, to which the 57th contingent is attached, stated yesterday that the conduct and bearing of the boys from Peterborough has been above reproach. "Peterborough has done itself proud in sending this fine body of men," remarked Captain Gray. "There has been no trouble among the men, and no charges of misconduct."

A number of the Peterborough boys have been promoted. Sam Thomas is sergeant, Fred Thomas is acting sergeant-major, Leonard Fraser has been made corporal, and others have been recognized by promotion. Yesterday the boys had a fifteen-mile route march, and returned in good shape and fine spirits.

Mr. Layfield says that the admiration of Capt. Gray for his men is duplicated by the esteem and affection in which that officer is held by his command.

The boys are all in good health and My Layfield says that he did not hear a complaint from them about the food or quarters. They are satisfied with the progress they are making and with the conditions generally.

THE FRENCH WIN AN ARTILLERY DUEL

Do Considerable Damage to German Batteries in the Champagne District--Otherwise Conditions on the Western Battle Front Are Calm.

Examiner Special:

PARIS, November 28.—The French war office gave out the official communication Saturday afternoon as follows:

"In Belgium the artillery exchanges were continued during the day of November 27th, without any particular incident. The heavy German artillery showed less activity. There was but one attack of infantry to the south of Ypres, which was repulsed by our troops.

"Towards the evening our artillery brought down a German biplane carrying three aviators; one of them was killed, and the other two were made prisoners.

"In the region of Arras and farther to the south there has been no change. The day passed very quietly in the region of the Aisne. In Champagne our heavy artillery inflicted serious losses on the artillery of the enemy. From the Argonne to the Vosges there is nothing to report."

LONDON, November 28. — (Special Cable.) — Although the speech of Winston Churchill in the House of Commons gave Britain every assurance that her naval power is in no way threatened, many to-day believe the first Lord of the Admiralty deliberately placed his head upon the block, and by one remark in his address left the way open for his removal as the first Lord of the Admiralty.

Even as he was making his speech, declaring that Britain could lose a dreadnought each month for twelve months and still remain superior to Germany, the announcement came of the loss of three more British merchant ships. There is much criticism of the Admiralty. Premier Asquith and Churchill are the closest friends. The Premier has been the first Lord's parliamentary tutor, but Churchill has made it plain that his friendship and their long association in the Liberal party is not to stand in the way of his removal.

AMSTERDAM, via London, November 28.—According to a Berlin message to the Telegraaf, Cairo reports that 76,000 Turkish troops, under Izet Pasha, are now marching against the Suez Canal. This army includes 10,000 Bedouins with some 500 camels. The reports also state that the Turks have built a field railway to the Elnaket oasis. The road to the Suez Canal, according to the despatch, is barricaded by the British with long lines of trenches, with artillery positions.

CHATHAM, Eng., November 28.—Inquests into the death of the 800 men who were lost when the battleship Bulwark was blown up off Sherness, was adjourned to-day until December 16th, pending the Admiralty inquiry into the disaster. The adjournment was taken after a formal identification of the bodies which have been recovered.

BERLIN, November 28. — Desperate fighting continues in Poland, but without decisive results, it was stated here to-day. It is said that the German troops will be able to resume the offensive but it is admited that heavy reinforcements which have arrived on the Russian front are causing considerable trouble. The situation in the west is unchanged.

ST. ANDREW'S DAY.

Monday is St. Andrew's Day, but all who honour it this year will do so in sober mood. Though no cis-Atlantic Scot, will, under the strongest duress or stress of circumstances, forget the land of his birth on St. Andrew's Day, yet his recollections, this year, will take on the mood that comports with "Caledonia stern and wild." For Scotchmen to-day are at stern work—both for themselves and their enemies—and "Sandy" at the banquet table, while his pulse quickens with a keener thrill in memory of Scotland, will have his spirit chastened by the thought that brither Scots are fighting in the trenches, accumulating more lead than haggis. Even we Sassenachs, when we remember how Scotland has been ennobled by what Scotchmen have done in every part of the world in the interests of civilization—and, forbye, of themselves; what Scotchmen have done in fighting for the Empire, what Scotchmen in every walk of life have done of the best in every way of life, we can well, and do heartily join in the cry, that has turned the tide of battle on many a stricken field—"Scotland Forever!"

PEACE AND WAR.

The Canadian Peace Centenary Association has wisely acted in deciding to proceed with the celebration of the hundred years of peace between Canada and the United States, in spite of the outbreak and continuance of the European war. To drop the proposal would be like a nurse, withholding an emollient application because a wound shows aggravated symptoms. We can in this celebration present one of two great object lessons. One is the blessing and good of peaceful neighbourhood; and the other, how evil is the spirit that brings to pass the present war. We can set in striking contrast, the conditions that come of peace founded on righteous principles with those that proceed from a denial of righteous principles. Germany claims to justify this war as against Great Britain, especially, because Great Britain, aimed at crushing Germany's commerce. We have had the same excuse for war between Canada and the States, and the latter and Great Britain, because we have all been trying to crush each other's commerce, in precisely the same way. Great Britain has been warring against Germany's commerce—by superior enterprise by peaceful rivalry—by devoting to development of industrial and commercial interests, the means, the energy and spirit, that Germany has devoted to the cult of militarism, and the heathen doctrine of force. We and the United States have been striving commercial rivals, and though the struggle has been strenuous and sometimes not quite, we thought, according to the rules of the game, we have lived in peace, and have refrained from imperilling the success of our commercial, industrial and national rivalry by the fatal folly of armed strife. We have shown that two great peoples, professedly Christian peoples, can live alongside for a century living up to their creed. Have the celebration of the Peace Centenary by all means. Give the world a chance to look on this picture and on that look at North America with a hundred millions of peoples, for a full century, prospersous, happy, thriving, progressing, trending upward, with all the arts of peace in full play, with Christian civilization in its most benignant aspects in full action, with happy homes amidst peace and plenty, and the Prince of Peace, in name and spirit, the recognized leader and guide of a thousand thousand people, with a Heaven on earth from a national and international viewpoint realized. Contrast this with the Hell upon earth created by war on the blood-drenched, home-wrecked battlefields of Europe. We will do well to act in the matter of our peace celebration upon the spirit of Great Britain whose slogan is, in the grip of the greatest crime, that has been perpetrated since sin entered the world—"business as usual!"

CONGRATULATIONS.

The Examiner is sure that it gives expression to the sentiment of the whole city in extending cordial congratulations to Lt.-Col. Clegg upon the distinction and recognition of merit implied in his promotion to the responsible position of commandant of the Canadian Camp at Salisbury Plain — second in command, under General Alderson of the thirty-three thousand soldiers of the Canadian Overseas Contingent. This is a signal honour to Lt.-Col. Clegg and the 57th Regiment, of which he had command in the piping times of peace. It must have been military merit alone that led to his promotion. He is modest and unassuming, and not the man to thrust himself into prominence. His merit has been before recognized. It was a compliment to Canadian officers, when he was selected to command the Newfoundland contingent at Salisbury. This position he held on the occasion of Their Majesties' visit to the camp, when on being introduced to the King and Queen, Col. Clegg, held in conversation by the King, had to exercise his conversational strategy to satisfy his Majesty's curiosity as to the composition and character of the men of his command. Col. Clegg must have demonstrated his capacity by effective service, to be selected as the successor of a veteran like Col. Victor Williams, who has gone to the continent to join the staff of Field-Marshall French. Lt.-Col. Clegg, Commandant of the Canadian Camp, we salute you.

DISCIPLINE MUST BE MAINTAINED.

We have no need of the assurance of St. James, that the tongue is "an unruly evil" and that "no man can tame it." It is axiomatically true that one is a million times sorry for what he says, but very seldom sorry for what he does not say. This is a truth that should be impressed upon every growing boy, and girl too — if we could change her nature. The tongue, in its thoughtless wagging spreads more social poison, and, especially when aided by the serpent tongue of the gossip, who maliciously and gloatingly repeats thoughtless sayings, creates more ruin of domestic and society peace, than any other agency of the devil. A man or woman who talks too much is sure to "put his or her foot in it" sooner or later. Major-General Sam Hughes, our Minister of Militia and of Wind, is an unusual combination of the man of talk and the man of action. He has acted well in his official capacity. He has shown great energy and administration "drive"—to use his own modest description of his achievements; but when it comes to talking there is no doubt that he talks too much. In the abstract there is no harm in his talking—in his blowing his own trumpet; there may be even good in it. Men of some little military ability, and with some small record of achievement, like the late Lord Roberts, the man who didn't "advertise"; the reticent Kitchener, whose flow of oratory is on a level with the conversational habits of that edible mollusc, the oyster; the taciturn French, and Joffre the Silent—these great but mistaken men will be taught by example that they make a great mistake in talking so little—about themselves. We don't condemn our Minister of Militia, for talking about himself; he can't help it—he was born of woman. He is, however, to be blamed for talking about his accidental subordinates, but, in a military sense, his military superiors in a way to subvert discipline, which is the core and kernel of military efficiency. Publicly and offensively charging an officer of experienced standing like Col. Lessard, with being an idiot and giving foolish orders, is to humiliate him in the view of his subordinates, and to the extent, that the official rudeness is heeded, weaken his influence, to impair his efficiency as a commander and play hob with discipline. Kitchener, in one of the few speeches he makes in the House of Lords, spoke of the physical fitness and "spirit" of our troops as qualities of equal importance. A soldier, sound in body and strong in spirit is the soldier that will fight to win. It would be just as bad practice, to kill a soldier's spirit by snubbing and bullying, as to weaken his body by short rations and insufficient clothing; and worse; for a soldier with ragged boots and an empty stomach may fight like the devil, as he wouldn't do if his boots were whole, his stomach were full, and his spirit broken sullen, insubordinate from verbal abuse and caddish snubbing. Discipline must be maintained.

KULTUR AND CRITICISM.

It is claimed and easily substantiated, that German "kultur" is not only responsible for the bedevilment of civilization, but of religion as well. Rev. T. T. Shields, of the Jarvis Street Baptist Church, speaking in the Metropolitan Church at the first service of intercession under the auspices of the Toronto Ministerial Association, used these words:

"It is my deliberate judgment that Germany of recent years has been the curse of the religious world. She has possessed the withering blight of unbelief more than any other nation in the world, perhaps, and has refused to believe the Word of God. Germany's whole philosophy is in direct opposition to the Word of God. I believe God is going to take care of His own word, as He has always done, and He is going to show on fields of blood whether His words are going to come to pass or not."

The speaker, however, did not confine his remarks; he gave a little good advice to Britishers. He said further:

"We do well to despoil the Austrians and Germans as we meet them on the battle field, but just as we declared war upon the principles which have precipitated this world-conflict, let us see to it that we declare war on these same principles as they operate in our own lives."

The speaker might have pertinently referred to the religiously unsettling influence upon the simple faith of the humble Christian, of the "higher criticism," a modern revival of German transcendentalism—the cult of riddling the Holy Scripture with hypercritical pin-pricks, of exalting the letter that killeth, above the spirit that giveth life; subjecting the mysteries of God to the measure of mathematical demonstration, to the misleading of the simple and of the wise too, and so crooking the "highway" of Isaiah that the wayfaring may err therein. German culture is the same exaltation of mind, over spirit, of matter over morals, of force over faith, of the human over the divine, of the devilish over the human, as that, though, different in expression and manifestation, but similar in shattering of ideals, which is characteristic of the intellectual pride, and pride of knowledge of those surgeons of criticism who bind the inspired word of God to the dissecting table of gnostic research.

Shall The War Interfere With Peace Celebration?

Should the Hundred Years of Peace celebration between Canada and the United States and between Great Britain and the United States be abandoned because of the war This question has evoked a considerable amount of discussion both in Canada and the United States.. In a circular just issued by the Canadian Peace Centenary Association the answer is given. The Association took the wise course of consulting the Executives of the British and American organizations and of requesting the opinion of a large number of leading men throughout Canada.

At a meeting held in Ottawa on August 19, last, the following resolution was passed:

"That the Association desires to record its opinion that, notwithstanding the present war there should be an appropriate celebration commemorative of the Hundred Years of Peace between the British Empire and the United States. The Association recognizes, however, that having regard for the very serious nature of events arising out of the war, it would be inexpedient to attempt at present, definite arrangements as to time and place for a celebration of an international character. With this exception it is decided that the Association proceed with its educational and other work as far as may be possible."

At this meeting letters were read from Sir Robert Borden and Sir Wilfrid Laurier. One sentence of Sir Robert Borden's letter expresses his view clearly: "The project of marking in an appropriate manner the completion of a century of peace between the British Empire and the United States ought surely to command the widest sympathy. That terrible storm of war now sweeping Europe, the ravages of which reach even to the shores of this continent, brings into clearer relief the more excellent way which these two great powers have found and followed." Sir Wilfrid Laurier is also equally emphatic: "I am certainly of the opinion that the celebration should not be interfered with by the war. On the contrary, at this moment more than ever, it would be advisable that the American people and the Canadian people should give an example to the world of their unflinching and determined desire to maintain peace."

The Chairman of the American Committee wrote after conferring with his colleagues:

"If there was reason for holding a celebration over the historic fact of a century of peace, there is doubly the reason for celebrating peace in the light of the awful war in which Europe is engaged."

The New York "Times" asked editorially, "Why should the plan to celebrate a century of peace, between the two branches of the English-speaking race be deferred on account of the war in Europe, in which one of them is involved?" And continued, "it will be all the more appropriate that we and our British brothers shall call the attention of the world to the wonderful benefits that have followed the long uninterrupted reign of peace between us, and, so far as may be, to its causes."

From the opinions of leading public men the following may be quoted:

It is gratifying to know that the Canadian Peace Centenary Association is proceeding with its educational work, that literature is being prepared for the schools, that prizes will be offered for the best essays on Anglo-American relations, that church services will be held on February 14, next and that organization is being kept intact with a view to the holding of public festivities after the conclusion of the war. The relations between Canada and the United States for some years past have been more than friendly, and the attitude of a large majority of Americans towards Great Britain, in the conflict which has been thrust upon her by German greed and aggression, is such to-day, that if a great celebration between our neighbour and ourselves can be arranged, it will elicit the warmest enthusiasm on both sides of the boundary.

Kaiser Visited Kiel.

LONDON, Nov. 28. — The correspondent at The Hague of The Evening News transmits a rumor from well-informed sources that Emperor William during the past week paid a flying visit to Kiel, where he spent several days.

It is suggested at The Hague, the correspondent continues, that this visit foreshadows renewed activity on the part of the German fleet, which, as the Russian ports soon will be icebound will shortly be freed of the necessity of watching the Baltic.

Fiji Islanders for War.

MELBOURNE, Nov. 28. — A despatch from Suva says that Lewis Harcourt, the British Colonial Minister, has given his approval for the sending of a contingent of Fiji Islanders to the front.

The Fiji Islands constitute a British colony in the South Pacific and are administered by a governor. The inhabitants are of a Malayan-Polynesian stock, and before they were Christianized were barbarous warriors with a tendency towards cannibalism.

Servians Drove Austrians Back.

NISH, Servia, Nov. 28. — (Via London.)—An official statement issued yesterday regarding the fighting in Northern Servia says:—

"The battle which commenced on Nov. 20 on the Lazarevats Mionitza front, and in which we repelled the enemy and captured a hundred prisoners still continues.

"On the 21st our heavy artillery bombarded the Austrian monitors off Semlin and forced them to withdraw at the same time silencing the enemy's artillery."

PREPARED FOR DEFENCE BUT NOT AGGRESSION

Premier Asquith Deals With the Causes of the War—Britain Was Not to Blame and Was Not Prepared.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—At the Free Church recruiting demonstration in the City Temple last night, Lloyd George said:

A French General's Words.

This is a terrible war. It is a horrible war. All wars are horrible. Within the last few days it has been my privilege to meet one of the greatest Generals in the French army, and to talk to him of his experiences in the war and what he had witnessed — the carnage, the wear, the terror—and he said to me. "The man who is responsible for this war has the soul of a devil." (Cheers.) That came from the heart of one of the greatest strategists in the French army, which has been fighting for three months. "The man who is responsible." Who is responsible? Not Great Britain. (Cheers.) Britain was only armed for defence. Had we meditated a war of aggression against anybody, do you think we should have to improvise an army after the war began? We were not equipped for a war of aggression; not even against a military Power of the third rank. We were prepared for defence against all the military Powers of the world put together. (Prolonged cheers.) We had no army for continental warfare. I could tell you more than that. We have raised altogether hundreds of thousands of men who have volunteered (cheers)—don't forget this—for the honour of our native land. It is the greatest voluntary army that the world has ever raised, and in a few months we shall double it. (Cheers.)

Road to Redemption.

That is the appeal I am making to the young men of the Nonconformist churches. I hope that within the next few days there will be a call for another large contingent of men. In days when we were winning the battles of religious persecution in this country there were shirkers. Their cowardice did not save them from the tomb. It is appointed that men should once die, after that the Judgment. Brave men have died, but they need not fear judgment. I think we are too ready to scoff at creeds that promise the glories of their paradise to those who die for the cause or for the country they are devoted to. It is but a crude expression of truth which is the foundation of their great faith that sacrifice is ever the surest road to redemption. (Cheers.)

This is a call to the manhood of our people for one of the greatest issues that have been fought on any stricken field. What are we fighting for? I will tell you one thing we are fighting for above

Germany Was Wrong.

I am not deprecating for the moment a country preparing itself years in advance for the defence of its rights, but there is a sort of militarism—that of which Germany is the centre — which maintains that in sanguinary disputes between nations, preparation for war is the only thing that counts, and that the rights and wrongs of the dispute are a matter of insignificance. That is the basis upon which she calculated when she invaded Belgium. She was wrong. (Cheers.) She thought the military efficiency of the plan was everything, and that the righteousness of its details was nothing. It is essential in the interests of the moral good government of the world for the future that that slander upon destiny should be nailed once for all to the counter. (Hear, hear.)

Justice Grips the Victory.

The fundamental error of the German calculation is becoming more and more manifest every day. They are beginning to realize that justice is the greatest of all military assets. (Cheers.) In a long struggle it is the heart that tells (hear, hear), and injustice weakens the heart of nations. Then cannot endure, and this war is demonstrating that the justice of a nation's cause is in itself a military equipment of the first magnitude and importance. Sometimes when I read the reports I feel perplexed and baffled. I see accounts of advances here and retirements there, of victories in this spot and mishaps in another, but through it all I think I can see the hand of justice more sure, gradual, slow, but certain, gripping the victory. (Cheers) "Watchman, what of the night?" It is still dark, and the cries of rage and anguish still rend the air, but the golden morrow is at hand, and the valiant youth of Britain will return from the stricken fields of Europe, where their heroism has proclaimed to the world that justice is the best sustenance for valour, and that valour has won a lasting triumph for justice. (Loud cheers.)

The Browning Club

On Thursday, the 26th, 8 p.m., at the Y.W.C.A., some 30 members and visitors gathered as usual at the reading and interpretation of Browning's poems. "Rabbi Ben Ezra" was read and commented on by the Rev. Mr. Pogue. As the reading proceeded time was allowed for discussion, and many interesting points were raised. Last week, in the regrettable absence of Miss Weir, Judge Huycke very kindly represented her and read with a running commentary the poem she had chosen—"An Epistle of Karshish." Next week the members propose going on with the discussion of "Rabbi Ben Ezra," and (if time allows) introducing some points in the interpretation of "Karshish" that may serve to bring it in line with "Cleon," the next poem to be taken up. Both these poems represent, in a manner, how Christianity would strike two quite distinct corners of the pagan world.

In the interests of English Poetry and its Works, the organizing committee at the Y.W.C.A. desire once more to welcome visitors and friends to attend the meetings without regard to membership of the Browning Club.

GERMAN GENERAL STAFF WAS GREATLY DELUDED

And Realization of the Hopelessness of the War Spreads --Britain Blamed for Interfering in the War

The London Times publishes a despatch from Copenhagen, dated November 6th, quoting "a distinguished citizen of a neutral country, a banker by profession, whose long-standing business relations with the country required him to spend the past seven weeks in Germany" where he has professional connections with Germans of eminence in politics and commerce, to show that internal conditions, as gleaned by him, are at complete variance with published reports.

"It would be a great fallacy," said the Times' informant, 'to judge German affairs by the German newspapers of to-day. They must not only suppress what the Government does not want printed, but are required to publish practically that, and that only, which the Government lays before them. I refer, of course, to news and views of all sorts bearing on the war. Everything for instance, tending to suggest that the rigors of war are slowly but surely undermining the national economic fabric is strictly contraband. It is that feature of the situation, naturally, which makes the liveliest appeal to the imagination of a businessman.

Realize Tragic Truth.

"My every-day contact with Germans of my class, extending over a period of many weeks, leaves me firmly convinced that those of them who must know now realize that Germany has been plunged into a tragic and pathetic adventure. Even the great industrialists of Rhineland-Westphalia, though many of their works are occupied in the production of war materials to a wholly unprecedented extent, are depressed and melancholy over the awful struggle into which Germany has been precipitated.

Delusions of General Staff.

"These are men who cannot be deluded by official optimism and bluster. They are men accustomed to deal with facts. Nothing else impresses them. What are the facts? The General Staff told the great captains of industry, who in Germany are hardly a less important factor in the conduct of a war than the staff itself, that the plan of campaign—reduced to essentials—was this: We shall smash France within three weeks, then wheel about and deliver Russia a knock-out blow before she has had time to complete her mobilization. Belgium will offer only the resistance of sullness. England will not 'come in' at all. The German Government had the positive assurance of leading Englishmen to that effect. Not a single one of the General Staff's objectives had been attained. Checkmated in all directions, Germany has little but an enormous death roll to counterbalance the terrific effort the first 100 days of war have cost her.

Ruined Commercially.

These are the immutable things which thinking business Germans see and know. They know more than that. They realize that, thanks to a very farseeing economic and financial organization, their trade and commerce have thus far—barring the annihilation of the German merchant marine — been dislocated perhaps to no greater extent than the trade and commerce of their enemies. They look across the Atlantic and see that even America, as could not be otherwise in a truly world-war, feels the blight of Europe and Asia's colossal bloodletting. But what German industrial leaders also realize is that prolongation of the war into months and years must spell eventual ruin.

Pressure of Facts.

"I could see no traces that Germany, as yet, has actually felt the effect of her great adventure. But the cumulative effect of the conditions which war brings, especially now that intelligent Germans know it is to be a prolonged struggle, is measured at its full value. It is becoming increasingly plain to them that they cannot win. How can they? A military nation trained from the cradle up to believe in the might of numbers, viewed merely from that standpoint, now see that the odds are overwhelmingly against them.

They Know.

"Men like Ballin and Heinsken, whose liners have been swept from the seas as if by some all-devastating hurricane; people like the textile magnates of Westphalia and Saxony, whose looms are silent when no American cotton can be imported; iron masters like Krupp, Thyssen, and Stinnes, electrical magnates like Rethenau and the Siemens-Schuckerts, who know what interrupted supplies of staple rawstuffs from abroad such as copper and petroleum mean; bankers like von Gwinner and Furstenberg, who know the havoc which the financing of war and stoppage of exports work to German credits at home and abroad—these men are under no delusions as to what the war is doing and will do, the more it develops into a protracted, victoryless affair of mere give-an-take on three or four vast firing lines. They are immensely patriotic, all of them. They cannot truthfully be described as downhearted or hopeless. They are not grumbling. But neither can they be said to be even remotely cheerful over the ultimate prospect. The war has not yet sapped the prosperity at the zenith of which business Germany found itself three and a half months ago. But war has placed that prosperity in terrible jeopardy.

England the Enemy.

"A man cannot tarry long in Germany these days without having it borne in upon him with what ferocious fury all classes of the population hate England. England is blamed for the collapse of the general staff's grand plan of campaign. To judge by the language and the headlines of the press, a stranger could hardly tell that Germany's enemies included France and Russia. England is depicted as 'the one and only foe'. Everybody will tell you that on throttling England all Germany's energies are now being bent. The 'great settlement' is to come with her. It has become an 'idee fixe' among all strata of the nation that England 'organized' the war and herself went into it for the sheer purpose of ruining a feared and despised commercial rival.

At Least Fifty Years Last.

"The Emperor William once said that Germany would emerge from even a successful war set back at least fifty years in her economic development. Kaiserworte are not soon forgotten by the Germans. When they recall the famous dictum above quoted, and contemplate the eventualities of this struggle, they cannot be blamed. I thought, for gazing into the future with troubled eyes."

CHRISTMAS AS USUAL

A Reminder That the Big Holiday Season is Close at Hand With Its Wholesome Associations—Merchants Encourage Careful Preparations.

Glancing from the columns devoted to the tremendous events in the great war to the announcements of merchants, one is reminded of the near approach of Christmas. The phrase 'business as usual' has ceased to be a mere psychological stimulant. It applies to a commercial condition that is admittedly almost a fact. A furniture dealer said the other day: "Do you know business is good." And his tone suggested that some one had made a contrary assertion. "No one said it wasn't," was the reply.

"Well you know what the feeling has been," he said. We are doing a good business, and if it keeps on we'll have nothing to kick about."

Such is one unsolicited testimony. No one attempts to create the impression that the high tide of trade recorded in recent years obtains. But there is a steady, substantial retailing that many, if not all, the merchants, are dividing.

And now come the evidences of Christmas as usual among the stores that constitute Peterborough's business centre. Grocers have new stocks of fruits, peels, nuts and the other articles that are essential to the December trade. And now is the time these purchases should be made. Waiting until the eleventh hour is a disappointing practice. Preparations for Christmas, the festive side of the anniversary, can be made now, and any facilities the merchants offer for timely and advantageous buying should be widely accepted.

The same advice applies to the gift lines. Shop early is almost a confirmed policy among the general public. In the large cities it takes the form of the Eleventh Commandment. The very idea itself has transformed the attitude of giving and receiving Christmas tokens. But apart from that effect of the practice there is the possibility of carefully considering the whole question and planning for results that will be most satisfactory. Hence the individual should realize that the announcements of the merchants deserve close attention not only in the interests of business, as such, but for the personal advantages that are bound to accrue.

A WELCOME MANUSCRIPT.

"That last thing you sent in was good," said the editor; "we all enjoyed reading it."

"Well, in that case," said the youthful poet, "I take back what I said in the letter I wrote to you yesterday about my determination never to send you any of my work again."

The editor slowly shook his head. "Don't do that," he murmured. "Why that letter is what I referred to".

THE PLEASURES OF READING

By F. M. DELA FOSSE

For the past few weeks the articles appearing under this heading have been devoted to subjects somewhat removed from the well-trodden paths of the ordinary reader. It was necessary that they should be written, however, in order to give as comprehensive a view as possible of what is to be obtained in the Library. This week we can turn to something lighter, which, while not possessing the deeper value of the subjects alluded to, has still a peculiar interest of its own and one not to be despised by the student or the lover of literary trifles.

Magazines, particularly old magazines, are of the greatest use in reference work; but it is not from this standpoint that we shall regard them in this article. There are in the Public Library, roughly speaking, about 800 bound volumes of magazines. Some of these bear date as far back as 1856 and it would be hard to overrate the value that attaches to them. Quite at haphazard. I have taken a volume from the shelf. It turns out to be a copy of Cassell's magazine, bearing no date but, judging from the illustrations that adorn its pages, published some time during the early sixties. Let us turn over together its time-stained pages and see if we can come upon anything that will repay our search.

Almost at the commencement of the volume is an article on 'Mrs. Brownrigg. Now, it would probably puzzle ninety out of a hundred readers to know who Mrs. Brownrigg was and even if they did know, to discover the reason for singling her out for notice in an article of this description. Truth to tell, Mrs. Brownrigg was not a very savoury character. She lived in the great epoch that produced Johnson, Goldsmith and a half a hundred notabilities in the literary world, but although Goldsmith somewhere refuses to her in one of his recorded conversations, there was nothing of the literary nature about Mrs. Brownrigg. She was in fact a very miserable specimen of a murderess whose specialty was taking little children to nurse and then doing away with them. Having been found guilty on one of these counts she was condemned to be hanged at Tyburn. Incidentally it may be mentioned that she was strongly suspected of having made away with fourteen other infants who at various times had been committed to her charge. That she richly deserved her fate goes without saying, but there were hundreds of others who suffered death in those days for crimes that at the present time would be looked upon as amply expiated by a month's detention in jail, and my reason for referring to Mrs. Brownrigg's case is to show how very far we have advanced in our ideas of justice and moderation in the last 150 years. The account of this unfortunate woman's journey to Tyburn shows most clearly the crude customs of the time and that it was not without reason that Horace Walpole called the country "a shambles." As regularly as Monday came around there would be a public execution and on one occasion, no less than fifteen souls were launced in this manner into eternity. Men of high and leading like George Selwyn, the famous wit, delighted in being present at such spectacles and Boswell records having had a special suit of black made for himself in order to present a decent appearance near the scaffold.

Turning from this gruesome subject in search of something more cheerful we have only to pass over a few pages till we come to an article on the steam engine. Here we are brought face to face with some industrial heroes of our school days, Savory, Watt, Calley and Newcomen. The article is worth reading if only for the purpose of refreshing our memories in regard to an invention which has helped mankind forward with such leaps and bounds in the march of civilization.

Shortly afterwards we reach an article on Woolwich Arsenal, a subject of particular interest at the present time when we hear and read so much of the great German factory owned by Krupp, who has manufactured such death-dealing weapons for use in the present war. It will startle some of our readers to be told that Woolwich arsenal also owes its origin to a German. It was a young metal worker by the name of Schalch who in the year 1700 laid the foundations of what is now one of the greatest arsenals of the world. What is more, he continued as director for fully sixty years and during his whole management there was not one explosion or accident recorded in connection with the institution.

On one of the pages devoted to 'Fugitive Notes,' we light upon Sir Henry Wotton's definition of an Ambassador, "An honest man appointed to lye abroad for the benefit of his country." This little pleasantry caused Sir Henry the loss of his position as his monarch, James I thought it a reflection on himself, seeing that such appointments were in his gift. But it seems particularly applicable at the present time to certain zealous gentlemen doing duty as spokesman for Germany at Washington and elsewhere.

We do not need to linger long meditating on this point, so we can journey on together and in the course of a very short peregrination we shall light on a note concerning the 'Breeches Bible.' Strangely enough, it was only a few days ago that a friend of mine informed me that he had seen in the house of a gentleman living in the west a genuine copy of the 'Breeches Bible.'

Here is what the editor of Cassell's has to say about it, "A person writes to me that he judges that I am a bookworm and would like to buy a Breeches Bible, because he has one which he would not mind parting with for a £5 note. I daresay not. The value of the volume is somewhere about 3s. As there are many people in my unknown friend's predicament and as some are actually saving their suppositious treasure in the vain hope that when the worst comes to the worst it will sell for a good round sum, it may be well to state that this Bible passed through at least a hundred and thirty editions and that probably each edition consisted of 1,000 copies so that there is far too large a number in existence to render any single copy extraordinarily valuable."

The Breeches Bible, which was published in 1560 gained its title owing to a peculiar rendering of Gen. iii. v.

I doctored for it, and altogether my bill amounted to $400, and still no cure. One day when very sick I was lying on a couch close to where some almanacs were hanging. I took one down, and was reading about what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills cured, and thought I would try them. I got six boxes to start with; have only taken three boxes and I never felt so well in my life as I do now. I only weighed 87 pounds when I started to take them, and now I weigh 138 pounds. PETERBOROUGH BOYS TOOK PART IN THE CONCERT

Left Half of 21st Battalion at Kingston Had Pleasant Evening—57th Men on the Programme.

ENJOYABLE EVENT

Examiner Special:

KINGSTON, Nov. 27—The left half of the Battalion, writes one of the Peterborough boys at Kingston, held its first smoking concert last Wednesday in the Cereal building, which is our Kingston home. After supper the mess room was arranged for the occasion.

At 8 o'clock the chair was occupied by Col. Hughes, O.C. of the 21st Battalion, assisted by Col. Hemming, O.C. of the 3rd Division, and Col. Ponton of Belleville. The mess room by that time was filled to the doors.

In the opening remarks Col. Hughes said it was the first time he had been able to speak to the left half of the Battalion. He would not take up the time in making a long speech as he could see by the length of the programme that they had some splendid talent in the Left Half. "But I want to say," remarked Col. Hughes, "I am more than proud of you boys. You are a splendid bunch of men, and I am more than proud of the way you are getting down to business and the way the men are conducting themselves when out for pleasure. The Kingston Police say you are the best behaved soldiers that have ever been in Kingston. But play the game boys, and you will never be afraid to meet any Germans."

Needless to say E Company was to the front, as usual, supplying two of the talent — Peterborough boys. Pte. R. Custance, the talented singer and clog dancer, whose singing was loudly applauded and also his clog dancing, after his song, "Enjoy Yourself." He possesses a very rich tenor voice and used it to perfection. When he had finished his song, and clog dance, the audience demanded an encore, but he promised to give another clog dance later in the evening, which would be the Sailor's Hornpipe, and was congratulated by the officers at the end of his numbers.

Pte. Frank Roberts of Peterborough sang the solo "The Pattern to the World, in splendid voice and was heartily applauded, having to respond to an encore, singing "The Call to Arms." He was congratulated by Col. Hughes, Col. Hemming and the other officers on his singing and the splendid songs he had chosen.

Another number was an exhibition of bag-punching by Pte. Harrison of G. Company. He is certainly very clever, and Col. Hughes remarked that if we can use our bayonets as well as that fellow can punch the bag, I pity the Germans."

At the interval refreshments were handed around, consisting of hot rolls and sausage. Cheese was also passed around and the Mayor of Kingston presented us with a large barrel of apples to be given to the boys. Cigarettes were also presented. After the rest of the numbers on the programme were given the concert was brought to a close by singing "God Save the King," at 10.30, led by the R. C. H. A. Band. Lights out at 11 o'clock.

Following is the programme:

Speech—Col. Hughes.
Selection—The R. C. H. A. Band.
Speech—Colonel Hemming.
Song—Sergeant Murtagh, "Land of Hope and Glory."
Speech—Col. Ponton, of Belleville.
Exhibition bag punching—Private F. W. Harrison.
Speech—Major Bennett.
Selection—The R. C. H. A. Band.

THE PATRIOTIC BRIDGE WAS HUGE SUCCESS

Proceeds Will Be Used to Provide Christmas Presents for Peterborough Soldiers at Salisbury Plains

PRIZES DONATED

The most brilliant social event of the season was the patriotic bridge given to raise funds for Christmas presents for our Peterborough soldiers at Salisbury Plain. To help this worthy cause the elite of Peterborough in their gala attire turned out. The spacious room of the Oddfellows', which were so kindly loaned by them for the afternoon, were filled to overflowing.

The committee were Mrs. J. E. L. Goodwill, Mrs. Geo. Burnham, Mrs. Ernest Clarkson, Miss Helen Davidson; treas., Miss Jean Harstone, sec.. These young ladies were untiring in their efforts to make the event a success. The bridge was under the patronage of Mrs. (Dr.) Young, Mrs. A. E. Coulthard, Mrs. R. R. Hall, Mrs. Goodwill, Mrs. Walker, Mrs. Clegg, Mrs. Matthews, Mrs. Ackerman, Mrs. Travers, Mrs. V. Eastwood, Mrs. P. McLean.

The prizes for auction bridge were won by Mrs. A. E. Coulthard, Mrs. W. Hall, Miss Rose McElderry of Guelph. The five hundred prize was won by Mrs. Yenney and the straight bridge was won by Miss Perry.

An Efficient Caterer.

Too much credit cannot be given to Mr. Hooper who so kindly donated the tea and coffee urns and looked after everything himself in a most efficient manner. Also to Mrs. Head, the popular stewardess of the Golf Club, who gave her services to help in this good cause. The delicious tea was donated by Mr. Johns. The card tables were loaned by Messrs. Comstock, Belleghem, Craig and Clegg. Mr. Jordan gave yellow mums for the table. Mr. Cressman sent a Victor Victrola, which was in the tea room and added much to the pleasure. Mr. I. J. Turner loaned a dozen small flags and a flag pole. The cards were loaned by the Daughters of the Empire. The prizes were given by Mrs. A. E. Coulthard and the committee. The bevy of lovely young girls who assisted deserve much credit, for their services added greatly to the charm of this brilliant affair. All the refreshments were given by the ladies of the city.

A great many ladies and gentlemen came in for tea after the game, and a happy hour was spent in the tea room. The long table was ablaze with candles in silver candelabras and was festooned with flags.

The amount collected was about $180, and there were no expenses.

SUCCESSLUL K. P. AT HOME LAST NIGHT

Marathon Lodge of the Knights of Pythias held a very successful At Home in their rooms on Simcoe Street, last night. Sixty couples were present and enjoyed an enjoyable evening of music, cards and dancing. A feature of the dancing was a new [illegible], introduced by Mr. and Mrs. W. Sturgeon.

Refreshments were served during the evening. The committee in charge of the arrangements were Messrs. F. Wallwright, R. Sturgeon, B. Patterson, H. Allen, V. Hamilton, W. Allen, A. Finnie and E. N. McWilliams.

LOCAL MINSTRELS MADE BIG HIT

Huycke's Company of Vocalists Scored Complete Success Before Havelock Audience in the Village Hall Last Night.

Huycke's Minstrels journeyed to Havelock last night and played in the Town Hall to a large audience. They received a hearty reception and made a decided hit, the people of the Railroad Village giving every evidence of being positively delighted with their minstrel show.

The production was identical with the one in the Conservatory of Music Hall, which pleased the Belmont Club so well last Wednesday night, with the addition of a few "frills" that made the show a finished article.

The members of the Company were just a little more sophisticated in the art of enlisting the interest of the audience than at their previous performance and the result was that the entertainment was given with even greater smoothness and confidence. There can be no doubt whatever but that the Minstrels scored a big success in Havelock last night.

The only thing about the whole presentation that came at all near falling flat was George Daly, in "Tipperary," when he slipped on the edge of the stage. He managed to recover his balance, however, and his dignity and the singing of the famous British marching song made a bigger hit than ever. "Harmony Bay" scored again, and Asa Huycke's two original overtures made a fine impression. The quartettes, duets, solos and dancing specialties all took well, as did the comedy and dancing acts.

The performance was given under the auspices of the Maids of Havelock Club.

Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Clegg Celebrate Fiftieth Anniversary Here

November 25, 1864 — November 25, 1914!

Such are the years of happy married bliss which have fallen to the lot of a worthy Scotish pair—Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Clegg, of Midland, Ont.

The town of Kilmarnock, Scotland, saw the happy culmination of the aforesaid parties' love affair in the year 1864. Ten years later Mr. and Mrs. Clegg packed up their "duds" and hied them for the shores of Canada, in those days the voyage taking from six to eight weeks in accomplishing. They landed at Quebec and, striking inland, made their way to the Township of Onida, Ont., where they started farming and, after ten years of farm life, they gave it up and removed to their present home in Midland.

But the locally interesting part is that the worthy couple are the parents of Mr. Andrew Clegg, the engineer of the yard engine of the G. T. R.

The celebration of the event referred to took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Clegg, 200 Stewart Street, Peterborough, last Wednesday evening, where Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Clegg were feted in royal style and received gifts and the hearty congratulations of a wide circle of friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Clegg look and feel hale and hearty, and judging from this are likely to enjoy many more years of wedded bliss, which is the wish of the Examiner and the many friends of the couple.

HOW TO HAVE A BEAUTIFUL COMPLEXION

One of our lady readers who found that her skin was becoming harsh and dry from the use of powders, rouge and creams, sends us the formula below, she states that the simple, harmless, and inexpensive lotion made therefrom softened her skin, and so greatly enhanced the beauty of her complexion that she has entirely done away with all other preparations which she had been accustomed to use. This lotion can easily be prepared at home or by any good druggist. It calls for two ounces of Rose Water, one drachm Tincture of Benzoin, and two ounces Flowers of Camolin. Mix together and apply night and morning with the hands or use a soft cloth or sponge. Always shake well before using. Our obliging correspondent asks that her name be withheld for personal reasons, but nevertheless gives us the permission to publish her letter for the benefit of other readers. She adds that this formula was given her by a woman 65 years old whose youthful complexion and almost total absence of wrinkles were a source of wonder and admiration to all who knew her.

CITY HALL PARAGRAPHS

Dr. A. W. McPherson's report of the city's water supply for the past month, states that the water has again become perfectly free from infection. The weather was warm and dry until the last month, when it rained fairly hard.

This is the most satisfactory report that has been received for some months.

May Run Again.

Alderman McIntyre has yet to determine whether he will be a candidate for re-election at the municipal elections. When asked this morning concerning the matter, Alderman McIntyre replied that he had not made up his mind whether to retire or take the field again.

A By-Law.

A by-law to authorize the conveyance of a lease by the city to the Canadian General Electric Company will be submitted to the ratepayers on the first Monday in January. The lease concerns a piece of track that the city has secured from the G.T.R., and which is to be used by the C.G.E. for testing out electric locomotives.

The Elections.

Monday, December 28th, will be nomination day. One week later, or January 4th is the day fixed by law for polling the poll. Elections will take place on that date for mayor, aldermen, commissioners, and members of the Board of Education.

Will Be a Delegate.

His Worship Mayor Buller will be a delegate to the meeting of the executive committee of the Loyal Order of Moose, which is to be held in the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, on Friday next. City Solicitor Gordon may be another delegate.

The Outfall Sewer.

The outfall sewer controversy will again be aired before the Provincial Board of Health, on Tuesday next, when representatives from the city and surrounding townships will be present to press their respective claims. The North Monaghan Township representatives claim that the establishment of a sewerage disposal plant in the township will be a detriment.

Patriotic Fund.

No further additions have been made to the Peterborough Patriotic Fund within the past twenty-four hours. The total amount subscribed to date is $7,214.70.

Gang Has Been Changed

City Engineer Parsons reports that the gang employed on the construction of the outfall sewer, has this week been substituted for a new gang. This, in accordance with the civic policy of giving as many men as possible, a chance to get in two weeks' work. One gang of men is employed for two weeks and then a new gang is substituted. Mr. Parsons states that there are a few men whom the City feel constrained to retain. These men are more conversant with certain portions of the work, consequently they are assured steady employment.

List of Applicants.

Applications from one hundred and thirty-six married men and forty-seven single men for work are in the hands of the City Engineer. Preference is given to the married men. The latter must show that they are the sole breadwinners of the family before they can receive the consideration of the civic authorities.

Mr. Parsons is authority for the statement that the labour situation is acute. Men on the verge of starvation are applying for work. About the only civic work going on at the present time is the construction of the outfall sewer. About fifteen men are engaged on the work. The scale of wages average about one dollar and ninety cents a day. Street cleaning and other minor jobs are giving employment to a few men.

PROTESTANT BENEVOLENT FEDERATION

The regular monthly meeting of the Protestant Federation was held last evening in the S.O.E. Hall. There was a very large attendance of members present, the president, Ald. Duncan, being in the chair. The officers for 1915 were appointed and will be initiated at the next meeting in December. This will be the annual meeting and a record attendance is expected. The officers at last night's meeting gave encouraging reports of the work of the Federation in the past and spoke confidently of the prospects for 1915.

Supply of Steel Is Now Exausted

G. T. R. Forced to Suspend Track Laying Operations—Average Mile a Day Usually

The Grand Trunk Railway, which has been laying 80-pound rails between Belleville and Lindsay, has been forced to cease operations because they have exhausted the supply of steel available. The work will have to be held up completely until a new supply of steel can be secured. It is understood that a large consignment of metal is at present en route to this country from England. The consignment, under ordinary conditions, would have been received in time to continue the work, without interruption, but owing to war conditions, it was delayed, and for a time, the date of delivery was uncertain. It is thought that it will soon be in hand now and as soon as it is the work will be resumed.

An average of more than a mile a day is made by the construction gang in the laying of the 80-pound rails.

Magistrate Gives Fowl Judgment

Dismisses Charge in Important Test Case in Which Woman Was Alleged to Have Sold Fowl Unfit for Food

Magistrate Dumble in this morning's police court dismissed the charge against Mrs. H. L. McIlmoyle, accused of offering for sale a turkey which was unfit for food owing to disease. Mr. R. Ruddy conducted the defence and Mr. Widdifield appeared for the city.

Last Saturday Mrs. McIlmoyle was confronted with the charge. A local woman who had bought a turkey from her on the market said that when she opened it on Monday she found the liver diseased, with large yellow and brown spots on it. She called in the Sanitary Inspector and he condemned the fowl, which she consigned to the garbage can. Mrs. McIlmoyle said that she did not know the fowl was diseased when she sold it, and Sanitary Inspector Spence admitted that the disease might not be discovered while the bird was alive.

In his judgment this morning the Magistrate ruled that the prosecution had not proved to any degree of satisfaction that though the bird was diseased, it was unfit for food. This was a quasi-criminal charge and he did not feel justified in making a conviction against the defendant who did not know the fowl was diseased. Two of the same flock had been sold elsewhere in the City and they had proved to be in perfect condition.

Sanitary Inspector Spence maintains that all that it was necessary to prove was that the bird was diseased. He is taking the matter up with the Provincial Board of Health as this was a test case of an important nature.

CRYING CHILDREN

When baby cries it is because he is unwell—not because he is bad-natured as so many imagine. Crying is the way the little one has of telling of his pains and the wise mother can instantly tell what ails her little one simply by his cry. When baby cries a great deal give him Baby's Own Tablets and he will soon be happy again. Concerning the Tablets Mrs. Jas. Gaudreau, Notre Dame des Bois, Que., says: "My baby cried day and night and I was greatly discouraged. I began giving him the Tablets and he was soon happy, healthy and fat." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HOW ABOUT A VICTOR-VICTROLA IN YOUR HOME THIS CHRISTMAS?

AROUND THE STORES

Peterborough Stores Begin to Wear Their Christmas Attire--Holiday Stocks Are Filling Up Fast --Suggestion to Shoppers

The war has not frightened our good old annual visitor, Santa Claus, away, for Peterborough Christmas shopping has certainly begun in our stores. And "business as usual," in the various departments of trade is quite evident. Perhaps the war conditions have modified somewhat the preparations for this big festival of the year; but investigation would show that the large stores are very much in the same state of preparedness as they were at this time last year.

To begin with all the pretty things that children love in this line are not a monopoly of the land of the Kaiser France, Belgium, Holland, Japan and other lands send their supplies, and even if none of these countries were available at this moment owing to unsettled conditions, the stock in most cases was secured long before the war began. Buyers went to Europe and the different toy markets had packed their supplies, so that the dearth expected by the public was more imaginary than real.

Plenty of Christmas Spirit.

Go with any procession of shoppers and you will begin to wonder if there is not perhaps more of the Christmas spirit abroad than ordinarily is the case. Anxiety and suffering in homes that have now a vacant chair—the old-time tenant of which is perhaps on the Plains of Salisbury, in our own camp, or it may be even at the front on the firing line—have broadened hearts and they go out to shop and secure some remembrance for others as a means of showing their sympathy.

All kinds of beautiful things are on view. Holiday books, fancy goods, and jewellery are displayed in great variety. Ladies' and gentlemen's wear brighten the store windows and show cases. The satchel, glove and handkerchief counters are favourite spots of adults, and the usual Christmas novelties in the way of ties and slippers for men friends are on hand, just as of yore.

Ask any of the girls who wait on you so deftly from behind the counter, and who keep their patience, even though they are being besieged on every side by impatient buyers, if business is any slower than last year and they will in all probability tell you.

There is, perhaps, a greater tendency to mix stocks. Merchants are not confining their displays to their regular lines, but are inclined to dip into other goods not usually allied to their regular stocks. The desire to present as large and varied a selection for the Christmas shopper as can be obtained, accounts for the temptation to trench on the domain of other regular dealers.

If there was ever a time when this paper can be of a great service it is now. When its readers are facing the hurries and worries of Christmas shopping. The advertising columns from now until Christmas eve will contain many helps to shoppers. They will give suggestions to those who have hard work to decide. The wise shopper will make full and free use of the advertising.

Thoughts of the suffering and misery across the waters will make Christmas all the more near and dear to Canadians.

There will be a meaning to the day it has never held before. And with the increased sentiment will come a wiser practical distribution of little remembrances.

WHITE AS A GHOST

Pale or Sallow Cheeks One of the First Signs of Anaemia

Pale and sallow cheeks, with blanched lips and gums, and dark circles under the eyes, are the first signs that anaemia has begun its deadly progress. This first warning is followed by great weariness and breathlessness after any exertion. You grow melancholy, have frequent headaches, awake in the morning feeling tired. You become morbid and nervous, starting at the slightest noise, and your heart palpitates violently even on going up-stairs. Most girls from fourteen to twenty suffer from anaemia. Neglect to supply new blood to the languishing, bloodless body, means a life of misery—indeed it is an open invitation to that hopeless of all diseases, consumption.

The new, rich blood that cures anaemia and gives new health and strength is readily created by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. That is why these pills have cured more cases of bloodlessness and blood disorders than any other medicine. They have made thousands of girls and women strong, well and rosy, with bright eyes and new energy, just because they nourish the body with the new rich, red blood of health. Here is a typical instance: Miss Laura Dempsey, Auburn, N.Y., says: "For several months I was in a very bad state of health, with many of the symptoms that accompany anaemia. I was pale and bloodless, had terrible headaches, would be breathless at the least exertion. Having tried a number of medicines without relief I naturally became discouraged and began to fear that I was doomed to continued illness. At this stage a friend who had herself been benefitted by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills urged me to try them. I did so and thanks to the pills I am now enjoying the best of health, and feel that I cannot recommend this splendid medicine too highly."

Other weak and ailing girls can also obtain new health and strength through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. You can get these pills through any medicine dealer, or they will be sent by parcel post paid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Bride And Groom Were Honoured

The regular monthly meeting of Court Chemong, 530, Independent Order of Foresters, was held on Thursday evening in the W. O. W. Hall, George street, with Bro. D. Wallace presiding.

The business being concluded the members were invited to a banquet which the ladies had prepared in honour of Brother George Louis Martin and bride. Bro. Martin returned from Kingston and was married to Miss Maude Emily Cole on Wednesday night. Bro. Martin is a reservist having seen service in South Africa and with Kitchener at Khartoum, and was honoured with two medals.

Bro. G. W. Powell proposed the health of the bride and groom which was duly pledged by the members, along with best wishes.

The members unanimously decided to hold a patriotic concert and social on Thursday evening, Dec. 10th, and a Committee was appointed to complete arrangements.

Companions Mrs. Bradshaw and Miss Rhodehouse presided very acceptably at the piano, and several national selections were the result, including "The Soldiers of the King," "The Maple Leaf" and "Rule Britannia."

The members dispersed to the strains of 'It's a Long, Long Way to Tipperary."

WARSHIPS IN DISGUISE.

Russian Craft Slipped In and Riddled German Ships.

LONDON, Nov. 28. — The Petrograd correspondent of The Morning Post makes an interesting disclosure concerning a success which he says was achieved by the Russian Baltic fleet, under command of Admiral von Essen, early in September. His despatch in substance is as follows:

"It appears that German warships had acquired the habit of cruising in the Baltic up to the limit which the Russian fleet had decided to hold. Having received certain information, Admiral von Essen painted several of his cruisers and destroyers with the German colors and under cover of foggy weather contrived to join the German ships, the presence of the Russian warships had not been suspected until it was too late.

"At a convenient moment, the admiral opened fire, sinking one German cruiser and badly damaging another, while the Russian destroyers put in good work on the smaller German craft. Having delivered this blow the Russian vessels sailed home untouched.

"The Germans naturally remained silent regarding the fight and for various reasons the Russians also kept quiet, but a number of the coveted St. George crosses were distributed among those who were responsible for the success of this venture."

In connection with the above story, it is interesting to note a brief statement which was given by the official news bureau on Sept. 4. The communication was as follows:

"According to information derived from a trustworthy source, seven German destroyers and torpedo boats have arrived at Kiel in a damaged condition, and it is understood that others have been sunk in the vicinity of the Kiel Canal."

AUSTRALIA IS WELL ARMED

There Are 164,631 Men Under Arms in the Commonwealth

MELBOURNE, Nov. 28. — In the Senate yesterday the Minister of Defence said that in addition to the forces raised for service in Europe and the citizen forces there were 51,153 members of rifle clubs and 16,000 recruits, totalling 67,153 reservists available for the war, a grand total of 164,631 men under arms. The Government has also raised first, second and third reinforcements to the Australian Imperial forces, totalling 9,000 completed units previously accepted by the British Government, making a total of 38,258 for the Commonwealth.

The Premier told the House of Representatives that 2,000 men monthly could be provided in addition to the number already sent.

FIFTEEN CAPITAL SHIPS WILL BE CONSTRUCTED

While Britain Has Lost Six Old-Fashioned Battleships to Germany's Two, the British Navy Has Outscored the Enemy in Every Other Class of Vessel—No Reason For Alarm

LONDON, Nov. 28. — Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, in a speech in the House of Commons last evening, before the adjournment of the lower House to Feb. 2, told the country that, despite the loss of some of the older ships of the British navy, there was no cause for nervousness, but every reason for complete confidence in the power of the navy to give effect to the wishes and purposes of the Empire.

The First Lord told of the danger to British ships from mines and submarines and of the possibility of armored and fast enemy liners escaping to the high seas to prey on the allies' shipping, which, he added, had been prevented thus far. He concluded his speech with the statement that there was another danger, "that of an overseas invasion—an enterprise full of danger for those who might attempt it."

On the whole, the First Lord said, he considered the navy had done well. It was, he declared, driving German commerce from the seas, and preventing enemies getting war material, which they needed more and more as the war proceeded. Even if England were single-handed, there would be no reason to despair, but with the French in control in the Mediterranean and Japan in the Pacific and the Russian navy developing, "we could go on indefinitely, receiving our supplies from wherever we need them, transporting our troops wherever they are required and continue the process with our strength growing greater every month, until at the end of perhaps a not very distant date, we achieve the purpose for which we are fighting."

As for building, the First Lord said, England would add fifteen capital ships to her fleet before the end of 1915 to Germany's three. In fact, he declared, England could lose one super-dreadnought monthly for a year and still maintain her superiority over Germany in these ships.

Eight cruisers, Mr. Churchill continued, were being rapidly added to the British fleet, and England had commissioned since the commencement of the war more than Germany had had destroyed or interned. This number, including the Breslau, he said, amounted to six.

The loss of British merchant ships, the First Lord said, was a loss that had been anticipated by the Admiralty. Nevertheless, England had been able, by virtue of its sea power, to draw from all over the world for the cause of the allies everything that was needed, including an abundant supply of munitions, while deficiencies in these commodities were beginning clearly to show in the enemy's military organization.

"We have been at war for four months and I should like to consider how the process of attrition is working," said the First Lord of the Admiralty, referring to the German plan of reducing the British fleet by raids. "The number of submarines lost on both sides has been equal. Our destroyers have shown an enormous superiority in gun power, and we have lost none of them, while eight or ten of the enemy's have been destroyed. We have lost six of the older armored cruisers and Germany has lost two; but we have three or four times as many of these as the enemy has. Of the most important class of minor vessels, modern fast light cruisers, we have lost two out of thirty-six; Germany has lost six out of twenty-five."

In conclusion, Mr. Churchill expressed the hope that these facts would comfort nervous people. He paid tribute to the patriotism of the workmen in the shipbuilding yards. He said that the health of the sailors was twice as good as in peace times and their conduct exemplary. The navy was following the traditions of the historic struggles of the seas, while the soldiers in the field showed a zeal and enthusiasm which was inspiring their leaders with the utmost confidence.

FRENCH HAVE OCCUPIED TERRITORY NEAR CERNAY

Renewal of Activity Around City Would Point to a German Attempt to Break Allied Line There

RHEIMS IS AGAIN SHELLED

PARIS, Nov. 28.—From a reliable source information has been received of a considerable French advance in upper Alsace. Advancing from Thann the French occupied Gebwenheim, southwest of Cernay, where the Germans had massed ten thousand men. This advance gives the French direct communication with Belfort via Rodern, whereas previously they were compelled to take high circuitous routes. Farther north they descended from Schinct heights to Stosswehr and Munster, the latter an important centre on the road to Colmar.

The following official communication was issued last night: "The day has been calm. There is nothing to report."

The German artillery fire upon the allied positions ceased off during yesterday, the official communique issued yesterday afternoon states. During the visit of the newspaper men of neutral countries to Rheims, however, the city was violently bombarded by the enemy.

The text follows:

"The slackening of the artillery fire of the enemy was noted all along the line during the day of Nov. 26. Two infantry attacks directed against the heads of bridges which had been thrown down on the right bank of the Yser, to the south of Dixmude, were easily repulsed.

"There was no other engagment on the rest of the front in Belgium, and as far as Oise, nor was there any action on the Aisne or in Champagne. Nevertheless, Rheims was rather violently bombarded during the time that a number of journalists from neutral countries were making a visit to the city.

"In the Argonne some infantry attacks resulted in the loss and then the recapture of certain trenches. The men engaged in this fighting never exceeded a battalion. The ground lost and then retaken was never more than 25 yards.

"Along the heights of the Meuse and in the Vosges there is nothing to report."

An official naval bulletin, issued last evening, says:

"In the Mediterranean French and British squadrons continue to blockade the Adriatic Sea and the Dardanelles and to protect the coasts of Egypt and the Suez Canal.

"In the North Sea British and French ships have made a reconnaissance of the German batteries established on the Belgian coast. The German cruisers in the Pacific do not seem to have left Chilean waters since the fight of Nov. 1."

The bombardment of Rheims would indicate a resumption of activity along the lines before that city. There is much speculation among staff officers of the allied armies as to the next objective of an assault in force by the Germans. With the invaders beaten off at Mesnport, Dixmude and along that front, chained at Arias and Armentieres, it may be that Rheims is to again withstand the shock of the Prussian avalanche. There has also been a vigorous artillery exchange in the vicinity of Arras and along the line from Ypres westward to La Basse, where the Indian troops have recently won distinction.

It is denied from German sources that the bombardment of Zeebrugge on Nov. 23 by British warships resulted in the destruction of submarines being built there, of an important arsenal and great quantities of stores.

The Germans spoke scornfully of the small damage, which they say was caused by the British fire.

The Patriotic Fund

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I see by the published list of subscribers to the patriotic fund that some of our rich men have not subscribed anything, while others have had the courage to set their names opposite very small sums. There are a few honorable exceptions, however. Mr. J. J. Lundy deserves credit for having set the pace for others in his rank, and although it is comparatively small for his means and entails no hardships, yet if the others follow in his wake, we shall be able to make a showing that will be no reproach upon our home city, as it has been in the past. All honour to him.

Yours, etc.,

KITCHENER LEAGUE SUCCESSFUL DANCE

Enjoyable Function at Conservatory Last Night

The Canadian Kitchener League held a very successful dance last evening at the Conservatory Hall. About seventy-five couples were present and as a result the funds of the League will be considerably increased. Splendid music was provided by Miss Gladman and the varied programme of dances was greatly enjoyed by all present. Dainty refreshments were served during the evening, the young ladies of the League providing the same. The affair was one of the most pleasing social functions held this season, and the substantial receipts will help very materially in promoting the good work being carried on by this organization.

ANNUAL COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES IN COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE LAST NIGHT

Prizes for Mental and Physical Achievements Were Presented, as Well as a Splendid Musical Programme.

A GOOD ATTENDANCE

Hundreds of pupils, parents of pupils and friends of the Collegiate Institute, including a good representation from the Board of Education and the P.C.I. staff were present at the very interesting Commencement Exercises held in the Assembly Hall of the Institute last night.

Dr. Morrison, chairman of the Board of Education, presided, and Principal H. R. R. Kenner was also on the platform. During the evening a very interesting programme was presented and the winners of the various athletic and scholastic prizes of the past term were made the recipients of their trophies, medals or cheques. The presentation of the prizes were of unusual interest in that they indicated just what is being accomplished through the efforts of the Board of Education and the Collegiate Institute staff.

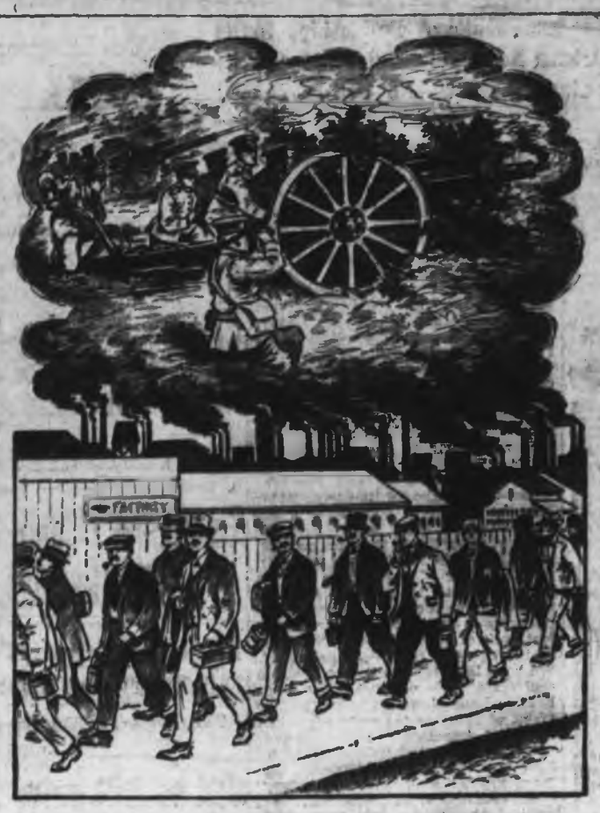
The musical programme consisted of an instrumental solo by Miss Bernice Giroux, a violin solo by Miss Laura Logan, and a vocal selection by Messrs. Downey, Kerr, Park and Steer. All were enthusiastically received, the quartette being forced to return to the platform and give an encore. Miss Giroux displayed wonderful ability on the piano, particularly in technique and expression. Miss Logan rendered a very difficult violin solo in a most effective manner. The quartette sang well chosen selections, their harmony being splendid and the individual singing very acceptable. Altogether the musical programme could not have been more suitable.

In a brief address Dr. Morison said that at first he had thought the word "Commencement" did not fittingly characterize these annual exercises, but on reflection he found that it was while in the Collegiate Institute that the pupils first began to use the knowledge acquired in earlier education. The boy and girl started when young to prepare for the duties that would devolve upon them in manhood and womanhood. Many graduates of the Collegiate Institute had distinguished themselves in various professions and occupations, and many were to distinguish themselves by heroism on the battlefield. Here Dr. Morrison referred to the number of Collegiate Graduates who had enlisted. "We believe we are in the right," he said. "Fighting for a just cause and that the armies of the Allies will succeed before many months have passed."

Mr. Burnham's Address.

In presenting the Entrance Prizes Mr. J. H. Burnham said:

There has been a decided tendency of late years to follow Science and to ignore literature and history. Science is not only exercise of the intellect but of immediate practical use—but beyond mere practical material use, beyond the law of cause and effect, the law of mechanical compensation, there is nothing further. There is nothing whatever of the ethical in Science. Science is pure materialism. The study of Science alone, therefore, inclines a people to materialism. Experience shows that the moment we sink to the level of materialism we are in immediate danger of losing all sense of moral duty. The spiritual also vanishes. Take for example common honesty. Honesty is a duty. It also can as in Science be considered merely as a fact. Duty is no part of materialism. Science ignores duty, honour, human kindness, and all that goes to make up what we regard as Civilization. We must seek that in religion, philosophy, poetry, and all that which records the history of human conduct as a manifestation of moral responsibility. The neglect of these in favour of the study of Science has made the world a wonder materially, but will make it a shame morally and ethically. Rising generations whose mental energies have been largely devoted to Science are almost wholly ignorant of what is meant when breaches of public or private trust are referred to as a disgrace. The word disgrace is unknown to Science. The word has no meaning to the law of the Conservation of Energy.



THE FIRING LINE IN EUROPE IS DEPENDING ON THE WORK LINE IN CANADA.

No Cheating Science.

If in Science we do not do certain things, the required results will not follow. There is no cheating Science. To make an example of what I mean. The torpedo is a marvel mechanically. Explosives are great achievements chemically. Ethically they are the inventions of the devil and are in no sense indicative of any of the virtues. Human conduct is over and above all these things and can only be learned from that which teaches the principles of human conduct. The man who spares his horse because he dislikes to see it suffer is a humane man. The man who spares it solely because it will cost him so much to buy another is a mere animal and nothing more, if indeed that. We must be careful, therefore, that in providing for education we do not miss the chief essential, viz., a sense of responsibility, and that sense can only be provided for by the study of the lives and noble deeds of exemplary peoples. Their achievements are recorded in the classics and apart altogether from the artistic beauties of the classics there are the records which they preserve, and to those we must pay due heed. There will be a return to a more general study of the classics on moral grounds, and the benefit will become manifest. To expect a noble-minded upright people without sowing the seed is to try to "make bricks without straw." It is impossible. It has been ascertained by experiment that children brought up without moral guidance are simply animals, and when it was pointed out to them that they should do certain things involving responsibility of character, they were, of course, ignorant of the meaning and of the idea, and met every statement by the simple reply "I want it." In other words the animal instinct of supply had completely supplanted their whole moral being. If, in addition, they had been taught mathematics and natural Science they would have been more highly intellectual and capable people, but they would have been entirely ignorant of the moral law except in so far as they could have divined some faint glimmer of moral responsibility which experiment has shown to be very faint indeed. I do not propose to discuss the problem of innate ideas, but merely to show that if we wish to accomplish results we cannot do so by ignoring them. That is the ethics of Christian citizenship.

There is to, another feature of classical study of far-reaching importance. While Science appeals to the highest capabilities of the imagination of the intellect yet it cannot focus them into reference for an ethical ideal. What would life be to humanity if humanity were deprived of the incentive and attraction of an ideal which prompts men not merely as Science does to unravel the Scientific riddle of the universe, but to self-sacrifice and supreme effort in the cause of humanity as well. There is no soul in Science. It is all mind. How much then we owe to the classical records of the soul in humanity in the great stress and struggle of life can be imagined.

Two of the Entrance prizes were to have been presented last night by the donor Dr. Geo. Burnham, but he was unavoidably absent. The duty was placed upon the shoulders of Inspector Mowatt, who in his opening remarks paid Dr. Burnham a tribute for his active interest in the educational work of the city for many years past. In the course of his address Mr. Mowatt said that he felt that in these days too many of us were fans and to few actual participants in the sports of the time. He felt too that parents should realize that little could be done towards moulding a child's character in the school unless the home influence was right. In conclusion he said that they did not seem to realize the inexcelled opportunities local children had in the matter of educational advantages.

Mr. Hone, of the Collegiate staff, referred to Mr. Burnham's statements with regard to the soulessness of science. He said that science oftimes was the means through which the soul was revealed, and that much of the idealistic and beautiful would never have been brought to light but through the research of science. In turning to the Girl's Athletic Association Mr. Hone paid a glowing tribute to the executive of the society. He said that Miss O'Brien not only deserved the cup through her playing, but through the interest she had taken in the progress of the Association as well.

Mr. Brown reviewed the athletic work of the term, and said that all efforts in this connection had been crowned with success.

Mr. Geo. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., presented the Nicholls Scholarships and the medal that he donated for the Senior Championship of the Institute. He heartily endorsed all that had been said about the Collegiate Institute and staff. Peterborough's educational system was not only a great asset, but a greater one than most people realized. He made a feeling reference to the graduates of the Collegiate Institute serving in the armies of His Majesty the King, and prophesied that the young men who had received prizes during the evening would make a name for themselves either in peaceful pursuits, or if necessary, on the line of battle.

ATTACK IS PERMISSIBLE

But German Occupation of Canada is barred Says Taft

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The Monroe doctrine was strongly indorsed, its relation to the present European war and its applicability to Canada discussed, and the declaration that interferences by the United States in Mexico and Central American States have had nothing to do with that doctrine was made by former President William Howard Taft in an address at Montclair, N.J., last night.

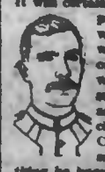
In taking up the proposition of Great Britain's enemies landing troops in Canada, Mr. Taft said:—

"Canada is already furnishing substantial military aid to Great Britain and the allies. She has sent a body of 30,000 men, of well equipped soldiers, and is preparing more and intending to send them. On what theory, therefore, could we justly object to Germany's taking countermeasures and carrying the war into a country which is waging war upon her? All that the Monroe doctrine would consistently require of us would be to insist that when the war is over, if Germany were successful, she could not take over the territory of Canada and overthrow her Government and establish her own there, or take any oppressive measures which would have a similar effect. But we could not object to her exacting an indemnity if she were the victor."

ECZEMA ON ARMS ITCHED AND BURNED

Unsightly. Could Not Put Hand in Hot Water. Very Painful. Used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. Completely Healed.

Imperial, Sask.—"My eczema appeared as a rash and itched and burned very badly. It was certainly unsightly and I could not put my hand in hot water or work at all when it was at the worst. Both my arms were covered with the eczema and it was very painful. I tried several things, but none did any good until one day the chemist advised me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment, saying it was by far the best thing he knew of. I immediately used it, washing my arms and hands with the Cuticura Soap and then applying the Cuticura Ointment. The first dressing relieved the irritation and in a month all signs of that awful disease had gone. I was completely cured." (Signed) Edward Lawrence, Jan. 31, 1914.



Samples Free by Mail

In selecting a toilet and a skin soap why not procure one possessing delicate emollient properties sufficient to allay minor irritations, remove redness and roughness, prevent pore-clogging, soften and soothe sensitive conditions, and promote skin and scalp health generally? Such a soap, combined with the purest of ingredients in proportions and most fragrant and refreshing of flower odors, is Cuticura Soap. Although Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold by druggists everywhere, a sample of each with 32-p. Skin Book will be sent free upon request. Address postcard: "Cuticura, Dept. B, Boston, U. Was Afflicted With Tuberculosis

Sanitary Inspector Spence Secures Diagnosis of Chicken's Liver

A few days ago, Sanitary Inspector Spence forwarded a chicken's liver to Prof. Edward of the Ontario Agricultural College for diagnosis. The Inspector was of the opinion that the chicken was afflicted with tuberculosis.

To-day Mr. Spence received a reply from the bacteriologist expert, confirming his opinion. Mr. Spence also reported on a turkey that he believed to be afflicted with the blackhead disease. Prof. Edward would not submit a positive diagnosis of this unless the liver was forwarded to him. He said that the symptoms pointed to blackhead. As to the Inspector's inquiry re marketing of fowl suffering from blackhead, Prof. Edward said that he knew of no regulations prohibiting the marketing of a blackhead turkey. In fact he did not believe that the disease was transmissable to the human family under any conditions.

Good Debate Last Night

"Women's Suffrage" Discussed at Splendid Concert Under Auspices of the George Street Ladies' Aid

A splendid concert and debate on the woman suffrage question was held in the George Street Methodist church last night. The Rev. R. G. Peever presided and there was a good attendance. The musical programme was presented most successfully, the various numbers being heartily received and thoroughly enjoyed.

The subject of the debate was, "Resolved, that women should have an equal franchise with men." In discussing the subject, Mrs. Jas. Kendry and Mrs. H. Moore took the affirmative and Mrs. S. R. Armstrong and Mr. A. Parker took the negative side. Each speaker was allowed ten minutes and the leader of the affirmative given five minutes to reply. All of the four addresses were unusually interesting the audience giving them the closest attention for the forty-five minutes allotted the speakers. The judges declared in favour of the affirmatives, but added a rider to the effect that their task had been a very difficult one. Messrs. A. W. Cressman, G. N. Gordon and Dr. Middleton were vested with the responsibility of judging the debate. The programme, which was of a very high order, was presented as follows:

Piano duet — Misses Mather and Ruth.

Recitation—Miss Beatty.

Violin solo—Miss Mignon Telgmann.

Quartette—Mrs. Rehill and Misses L. Hanson, M. Armstrong and Miss Elliott.

Vocal duet—Mesdames Renwick and Middleton.

Recitation—Miss McKeegan.

Violin solo—Miss Telgmann.

In her two violin solos, Miss Telgmann scored another complete success. Her expression in the two compositions was wonderful and her technique practically faultless.

Refreshments were served during the evening and home-made candy was sold.

Through the Talent money, which was returned last night, and the entertainment, the ladies realized the handsome sum of $130.

Mrs. Cressman had offered a prize of a bouquet of pink chrysanthemums for the lady who returned the largest sum of talent money. This was won by Miss Morrow, who very kindly distributed the beautiful flowers to four homes where there were members of the congregation lying ill.

SOME THINGS AND A FEW OTHERS

William Rex (wrecks).

The sooner the war terminates, the greater the number of us who have been tried and found wanting.

The Russian bear seems to be within easy reach of the Prussian honey.

A fine fallacy is "Charity begins at home," but a worse fact when it remains there.

Man's dillusionment in regard to women is surpassed only by women's disappointment in men.

In spite of the German brand, culture is the same ideal objective and too rare possession.

Unselfishness and generosity in the present situation become the arms of those who must remain at home.

When one reads of the marriage of one time, remote, "possibles" there comes a suspicion that the "good fishing" still remaining promises too much of the proverbial fisherman's luck.

Show us the individual who used to boast that "drinkin' is a man's game."

November woods are bare and still;
November days are clear and bright;
Each noon burns up the morning's chill,
The morning's snow is gone by night;
Each day my steps grow slow, grow light,
As through the woods I reverent creep,
Watching all things lie down to sleep

THE WORLD OF SPORT

WHAT FOOTBALL HAS DONE FOR THE WAR

Association Football Has Sent More Men Into the Forces in the Last Three Months Than All Other Sports Combined

LONDON, Nov. 27.—All indications show that it is extremely improbable that league football will continue. Public opinion is undubtedly hardening against it. Nearly every daily paper, except, perhaps, one or two devoted to sport, condemn its continuance.

Last night The Pall Mall Gazette showed the strength of its conviction by announcing that for the future it would publish no football news. Premier Asquith has been tackled on the subject in the House, suggestions being made that legislation should be effected to stop professional football, or that the grounds should be commandeered for military purposes. The Premier, however, intimates that he thinks the matter may be left to the good sense of parties most closely affected.

Eleven "Midlothians" Enlist.

Football association representatives meet next week to discuss the whole question.

Eleven players of the Heart of Midlothian Club, including Gracie and Lowe, Internationals, have enlisted this week.

Relating to the stoppage of football during the term of the war, Mr. Wagstaff Simmons, the well known critic, writes as follows:

"Association football has sent more men into the forces in the last three months than all other sports combined. If a plebiscite could be taken, the result would cover with confusion those who have been so glibly condemning a sport they have always detested. The criticism that is honest, though misinformed, should be treated with respect, but some of the statements made are inspired by personal antipathy to a game for which the writers have never had any sympathy.

"The most virulent critic of Association football to-day are the men who, in season and out of season, have been telling the readers of the journals to which they have access that the game does not possess a vestige of sport, but that it is purely a matter of business. Is it? I do not subscribe to that view. Let me, however, accept the argument of the critics. If football be business, then by what right do they seek to shut up a business that means the payment of hundreds of thousands of pounds in wages in the course of a year?

Heavy Liabilities.

"For the moment amateur football may be excluded from consideration. Let us take the sixty clubs in the premier divisions, of the Football League, Scottish League, and Southern League. The amount paid in wages per annum by that important fraction of clubs in the two countries approaches £800,000. Every club has entered into legal contracts from which it cannot escape, and it is seriously argued that those contracts are to be treated as mere scraps of paper?

Football First.

"There is another aspect of the case which is equally important. The constantly reiterated statements that Association Football has hindered recruiting are untrue. Football has been one of the most important and fruitful aids to recruiting that Lord Kitchener has had. It would be impossible for anybody to make an independent inquiry into this matter and arrive at any other conclusion. Footballers, and spectators of football, have joined the forces by scores of thousands, and they carry with them to the trenches and training centres a voracious appetite for football news that finds expression in the oft-repeated requests for newspapers containing reports of football matches.

Many Are Married.

"A professional put it to me in this way a few days ago: 'I have a wife and three children, and I have got my tobacconist's shop as well as my football. I am willing to go, but I think the single fellows should go first, and leave us married men for home defence. Every one of us is willing to do his share, and we dont think that we ought to be charged with being slackers, shirkers, and cowards. It is not true. We are being drilled, we know how to use the rifle, and we will not shirk using it ,but I do think we have a right to say that it is unfair to single us out. Our wives and children are not to be entirely disregarded because we are professional footballers.'"

Internationalist Dead.

I regret to announce the death of Mr. R. G. Brebner, the well-known amateur internationalist goalkeeper, which occurred after a painful illness, the outcome ofq an accident sustained during last football season.

The late R. G. Brebner was a man of many clubs. He first came into prominence as a member of the Northern Nomads and Darlington clubs, and it was mainly due to his brilliant goalkeeping that the latter succeeded in reaching the third round of the F. A. Cup four years ago. In the following season he went to Huddersfield, and in 1912 threw in his lot with Chelsea. The London club were then members of the Scottish Division of the Football League, and Brebner appeared in seventeen matches for them.

Brebner had also assisted the London Caledonians and Queen's Park, the Scottish League club. A dentist by profession, he was a personal friend of Vivian Woodward, and his death, at an early age will be deeply deplored.

Scots Who Did.

The Scottish League team that beat Ireland on Wednesday last at Belfast, was as follows: Brownlie (3rd Lanark); McNair (Celtic), Bulloch (Partick Thistle); Gordon (Rangers); Johnstone (Celtic); Nellies (Hearts); Lowe (Hearts); Gourlay (Morton); Gracie (Hearts); McMenemy (Celtic), and Browning (Celtic).

Lord Kinnaird's Bereavement.

At the meeting of the Birmingham County Football Association on Thursday, Mr. Charles Crump, in a speech full of feeling, referred to the death of Lord Kinnaird's eldest boy, who was on active service at the front. The name of that boy, he said, had been added to the roll of honour, to the list of heroes who had given their lives for their country.

Mr. Crump also referred to the fact that the son of their hon. treasurer, Mr. John Adams, had returned home from military service suffering from incipient appendicitis. Mr. Crump said that although there was no real necessity for an operation one might have to be performed sooner or later, and in any case an operation was necessary if he desired to return to his military duties. He instantly elected to undergo the operation.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—A London cable to the Tribune says:

The prominence given by the English press on Monday to the poor showing the recruiting sergeants are making, while thousands of able-bodied men watched the soccer football game last Saturday has forced the authorities to take some action to stimulate the call to colours.

The English Football Association has called a meeting for Monday, at which every club in the country will be represented, to further consider whether the games ought to be continued. The general opinion favours the schedule arranged for this season being carried through under certain conditions.

Since Sept. 1 the football association has been willing to call off the games if the War Office so wished, but the "off day" in recruiting last Saturday gave rise to so much comment that the result of the meeting next week is anxiously awaited by thousands of followers of this sport.

"PSHAW" WHAT'S THE USE"? (Cartoon by James Frise)

CLUBS WILL BE ASKED TO PLAY MATCHES FOR THE PATRIOTIC FUND

Annual Meeting of the O. H. A. Next Week Will Discuss a Number of Important Amendments

WILL MAKE GRANTS

The business for the annual convention of the Ontario Hockey Association, which is to be held at the Temple Building, Toronto, on Saturday, December 5th, at 9 a.m., includes the discussion of a number of important questions that will doubtless attract a large attendance of delegates.

Mr. J. Ross Robertson, chairman of the sub-committee, has a grist of motions for the betterment of the game, based on the experiences of the governing board during the past year. The proposed changes summarized are as follows:

1. To reinforce the student rule so that it covers a player who is "absent from home and registered and in actual and regular attendance at lectures at a preparatory school, a high school, a university, or an affiliated college."

2. To appoint an assistant referee in finals and semi-finals, if considered necessary.

3. To limit overtime games to thirty minutes' actual play or 90 minutes in all.

4. To charge each team with a loss if the game is abandoned before the ninety minutes have ben played.

5. To divide the playing time in three 20-minute periods instead of two 30-minute periods.

6. To make this qualification to the offside rule: "A player having taken a pass from a team-mate, who is prevented from skating him onside through interference, tripping, or other foul by opponent, shall not be declared offside."

7. To make it optional for teams in the senior series to drop a man to equaline for one obliged to leave the game for any reason or to insist upon the opposing team substituting a player for the one retiring.

Chance for "Village" Players.

Mr. J. H. Grooms of Alvinston, desires a change in the residence rule so that a resident of a "village" shall have the same privilege as a player residing in a rural district or police village, viz., the privilege of playing with the O.H.A. club in the nearest town to his residence. Under the present rules, the "villager" is debarred from playing anywhere except with the village team.

Mr. James T. Sutherland of Kingston proposes to make an addition to the players' certificates showing where they played in 1911, 1912 and 1913 to establish their records; he also submits an amendment to debar from office in O.H.A. clubs any person who is owner of, or has a controlling interest, or is employed in any capacity with any skating rink. Another amendment by Mr. Sutherland is to allow no substitutes except in the case of a goal-tender who has been injured.

Grants to Worthy Objects.

It is also proposed to make good use of some of the surplus funds of the association. Mr. Francis Nelson proposes a grant of $1,000 to the Canadian Patriotic Fund, and [illegible] J. F. Paxton, of Whitby, proposes that the association endow a cot in perpetuity in the Hospital for Sick Children, to be known as the "Ontario Hockey Association bed," at a cost of $2,000. In addition, the hundred and odd clubs of the association will be asked to play matches during Christmas Week in the various groups wherever possible, the receipts of which will be donated to the Patriotic Fund.

This is the last day for receiving nominations for the O.H.A. executive, and it appears as if President Charles Farquharson of Stratford would be re-elected by acclamation.

The annual fee for clubs already members of the association is $6 per team, while new clubs are required to pay $5 additional as entrance fee. All clubs desiring to play in the Association in this comnig winter are requested to notify the secretary, W. A. Hewitt, Daily Star Office, Toronto, specifying the series in which they are desirous of competing. All applications must be accompanied by the membership fee and a list of officers and colours of the club.

SHALL THE POMPOUS PEONY REPLACE THE MAPLE LEAF FOREVER?

The Ontario Horticultural Society suggests the peony as Canada's floral emblem. That the peony should supplant the maple leaf as a badge of patriotism seems about as reasonable as that the fretful porcupine should displace the quiet, industrious beaver in our national affections. We are fairly well satisfied with our escutcheons as they stand now. They seem to have been chosen with moderation and good taste, and they do not yell at the stranger like European heraldry.

The Canadian coat of arms is well within the bounds of possibility, and the nine provinces have shown equal forbearance in selecting for their official cognizances only such animals and vegetables as can be found in the realm of nature. Wyverns, dragons, krakens and other horrid monsters, the children of Welsh rabbit and midsummer night dreams, have been carefully avoided. In like manner bloody hands, mailed fists, severed heads, transfixed hearts, cleft skulls and similar gory tokens have been left out of our reckoning. We have tried to convey the idea that this country is dedicated to freedom, peaceful labour and human happiness, and we venture to assert that we have never advertised anything that we did not have in stock.

If there is anything we are proud of it is our modesty, and the beaver and the maple leaf fill the bill to a T. If we want to use hedgehogs and peonies as the symbols of our confident spirit we are at perfect liberty to do so, but we do not believe these things represent our attitude to-ward the plan of the universe. Let our nations have all the eagles and rattlesnakes and wild mustard and thistles that they like, but let Canada stick to the beaver and the maple leaf. The peony does not suit our peaceful disposition. It is a naughting, overblown flower, with less fragrance and a higher colour than the pumpkin whose yellowness can at least be worked into toothsome pies. The peony is of no use whatever except to bully all the other posies in the garden. The peony is forever quarreling with the hollyhocks and the morning glories, and even the sunflowers turn pale when they see one coming. It is bold, bad and dashing like the adventuress in the play, and what's worse, the redness of it hints at militarism and battlefields and other sanguinary and disagreeable things which are not included in the ordinary course of business.

The maple leaf, on the other hand, fits in with the general routine. Its green hue is Nature's customary background and is calculated to rest the eye and soothe the savage breast. At the same time it has keen, saw-like edge which indicates that it can take care of itself when necessary. Finally where is the poet who could write a national anthem to the peony? Imagine Alexander Muir penning this line:

"God Save the King and Heaven Bless the Peony forever."—Saturday Night

The Farmers' Produce Market

Supplies Were Plentiful This Morning—Eggs Are Scarce

The odour of gasoline as an indication of oppulence has been succeeded by the egg stain on the vest On the farmers' produce market this morning eggs were about as plentiful as the proverbial hen's teeth. A few small lots were offered at prices ranging from thirty-five to forty cents a dozen. The present egg famine promises to continue throughout the winter months according to the wholesalers.

Butter was fairly plentiful at thirty cents a pound. One woman persisted in sampling all the butter that came within her reach. Finally she bought a pound for twenty-eight cents, after which she undertook to spread the glad tidings to a number of friends. Result was a rush on that particularly vendor's stall, but it was all to no purpose. The vendor refused to sell any more butter at twenty-eight cents. Her object in lowering the price on one pound was to get rid of the woman with the toothpick for a butter sampler.

Geese found new owners at one dollar each and better. Turkeys were sold at from one dollar and fifty to two dollars each. Chickens seventy-five cents to one dollar a pair, and ducks at one dollar and forty cents a pair.

Lamb found a ready sale at thirteen cents a pound and pork sold as low as eleven cents for a similar quantity. Potatoes are up to seventy cents a bag.

Was Guilty of Charge But Was Allowed Suspended Sentence

"Prof. W. W. Fred" Arrested Here Came Before County Judge in Cobourg This Morning.

In Cobourg this morning the man who styled himself Prof. W. W. Fred, and who was arrested in this city a short time ago by Detective Meagher, came before the County Judge charged with obtaining money under false pretences. When arrested here he had in the neighbourhood of $100 in cash, and he was able to make restitution in the lake shore town this morning. In consideration of this he, though guilty of the charge, was allowed to go on suspended sentence.

Fred's right name is thought to be Ross. When arrested here he was going under the name of Prof. W. W. Fred, but he is known to have gone under the name of Bell, and while here wrotes a letter to Mrs. Miller, Montreal. Fred was arrested through information from Chief Ruse of Cobourg, within a couple hours after he arrived in this city. Chief Ruse telephoned the local police headquarters, and in less than half an hour detective Meagher had landed him in the toils. He was selling eye glasses, and at the time was thought to be a German, but it is now believed that he is of Russian extraction.

It seems that in August, 1913, Fred (under the name of Bell), claiming to have an office in Toronto, went to Centreton selling eye glasses. Clarence Wilton gave him $6 and a pair of glasses worth $4.50 in which he was to put a pair of lenses and return them to Wilton. Wilton never again heard of Fred nor did he receive the glasses. About two weeks ago Fred returned to Cobourg and hired an outfit from J. R. O'Neill to go into the country. Thre or four days later the horse and rig were returned to Mr. O'Neill, who, however, did not receive any money for their hire. Fred had taken the boat at Harwood for Peterborough, and on learning this Chief Ruse set the machinery of the law in action, resulting in Fred's apprehension in this city. When arrested here he gave his name as James Smith.

Ross, alias Fred, alias Bell, alias Smith, alias Miller, made restitution this morning of an amount totalling nearly $35.

EVANGELISTIC SERVICES AT THE TABERNACLE

The theme of the address of Evangelist Lewis J. Long at the Tabernacle last night was, "The Comparison of the Two Eternal Destinies of the Righteous and the Unrighteous." He also dwelt at length upon "life's journey" of both the saved and the unsaved, showing the great contrasts between the broad and the narrow way. He said the righteous gain Heaven through great trial. That was the way St. Paul went, and also the various other apostles. It was also the way Jesus Christ journeyed through this life. All of these varied experiences are what God uses to form character in the life of believers. If anything foreign should interfere with God's spiritual law, character is blighted. Nature illustrates this point very forcibly. If a crysalis should be unnaturally aided to escape from its prison house before Nature's time it would appear only half developed and always remain in that condition.

The uprighteous will appear before God in their true character, which is summed up in the Scriptures as un-Godly, evil, dead, carnal and children of the wicked one. With such a character they could not receive clemency, but judgment. Christ will then appear, not as their advocate but as their judge.

At the close of the service there were several who avowed their desision for Christ.

There will be no meeting to-night. Mr. Long will preach to-morrow at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. and also address the Sunday school at 3 p.m. A cordial welcome to all.

RUSSIANS SEND FRESH TROOPS TO BATTLE AT LODZ

One Section of German Army Has Extricated Itself But With Heavy Losses--Complete Success Has Not Been Gained By the Russians.

Special Morning Cable:

PETROGRAD, Nov. 30.—The hope of the Russians arms now rests with the great reinforcements which have been rushed forward to the battle line in Poland.

It is still confidently expected that the German armies on the line from the south of Pleck to the region of Lodz will be completely crushed. Terrific fighting has marked the efforts of the enemy to cut their way out of that region and a complete success has not yet been gained by the Russians.

The official statement to-day declares favourable progress is still being made by the Russian forces, but it is evident that the various battles which have been going on during the past week have practically welded themselves into one vast engagement which must soon lean one way or the other.

One sction of the army at Lodz has succeeded in extricating itself from its precarious position, though only with tremendous losses.

Mr. C. J. Bury, new Vice-President of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

THE POSITION OF ALLIED ARMIES IS SATISFACTORY

Large Portion of Britain's New Army of One Million Men is Now in France and Have Already Won Considerable Distinction--Activity at Sea Expected.

Special Morning Cable:

LONDON, Nov. 30.—A large portion of England's second army of 1,000,000 men is now in France. This was clear to-day, following the receipt of Gen. French's report giving details of the fighting between October 11 and Nov. 20, in which he mentioned the presence of the fourth army corps commanded by Sir Henry Rawlinson.

HIGH TRIBUTE TO THE NEW MEN.

The report of General French is the first mention of this army at the front. Gen. Rawlinson's command was in Belgium as early as the middle of October, when the retreat of the Belgians from Antwerp was covered. The British commander pays a high tribute to Gen. Rawlinson in carrying out this operation, which he declares was most difficult.

In concluding his report, Gen. French declared that there were now signs that fighting from Armentieres to Ypres is entering its final stages.

It is accepted here that the position of the allied armies is entirely favourable. It is confidently believed, however, that with the slackening of fighting on land in the western theatre, greater activity may be shown at sea by the Germans.

Work at Zeebrugge is being pushed with the utmost speed. The German submarines there are now reported entirely ready for sea duty and parts of additional vessels are said to have arrived by rail for construction in the dock yards.

Sentiment In Sweden With The Entente

Germany's Demands Have Aroused the People—Wanted Newspapers Suppressed

LONDON, Nov. 30—The Daily Mail's Copenhagen correspondent says that Germany has demanded that the Swedish Government suppress unfriendly utterance against Germany in Swedish newspapers and has threatened reprisals in the event of non-compliance.

Telegraphing from Copenhagen, the Daily Mail's correspondent represents that Germany's declaration of wood as contraband of war has caused a tremendous revulsion of feeling in Sweden and Norway against Germany, and agitation for an understanding with Russia. Sweden's loss by reason of this declaration, as estimated by the corespondent, will amount to $15,000,000 a year.

"The temper of the Swedes," says the correspondent, "is such that they are discussing whether or not it would be advisable to send cargoes of wood to England through the Kattegat and Skager-Rak under escort of Swedish warships and defy the Germans to attack them. It is contended that Sweden, Norway and Russia could form a profitable commercial agreement which would be greatly to the advantage of themselves and the allies and to the disadvantage of the Germans."

PURSE TO RECTOR.

The congregation of St. Peter's Cathedral presented Rev. Dean McColl with a substantial cheque last night upon his retirement as rector to assume charge of the Church of the Immaculate Conception.

TURKS HAVE LOST MANY

All Their Regiments Suffered Heavily in Recent Engagements—German Field Marshal Rushed to Aid Them

LONDON, NOV. 29—Reuter's Petrograd correspondent sends the following despatch received from the Russian army headquarters in the Caucasus:

"The Turks defeated in the recent fighting suffered enormous losses in all their regiments. The 28th and 29th divisions lost half their effectives and the 86th regiment was almost entirely destroyed. The commander of the 34th division was killed near Mastagat. The commander of the 33rd division deserted, and has been replaced.

"The Turkish commender-in-chief has decided to disband the Kurds, whose work was unsatisfactory.

"The fighting recently has been unimportant."

Von der Goltz Sent for.

A despatch from Berlin by way of Rome states that Field Marshal Baron von der Galtz has been relieved from his position as military governor of the portions of Belgium under German control and attached for the remainder of the war to the entourage of the Sultan of Turkey. General Freiherr von Bissing has been nominated as successor to General von der Goltz as military governor of Belgium.

According to a despatch from Constantinople to the Frankfurter Zeitung, the Sultan has appointed Zekki Pasha, former commander of the Turkish troops and lately commander of the 8th Army Corps in Damascus, as general-adjutant in the suite of Emperor William of Germany.

PEACE POSTERS IN BERLIN.

Police Tear Placards Down But Do Not Search for Offenders.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The Copenhagen correspondent of the Daily Mail says he learns from Berlin that placards are posted nightly in the suburbs of the German capital, demanding peace and containing threats. The police tear the posters down, but they always appear the next night, says the correspondent, and the authorities do not seem anxious to catch the offenders for fear of drawing further attention to the peace agitation.

GERMANS ARE BROKEN INTO THREE PARTS

Peculiar Situation Near Lodz—Middle Force Striving to Avoid Capture

A FORTIFIED POSITION

PETROGRAD, Nov. 29.—A review of the military operations in the last week by both sides at the rear of Lodz, as given out semi-officially here, indicates that the German army under General Mackensen has been cut in three parts.

The right wing is still struggling 15 miles west-south-west of Lotz in an attempt to unite with the column sent to its assistance from Wielum. The centre is ten miles northeast by north of Lodz, and is still engaged in a desperate effort to cut its way west to rejoin the left wing, which is partially cut off from the strongest position on the Vistula. This army, the review asserts, is moving back before Russian onslaughts, but is stubbornly disputing the Russian advance.

In this quarter the Russian advance is from Gombin, 50 miles north of Lodz. It is estimated that the centres of the three parts of the German force are at least 20 miles apart, and that the middle one is acting entirely on its own initiative, being completely isolated from the others.

An Unprecedented Situation.

It is said that the main bodies of the German wing are maintaining a thin line of communications to the rear, extending in semi-circular shape a distance of 40 miles. Russian experts declare that situation is almost unprecedented in the history of warfare. In the opinion of these experts the operations will not result in the complete surrounding of the Germans, but they declare that the purpose of the German campaign against Warsaw has been entirely frustrated.

The alleged failure of the German plan is attributed to what is termed a reckless attempt to cut the Russian centre line.

During all the operations, Lodz is said to have been under attack more than once, but the only injuries sustained were the burning of the electric power plant and the suburban railway station. This is regarded as extraordinary in view of the desperate conflicts that daily have been raging on three sides, and to the fact that Lodz projects like a promontory into the enemy's territory.

A Good Fighter.

CANADIAN BORN GERMANS NEED NOT TAKE THE OATH

Naturalization Laws Recognize Them as Citizens in Good Standing —Foreigners' Rights in Holding Property—Many Reside in Peterborough

In view of the very natural suspicion with which all Canadian-born are looking these days upon everyone with a German name or German blood to mark him out, it is interesting to note that there are many citizens living Canada, some even in Peterborough, who are of German extraction, but who are still just as strongly Canadian, from a naturalization standpoint, as are the amateur detectives themselves. It has been pointed out that the mere fact of German name or German blood does not prevent a person being Canadian, without any claim to the Vaterland.

Under the Naturalization Act, the law may be briefly stated as follows:

Under British and Canadian law the following persons are naturalized British subjects: (1) Any person born within his Majesty's dominions and allegiance. (2) Any person born out of his Majesty's dominions whose father was a British subject at the time of that person's birth and either was born within his Majesty's allegiance or was born a person to whom a certificate of naturalization had been granted. (3) Any person born on a British ship, whether in foreign or territorial waters or not. This does not apply to a person born on a foreign ship in British territorial waters if the latter is the only reason for claiming British citizenship. Clause 2 also applies where by treaty, capitulation grant, usage, sufferage or other lawful means his Majesty exercises jurisdiction over British subjects.

In addition to the foregoing the Act provides that children born in a foreign country whose father or mother became naturalised in Canada shall be deemed to be naturalised British subjects. The section is as follows:

"If the father, or the mother being a widow, has obtained a certificate of naturalization within Canada, every child of such father or mother who, during infancy, has become resident with such father or mother within Canada, shall, within Canada, be deemed to be a naturalised British subject."

From the above it will be seen that the Canadian-born German is quite exonsed from taking the oath of allegiance to Britain. Even more than that, the German-born German whose parents have become naturalized does not need to take the oath to become a British subject. Many German of these two classes, particularly the latter, have been greatly exercised because they have not taken the oath of allegiance, but the law shows that any excitement along that line, either on the part of themselves or their critical neighbours, is unnecessary.

When it comes to holding property there is very little discrimination against a foreigner. The Act states that in Canada citizens of other countries, not naturalised, may acquire, hold, or dispose of real and personal property in the same way as the natural-born British subject. Title to property may be acquired in the same manner as the Canadian subject. The only restriction is found in the Dominion Lands Act, which provides that an alien cannot obtain a title to a free homestead until he becomes a naturalized subject. He, however, is not disturbed in the possession of any land which he may have acquired, and in all other respects enjoys the full protection of the law. A further restriction is imposed upon the personal rights of the alien, inasmuch as aliens in Canada cannot qualify for any office, municipal or Parliamentary, or other franchise, and may not become the owner of a British ship.

The Naturalization Act provides that aliens who have been resident for three years within the country may become naturalized by taking the oaths of allegiance and residence before a commissioner. The papers must be submitted to the clerk of the county or district court who posts the name of each applicant in his office for three weeks prior to the sitting of the court. If, during that three weeks, no objections are entered, the applicant is declared by the court to be a British subject and a certificate of naturalization is granted. British subjects who have become naturalized in any other country and return to Canada, may become re-naturalised after residing here for not less than three months.

"Those Shirts That Sister Susie Sews"

Sister Susie's sewing shirts for soldiers—
Such skill at sewing shirts our shy young sister Susie shows!
Some soldiers send epistles — say they'd rather sleep in thistles
Than the saucy soft short shirts for soldiers sister Susie sews.

A Canadian who arived at Montread a few days from Liverpool brought the chorus of a song now popular in England. The song, the music of which has a marching swing similar to that of "Tipperary," is sung wherever women gather to make clothing for men at the front. In fact, so popular has it become that whenever recruits marching to and from their training camps start their "Tipperary" women on the sidewalk sing "Sister Susie," greatly to the delight of every one in hearing distance.

ALLIES HAVE MADE CAUTIOUS ADVANCES

Special Morning Cable:

PARIS, November 30.—The allied lines are now being advanced south of Ypres. It is declared here to-day that the gradual withdrawal of the Germans is evidenced. The British and French troops are pressing forward, occupying the abandoned trenches.

Throughout last week the artillery attacks of the Germans gradually slackened, and it is now declared that many of the trenches in the inundated sections of Flanders have been evacuated by the enemy. South of Ypres, which is now in ruins from the German bombardment, the allies' advance has been cautious.

Heavy artillery fire has been directed against the Germans, many cases of which were trenches were occupied, but a general withdrawal has not yet developed.

Russians Are Past Cracow

Have Taken Many Austrians, Guns and Supplies—General Use of Bayonet in Attacks

LONDON, Nov. 30.— The Morning Post correspondent at Petrograd telegraphs:

"I feel perfectly confident that the Russians troops are not merely around Cracow, but are already probably past that last stronghold of the Hapsburgs, as a high military official recently called it.

"During the past eight days the Russians in Galicia have captured nearly 40,000 Austrian prisoners, with guns, Maxims and stores. Whole regiments, with their officers, have been taken prisoners, which sufficiently indicates the collapse of the Austrian defence.

"Three days ago, according to an official bulletin, the Austrians had finally retired under the guns of Cracow. The Carpathian passes are in the hands of the Russians, and Russian troops, specially selected for the purpose, are now overrunning the plains of Hungary.

Russians Advance Steadily.

"After a careful examination of large scale maps, I cannot ascertain that any really new information has been vouchsafed regarding the decisive battle between the Warta and Vistula Rivers during the past few days, beyond the undoubted fact that the Russians are advancing steadily forward against the desperate defence of the entrapped Germans.

"The frequency with which the bayonet is now the sole weapon used indicates probably the increasing shortage of ammunition on the side of the Germans. I believe this is a factor that will decide the fate of the German armies, but it is impossible to say how soon.

"The Russians delight in bayonet charges, and officers find a difficulty at all times in restraining the impetuosity of the men until the proper moment arrives."

Some despatches published here palce the German losses at 100,000 during the last ten days. Others declare that every attempt of German relieving forces has been hurled back.

TOOK THE HINT.

"Philander," said a pretty girl to her bashful beau. "I wish you'd tie this ribbon at my throat. I can't see to do it without a glass."

"Of course; I'll be glad to," he said, and at once grappled the strings.

After an unsuccessful effort of five minutes, during which he got as red as a brick house and perspired like a pitcher of ice water on a July window sill, he stammered.

"I—I—don't think I can tie a respectable knot, Miss Mary."

"Suppose, Philander," she whispered, with a pretty little blush, "suppose you sail in a clergyman to assist."

Like the unveiling of a beautiful mystery, the situation unfolded itself to Philander, and he feels better now.

COROT, THE ARTIST.

His Whole Life Was a Song, and Melody Permeated His Works.

Those painters who also have the feeling and some of the proficiency of a musician reveal it in their work. They are usually colorists, with more eye for the colors and tones of nature than her shapes and forms.

Such a one was Corot. He had a good tenor voice and played on the violin. He sang at his work and sang, too, when he was not painting, but wandering through the forest of Fontainebleau or around the village of Ville d'Avray, absorbing the beauty of the scene and storing up impressions for future pictures. In fact, his whole long life of seventy-nine years was to Le Pere Corot, as his friends loved to call him, a song.

And one feels it in his pictures, at least in his later ones, by which he is best known. Their coloring is subdued, like a lullaby or waking song, for it was the dawn or twilight that he preferred to paint. His works vibrate with the hum of melody, and here and there is an accent of effect that trembles like the string of his violin.

Corot's long life was a remarkable instance of a man being able to continue to the end the springtime of his youth.

Power of Falling Water.

Still water gives no power, no energy. Falling water has only as much power as is represented by its weight. A gallon of falling water will develop as much power as a falling block of iron weighing 62.5 pounds. Of course, the greater the fall the greater the power developed. Water falling one foot will develop a pressure of .43 pounds per square inch of pipe. The same amount of water falling 100 feet will develop a pressure of 43.31 pounds per square inch of pipe. Falling 1,000 feet it would produce a pressure of 433.09 pounds per square inch of pipe. To compute the power of falling water it is necessary to multiply the volume of flowing water in cubic feet per minute by its weight, 62.5 pounds, and this product by the vertical height of the fall in feet, and divide by 33,000, the number of foot pounds representing one horsepower for one minute.—New York World.

Mary Garden lost her entire theatrical wardrobe in France. Perhaps some wounded soldier mistook it for a first aid package.

When it comes to the test of "bounded on the north by" Johnny will find he knows about as much about it as dear teacher.

HAD DYSPEPSIA
So Bad Could Not Take a Drink of Water Without Suffering.

Dyspepsia is one of the most difficult diseases of the stomach there is to cure. You eat too much. Drink too much. Use too much tobacco. You make the stomach work overtime. You make it perform more than it should be called on to do. The natural result is that it is going to rebel against the amount of work put on it. It is only a matter of a short time before dyspepsia follows.

That old, forty year old remedy, Burdock Blood Bitters, will cure the dyspepsia and will cure it to stay cured as we can prove by the thousands of testimonials we have received from time to time.

Miss Sarah McRae, Newfield, Ont., writes: "I write to say that I have used your Burdock Blood Bitters, and have found it the best remedy I have ever used for dyspepsia. Two years ago, I had stomach trouble so bad that I could not even take a drink of water without suffering. I took six bottles of B.B.B., and have been entirely cured, and can now eat anything without any bad after effects."

Burdock Blood Bitters is an old and well tried remedy but on account of the many substitutes we would ask you to make sure that our name appears on both the label and wrapper as this preparation is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

MAKING AN EPIGRAM.

The Prize Winner Was Evidently a Married Man's Effusion.

The head epigrammatist of the great wit and humor factory bent over his work bench and rested his gaze upon an epigram that had been used and used until it was cracked and frazzled.

"It's a shame to throw it away," he said, "for I believe it can still be turned about so that it will have a commercial value. I know what I will do. I will offer a prize to the workman who brings in the best new twist."

So when the workmen were gathered in the room he told them that he wanted them to beat out a new and clever turn upon the old motto "A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush." He gave them just one hour at their anvils, with a monetary prize for the best effort and honorable mention for the others. When the time was up this assortment was handed in:

"A chauffeur in the front seat is worth two under the motorcar."

"A kiss in the dark is worth two under the electric light."

"A grain of sand on the beach is worth two in the eye."

"A gift from a husband after marriage is worth two from a lover before."

"A week's wages in bank is worth two in a trousers pocket that the wife is going through at night."

And, while the first four received honorable mention, it was the last one that won the prize.

BLOWN TO SAFETY.

Curious Incident of an Explosion That Wrecked Fifty Houses.

It happened that in the last month of the reign of Charles I. a certain ship chandler of London was foolish enough to buy himself over a barrel of gunpowder with a lighted candle in his hand. He paid the price of his folly. A spark fell into the gunpowder, and the place was blown up.

The trouble was that the man who did the mischief was not the only one to perish. Fifty houses were wrecked, and the number of people who were killed was not known.

In one house among the fifty a mother had put her baby into its cradle to sleep before the explosion occurred. What became of the mother no one ever knew, but what became of the baby was very widely known. The next morning there was found upon the leads of the Church of Allhallows a young child in a cradle, baby and cradle being entirely uninjured by the explosion that had lifted both to such a giddy height.

It was never learned who the child was, but she was adopted by a gentleman of the parish and grew to womanhood. She must surely all her life have had a peculiar interest in that church.—Sir Walter Besant's "London."

Misplaced Sympathy.

Sitting near the door in a subway car was a middle aged man reading a newspaper. At one station there got aboard this car a mother and her son, a small boy maybe four years old.

As those two came through the doorway and into the car the small boy, quite by accident, of course, hit the middle aged gentleman reading the newspaper a good, smart kick on the shin, causing the man to wince, while the boy's progress was checked for a moment by his thus kicking up against something.

The mother looked down, but she said nothing to the man. It was to the boy she spoke:

"Did you hurt yourself, dear?"

Which seemed a case of misplaced sympathy.

The City and the Child.

New York city—the length and breadth of Manhattan—and Boston, from the Fenway in three directions to the water front, are as unfit for a child to grow up in as the basement of a china store for a calf. There might be hay enough on such a floor for a calf, as there is doubtless air enough on a New York city street for a child. It is not the lack of things—not even air—in a city that renders life next to impossible there. It is rather the multitude of things. City life is a three ringed circus, with a continuous performance and interminable sideshows and peanuts and pink lemonade. It is jarred and jostled and trampled and crowded and hurried, and it is overstimulated, spindling and premature.—Suburban Life.

Echoes Made to Order.

Are you aware that it is possible to make echoes? It is, indeed, easier to make than to destroy them.

In the past men built their great temples and cathedrals with no thought of acoustics. Hence, when the preacher preached echoes rolled freely amid the groinings of the roof, down the rows of sculptured columns and round and round the nave.

With wires strung here and with tapestries spread there many of the echoes of the old world buildings have been obliterated. There are echo experts—builders acquainted with the science of acoustics, whose specialty is echoes' destruction. Sometimes their tasks are hard.

Today an architect takes thought of the echo. His building is constructed so as to exclude this intruder. And, knowing how to exclude it, he knows how to welcome it also.

Architects are frequently called upon in landscape work to put up summer houses and arrange rocks around them so as to create an echo there. And this they can satisfactorily do.—London Tit-Bits.

An Engine That Wouldn't Down.

A light American automobile was sold to a tea planter of upper Assam, a region in the Himalayan foothills with scarcely any good roads and a rainfall of from 300 to 500 inches a year. Six months after it was purchased the planter's native chauffeur drove it into a washout on the Cherapunji road during a freshet, and it went rolling 500 feet into the rain swollen river. A week's search failed to reveal any trace of machine or driver. At the end of the rainy season the remains of the machine were found several miles below the point where the accident had occurred. The wheels were gone and the body battered almost beyond recognition, and it was only on the score of sentiment that the planter had the pieces gathered up and taken home by coolies. A month later while on a tour of Assam I saw the salvaged engine and part of the transmission gear set up over a well and actually pumping water to the planter's bungalow on the top of a high ridge.—World's Work.

KNOW THE LOVE OF CHRIST

Balm For the Wounded Soul—"Come Unto Me"—"All Ye Weary and Heavy-Laden"—Divine Character Slandered—False Theology Driving Many Away From God—Predicted Hour of Trial Upon the Whole World—Thousands Falling Into Infidelity—Correct Understanding of Bible the Only Remedy.

[The matter under this heading is supplied by the Pastor Russell Lecture Bureau, who conduct the Brooklyn Tabernacle (unsectarian) Bible Studies, and who have arranged for its insertion.]

PASTOR RUSSELL

Philadelphia, Nov. 29.—Pastor Russell's theme for to-day was based upon the text, "That ye, being rooted and grounded in love, may be able to comprehend with all saints, what is the breadth, and length, and depth, and height: and to know the love of Christ, which passeth knowledge, that ye might be filled with all the fulness of God." (Ephesians 3:17-19.) He said in part:

The word Love is as warming and cheering correspondingly as the words Hatred and Selfishness are cold and discouraging. To some who all their lives have been immersed in a world of selfish frigidity, the real quality of the word Love is disallowed, disputed, claimed not to exist. Nevertheless, in every human being there is a craving for love, pure and sincere, even though expected never to be found.

For the majority inevitable reverses and failures take the place of anticipated successes. However strong, courageous, or even brutally fierce has been the warrior in the battle for bread, fame and glory, he craves ultimately, in his partial or complete disaster, the love which he has neither shown to others nor ever really expected that others would show to him. Whether he succumbs to financial disaster, to immorality, to narcotic stimulants or to disease—it matters not which—the balm of Gilead for the wounded soul is Love.

Sometimes this love comes from the partner of life—the wife or the husband; sometimes from parents or children, sisters or brothers. Thank God for these sometimes, and for the evidence they afford us of some measure of the image of God in humanity! But alas! in a vast majority of cases the failure, the disaster suffered, not only shatters hope, but roots friendship and destroys the semblance of love, which were merely emotional or perfunctory or admiration. At such a time the Message of the Love of God and Christ is a balm indeed, if it comes to the wounded and discouraged one.

It is our thought that particularly at this time such discouragement is being borne in upon large numbers of the human family. With the opening of the year many properly made resolutions to themselves, or to their friends or to the Lord, that they would live more noble lives, that they would be loyal to their Creator, to their companions, to themselves and to all of their interests and obligations. But as the year slipped away, it has brought trials, testings, and to many defeat and discouragement.

Now is the opportune moment to these discouraged ones to hear the voice of Him that speaketh from Heaven, telling them of His love, His sympathy and His willingness to aid all who will accept His assistance. Hearkening obediently to His voice, such may change the hour of defeat to the hour of victory by the Lord's assisting grace; just as, many a time in earthly warfare, victory has been wrested from defeat by the arrival of reinforcements at the opportune moment. The moment of discouragement, of loss of confidence in earthly progress, and of hopeless despair, is the opportune moment for the discouraged one to recognize his need of the Saviour, to cry unto Him and forthwith to receive the reinforcements from Him who has declared, "My strength is made perfect in your weakness"; and again, "Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy-laden, and I will give you rest. Take My yoke upon you, and learn of Me; for I am meek and lowly of heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls."

But it requires faith to believe in a Saviour whom we have never seen, with whom we have not been acquainted, and especially One who has been so frequently misrepresented to us as having prepared from before the foundation of the world for our eternal torment. How can we assure ourselves of His Love? How may we know that He is not the cruel One that has been pictured to us? How may we know that He is a loving, generous, kind, faithful Friend—a God who delighteth not in our trouble, who rejoiceth not in iniquity, who rejoiceth not in eternally tormenting His creatures, nor even in destroying them eternally in the Second Death; but, conversely, in doing us good, in exhibiting towards all who will receive it His loving kindness and tender mercy, enabling them more and more, in the language of our text, to appreciate the height, the length, the breadth and the depth of His Love—a God who eventually will have all men saved (recovered) and brought to a knowledge of the Truth, to obedience and character-development, to life everlasting in the Paradise of God?

We see the difficulty of such; and it cries aloud to those of us who have learned the way of the Lord more perfectly, to let our light shine, to let all the world who are not completely blinded by the Adversary see the true character of our God and of the Son of God, to let them see the Scriptural presentation of the love, the mercy and the abundant provision arranged for in the Divine Purpose.

What the world needs is to get over its fright respecting the Lord and the future, and to see the Love of God and His gracious provision in Christ. This alone will win the heart, in the proper sense of the word. Fear may bring torment, but only the Truth can sanctify and happify—fulfil our Redeemer's prayer, "Sanctify them through Thy Truth; Thy Word is Truth."

The fright that is upon the world came from the Dark Ages and is echoed by all the creeds of orthodoxy, breeding in the hearts of men distrust, hatred of God and of the Bible, which is falsely accredited with being the fountain from which have been drawn these brackish waters of tradition represented by the creeds. It is time that every true Christian should take his stand for the right, the Truth, for the Word of God, for the exposition of the falsehoods which have slandered the Almighty Character, which have benumbed the zeal of the saints, and which have repelled the weary and heavy-laden as they looked for relief and balm in the direction of the Creator.

Is it not time that all ministers of the Gospel announced and manifested their freedom from the creedal misstatements of the Divine character and purpose, which in their hearts they have rejected long ago? It is well that all such should lift up their voice like a trumpet, and give no uncertain sound to the masses of the groaning creation, who are awakening and are hungering and thirsting for the Bread and the Water of Life, which alone can satisfy their longings.

This is the Message which we bear to the troubled and discouraged ones. Until they have time to take up with us a thorough study of the Scriptures and demonstrate the fact to themselves, they must take our word for it that the Justice, Wisdom, Love and Power of God are all enlisted on behalf of Adam and his race—to save us from our sins and from the dead and dying condition in which we find ourselves, mentally, morally and physically. Nor should it be very difficult to exercise this degree of faith. The Scriptures declare, "He that cometh unto God must believe that He is, and that He is a Rewarder of them that diligently seek Him." (Hebrews 11:6.) This involves a faith in the Justice of God that, having invited us, He will not spurn us when we respond to His call.

Moreover, it should appeal to every reasonable mind that God should be just and loving towards all. The thought of an angry, vindictive, torture-loving Creator should be unseated on authority of every statement which so being ungodlike, demoniacal. No doubt this would have been so had it not been that the misconception on the subject, which the Apostle calls the "doctrine of devils," was imposed upon our minds from our very earliest childhood, and often by those who we properly loved and whose piety we reverenced, but who were themselves deceived.

It is high time that more reverential, more loving, theological views were seen by all mankind. It is the lack of this true theology that is driving many away from the Lord and His Word into vain philosophies and "science falsely so-called"—Higher Criticism, Christian Science, Evolution, Theosophy, etc., etc.—1 Timothy 6:20.

The world has discovered that the bonds of ignorance and superstition have been holding it for centuries, and that its eyes of understanding have so long been covered that now they blink in the dazzling light of the dawning Millennial Day. At one bound the so-called scientific world has left God's Word and leaped into a refined agnosticism, which professes a faith not possessed. The middle and the lower classes are ever ready to follow their leaders; this means, very shortly, what the Scriptures predict—"a Time of Trouble such as was not since there was a nation"—a social, religious, financial, political upheaval—anarchy.

Thank God for the assurance of His Word that the spasm will be a brief one! "A short work will the Lord make with the earth." Everything has been prepared for the establishment of the Millennial Kingdom upon the ruins of present systems. It is folly to think of holding the people back, of bandaging the eyes of their understanding, and of enslaving them again with ignorance and superstition. Those who are thus endeavoring to meet the situation show clearly that they do not understand it. The tidal wave of liberty of mind can no more be repressed than can the ocean tide be stayed with a broom.

There is just one remedy—the correct understanding of the Bible teachings. Whoever fails to receive the Truth falls of everything with respect to the present life. This statement applies not only to the world in general but also to the entire Church of Christ.

The hour of trial predicted to come upon the whole world is now upon us; and the Apostle Peter's declaration is that it must begin with the Church—the House of God. (1 Peter 4:17.) The statement of the Prophet is that one thousand will fall to one that will stand—"A thousand shall fall at thy side, and ten thousand at thy right hand; but it shall not come nigh thee." (Psalm 91:7.) St. Paul's exhortation respecting the same time of trial is, "Take unto you the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the Evil Day, and having done all, to stand." (Ephesians 6:11-13.) Who shall be able to stand? is the question.

We are not able to tell the wonderful measurements of God's Love—nor can others tell them. Indeed, as the Apostle suggests, the privilege of appreciating these measurements is granted only to the saints, and to these in proportion to their maturings. Thus a babe in Christ, though beloved of the Lord and carefully cherished, cannot comprehend these measurements of the Divine character, because he is only an infantile saint.

When first he believed in the Lord, he saw something of Divine Love and Mercy, which influenced him, drew him to the exercise of faith and the renouncement of sin. From the standpoint of Justification by Faith, he could see more of the Lord and could appreciate more the measurements of Divine greatness. Then, called and appreciating the call, he bowed his heart before the Lord and made a full surrender to Him in response to the invitation, "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service."—Romans 12:1.

Having thus done all in his power and having laid himself at the Lord's feet, he received the begetting of the Holy Spirit, not with outward show or demonstration, but with inward grace and enlightenment of the eyes of his understanding. From this new standpoint of consecration and harmony with the Divine will, he began to see more of the length, more of the breadth, more of the height, more of the depth of God's Love. If he has lived up to his privileges faithfully, he has been growing hourly daily, monthly, yearly—growing in grace, in knowledge, in ability to see these measurements of the Divine character.

Note that this is the very expression of our text and context: The reception of Christ into our hearts by faith brought, as a rule, mighty strengthening by His Spirit in the inner man—to the new nature. As this Spirit of Christ dwelt, or resided, in our hearts by faith, it tended to root us and to ground us in His character-likeness, which is the same as that of His Father—Love. This experience enables us to comprehend with all saints these measurements of our Creator's character as others cannot appreciate them. Yet, as the Apostle says, even we who now know only in part shall, after experiencing the resurrection change from earthly to Heavenly nature, see our Lord as He is, and shall know as we are known. How grand will be this consummation!

So our text, which applies to the present life, the Apostle declares that even the saints cannot know the Love of Christ; for it passes knowledge. He then gives a further intimation of how this keen appreciation of the glorious character of God comes to His consecrated ones—by their being "filled with all the fulness of God." This means, not only the renouncement of sin, not only faith in the Lord as our Redeemer, not only consecration to Him, but also a filling with His Spirit, His mind, His disposition. This, as already stated, is a gradual work. "Not by might, nor by power, but by My Spirit, saith the Lord."

The Spirit of the Lord is one of holiness—not only of separateness from sin, but of opposition to it; not only of sympathy with righteousness, but of activity on its behalf; not only of putting away from our hearts every sympathy with the unfruitful works of darkness, but also of the receiving of that spirit which condemns them by daily life and a word fitly spoken; not only by an appreciation of the fruits and graces of God's Spirit—meekness, gentleness, long-suffering, brotherly kindness, love—but so great an appreciation of them as more and more induces us to stamp these gracious characteristics of Divinity upon our own thoughts, words and deeds.

Not only did the great Apostle Paul preach Christ and shun not to declare the whole counsel of God, but he never once referred to eternal torment or anything akin to it—and his writings constitute more than one-half of the New Testament Scriptures! The severest penalty that he ever declared is that of everlasting destruction—the Second Death, from which there is no hope of deliverance. Undoubtedly he was right in this course. On the contrary, he preached and wrote not only about the length and breadth and height and depth of the love of Christ, but in the context he tells us that he prayed for the Church, that they might be able to attain such and more of the Love of God. Undoubtedly this is the great need of the Church to-day.

Let us all pray, not only for ourselves, but also for each other, a wider opening of the eyes of our understanding and a fuller comprehension of the length, the breadth, the height and the depth of the Love of God in Christ. From this attainment come our blessings and also the world's blessings. The light from the great Sun of Righteousness, which shortly is to flood the world, will be "the light of the knowledge of the glory of God"—of Divine Mercy and Love.

"Jesus, my Lord, Thou are my life,
My rest in labor, strength in strife;
Thy love begets my love of Thee;
Thy fulness that which filleth me.

"Mine effort vain, my weakness learned,
Weary, from self to Christ I turned,
Content to let His fulness be
An unbought fulness unto me.

"Life's heavenly secret was revealed—
In Christ all richness are concealed.
We try and fail; we ask, He gives,
And in His rest our spirit lives."

FEW FOLKS HAVE GREY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies Are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Hair that loses its colour and lustre, or when it fades, turns grey, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even colour, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture by asking at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. Besides, it takes off dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the grey hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

NOT FOR HER.

Britons Oversubscribe Greatest Loan In Nation's History.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—Lloyd George, in the House yesterday afternoon, gave official confirmation to reports that the British war loan of $1,750,000,000, for which bonds were issued, has been oversubscribed.

The Chancellor gave no figures. He said, however, that a feature of the loan was the enormous number of individuals, totaling nearly 100,000, who had made application for small sums. These, the Chancellor declared, would receive the first allotments. He added that the loan is the largest ever raised.

In the course of a statement concerning financial conditions in the country, the Chancellor stated that the financial deadlock which followed the outbreak of the war was due to inability to collect outstanding debts abroad. "We can neither buy nor sell, although the whole world owes us money."

As an instance, Mr. Lloyd George referred to the United States, which, he said, owed Great Britain about a thousand millions sterling.

STARTING A HOSPITAL.

One Hundred Canadian Doctors Are Now Busy In France.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—Arthur Leech, The Daily News' war correspondent, wires that the advance guard of the Canadian contingent who left here at the beginning of the month, has arrived in northern France. It consists of 100 doctors, who have gone over to establish a Canadian hospital, which, he says, promises to be one of the most magnificently equipped of the many which have come from England, Australia, America and India. The spot chosen by the Canadians is a favorite seaside resort, and their building is the club house of a golf club. Many of the contingent are French-Canadians from Quebec, and this place lies on the edge of the great forest of Hardelot. The medical staff took possession of the building Thursday, he adds, "and we promised the feat of hustling in its speedy equipment in order that at any moment they may be ready for administering to the fine force of men who have come to aid the nation in its hour of need."

Peace Not Wanted.

BERLIN, Nov. 28. — The Cologne Gazette, commenting yesterday on a newspaper despatch dealing with the renewed peace talk, says as follows:

"It is premature to talk about peace, and it strikes us as frivolous. No German diplomat and no German soldier thinks of concluding an illusory peace with the powers which we have beaten and confidently hope to continue beating.

"In Germany everybody from the Kaiser to the day laborer is determined to make a clean score this time."

It Was and Did.

Jim Brown lives in a community noted for the corruption of its politics. He drove into town the other day with an old horse.

"Hello!" said his friend Bill, "That horse of yours looks almost old enough to vote."

"Ye-as," drawled Jim. "He has voted two or three times."

PURITY OF THE AIR.

An English Scientist Attacks Our Theories of Ventilation.

Crowther, the English scientist, attacks one of the most cherished of our hygienic notions with a logic that compels respectful attention. His contention is that efficient ventilation does not depend upon the chemical purity of the air. The attempt should be to secure motion, vortices and dryness rather than to displace one body of air by another.

He denies that there is a toxic organic substance in the atmosphere as the result of human exhalations and challenges those who disagree with him to their proofs, as the existence of such poisons has never been scientifically demonstrated.

The lungs, according to him, are never filled with air some of which has not been exhaled. Inhalation follows so closely upon exhalation in normal breathing that a portion of the air that has just left the lungs is invariably drawn back into them.

Exhaustive experiments show that the amount of air thus returned is from 1 to 2 per cent in persons remaining quietly indoors. It is from 4 to 10 per cent in those asleep in bed. There are certain sections of the respiratory apparatus, moreover, the nose and the larger bronchi, in which exhaled air always lingers. It thus appears that the air in the lungs is always heavily contaminated with their own excreting gases, even in outdoor life, and the dead spaces make it certain that this contamination will not decrease.

It is not worth while, so the doctor argues, to pay much attention to the small amount of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere, therefore, and if the air is kept in motion and not permitted to become too moist or warm the necessary ends of ventilation will be subserved. —Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

A Necktie For Fish Bait.

Cigarette papers trailed in the manner of a "spinner" seem a queer bait for mackerel, but navy men have used cigarette papers with deadly effect in Dover bay. You can, in fact, catch mackerel with anything bright when they are on the run. Perhaps the best of all baits for them is a strip of skin cut from one of their captured brethren.

A piece of tin or lead foil is effective, and I once knew a man who came back from mackerel fishing without a vividly colored necktie that he rather fancied. It had made an excellent lure for the fish. Is it that the mackerel is conscious of his own brilliant coloring and therefore will take any bait with a gleam about it?—London Standard.

Simplicity in Higher Life.

The higher we rise the simpler we become. There is a childhood into which we have to grow, just as there is a childhood which we must leave behind; a childlikeness which is the highest gain of humanity and a childishness from which but few of those who are counted the wisest among men have freed themselves in their imagined progress toward the reality of things.

AWAITING THE THRILLING ORDER TO CHARGE.—French infantry crouched behind underbrush awaiting the order to charge on the German trenches. They have their bayonets fixed. THE mind of man does not run back to the time when there was no dancing. Ever since the morning stars danced together for joy there have been dances grave and gay in celebration of all the happenings in the life of man. So interwoven with love, war and religion are the movements of the body that the dance has been an integral part of the history, art and literature in which are preserved the records of all generations.

At times the "unco guid" have waged war upon the dance as a medium of corruption, but always it has reinstated itself through its inherent claim as the most complete expression of the harmony of mind and body. In a recent article Mr. Havelock Ellis calls architecture and dancing the two primitive and essential arts, having an origin older than man, and of the two placing the dance first. Livingston, the explorer, related that when a member of the tribe of Bantu met another he asked, "What do you dance?" which sounds as if it might have been spoken by a New Yorker of to-day. The answer that the Bantu tribesman received to his question informed him not only what was the man's tribe, but what were his social customs and his religion.

From Egypt centuries ago came the dances that spread across the Mediterranean to found congenial soil in Spain and thence were carried to Rome. Antique vases bear witness to the beauty of the dance among the Greeks. So highly was it regarded by them that Plato in his "Laws" declared a good education to consist in knowing how to dance and sing well, and it was out of these two arts that the Greek drama arose. In some of the early dances, as the corybantum, depicted on a bas-relief preserved in the Vatican there is a mingling of religious, military and mimetic characters. The performers were armed and bounded about, clashing their arms and shields to imitate the corybantes endeavoring to stifle the cries of the infant Zeus in Crete. The Dorians, who were partial to the Pyrric war dance, which resembled an action in battle, believed that their success as fighters was due to the celerity and training of the dancer.

It is as the handmaiden of war and religion that the dance first appeared, and it is so interwoven with religion that its divorce from it was accomplished only with difficulty and in comparatively modern times. The savage still "dances his religion instead of preaching it." The Hebrew Scriptures are full of references to dancing from the time when David danced before the Ark to the latter days when Herodias danced before Herod. Dancing was recognized as a part of the ceremony of the Christian religion during the early centuries, and a Jesuit priest writing in the seventeenth century spoke of men dancing and singing the praises of God as a part of the ritual, and adds: "What could be more blessed than to imitate on earth the rhythm of the angels?" Dancing as a part of the church service came under the ban not because dancing in itself was considered unseemly or irreverent but because of the abuses that crept in. In Spain, Portugal and France the dance continued to be a part of the church ceremonial in the celebration of certain festivals. It is less than a century ago since church dancing ceased in France, and it still persists in a few places in Spain.

To an entertainment given by King René of Provence on the eve of Corpus Christi in 1462 belongs the origin of many popular French dance airs. The affair was a curious mixture of the sacred and profane — combats and dances, scenes from mythology and the Bible.

"Soon the ballet entertainment became so popular that no event was complete without it," say Troy and Margaret Kinney in their recent work on "The Dance." In Le Ballet Comique, given on the occasion of the marriage of the Duc de Joyeuse, "the true and modern note of form in grouping had been struck and the standard of exactness set that was to become the backbone of the ballet of later centuries. The performance lasted from ten o'clock in the evening until four in the morning and is estimated to have cost from three to five million francs."

From that time the dance as a social function and as an ally of the drama made headway in spite of checks received at intervals because of certain religious movements or because of unsympathetic rulers.

The martial dance, although now relegated chiefly to barbarians, has in the past played a very important part in military operations. In the first place, it was closely interlinked with the religious ceremonies with which men about to enter into battle sought to propitiate the gods and win support for their armies. The psychological effect of the dance was of the greatest value. Just as the strains of martial music have sometimes been a determining factor in fighting and always a valuable aid, so men who had participated in a war dance were already half conquerors. Their enemies were, in imagination, slain and they bore themselves proudly to the measures of victory. In the early military dances the men were arrayed in all the panoply of war, their muscles strained to the movements of killing and their weapons were brandished as in actual warfare.

The song and dance attuned the men to the fighting point and inspired them for mighty deeds of valor. The Dahomans and the Hoskes, of the Bihi tribe, in the Vindhya Hills, aptly call their dance the Bravery Dance. The Natal Kaffirs have a picturesque dance that refers to the departure of warriors for battle. The women plead to the men to remain but they slowly withdraw, stamping upon the ground and darting their short spears toward the sky as they go.

In Madagascar, when the men are absent at war the women dance for the greater part of the day, believing that this will inspire their husbands with courage, and doubtless many a man has aroused on the field of battle does feel a peculiar access of determination to vanquish the enemy when he thinks of his wife dancing tirelessly all day that he may win.

By many Eastern peoples and this again is akin to the frame of mind which they consider essential to success in battle. The whirling or spinning Dervishes are a familiar example of the marvelous power of certain dancers to continue and to accelerate movements beyond the bounds of ordinary endurance. When they have reached the highest point of ecstasy they are supposed to be so far beyond the human state that they cannot be held responsible for any of their acts and much abuse has been made of the privilege. The fourth of time that they can continue their dizzy gyrations suggests the record dances that have been made at various times in other countries. One man who had danced literally around the clock and covered many miles up and down the English countryside challenged any one to dance a mile with him. Several tried it and failed, but one girl finally did the mile and better and it was reported that the prize got much fatigued by it, either.

Some of the most picturesque dances that have ever been seen are those of the North American Indians. Also, they are thoroughly distinctive. Like those of other primitive peoples they are closely interwoven with religious beliefs and become great ceremonials in which are incorporated their reverences and fears, their worship of the sun, the regard for the elements and the relationship of animals. With their bronzed and painted bodies, their elaborate head dress and decorations, the Indian dances were worth going far to see. In the days of the great wars tomahawks and arrows were used with great effect in the dance that menaced the enemy against which they were to advance. To make themselves more fearsome to look upon the Indians frequently donned the heads of bisons or other animals. This practice of introducing the semblance of beasts into the dance is common to different branches of mankind in various parts of the world.

The sword has played a prominent part in the dance from the earliest times, and it remains to-day in the Scotch Sword Dance, as it was in Anglo-Saxon times, and before that, the symbol of the force that the dancers were to exercise against the foe. The warlike nations have always been dancing peoples, and the greater the stress of danger and daring the more vivid and universal the dancing. Attention has been called to the fact that, preceding the present great European war, there has been a great outburst of terpsichorean frenzy which swept over all countries and involved all classes. This, they say, is significant, as it always happens before a great war.

[illegible] again from Kinney's "Dance": "The list of forces that make and preserve a nation's dances is incomplete without the addition of the sometimes powerful element of national pride. This, undoubtedly, enters into the high cultivation of the dances of Scotland. The Sword Dance and the Fling of their ancestors are associated with the holy cause of freedom. Cæsar commented upon the fighting qualities of the Piet, and the fighting qualities of these tartaned clansmen has never softened. The Sword Dance is their saga. In earlier times it was performed on the eve of battle to relieve tension, to exhibit self-control and to test fortune. To touch with the foot the crossed sword or scabbard, between and about which the dancing warrior picked his steps, was an omen of ill for the individual or his comrades.

The Highland Fling symbolizes victory. The Schottische Militaire, that was popular some years ago, was another Scotch dance with a military suggestion. Many old prints show that the bagpipe of Scotland accompanied the military dance, as it does to-day, and to its strains fighting is being done that emulates that of past centuries.

As is appropriate, England's most distinctive dance appertains to the sea. The Sailor's Hornpipe is half pantomime and half dance and is thoroughly characteristic of Jack, his duties and his pleasures. Aside from the hornpipe the English have their Morris or Country Dances that are romping games rather than dances. Some writers have thought that Morris was a corruption of Moorish and that these dances had been introduced by the Moors and found their way to England by way of France, as most of the modern dances have.

The fighting Irish have their Jig and Reel, which reveal the native sprightliness and dash, and at the fêis held in Cork and Dublin not only are prizes given for the dancing but also for the playing of war pipes—bagpipes.

One of the most picturesque dances of the Continent is the Perchtentanz, which is performed at irregular intervals at Salzburg in the Tyrol, sometimes twenty years. This dance is named for Perchta, the Splendid, the Magnificent One, another name for Holda or Freya, Woden's consort.

In his right hand the Perchten dancer a [illegible] wand, while his partner, a young man, dressed as a woman. The "beautiful" Perchten are wonderfully arrayed and carry great standards, on which are hung watches and jewelry and often are decorated with peacocks or other beautiful birds that have been killed during the year. The "bad" Perchten wear masks and hideous heads to look as frightful as possible. Originally this dance was intended as an act of propitiation, and there is still a trace of that spirit in its modern performance.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Flight

An Adventure With Bandits In Mexico

By EVERETT P. CLARKE

Dudley Cameron, connected with producers of oil in Mexico, was sent some forty miles northward from Tampico into the state of Tamaulipas to pay a man from whom his employers had bought some oil property $3,000 and get a deed for the land. There was no railroad to the place of his destination, and he proceeded on horseback. He carried the money in his hip pocket underneath his revolver.

This was when the Constitutionalists were about to march upon Tampico Mexico has never been free from bri ands, and it was not to be expected that in such troublous times the road would be safe. But the property was known to the purchasers to be very valuable, and they were anxious to get it into their possession. They were willing to risk their funds and Cameron was willing to risk carrying them He would be largely the gainer if he succeeded in paying for the property and securing a deed, because the company that employed him was a very large concern, and it was worth his while to find favor with it.

He carried no provisions with him calculating to get what he needed along the way. He had made half the distance when at evening he came to an adobe house, at which he concluded to stop for supper. Riding up to the door he called to those within, and the door was opened by a half breed girl about eighteen years old. She was quite good looking for a Mexican though dark complexioned and with coarse hair.

Cameron had been in Mexico long enough to speak the language tolerably well and asked her if he could get some supper. She went back into the house and presently returned with a man, to whom the traveler repeated his request, adding that he would like to stay the night. The man after looking him over scrutinizingly assented. Cameron dismounted, put his horse under a shed and entered the house. He found there another man besides the one who had received him.

Cameron did not quite like the looks of the men. As for the girl, she seemed to be in a condition of captivity. At any rate, they gave her orders harshly, and she did their bidding apparently because she could not help herself. She cooked the supper, consisting of tamales and tortillas, the latter thin, light, wafer-like cakes, being very delicious.

After supper both the men left the house, and Cameron sat on the veranda smoking his pipe. The girl was within clearing the table and washing the dishes. Presently she came out wiping a plate and said to him:

"Senor, I would advise you not to lodge in this house tonight."

"Why so?" asked the American, starting.

"These men are bandits. They killed my father, with whom I lived, and have since forced me to do their housework. I am awaiting an opportunity to return to the Rio Grande. I lived on this side of the river, but if I can reach it I will cross into United States territory. Then I shall fear nothing."

Dudley Cameron was a chivalrous fellow and withal at an age wherein the greater the risk the greater its attractiveness. He was on his way northward. The girl also wished to go northward, and he felt under obligations to her for the warning she had given him. To ride away into safety, leaving her to be tyrannized over by a couple of bandits, did not accord with his sense of honor. As soon as she had spoken the last words she went back into the house to finish her chores. While she was doing so Cameron thought over the situation. When she had finished she came out and said:

"For the love of heaven, senor, do not let them suspect that I have hinted to you what they are. Do not say, 'I have changed my mind and will continue my journey tonight.' At bedtime go to your room and pretend to sleep, but instead of doing so let yourself down from the window to the ground—the distance is not great—mount your horse and ride away."

"Why should these men trouble me?"

"The one who admitted you has seen you at Tampico and knows you are an employee of the oil people. They do not believe that you are traveling without money, at least for your expenses."

Cameron made no reply to this. He was thinking. How fortunate that this girl was on hand to warn him! He felt very grateful to her. Had she not done so he would probably have been murdered and robbed during the night. Now, if he could not honorably ride away before the return of the men he could at least stand on the defensive in his room and beat a retreat through the window. Then it occurred to him that by taking the girl with him he would be freed from the obligation to await their return. Had he not [illegible] it. As it was, he did not like putting in jeopardy funds which had been intrusted to his care. He wondered if the girl would go with him.

"Have you a horse?"

"Pepita. My name is Pepita Gonsales. There are horses in the stable belonging to the bandits."

"At what time do they usually return?"

"They go to a house a short distance down the road, where they gamble and drink pulque and usually return late. What they will do if they have designs on you I do not know. Quite likely they will give you plenty of time to get to sleep, come in and stealthily and endeavor to take you unawares."

"Suppose you and I should leave together. Is there not a point of safety we could reach before they would overtake us?"

After some thought the girl said that if they could reach a city like Victoria in time to secure protection all would be well, but if they were captured before entering the town the bandits would surely kill the girl.

"I am armed," said Cameron. "If you were armed also it would be an equal fight."

"The men always carry their weapons with them."

Cameron did not like waiting for the bandits to return and was equally averse to leaving the girl under the suspicion of having warned him. There seemed no way but to take her with him.

"If you are willing to take the risk of going with me," he said at last, "we will leave at once."

It was some time before Pepita replied. When she did she said: "I would rather die than remain here in captivity. Were it not for the times I might invoke the aid of the law. At present there is no law in Mexico. But I will not place you in jeopardy on my account. I have suspected that there are arms concealed somewhere in the house. If I can find anything with which to defend myself I will go with you. If not I will remain. But I will not ask you to remain also."

She went into the house, where Cameron heard her hunting. She had been gone some time when he heard something give way, and in a few minutes Pepita came out with a brace of revolvers. Cameron examined them and found that they had been freshly loaded. This he knew from the fact that the cartridge cases were not dingy. Pepita had pried open a closet door and found a lot of arms and ammunition.

Within ten minutes the two were riding away in the darkness. It was about 9 o'clock, and the bandits were not expected to return till midnight at least. But Pepita did not believe that they would remain long in ignorance of the flight. She suspected that they might have set a watch on the house. Besides, there were others of the gang occupying here and there one of the adobe houses along the road, any one of whom might have been commissioned to report any one hurrying by.

Their route lay midway between the gulf and the railroad leading northward through Victoria and Monterey. The roads were mostly unpaved, so that their horses' hoofs sounded only with a dull thud. Hoping to avoid attention, they rode for awhile at a walk, then assumed a brisk trot and finally broke into a gallop.

Pepita was right in assuming that their flight would be reported to the bandits. They had not been on the way half an hour when suddenly Pepita's horse threw back an ear. In another moment the girl heard the tread of horses coming swiftly, and last, as broke on the less sensitive ears of the American.

"Now we must run for it," he said. "We must direct our course to the nearest town. How far is the house we left from Victoria?"

"I've heard it said that it is about twelve miles."

"We've come about five; that leaves seven. We must turn into the first road we come upon leading westward."

The road forked a short distance further on, the left hand road leading, as Cameron believed, to Victoria. They turned into it, but seven miles was a long distance for a run for life with men following on fleet horses. The only comfort for the fugitives was that their pursuers were doubtless full of pulque.

Pepita's horse, as were all the horses of the bandits, was fleet. Cameron found it difficult to urge his mount on to keep up with her. He spurred him and belabored him all to no purpose. Meanwhile the hoofbeats in rear grew more distinct. At last Cameron thrust his hand into his hip pocket, pulled out his roll of bills and handed them to Pepita, saying:

"Take these and go on. If the bandits spare my life I will join you in Victoria."

"Is it money?"

"Three thousand dollars."

She took it and, with a parting pressure of the hand, urged on her horse and soon left Cameron far behind.

His horse was now staggering. He dismounted and, slapping the animal's haunch, bade him go, then took to a thicket near the road. In a few minutes the pursuers clattered by, to find the horse, which they recognized as the American's, standing exhausted in the road a mile farther on.

Then began a search of the surrounding country, which was fruitless and enabled Pepita to reach Victoria. There the two met in the street the next day. Pepita handed Cameron the bills, and he, after she had agreed to remain where she was till his return, completed his journey and the transaction upon which he had been sent.

The oil company paid Pepita a sum equal to the one she had saved them, and she went to live with relatives on the other side of the Rio Grande.

Cameron gained a good deal of credit with his company by his feat, which was added to since the property purchased turned out to be very valuable. He was advanced to a prominent position and has the prospect of making a fortune.

ECZEMA ON THE HEAD.

Mr. Peterson, South Bay, Ont., writes: "For years I suffered a sort of eczema on the head. I tried four different doctors, giving each a fair trial, but the disease grew worse and spread to my arm. I got Dr. Chase's Ointment, and it has entirely cured me. I give you my name because I want other sufferers to know about this splendid Ointment."

Afraid to Go Alone.

Light is thrown on the question why the Germans use a close formation when it brings such disastrous results, as is described in frequent despatches from the front, by a conversation which Lord Roberts once had with the Kaiser when Lord Roberts went to Germany to witness manoeuvres.

Lord Roberts during these manoeuvres noticed the German close formation and remarked to the Kaiser that he supposed that this formation would not be used in actual battle. The Kaiser replied that it would. Then Lord Roberts expressed some surprise, having noticed the danger of such tactics.

The Kaiser said the formation must be used else the soldiers would not go forward, that being their temperament. They must have someone within reach, evidently just for psychological comfort before advancing on the enemy.

German War Autos Marvels.

Stories were printed recently about the Germans having armored motor cars armed with machine guns, which tore through the lines of the French and Belgians and mowed down all before them.

Another story of the use of new war inventions is told by Arno Dosch, a correspondent of World's Work, who arrived in London from Brussels. He says the Germans are using auto trucks which are marvels. Equipped with scythes, they mow right through wire fences and hedges if the roads and fields do not suit the drivers.

MUSIC AT HOME.
Making the Piano a Pleasant Feature of Family Life.
AN EXPERIMENT THAT PAYS.
How One Girl Musician Tried It and Was Abundantly Rewarded to the Pleasure and Surprise It Afforded the Household.

In the Woman's Home Companion recently appeared a short article entitled "Music as a Pleasure," in which are reported the experiences of a girl named Clara, who had taken piano lessons for years, yet never used her music to give pleasure to her family.

She could play Beethoven sonatas and Chopin etudes and was considered by her parents and friends as making great progress. Yet she returned from a visit at the home of a girl friend thoroughly discontented with her music.

This girl friend, May Allen by name, played all the time, and when her family had company she always seemed to suit everybody. In the following extract from the article appears an account of the transformation that took place in Clara's music:

"The first intimation the family had of an actual upheaval in Clara's musical education was on a certain rainy Sunday, when she sat down at twilight and began a soft, rather low keyed 'Annie Laurie.' Her mother began to hum, under her breath at first, then more boldly, and Clara's brother called out 'Second verse!' when the first was ended and himself began it with a somewhat uncertain bass. From the old Scotch ballad Clara glided easily into the lately revived 'River Threads Among the Gold,' which the family all sang, and then the well loved 'Abide With Me,' which brought the little program to an end.

"Thank you, dear," said Clara's mother, and "That's what I call music," from Clara's father.

Some months later, when Clara's piano had become the center of the home and Clara had definitely decided to make music her life work, she was heard discussing the situation with May Allen, who was returning the visit of the summer before.

"When I came home from your house I was just disgusted with myself," said Clara. "I made up my mind that I'd make my piano as much a part of my home as yours was."

WARDROBE BOX.

Dainty Convenience For Keeping the Baby's Garments Neat.

A woman who wanted a covered receptacle for her baby's wardrobe and wished to combine it with a baby basket took an old shirt waist box with a hinged lid and had it recovered with a rose-pink denim inside and out. The lid was filled with cotton batting on top to make it comfortable when needed for a seat.

Inside she had a little tray about three inches deep. This was a plain four sided frame covered with cretonne. The frame had a cretonne bottom with two wooden slats across to make it firm. The slats were also cretonne covered.

On one side of this tray were placed the powder box brushes, scissors and the usual contents of the baby basket; on the other the little shirts and bands safely kept from dust by the lid. The whole was easily lifted out with two loops of cretonne when the interior of the box was to be reached, as the tray was extremely light in weight. Underneath the tray were kept the little dresses and petticoats safe from dust and handling.

When not in use the little box was pushed under a dressing table in the mother's room and was accessible at any time.

Yosemite valley, in the southern part of the Yosemite National park, is a great gorge about seven miles long and three-quarters of a mile wide, with a level park like meadow in its center. The great cliffs which form the wall of the valley rise almost vertically to a height of about 3,000 feet, and in many places are beautiful waterfalls which have a vertical drop of from 600 to 900 feet.

THINGS WE SHOULD KNOW

Clean up the garden. Burn all weeds, vines, etc.

Apples will keep better wrapped in paper and stored in a cool cellar.

Put a little sand over carrots, beets or other roots to prevent drying out.

Where only a few cabbages are to be stored it is a good plan to wrap the heads in newspapers and put them on shelves in the cool cellar.

Pumpkins and squash should be stored in a cool, dry place. If stored in a hot place, they will lose weight quickly. Keep them from frost.

Take up a few plants of parsley and set in pots or boxes in the kitchen window or a light basement window. They do not need much light or care and furnish an abundance of material for winter garnishing.

Now is the time to organize a community study club. Some of the meetings might well be devoted to a study of garden flowers, shrubs and vegetables. "Better Home Surroundings" is a topic that should be of interest to all.

As soon as the cannas, dahlias, gladioli, etc., have been killed by the frost, dig and store the bulbs in a frost-proof place that is neither too dry nor too moist. The bulbs must not shrivel or start into growth. It is often a good plan to cover them with dry sand or earth.

Celery may be lifted, the outer leaves taken off, and the plants set in soil or sand in a cool cellar. The plants will continue to grow and form white tender stalks for winter use. When watering, do not wet the foliage, as this will cause delay.

AIRMAN'S DARING FEAT.

Saved Dirigible, After Accomplishing Perilous Mission.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—A special correspondent of The Standard, writing from a town in northern France, says:—

"A remarkable feat has earned distinction for the commander of a dirigible who was sent out to destroy with bombs a railway junction occupied by the Germans. Descending low, after evading the enemy's searchlights, the dirigible dropped the first three bombs in rapid succession, but the fourth, after its mechanism had been set going, failed to slide from its tube.

"The dirigible was in imminent danger of being blown to pieces, but the commander boldly climbed out on the framework with an axe in his hand, and, now under the full glare of the searchlights and pelted with bullets, hacked away the tube and its projectile only just in time. The bomb exploded 300 feet below. The dirigible was tossed in all directions, but got away safely. Its purpose was fully accomplished."

GREAT BATTLE OF FLANDERS AS SEEN BY A PHOTOGRAPHER.

WAR AND ITS EFFECTS

War and the effects of war almost completely switched the trend of discussions at the Annual Convention of Ontario Vegetable Growers from the production of crops from seed to the production of the seed itself. The usual sources of supply, of which Germany is the chief, have been closed off. Remaining sources of seed supply are inadequate, if not for next year's supply, then surely for the succeeding year of 1916. Before then vegetable growers must lay the foundations of a seed supply of their own. Can we grow our own seed? was the question that the members of the Vegetable Growers' Association asked themselves. To answer it they called to their convention some of the best known seed experts in Canada, and combined expert knowledge with their practical experience. W. T. Macoun, of Ottawa, and Paul. A. Boving, Macdonald College, were the principal speakers on this topic. The answer to the question, after much discussion, was an emphatic yes. It was decided that vegetable growers will profit in better seed, because of known type, vitality and acclimatization. With the bounties of three to 40 cents a pound which the Dominion Government proposes to pay to Canadian seed growers it was believed that seed can be grown profitably on a commercial scale in some cases.

Next to seed growing, marketing was the subject most fruitful of discussion. At first the discussion favored the establishment of retail public market at various points in Ontario cities. In these producers and consumers could deal directly. Another phase of the subject came up for discussion, when Thos. Delworth, of Weston, pointed out that producing and marketing call for an entirely different type of man. He knew of few cases when a man was both and making a marked success of both. The same view was taken by F. C. Hart, B.S.A., in his address on cooperative buying and selling. He claimed that the selling organization of middlemen was in existence because it had proved desirable and convenient. Through cooperation the growers could own their organization. Mr. Hart defined the essentials of successful cooperation in business to a spirit of give and take in the membership, sufficient organization, capital enough to carry on the business and the employment of a competent business man as manager.

The most valuable paper on production was given by S. C. Johnston, who reported his results in spraying with Bordeaux and the use of lime to control celery blight, a disease that costs Toronto growers alone $10,000 a year. The work indicated that the disease can be controlled effectually by the Bordeaux. No results were seen with lime applications.

Reports were made on the work of interest to vegetable growers conducted at Jordan Harbour by F. M. Clement, B.S.A., and at Guelph by J. E. Britton, B.S.A. A subject somewhat akin, "Breeding of Vegetables," was discussed in splendid style by A. J. Logsdail, B.S.A., of Ottawa. As an illustration of the value of plant breeding work Mr. Logsdail exhibited two varieties of corn, one a hybrid of the other and much improved. A subject of a different nature was "Poultry Raising in Connection with Vegetable Growing," discussed by Prof. Graham. Prof. A. H. MacLennan wound up the session with an illustrated talk on vegetable gardening.

ANTWERP WARNED TO BOIL ALL WATER

ANTWERP, Nov. 28.—"Kookt uw Watre!" is the warning posted over the dead walls of Antwerp and upon the windows of the thousands of closed shops.

In English this is "Boil your water." Beneath the warning is a statement signed by Burgomaster de Vos in which he explains that because of the pollution of the city's water supply there is danger of typhoid and other maladies.

The water still has a decidedly brackish taste and is full of sediment, due to the cutting of the water supply by the Germans when they were besieging Antwerp. Belgian engineers, who had anticipated such a stroke, gave the city a partial water supply by turning the water of the river Scheldt into the mains. This made it possible to ght the fires caused by German bombs and probably saved the city from burning. However, the polluted salt water from the river is wholly unt for domestic use and it will be months before the city's supply mains and pipes will be cleansed of the impurities left by the temporary water supply.

German officers are supervising the cleaning up of the city in all sections. The debris of buildings wrecked by shells is rapidly disappearing. Streets and walks are being cleared and in a short time only the shattered walls and roofs of ruined residences will remain to show what destruction the bombardment caused.

Soldiers are restoring the breastworks and clearing the forts of debris that they may be ready in case the allies should force the Germans back toward the Scheldt. This activity of the Germans makes residents of Antwerp very nervous, especially the younger men, who fear they may be impressed into service in case an emergency defence of Antwerp is necessary.

German engineers may be seen in all the suburbs directing surveys. Bags of sand stacked near the leading gateways by the Belgians so as to afford cover for the city's defenders have not been removed. It is rumoured that all the roadways entering the city have been secretly mined by the Germans.

Automobiles are not permitted to ter Antwerp, and the only railway trains approaching the city are from Roosendaal in Holland. These trains are forced to stop at Merzem, a suburb three miles from the main portion of Antwerp. All passengers are carefully scrutinized by German officers and soldiers, who examine all passports. The trains stop in the centre of a field half a mile from a highway and passengers are forced to walk along a path flanked with plain clothes men and soldiers. Street cars are not permitted to operate in the outer sections of the city and passengers from Merzem must walk or ride in carriages for a mile and a half and pass sentries on two bridges before they can avail themselves of a street car.

Before leaving the city Belgians are required to have their passports stamped by both Belgian and German officials who are constantly at work in various parts of the city handling the papers of crowds which file through lines of German soldiers standing on duty with fixed bayonets.

Letters From The Trenches

"NEATLY WIPED UP."

"I think we have really got their measure now and the end is only round the corner, but there is going to be plenty of hard fighting before we get there. The proportion of artillery is nothing like what it was, and incidents have happened of a sort that did not occur before, such as one reported the morning of the day before yesterday, when part of the German night attack got lost, and marched through our lines singing in fours, and ran up against the reserve when they were nicely through, and were neatly wiped up.

"I understand the units were completed and none went back. Our fellows closed up again as soon as the rear of the column was passed. I just hear from my confrere who has been up to-day, that we have gained about another mile or so, and got them opt of the position they were entrenched in.—Liverpool Officer to a friend.

FINEST TROOPS IN THE WORLD.

"Our artillery are great. They are grand. Their performances have made by blood thrill and have made me feel proud that I am an Englishman. Gunners and drivers were as cool as cucumbers under fire, and what execution they wrought. Some day I hope to be able to tell you about it—how they stood out as great soldiers, heroes every one. Good God, what a sight, and what a great day for them!

"From what I have actually seen in the war, there is no doubting the fact that the British trained troops are the finest in the world. Give us more of them. We are bound to win."—Sergeant A. J. Spicket, 9th Lancers, to Mr. Frank Goode, Glamorgan Farm School.

HOW GERMAN'S GET THEIR TRADE.

(From the American.)

When a German manufacturer got his eye on a market he would send down the biggest man he could spare from the business—if he could possibly manage it, he would go himself — to spend a year learning the ropes before he tried to do a dollar's worth of business. He went down with the fixed idea that the only way not to handle that market was his own way. He studied his customers' ways of doing business, and got it down pat to the smallest detail. If the customers were in the habit of paying in 90 days, he was on hand with his cost and accounting systems arranged to suit. If they wanted their pianos packed in tin-lined cases, he didn't use tarred paper. If they wanted skirts made with burlap neckbands and the tails dyed green, he was right there with the berries, and in a week he would have a consular report ready for Berlin on the success of green shirt-tails in the Chow-Foo district. That's where he cut rings around the British. He was for giving them what they wanted, and there was nothing too small for him to see when he was after business.

Will You Help The Hospital for Sick Children, the Great Provincial Charity?

Dear Mr. Editor:—

Thanks for the privilege of appealing through your columns on behalf of the Hospital for Sick Children. The Hospital takes care of sick and deformed children, not only in Toronto, but in the Province, outside of the city.

This coming year, of all the years in the Hospital's history, has a more serious outlook, as regards funds for maintenance, than any year that has passed its calendar.

So many calls are being made on the purses of the generous people of Toronto and Ontario, to help the soldiers of the Empire, that as I make my daily rounds through the wards of the Hospital, and see the suffering children in our cots and beds, the thought strikes me as to whether the people will as of old, with all the demands made upon them, answer our appeal and help to maintain the institution that is fighting in the never-ending battle with disease and death, in its endeavor to save the stricken little ones in the child-life of Ontario.

Last year there were 294 in-patients from 210 places outside of Toronto, and in the past twenty years there have been 7,000 from places in the Province other than Toronto.

It costs us $2.34 per patient per day for maintenance. The municipalities pay for patients $1 per patient per day; the Government allows 20 cents per patient per day; so, deducting $1.20 from $2.34, it leaves the Hospital with $1.14 to pay out of subscriptions it receives from the people of Toronto and the Province. The shortage last year ran to $16,000.

Since 1880 about 1,000 cases of club feet, bow legs and knock knees have been treated, and of these 900 had perfect correction. Nearly all these were from different parts of the Province outside of the city of Toronto.

Remember that every year is a war year with the Hospital; every day is a day of battle; every minute the Hospital needs money, not for its own sake, but for the children's sake. The Hospital is the battle-ground where the Armies of Life have grappled with the Hosts of Death, and the life or death of thousands of little children is the issue that is settled in that war. Will you let the Hospital be driven from the field of its battle to save the lives of little children for the lack of money you can give and never miss?

Every dollar may prove itself a dreadnought in the battle against death, a flagship in the fleet that fights for the lives of little children.

Remember that the door of the Hospital's mercy is the door of hope, and your dollar, kind reader, may be the key that opens the door for somebody's child.

Will you send a dollar, or more if you can, to Douglas Davidson, Secretary-Treasurer, or

J. ROSS ROBERTSON,
Chairman of the Board of Trustees, Toronto.

DAD'S TENDER TIME.

Sometimes my father says to me,
Nights when my problems seem to be Too hard almost for me to do
And I'm a long time gettin' through,
And I don't get my answers right,
Until it's very late at night:
"It doesn't seem to me you've got
Your whole mind on the problems.
Not
That I mean to scold you a bit,
But you can't make your answers fit
Unless you shut each eye and ear
To everything, and see and hear
Nothing at all, and keep right at
Your problems and attend to that."

That's what he says night-time to me;
Then turns around to ma, and she
Asks him something about the war,
And why 'twas started, and what for;
And then my father stirs his hair
And sort of fidgets in his chair
And then he talks of wars and guns,
And of the orphaned little ones,
And of cathedrals tumbled down,
And of each ruined little town;
And tells of trampled fields of wheat,
And folks who've not a thing to eat—
And not an answer comes out right
When father talks that way at night.

Then he jumps up and says "Gee whiz!
Will you just look what time it is!"
And then he comes across to me
And looks down at my work, to see
If have got my problems done;
And sees I haven't, not a one,
And then he hugs me to him tight,
And says, "Now let us do them right!"
And he explains the way to do,
And pretty soon I'm done and through.
When father talks of war and guns
And of the orphaned little ones
Away off there beyond the sea
He's awful loving like with me.

PROTECTION FOR MAPLE PRODUCTS

On January 1st, 1915, legislation will come in force protecting the maple syrup and sugar industry in Canada. For some years Canadian maple growers, led by John H. Grimm of Montreal, have been contending that the word "maple" should not be permitted on any package the contents of which are not pure maple products. The amendment giving this desired legislation, reads as follows:

"The word 'maple' shall not be used either alone or in combination with any other word or words on the label, or other mark, illustration, or device on a package containing any article of food or on any article of food itself which is or which resembles maple sugar or maple syrup, and no package containing any article of food or any article of food itself, which is not pure maple sugar or pure maple syrup, shall be labelled or marked in such a manner as is likely to make persons believe it is maple sugar or maple syrup which is not pure maple sugar or pure maple syrup, and any article of food labelled or marked in violation of this subsection shall be deemed to be adulterated within the meaning of this Act."

Penalties are provided. Adulteration injurious to health will incur a penalty not exceeding $500 and costs, or six months' imprisonment, or both. When adulteration is not injurious to health the penalty is $200 and costs, or three months' imprisonment.

KIDNEY TROUBLE AFFECTED HIS SPINE

Suffered For Forty Years Until He Used "Fruit-a-tives"

BRONTE, ONT., OCT. 31st, 1913.

"For about forty years, I was troubled with Lame Back brought on by Kidney and Bladder Trouble. I was never confined to my bed with the trouble, but it affected my spine and I had to rest for a time. I took advertised remedies which never did me any good. Then I saw "Fruit-a-tives" advertised and decided to try them. They did me more good than any other remedy.

My son suffered from the same trouble and frequently had to leave off working, but "Fruit-a-tives" remedied it for him. I would strongly advise anyone suffering from Kidney and Bladder Trouble to use "Fruit-a-tives".

Accurate.

The Advertising Men's League of New York has a Vigilance Committee, whose duty it is to ferret out and hunt down fraudulent advertisers. It has been found that the most successful advertisers are the truthful ones; that sharpers and knaves are not permanently successful.

Look at the advertising columns for yourself. You will find that every article advertised regularly and consistently over a period of years is an article of real merit. The fact that the advertising is continuous is proof of this.

NO CHANGE ON THE WEST FRONT

GERMANS REMAIN ON THE DEFENSIVE

THE GERMAN FORCES ARE COMPLETELY SEPARATED FROM THE AUSTRIAN ARMY

Cracow is Threatened and its Fall Means the Russian Invasion of Silesia---German Army Corps From Breslau Have Cut Their Way Through to Main Body.

RUSSIANS RETAKE MANY POINTS

Special to The Examiner:

PETROGRAD, November 30. — The advance of one and a half German army corps under General Francois from Breslau and Wielun, via Piotrkow, seems to have resulted in this column escaping capture, and by cutting away from Przesiny and Koluski northeast through the Russian forces joining the German main army in the neighbourhod of Lentchitza. The Russians from the Cracow front, moving north, cut the communications of this column, but the Russians from the Warsaw front did not envelope General Francois' force, which after a desperate dash, reached safety.

The German line, after two weeks of fighting, extends from Miava, Piotsk, Gostynin, Kutno and Lentchitza to a point west of Lodz. The Russians have retaken Piotrkow, Brzesiny, Glowno and Gumbinen. It is not clear what permanent strategic advantage the Germans expect from the greatest invasion of Poland, unless it is to push the attack on Warsaw, which seemingly is not attainable. In the meantime the complete separation of the German from the Austrian armies appears to have weakened the latter. The Russians having forced the passage of the Raba river and taken Berchia, are approaching Cracow from the south. If Cracow falls the apparently unprotected condition of the Austro-German frontier would expose industrial Silesia to a Russian invasion. Hence the present German attempt seems to be a makeshift, because Russia appears to be able to push the campaign on Cracow and at the same time have sufficient forces to meet the Germans in the north.

PETROGRAD, November 30.—Princess Shakhovskaya, the first woman aviator to be commissioned for war service by the Russian government, left for the front to-day. She will join the northwestern army, operating in East Prussia. Princess Shakhovskaya applied for a commission as an army aviator earlier in the war, but was refused because it was feared that if she were captured by the Germans they might decide she was not entitled to the rights of a soldier, and orders be issued that she be shot as a spy.

SALISBURY PLAINS, Eng., Nov. 30.—General orders at the camp of the First Canadian Contingent say that officers and men marrying since their enlistment or commissioning, need not apply for separation allowances, as they will not be granted.

AUSTRIA'S HEAVY LOSSES

PETROGRAD, November 30, via London. — On the basis of the reports received in Petrograd from Hungary it is stated here to-day that Austro-Hungarian casualties to date amount to 19,000 officers and 900,000 men.

Six hundred prisoners, seven guns and many wounded fell into Russian hands in yesterday's fighting to the west of Lowicz where the Russians took ten miles of German trenches between Glovno and Sobota, according to information received to-day through trustworthy sources.

TRANSFERRED TO CYCLISTS

Three Peterboro' Boys Will Ride Gasoline Bikes at The Front

Pte Percy Gray of the 57th Regiment, who has been in Kingston with the 21st Battalion, is in the city visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Gray, Brock Street, having obtained several days' leave of absence. Pte. Gray, with Privates Jarrett and McNab ,also of Peterborough, have been transferred from the 21st Battalion to the Cyclist Corps. The Kingston platoon of motor cyclists will go to Toronto on Wednesday and will take up quarters at the Exhibition grounds. Pte. Gray returns to Kingston to-morrow.

Rev. Mr. Connors Said Farewell

Yesterday morning the Rev. F. A. Connors, Pastor of the Park Street Church, preached his farewell sermon to the congregation. There was a good attendance and the Pastor took for his subject "Mutual Helpfulness." His sermon was a scholarly one and made a deep impression on the congregation. His subject in the morning was "The More Abundant Life," and on this theme he also preached an inspiring sermon. At this service Miss Lighthart rendered a very acceptable solo.

To-night a farewell meeting will be held, at which Mr. J. H. Burnham and the Rev. R. G. Peever and others will speak.

New Church Will Be Opened Dec. 6

The Church of the Immaculate Conception will be dedicated and formally opened on Sunday, December 6 by Bishop O'Brien who will celebrate Pontificial High mass at 10.30 a.m. Bishop Scollard of North Bay and former priest of St. Peter's Cathedral will preach. Rev. Father McShane, pastor of St. Patrick's church, Montreal, will preach in the evening. Father McShane was a classmate of Bishop O'Brien. He is an able speaker and has charge of one of the most important parishes in Montreal.

BLACKLISTER FINED $10

A local blacklister, only 22 years of age, came before Magistrate Dumble this morning charged with being drunk while on the blacklist. He pleaded guilty and was fined $10. In the witness box he said he got his liquor from Frank Burke, a local man. It is likely that a charge will be preferred against Burke, although the accused this morning said that he could not swear that Burke knew he was on the blacklist when he gave him the liquor.

DEPUTATION WILL GO TO TORONTO

A deputation comprising His Worship Mayor Buller, Aldermen Johnston, Duncan, Green, City Solicitor Gordon and City Engineer Parsons, left for Toronto this afternoon, where they will wait upon the Provincial Board of Health in reference to the agitation that has been set up by a number of residents of Otonabee and North Monaghan respecting the location of the outfall sewer in the township. The residents have protested against the proposed location of the sewerage disposal plant claiming that it will be a detriment to surrounding properties.

WILL THERE BE AN ELECTION IN THE SPRING ?

Indications Point to The Government Going to The Country Early Next Year.

PREPARING LITERATURE

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 30.—The latest politicel gossip is that the government is quietly laying plans for a Federal election early in the spring. From present intentions, so far as the government is concerned, a short session will be held, starting January, and the election will take place probably at the end of February. Already preparations are going forward for the contest. The city from day to day is full of Conservative members and candidates who are continually in conference with those members of the government to whom are entrusted the task of organizing and winning elections.

Campaign literature is being assiduously prepared at the government bureau and a tactfully prepared pamphlet purporting to answer the question, "why three dreadnoughts" has already been extensively circulated. In, addition orders have been given for preparations of cartoons calculated to appeal to the electorate on behalf of the government. Organization preparations are also going forward at various centres.

Strange Actions Led To Arrest

The strange actions on Sunday evening of a Bolivar street woman, resulted in her apprehension by Detective Meagher. Investigation at the police station showed that the woman's mind was temporary unbalanced. Her actions on George street during the early part of the evening were sufficient to arouse the curiosity of about two hundred people including several well known George street business men. They followed the unfortunate woman around the city until her apprehension was effected by the police. She will be detained until further steps are taken respecting her disposition. The woman made strenuous attempts to resist arrest, threatening the police with violence.

Golf Club Gave $25

The shareholders of the Golf and Country Club made a donation of $25 to the Patriotic Fund at their annual meeting on Saturday. The directors elected were: Hazen Ritchie, D. Mulholland, P. Campbell, T. F. Matthews. A dividend of 5 per cent. was declared. The year has been most successful. Additions and improvements have been made to the club house, and the Peterborough course is now one of the best nine holes in the country. A meeting of the players will be held later to appoint a captain and other officers.

ARE ANXIOUS TO GET TO THE FRONT AT ONCE

Veterans in the Canadian Contingent Are Becoming Weary of the Long Delay in Salisbury Camp

SOME ARE TRANSFERRING

OTTAWA, Nov. 30.—Letters received here from the veterans of the South African and other wars with the First Canadian Contingent at Salisbury Plain, indicate that they are becoming weary of the long delay in getting to the front. One of the South African veterans who travelled to Valcartier at his own expense to enlist with the Strathcona Horse, writes that he did not do this with the idea of spending several months in a barracks, and that if the Canadian contingent does not go forward soon he proposes to apply for a transfer to a regular British cavalry regiment now at the front.

Firemen Drill For Two Reasons

This morning from 7 o'clock until 9 o'clock the local Fire Brigade was engaged in fire drill. The drill was a little longer than usual as the Chief is making an effort to get the horses of the Department accustomed to the asphalt pavement.

This afternoon the brigade was visited by Sergt. Dodds and received instruction as members of the Home Guard. So the routine of the firemen is no longer a monotonous one, on Mondays, at least. Drilling for fire fighting in the morning, and for foe fighting in the afternoon.

Presentation To Rev. Dean McColl

The regular meeting of the Ladies' Literary of St. Peter's T.A.S. was held on Friday evening, and a very pleasant evening was spent by those present. An interesting paper on France and Russia was read by Mrs. Bruce Law, in which she cleverly dealt with the respective location, customs and languages of the two countries now so much before the public.

A splendid musical programme was rendered, the following taking part: Miss Simons, Miss Crough and Messrs. Legendre and Picard, the accompanists for the evening being Misses Doherty and Pierce.

The evening was brought to a close with a very pleasing presentation to the Very Rev. Dean McColl who for five years has been Hon. Pres. of the Society. The address, read by Mrs. L. B. Treacy, was accompanied by a beautiful leather chair, the gift of the ladies. The Rev. Dean spoke feelingly at the conclusion, thanking the ladies for their gift and also for their co-operation in the past and extending his good wishes for the future welfare of this flourishing society.

God Save the King.

"The Final Triumph Will Be Ours"

"This is a War For Humanity" General Joffre Tells Special Correspondent---France Will do Her Duty to The Absolute and Until Final Success Crowns Her Efforts.

(By Wm. Philip Simms, copyright 1914, by the United Press)

Examiner Special:

MEAUX, by auto to Paris, France, November 30.—"General Joffre, commander in chief of the French army, received me with other correspondents of the neutral countries appointed to make the tour of the battle front, at the city hall here to-day. He made a special trip from his headquarters for that purpose and in an interview stated the cause of France for the neutral countries of the world.

" 'France did not desire this war," the commander of the French army said. 'It was thrust upon her, but now the nation is prepared for any sacrifice and she will do her duty to the absolute end until final success crowns her efforts.'

"General Joffre said we had undoubtedly been able to observe the excellent spirit of the troops at the front.

" 'I hope that you have been able to see all that you wished to see of our fighting forces,' he added and then he shook hands with us bidding us good bye. He repeated, 'This is a war for humanity, and the final triumph will be ours.'

"General Joffre is a man of action and not of words. His departure from headquarters to meet the party of newspaper men from neutral countries is therefore unprecedented. With occasional lightning like flashes, especially when he spoke of the triumph that must come to France, the eyes of General Joffre recalled those of Mark Twain in their kindly depths being stirred by passing emotion. General Joffre was clad in an extremely plain, simple uniform. He wore no decorations or ribbons denoting honours which have been accorded him, although he is the possessor of the most important decorations. The French army commander has an artistic hand. His fingers are tapering; his nails are well kept, but the commander in chief's duties at the front had prevented him from shaving for a couple of days. General Joffre received us cordially with dignity as befits his manner but without the slightest pose; he shook hands with a firm grasp, looking each one squarely in the ye. His gaze became searching. He talked directly at each one of his interviewers."

PARIS, November 30.—No changes along the battle line in Belgium or France were reported in to-day's official communique. It was declared that the Germans nearly everywhere remain on the defensive. Sporadic attacks only are the rule. "The enemy continues on the defensive in Belgium; we hold all our positions, and the enemy's cannon fire continues to slacken," the statement declares. "Attacks upon Bagatelle in the Argonne have been repulsed. Soissons has been subjected to fire from the enemy's artillery.

"On the Meuse heights a heavy fog prevails. The forest of Apremont was bombarded by the enemy without success and the situation in the Woevre district is unchanged."

MADRID, Spain, November 30.—News of fresh outrages committed by the Germans on Spanish subjects in Belgium and Germany, will be the subject of a new interpellation in Parliament. It is plain that the news of the outrages printed recently have influenced public opinion in Spain against Germany, notwithstanding the fact that at the beginning of the hostilities there was a strong pro-German sentiment in certain elements of the population.

THE HIGHWAYS BILL AGAIN.

One cannot accuse the Mail and Empire and a few other journals of lack of enterprise. It and they seize nearly every occasion to make controversal subjects a partisan issue. The "Laurier" senators come in for a new wigging for having killed the Borden Government's Highways Bill. They didn't think "their action would bring upon them such general reprobation." The senators did not reject the principle of Dominion aid to highways; it objected to giving the Borden, or any other government, power to distribute the money voted by Parliament through order-in-council, in a way to make its allocation a matter of partizan profit. If the vetoed bill had been framed to provide for a fair and non-partisan distribution of the highway fund as was strongly urged, it would have been law to-day. The Opposition minority in Parliament and their fellow-legislators in the Senate were anxious that the money voted for highways should be spent on highways and not be made subservient, even incidentally, to the promotion of party profit.

THE LATEST OUTRAGE.

No new manifestation of German inhumanity will astonish the world or discredit past achievements in this regard. One would have thought that the German appetite for barbarity would have been satiated with the ruin wrought in Belgium—her neutrality outraged; her fair fields and cities and homes laid waste; her helpless and outraged people—men, women and children—robbed of even the food that keeps soul and body together. The latest exhibition of fiendishness is that Germany, which has seized Belgium and impudently assumes administrative rights, has imposed a tax of $2.40 per hundred pounds on food poured by United States liberality into Belgium. Nothing more inhuman and heartless could be imagined. If moral obligation counted for anything in Germany's moral code, one would expect Germany to be feeding the starving Belgians out of her own stores instead of practically stealing the supplies sent by a neutral nation. The United States has maintained a strictly neutral attitude; but one would think that this last act of Germany in taxing the relief foods she sends so generously, would greatly strain neutrality, or at least arouse vigourous protest. It might well be the last straw upon the camel's back burden of neutrality.

CANADA'S AMONG THE GREATEST BANKS.

While we Canadians are ready to join the world in applauding the greatness of Great Britain's financial resources and popular wealth, Canada is not to be despised. We have lately felt that we hadn't much money; it has been very hard to get. We, however in Canada, don't make so bad a showing in money matters. Last May the London Statist the leading financial paper of the world, whose editor, Sir George Paish, has resigned that position to become the financial adviser of the British Government, published an article on "World Finance." In this article the Statist printed a list of the largest banks in the world, showing that there are only thirty-four banks in the world, with deposits in excess of 150 millions of dollars. Of these banks thirteen are in the British Empire; nine of them in Great Britain and two in Canada. The banks in Canada with deposits over 150 millions at the end of 1913, are the Canadian Bank of Commerce with deposits at that date of $192,579,468, and the Bank of Montreal, with deposits of $189,635,000; both with larger deposits than the Imperial Bank of Germany, the bank through which the German Government is financing the present war.

It will be a pleasant surprise to most of us Canadians to know that we have in Canada two of the twenty-five largest banks of the world. We have two of them strongly represented in Peterborough. We should draw upon them and our seven other banks to the end of making good the slogan—

$20,000 (OR MORE) FOR THE PATRIOTIC FUND.

THE SITUATION ENCOURAGING.

The progress of the war is slow, but on the part of the Allies, irresistibly forward, like the onward grind of a glacier. In the western war-field the offensive of the Germans is perceptibly weakening in general, though there are outbreaks of the evidently desperate determination to reach and seize the northern coast of France. With this weakening comes renewed force of resistance on the part of the Allies. While the resources of Germany in men and material are diminishing, Great Britain, especially, exhibits new strength. Her marvellous financial resources, the most important element in military success, were recently demonstrated by the inexhaustible avidity, so to speak, with which her immense war loan of 1750 millions was seized. This fact, while not a surprise, is a satisfaction, since it shows that with the British sinews of war strong and unimpaired, Germany and Austria must day by day yield before the steady pressure of the Allies. Everybody but the Kaiser, blinded by his mad self-sufficiency, can see that the game is going against Germany. The improvement of the New York financial situation is doubtless due to the recent evidences of Britain's financial strength, and of her undoubted ability to keep the ways of commerce clear and permit the world outside the enemies of Great Britain, to do "business as usual." In Canada itself, commercial and industrial conditions show improvement. Incidents of the war situation are sometimes depressing, but the general situation is encouraging. It may be a long way to Berlin, but the battle front is set that way and shows no shadow of turning. We are all encouraged to keep on helping the fight, not only by supplying men and the munitions of war; but keeping up our end in the way of subsidiary contribution. We must be prepared to harvest the sad crop of war as it affects us at home, to help succour those made directly or indirectly, objects of our beneficence, through the operation of the war. Our men are keeping the ranks of Canada's contingents full, our women are tirelessly knitting to supply comforts and clothing for our soldier boys, and we home stayers have placed upon us the responsibility of helping provide for the dependents of those who are fighting our battles. We are faced with the responsibility of doing our duty in part—by realising the slogan—

$20,000 (OR MORE) FOR THE PATRIOTIC FUND.

FUTILITY OF INTERVENTION.

The same press agency that so industriously sowed the seed of culture, bogus victories and other weird things is now engaged in mysteriously hinting at peace. . . . . Peace hints—for that's all they are—at this time are absolutely futile. France, Russia and England have to be reckoned with first in any negotiations, and, desirable as peace admittedly is, those three countries, for many reasons well understood, have made no sign of being anxious for intervention of any kind.—New York Evening Telegram.

BAR-ROOM PUPILS.

Some of our Canadian soldier boys are coming home in disgrace. They would probably have given a good account of themselves if they had faced the foreign foe. They were caught in the ambush of a liquor traffic, licensed by the laws of the nation which they were ready to risk their lives to protect. It is a sad commentary upon the weakness of humanity, the folly of legislators, and the heartless, degrading treason to the welfare of the community, which the liquor traffic embodies.

As usual the traffic has ready a lying explanation of the mischief it has caused. We are told that the enforced restraint of teetotal camps led to a reaction when the restrained young men were brought into contact with temptation. The old sophistry of course ignores the two facts of a depraved appetite, and a supply of liquor, and it keeps out of sight the facts that some barrooms created the appetite to which the other bar-rooms ministered, and that bar-rooms, not absence of bar-rooms, was the sole and effective cause of the discreditable disaster.

English barrooms are a curse to the people, and ought not to be tolerated; but English bar-rooms would never have tempted Canadian boys to drunkenness if these boys had not been previously trained in Canadian drinking practices.

We do not excuse the English publican. We do not excuse the English law-makers. We do not excuse the military authorities who failed to exercise their bar-room closing power. We do not excuse the folly of the would-be friends who treated the boys and made them drunk. We do not excuse the boys for their folly, their neglect of official warning, and their forgetting all that was due themselves.

All this blame, however, does not palliate the offence of the Canadian Government and the Canadian people, who authorized and maintained the bar-rooms that taught the boys the drink habit, and so disgraced this country, and weakened the Empire's defence.

The liquor traffic is Great Britain's greatest enemy. The liquor traffic must be destroyed.—Pioneer.

THE LEINSTHERS

(Being a monologue by Private Owen Roe McCarthy of the King's Royal Munster Fusiliers.)

NOTE.—There is a strong but friendly rivalry between the Irish regiments at the front. The Irish papers are full of the exploits of the Leinster Regiment this week. It is said that one one occasion they came to the aid of the Munsters just in the nick of time.

Now, iv al the most bouldagious, blandandherin' and contragious,
Pugnacious lot iv Irishmin that ever bint the knee,
Commind me to the Leinsther rogues that roam the glins umbrageous
From Wexford to Kilkinny, and from Dublin to Lough Ree;
They wor surely sint to plague us, for where'er the Munsthers be
Those Leinsthers are rampagious till they ferret out our min!
With a most ungodly din
They come howlin' "Laive us in!
Or we'll batther all the windows and we'll dishlocate the shelves!
Laive us in!
Laive us in!
Ye're the manest set iv Irishmin that ever served the King!
Do yez want the whole divarshun to yeerselves?"

We wor down at Martin Hogan's (for a dhrop o' ginger beer),
We wor singin' songs and dancin' Irish reels;
Min from Cork, and roarin' Teppa, min from Lim-rick o' the Ships,
And Kerry min with flyin' toes and heels!
Eery man iv us from Munsther, and without a frown of care—
Whin some rascal sowld the pass on us an' in!
For the Leinsthers came a-rushin' and a-rampin' on us there.
And we heard their gentle chorus—"Laive us in
Laive us in!
Laive us in!
Or we'll batther down the windows and we'll dishlocate the shelves,
Ye're the manest set iv Irishmin that ever served the King!
Do yez want the whole divarshun to yeerselves?
(Is there no wan has a mouth on, but yeerselves?)"

'Twas the night before the battle, and our chaplain with us, too;
The boys wor all attindin' to their sowls;
Examinin' their consciences—the prospects lookin' blue—
They wor kneelin' in close ordher, sad as owls;
They hadn't prayed a mouthful whin the Leinsthers followed in,
And tip-toed up by twinties and by twelves.
Then, kneelin' down beside them, said, "Ye cruel Munsther min,
Is there no wan that's a sinner but yeerselves?
Laive us in!
Laive us in!
Ye're the hardest-hearted Irishmin that ever served the King!
(Do yez want to hould the heavens for yeerselves?")

We wor three days in the thrinches—left to cover the retreat—
And the German gunners nicely got our range;
Half the boys wor dead or wounded, and the rest wor nearly beat,
We wor prayin' for relief or for a change!
Then suddenly we shouted and we laughed aloud for joy,
For we heard a noise that made our heads go spin!
It was the Leinsthers cheerin'—och, how welcome was their cry—
"O ye Munsthers, O ye monsthers, laive us in!
Laive us in!
Laive us in!
Or we'll batther down the windows and we'll dishlocate the shelves!
Ye're the manest lot of Irishmin that ever served the King!
Do yez want the whole divarshun to yeerselves?
(Do yez want the Ger-rman Ar-rmy for yeerselves?")

So iv all the most contragious, philandherin' and courageous,
Bouldacious set iv Irishmen that ever bint the knee,
Commind me to the Leinsther lads that roam the glins umbrageous
From Wexford to Kilkinny, and from Dublin to Lough Ree!
They wor surely sint to plague us, for where'er the Munsthers be
Those Leinsthers are rampagious till they find us out ag'in,
With a most outrageous din
They come shoutin'—"Laive us in!
Or we'll batther all the windows and we'll dishlocate the shelves!
Laive us in!
Laive us in!
Do yez want the whole divarshun to yeerselves?
(Do yez want the Ger-rman Ar-rmy for yeerselves?")

THE MAN FROM ABERDEEN

A Story for St. Andrew's Day

He was a hard-faced Scot with a grizzled moustache, and he was going to London for the first time in his life. It was a great occasion for him. A top hat of venerable age and somewhat long in the fur proclaimed him a mourner. It was carefully placed in the rack and wedged in by a brown paper parcel. He was on his way to a funeral, and his deportment alternated between a suitable gravity and the natural emotions of an untravelled mind.

He gloomed for half an hour over his foolishness in having taken out an ordinary ticket before discovering there was a cheap excursion. He computed he had lost a good many shillings by the trasaction. The joy of seeing a new station, one he had never seen before—Kilmarnock—uplifted him for the moment. But a glance at his "blacks" restored his funeral feelings. Afterwards he gave himself sternly to sumber, intermitted by drowsy questions relating to the scenery.

Towards the afternoon he meandered heavily into the corridor, where he consumed much bread and cheese. Thereafter acrid smoke floating in blue clouds into the compartment advertised the virtues of his tobacco.

He returned refreshed, and even with a wintry gleam of joviality. A boyish gunner of the R.F.A. had come in at Trent.

"There's a wheen o' you fullows up by Cromarty," he said with a sharp Aberdonian twang like a touch of east wind.

The startled lad, hearing a foreign tongue, smiled with English affability a pleasant "Yes."

Whetted by this conversational success the Aberdeen man expanded into sentences of fearful sound. Creases at length appeared on the forehead of the polite Sassenach, whose brain was visibly perspiring with the strain of grappling with linguistic obscurities.

The pressure was skilfully relieved by a kind-hearted Scots Guardsman, who chipped in across the carriage. His speech being a weird conglomerate of Yorkshire and Yankeeism, he effectively enfiladed the Man from Aberdeen, who after strenuous cogitation reached the startling fact that the private in the uniform of a crack Scottish corps was a native of Leeds, a reservist, and a Canadian on his way to Aldershot.

For an hour or more the talk in the coach bristled with militarisms. The Aberdonian yearned for gory details. He spoke of holding trenches and of charging crags and precipices. He had gruesome anecdotes culled from the weekly press. He went back to the Boer war and expounded the inner strategy of that business with the finality of an Intelligence Department. He had even disinterred the heroism of Dargai.

Finally, with a beaming face, he bent over to the Canadian, and in a voice hoarse with earnestness he began: "Now I suppose you chaps'll ycase the biggest Wull ye no', now?" It was a bigger place."

...J. S. T., in Scottish American.

He smacked his lips with a bloodthirsty relish and waited expectant.

The Guardsman smiled gently and lit a cigarette, letting out a mighty puff. He likewise was baffled.

The mourner stroked his knees, recollected his position, grew solemn, and withdrew into himself with a heavy sigh. He did not speak again till 8.15, when he looked out at the lights and asked with an incredulous glance—

"Whit, is this London?"

A pause, and he added: "I thocht

TURNKEY MURDERED

Two Indians at Pembroke Kill Jail Official and Make Their Escape

ANOTHER WOUNDED

PEMBROKE, Nov. 30.—Under circumstances of the utmost brutality, Turnkey James Conford was yesterday evening battered to death in the local jail by two renegade Indians, and his assistant, Jailer William Brown, subjected to a beating that has left him at death's door. The assailants escaped into the open and are at large, while armed posses and volunteer searchers are scouring the countryside for them. At 5.45 an armed party left on a special G. T. R. train for Golden Lake hoping to head off the fugitives from reaching the Indian reserve maintained in that district. The town and surrounding neighborhood are stirred into a fever of excitement, and every available man is being pressed into the search. Feeling rills very high because of the obvious treachery of the attack, and the gruesome nature of the beating administered.

Immediately after the supper hour when the two Indians, Peter White Duck and Anthony Jocko, were being conducted into the cell, and when the turnkey was making affairs comfortable for the night, the two sprang on him from behind. From some unknown source they had acquired a heavy club fashioned from a piece of boarding, and with this they proceeded to beat him to death.

Hearing the noise of the conflict Jailer Brown ran in but by this time Conford was dead, and the two prisoners sprang at him. Before he could lift a hand he was felled with a blow which fractured his skull. The Indians then dragged the body of the murdered man to a lavatory at the end of the corridor and escaped into the open air.

The only person who saw their escape was a little girl who reported seeing two men running across the fields towards Golden Lake. The alarm was quickly spread and the search began.

White Duck and Jocko were recently remanded on a charge of stealing from G.T.R. freight cars at Golden Lake, and had been in the jail nearly two weeks. To all intents they were half-breed men.

The turnkey had no opportunity of defending himself beyond wielding his heavy bunch of keys. Jocko has appeared on a similar charge in the past.

The Pembroke jail is a strong, well-built structure, capable of containing 36 men. At the present time there are a dozen prisoners there.

Since the fugitives are understood to have run in a southerly direction it is feared that they may reach the Golden Lake reserve and persuade some of their friends to conceal them. An armed guard will patrol this place until word of the murderers is received.

Sheriff Morris has assumed charge of operations, and every road from the town is placed under surveillance.

It is understood that King George has approved the proposal to utilize Dublin Castle as an emergency hospital for wounded soldiers.

The Australian Minister of Trade of the Commonwealth announces that it has been decided to permit exports of wool to Canada and Japan.

The inquest into the deaths of the 560 men who went down with the battleship Bulwark, was delayed yesterday until Dec. 16, pending the Admiralty enquiry.

WHEN RHEUMATISM STRIKES THE HEART IT KILLS—"NERVILINE" THE CURE

Effect of Nerviline on Chronic Cases is Almost Magical

Exposure to wet or cold is apt to bring on an attack.

The muscles stiffen, the joints swell, and exertion brings on excruciating twinges.

Often the pain shifts from one part to another, and this is dangerous, as the heart is apt to be attacked. Death as a rule follows a heart attack.

The pain of rheumatism is quickly rubbed away with Nerviline.

This is a swift, lasting, and safe way to cure rheumatism. You can depend on Nerviline. It has the power, the penetrating force, the control over pain that is so essential to a rheumatic remedy.

Lots of testimony to prove Nerviline's certainty to cure.

The following letter is from Mr. E. G. Sautter, Port of Spain, Trinidad: "Last year I was severely troubled with rheumatism. I had it in my arms, shoulders and knees. The pain was at times excruciating, and laid me up so that I couldn't work. I went to Smith Bros.' Drug Store and was advised by the manager to use 'Nerviline.' That was excellent advice. I used Nerviline as directed and was cured, completely cured of every trace of my old enemy."

Once you use Nerviline you'll realize it's different from all the others—that it contains something that gets right "at" the pain the minute you rub it on. The large 50 cent family size is the most economical—get it to-day, or else the 25 cent trial size. Sold by dealers everywhere, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

Storms of Early December Will Be Attended By High Temperature

Absence of Venus Period Hints at Mild and Stormy Conditions

INCHES' PREDICTIONS

A regular storm period having its centre on November the 30th, will come to its culmination stages on the 1st, 2nd and 3rd. Moon will be full on the 2nd and at greatest north declination on the 3rd. The centre of the Mars period falls on the 4th. The storms of this period will, most likely, be attended by a wave of unusually high temperature for December, as atmospheric tides will flow northward from equatorial regions. The Mars influence is also decidedly electrical in its tendency. The Mercury period will add its perturbing power at this time, so that, altogether, we may reasonably look for some very marked storms or other phenomena out of the normal course. The same general character of weather that may have prevailed in November, will be strikingly prolonged and emphasized at this period; if it has been wild and wintery, prepare for the same, and worse, at this and other December periods. If it has been open, mild and spring-like, depend upon it, the same character of weather will, for the most part, prevail in December. We repeat that the Mars factor at this time is decidedly problematical. Last winter every indication pointed to rough and stormy conditions in December, but with reversed results. This December, the Venus period is absent, hinting at mild and normal weather; but Mars, Earth, Mercury and Vulcan may spring the opposite surprise upon us. Study and watch conditions in November, and expect, we repeat— to encounter through December the same general conditions, but to greater extremes. Whatever Mars incites is, as a rule intensified—often unseasonable and reversed as to sections and localities; for illustration, frosts and freezing in California last winter, with warm, open weather northward.

A reactionary storm period will develop and run its course on and touching the 5th, 6th and 7th. The reasonable outlook for this period is that rain, turning to heavy sleet and snow, will pass from west to east, and that cloudy, Mercurial, cold weather will continue for several days after the passage of the storms. Study your barometer closely, in connection with every storm period.

A regular storm period is central on the 12th, extending from the 10th to the 16th. This is another annual period of maximum magnetic and electric disturbance. Earth's north magnetic pole makes its greatest angle with the solar equator, hence a crisis of negative currents, an inrush of boreal, interstellar energy, and excess of winter storm and weather from the north polar directions. Navigators must count on exposure and danger on the north Atlantic and Pacific seas. Winter thunder and rain will be natural on and touching the 10th. Sleet and snow will follow, ending in high barometer and cold. Another group of storm areas will pass eastwardly over the country on and touching the 14th and 15th. This will prove one of the greatest sleet periods of the month. New moon on the 16th will prolong threatening conditions into the period next following.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 17th, 18th and 19th. If we are to have heavy, boreal storms this month—things best to count on—expect such as this reactionary period. Wild, winter gales will rage out upon the Atlantic seas, and answering storms, followed by cold, will sweep oer lake, coasts and inland.

A regular storm period is coincident with the centre of the December solstice period, being central on the 23rd, and reaching from the 21st to the 26th. This period will bring very low barometer, and on and touching the 23rd and 24th the temperature will rise, and storms of rain, attended by winter lightning and thunder, will be probable. These storms will turn to sleet and snow about the 24th and 25th, bringing change to much colder, with snow in wide areas of the country for Christmas. In fact a general snow storm will sweep out to the northwest and spread far to the east and south by the close of this period, closely followed by high barometer and cold clearing weather.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 29th, 29th and 30th. On and touching these days, a reaction to warmer, with falling barometer, and more storms of rain, turning to snow, will cross the country from west to east. High barometer and change to colder will be in sight from the west as the month goes out.

A seismic period is central on the 2nd etxending from Nov. the 28th, to December 5th. The next seismic period is central on the 10th, covering the 13th to the 19th. Volcanic unrest will be coincident with earthquakes about this time some of them violent and dangerous. Seismic disturbances, central about January 2, 1915, will begin the last two or three days of 1914.

Gen. von Hindenburg Is Awarded the Field Marshal's Baton.

BERLIN, Nov. 30. — (Via The Hague to London.)—The field marshal's baton of the present war has been awarded to Gen. von Hindenburg. His chief of staff and collaborator, Gen. von Lunendorg, has been promoted to a lieutenant-generalship for his share in the successes. The award to Von Hindenburg comes with the great eastern battle still undecided, as a reward for the preliminary victories at Wieslikwok and Lods, which, it is said, have thrown the Russians on the defensive with a loss of 60,000 prisoners and 150 guns. It is taken here to indicate that the Emperor has confidence that Von Hindenburg will completely defeat the Russian army.

The honor of receiving the grand cross of the Iron Cross, the emblem given a field marshal, is the highest military distinction a German commander can receive, and was won by Von Hindenburg, as in the cases of the first Von Moltke, Crown Prince Friedrich and the Prussian "Red Prince" Friedrich Karl, on the field of battle.

Suez Canal in Danger. — The Turks claim to have reached the Canal at El Kantara, after defeating a British force twenty-five miles east of here. The success of the Turks has been minimized and there is reason to think that the Canal, from Port Said to Suez, is practically threatened. Italy is vitally interested in the Canal being kept open and may make an attack on it, the occasion for her joining the allies.

An Attack in Force is Expected In the Neighbourhood of Arras

Press Reports Speak of Renewed Fighting in That District—The Germans Are Massing Their Forces.

SITUATION SUMMARIZED

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Press reports from Belgium and France yesterday speak of renewed fighting around Arras, but conflict in respect to Ypres. Some say that the Germans are bent on renewing their attempts to take Ypres, and others that signs point to an abandonment of the Germans offensive, with the offensive of the allies already under way. The French official report (published to-day) tells of the capture of some German positions in the Ypres district.

The Daily News correspondent says that a most destructive bombardment of Arras, is under way, and that a great deal of hand-to-hand fighting has taken place in the vicinity.

The Boulogne correspondent of The Weekly Despatch, in a message published yesterday, says:—

"The Germans have concentrated 700,000 men in the neighborhood of Arras, where they are preparing for a determined effort to break through the allies' line.

"Heavy fighting has already begun."

The Daily News has a despatch from western Flanders, dated Sunday, saying that during the past few days the situation along the Yser and around Ypres has undergone a very significant change. The offensive has passed from the Kaiser's army to the allies. When and how the allies will make use of the new situation cannot at present be stated, Generals Joffre and French have a magnificent mobile force at their disposal ready for the day when the Germans will need some encouragement to leave Belgian soil.

The Daily Express has a "frontier despatch," saying that the allies are taking the offensive south of Ypres, occupying the German trenches. When the latter returned the advance of the allies was supported by a deadly artillery fire.

William Maxwell, in a despatch to The Telegraph, which is given prominence to-day, says in part: German prisoners declare their officers are under oath to drive the British from Ypres or die in the attempt. It is certain that another effort is about to be made to reach the coast, and that the point of attack has been decided upon. The Aisne is the barometer by which to gauge the weather in the western region of the war, and the quietness in the region presages the rushing of reinforcements and another attempt to break through elsewhere.

Heavy firing on the northwest coast of Belgium is reported from Oostburk, and there can be little doubt from the direction and nature of the cannonading that the British fleet has again been bombarding the defences erected by the Germans on the coast. Communication by rail between Holland and Antwerp has to-day been indefinitely suspended. Military movements of the utmost importance are in full swing on the south of the frontier, and frontier guards are exercising the greatest vigilance to prevent the leakage of news.

Small Indemnity For Luxemburg.

PARIS, Nov. 30. — Germany has paid an indemnity of 150,000 marks ($37,500) to the Duchy of Luxemburg, according to a despatch to The Temps from Bordeaux.

One of the first acts of Germany after the outbreak of the war was to invade, on August 2, the Duchy of Luxemburg. This action was criticised by the allies as a violation of the neutrality. The payment of an indemnity, if made as reported, presumably would be intended to reimburse Luxemburg for Germany's act.

A Seven Years' Pastorate Reviewed

The Congregation of St. Paul's Church Weighed in the Balance By its Pastor and Found Wanting

Before one of the largest congregations that usually assemble in St. Paul's church on Sunday mornings, the Rev. Robt. Pogue delivered a powerful and impassioned sermon from the text:

Amos vii., 2—"O Lord God forgive! I beseech thee; by whom shall Jacob arise? for he is small."

The sermon abounded with many heart searching thoughts, as the preacher reviewed his past seven years' ministry among the congregation. At times his audience was tensely rivetted on his words as he weighed them in the balance; and it was evident that heart-searchings were going on and resolutions formed that would result in good to St. Paul's. The main points in Mr. Pogue's address related to what he claimed to be the declension in the spiritual life of his congregation, a synopsis of which is as follows:

1. "The congregation was low in church attendance." In a membership of over one thousand, the average Sunday attendance was about one-half that number. Mr. Pogue could find no justifiable excuse for this manifest indifference on the part of the members of his congregation. They knew the command, as well as he did, "not to forget the assembling of themselves together." He denied that holidays or the weather were responsible; it was nothing but the lack of spirituality and love for the house of God and a drifting into the whirlpool of material pleasures and indifference. He bewailed the fact that it was the same in the old land and across the border. Go into a church in any of the large cities of America on a Sunday morning and it would be found almost deserted. He had aimed to make the preaching as vitally attractive to the unsaved as to the saved by expounding the truths of the Bible as he knew them, with all the earnestness of his love for the Saviour and his fellow man. He had systematically arranged the morning service so as to make it a direct address to believers, and in the evening a direct appeal to those in need of salvation. But their appreciation was was not manifested — the pews were poorly filled, and the spiritual life of the congregation was anything but encouraging.

2. The congregation had not co-operated with him." In his preaching of Christ to the building up of believers, he needed their help in saving men and winning souls to the Saviour. Unsaved men, women and children in his congregation were reaching out for encouragement and example, and spiritual strength and helps, but what were the members doing? How many could say they were giving any practical or prayerful help to him? No matter how forceful his own sermons and work might be, he must be assisted by the membership. He was grieved that so many refrained from attending the evening service, especially those members who were generally active and influential in church work and who were known to give strength and influence to the congregation. "The truths of the church have lost their apostolic viewpoint. The church is no longer a church militant. She is only a kind of home-guard. The church was a society for respectful entertainment together."

3. "We were low in spiritual religion." The weakness of our church in spiritual life was a cause of great and grave anxiety. They were not a Bible reading people, and there could be no spiritual life unless the Bible was constantly read and studied. "We spend more money on other books that were sapping the very spiritual life out of the people. He would forbid the reading of all books until one knew his own Bible from Genesis to Revelations." In his closing heart-searching appeal for more co-operation from his congregation, the preacher exclaimed: "Discouraged ministers—God help them!"

An appropriate hymn, "Revive Thy Work, Oh God" was given out and sung, and the large congregation filed out in silence. There was no handshaking, no social converse, no tears shed; but there were evidences that an impressive lesson had been given and that it had not fallen on stony ground.

Is it true that what was said of St. Paul's Presbyterian congregation could be said of all churches? If so, what is to be done if the churches are to fulfil their mission in the world? Multitudes in our churches to-day feel the same dissatisfaction at the materialism, the selfishness, and the absence of a sense of God. The most conservative apologists of our churches admit that somehow, somewhere, something is wrong. The Church wonders why so many thousands are leaving for Socialism and material pleasures when it only has the words of life. And to save itself it resorts to every kind of attraction to interest people. It shifts its activities into social, civic, economic and political topics, and proposes very pretty schemes for church unity, and some absurd plans for evangelizing the world. The church seems afraid to venture on the purely spiritual life which all people crave. It is as true of the church as of a man, "If one have not the spirit of Christ he is none of His." It is apparent that a new power in religion is needed to retard and return the tide that is setting away from the real God and the real truths. May it not be that what is crumbling away in religion is only the husk. All that is vital is imperishable. It is imperishable because it is immortal in itself, as a part of God's essential message to men: "Never in the world's history was so much that is vitally sound and wholesome, spiritually militant and irresistible, assembled beneath the banners of the cross. The readjustments which are taking place are in the line of progress, and are born of a demand for personal heart experience rather than a formal allegiance to creed or dogma."

Praise For The 21st Battalion

Kingston Standard—Speaking to The Standard, as he was boarding his private car at noon to-day, Hon. J. D. Hazen paid a compliment to the soldiers in this city. He said: "This morning I had the pleasure of visiting the quarters of the men and I was very pleased with all. The men are in splendid condition and I am sure that they cannot be surpassed by any in the country. Their quarters are the most sanitary that I have seen in military circles. The contingent that will leave this city for the front when they are called by the War Office will be a splendid one, and will keep Kingston to the front as a military city."

He spoke of the recruiting that was going on throughout the country, and said that especially in the West there was no difficulty in procuring soldiers. All Canadians seemed to realize the importance of the present war and were joining their colours rapidly.

Italian tests of ploughing with electric motors demonstrated that it cost about half as much as if horses had been used, and about two-thirds as much as steam ploughing.

CANADA'S NEED OUTLINED BY REV. R. G. PEEVER LAST NIGHT

A Greater, Stronger, Richer Spiritual Life, Not Territory or Population, Is Canada's Need.

The George Street Methodist Church was filled last night when the pastor, Rev. R. G. Peever gave an interesting patriotic sermon on "Canada's Need." The music, rendered very acceptably by the choir, was also of a patriotic nature. The pulpit was draped with a large Union Jack adding to the effect of the whole service.

Rev. Mr. Peever took for his text the 36th and 37th verses of the 8th Chapter of Mark, with the exception that the word nation was substituted for the word man in the original. His text read as follows:

"For what shall it profiteth a nation if he shall gain the whole world and lose its own soul?

"Or what shall a nation give in exchange for its soul?"

In opening Rev. Mr. Peever referred to a cartoon which he had seen. It depicted King Albert of Belgium in the midst of his ruined cities and the Kaiser towering above him with the taunt "See you have lost everything." The King's reply was characteristic of the hero, and in complete accord with his actions since the outbreak of the war. "It was: "Everything except my soul." So it was not military power but rather evil ideals that will slay a nation. What would it profit a nation if it added to its territory, territory at the sacrifice of the high ideals that alone made a nation and national well being? Although in a material sense, scattered and broken, the Belgian nation's influence on the world and standing in it, is now greater than ever before. The Belgian spirit, the Belgian life is now dominant the whole world over.

"Will Germany retain her life, her soul when she is weighed against her rank hypocrisy, her broken treaties, her cruelty and her devastation?" asked the speaker.

It would remain for future history to write whether she had lost the high ideals that make a nation great and strong, and whether she had not grasped at the shadow and lost the substance.

But what was Canada's need? Was there a possibility of us giving our souls in exchange for something that was not permanent, not eternal? We could not quarrel with Providence in regard to our area or acreage. It was true too that we had been blessed with great natural resources, and that one of the country's needs was capital. Capital was needed in the development of every young country. Canada was rich. Her bank account per capita was greater than that of any other nation under the sun. But it was not area, nor resources, nor capital, that was the growing need of this Dominion. Nor was it expansion of territory. Canadian people should not make the mistake of taking bigness for greatness. Population did not necessarily make a country great. There was China with its 400 million inhabitants and India with its 300 millions.

In fact the small nations had contributed most to the civilization and uplift of the world. They had contributed the best in science, literature, philosophy and religion.

Greatness did not consist of territory, population or even military power. Fixed ideals and ideas, equity and righteous institutions, the preservation of justice and Christian principles and our Sabbath — these things alone assured us a life in the history that is yet to be written.

Canada's need was a larger, a deeper, a stronger and richer spiritual life. We must put something into the name Canadian so that it will show the world we stand for, something, so that it will call up some qualities of nationhood just as the words Englishman, Scotchman and Irishman. The word Canadian should stand for brotherhood—brotherhood within the Empire, brotherhood within the nation and within the world.

Just as sure as God is God, and right is right, if the Canadian people hold to the principles of equity, justice and righteousness in all our institutions, keep and love the Sabbath, then our national life in the future will be assured.

ADMITS DAMAGE TO BRITISH NAVY SLIGHT

German Naval Critic Says That the Wearing-Down Process Has Accomplished Little.

HAS NO FALSE HOPES

LONDON, Nov. 30. — The Daily Telegraph special correspondent at Rotterdam reports:

"Captain Persius, naval critic of The Berliner Tageblatt, in an article on the German naval position, says: Many German hopes at the beginning of the war were built on somewhat fantastic foundations. The British fleet was under-estimated, and it was considered that there was absolutely no reason why Britain should continue to rule the seas. The results had forced Germany in a great measure to withdraw this view. Even the greatest British losses must not be regarded as decisive events, he suggests.

"An English newspaper statement that Britain is satisfied with what her fleet has done proves in a negative way that such complete satisfaction does not exist. He contradicts the claim that there is evidence that German submarines have been more successful than British submarines, but admits that after four months the German scheme for wearing down the British fleet has not yet succeeded. The psychological moment has not yet arrived for the use of German battleships and large cruisers.

"We must be careful," Captain Persius concludes, "not to buoy ourselves up with false estimates about the position of affairs. We must not forget that in spite of the glorious success of our submarines, there has not yet occurred any significant weakening of the sea power of Britain as the result of the war."

ST. JOHN'S JUNIOR AUXILIARY MISSION BAND

Sale of Fancy Articles in St. John's Guild Room

The Mission Band, which is affiliated to the Junior Women's Auxiliary of St. John's Anglican Church, held, on Saturday afternoon, between the hours of three and six, a sale of work, candied and other toothsome commodities, fancy goods, etc., in the Guild room adjoining the Sunday School house of St. John's church. The arrivals were invited to partake of afternoon tea, and, after this had been discussed, attention was directed by the fair juvenile vendors to their stalls—prettily decorated and illuminated by the way—where doll's clothes, fancy articles, candies and cakes were laid out in such manner as to conjure the exit of coin or paper from the beholders' pockets.

A musical programme was also given, reflecting much credit on the youthful aspirants.

The stalls were presided over by a number of fair juvenile ladies, who will be, in due course, some of our pretty girls of Peterborough.

Considerable credit is due to Mrs. Cameron, who is in charge of this Department of Church work, and the other grown-up ladies associated with her, who undertook the management.

The "Examiner man," who was present, expresses the hope that the venture has been the financial success it well deserves to be.—F. R.

Otonabee Council

The Otonabee Council met on Nov. 16th, when the following business was transacted:

On motion the Reeve was appointed to inspect R. Carey's application for a bonus for a wire fence.

A by-law was passed fixing the Collector's bonds at $8,000. The following accounts were passed:

R. Carey, gravel and damages, $4.36; Thos. Ryan, cutting brush, $6; W. T. Arnott, gravel, 50c.; Thomas McIntyre, bailiff fees, $4; D. Edwards, Clerk of Division Court, fees, $4; A. A. Anderson, jury selecting, $4; J. M. Drummon, $8; Wm. Wedlock, lumber, $54.27; W. J. Bullock, sheep killed by dogs, $3.34; Messrs. Anderson and Deyell, the committee appointed to deal with the matter of the proposed sewerage disposal plant in Riverview Park, Otonabee, reported that they, accompanied by James Thompson, M.P.P., for East Peterborough, went to the City of Toronto, and made objection to the Provincial Board of Health, respecting the establishment of a sewage disposal plant by the City of Peterborough in Otonabee.

Dr. McCullough, Chief Officer of Health for Ontario, agreed to take the matter up with the City Engineer, and assured them that the plans had not been approved by the Board. We also visited the disposal plant at Weston, and found it located at the foot of a hill, with not more than five feet of a fall from the outlet of the sewer to the discharge pipe that empties into the river, and is located on waste, marshy ground, well away from where any residences is likely to be erected. It is the opinion of your committee that such a plant in Riverview Park would be so objectionable that property values in the vicinity would be lowered, and that the placing of the same on a hill would require the pumping of the sewage of a large city up a hill would be a matter of great expense to the City, whereas instead of going into Otonabee and destroying a most valuable waterfront the sewage will run to a point down the river where there is sufficient fall to operate a disposal plant of the kind proposed.

Council adjourned to Dec. 15th.

The "Feast of Adonis" To Be Given Here

The short biographical account of Sir Elgar, the composer of the "Banner of St. George" (now preparing by the Peterborough Choral Society), was very interesting, and as Adolf Jensen's Cantata "The Feast of Adonis," is being prepared by the Orpheus Society, a few words about Jensen's works may be acceptable.

Adolf Jensen was born in 1837 in the royal City of Konigsburg, now part of the German Empire, a city which may soon be strongly invested by the Russians. He may be styled a self-taught musician, having only two years' study under Ehlert, Sobelewski, and Kohler. A passionate admirer of Schumann, he went into Russia as a teacher to earn money to study under that master. Returning, he found Schumann dead, and became chapel master of Posen. In 1860 he went home to Konigsbury, thence to Berlin, Dresden, and finally to Baden-Baden, where he died in 1879. He was a gifted song writer composing one hundred and sixty vocal pieces. Best known among these are "Chorus of Nuns," "Josephus' Daughter," "Lowmey to Emmaus," "Murmuring Breezes," "Six Love Songs," "Feast of Adonis," and "Donald Caird ist welder da," from Scott. The song "Mutter, O Sing Mich Zur Ruh," is set as one of the numbers to be studied for vocal examination this year, by the University of Toronto. The data of above is taken from the biographical section of the Imperial Encyclopedia of Music, page 413, volume 1. A complete life of Jensen was published by Nigli of Berlin in 1909, copies of which are still on sale.

PRESENTATION TO REV. DEAN McCOLL BY CONGREGATION OF ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL

Address and Cheque as Expression of Esteem—Rector Takes Charge of The Church of The Immaculate Conception.

BISHOP O'BRIEN'S REGARD

Rev. Dean McColl was the recipient of a farewell address and cheque of splendid proportions from the congregation of St. Peter's Cathedral at Vespers on Sunday. His appointment as pastor of the new Church of the Immaculate Conception in East City takes effect on Sunday, December 6th.

While not far removed from the congregation he has served during the past thirteen years, Dean McColl's new pastorate nevertheless becomes a complete severance from the Cathedral.

It was with a full realization of this fact that the congregation of St. Peter's prepared a memorial to their late rector. The church was crowded last night as an evidence of the position Dean McColl holds in the esteem and love of the Cathedral congregation. His service of theirteen years was recognized by the splendid gift from the people, and by the testimony and expression of confidence bespoken by Bishop O'Brien. Dean McColl, himself, said the co-operation of the laity was the greatest recompense that could be rewarded his efforts. The progress that had been made in the parish during the thirteen years just closed was the strongest evidence of the response that had been made to his efforts towards the spiritual and temporal well-being of the people.

The Address.

Vespers were sung by Rev. Father McAuley, and before benediction a committee representing the congregation entered within the chancel. The following address was read by Dr. McNulty and Mr. John Corkery, Sr., made the presentation:

Very Reverend and Dear Father,—

It is with feelings of deepest regret and sorrow that we address to you words of farewell upon the occasion of your transference from this Cathedral Church. So intimately have you become associated and intertwined with the varied interests of the Parish, and so deeply have you manifested your concern for all that pertains to our religious and social life that your departure comes to each of us as a personal bereavement.

During the thirteen years that you have exercised in so fatherly a way the duties of your pastorate we have come to recognise the intensity of your zeal, the depth of your devotion, the sincerity of your affection, and now that these bonds of attachment are about to be severed, a great sorrow stirs our emotions. The sense of reality that surrounds us on this occasion dims for the time the more happy memories of the past.

It is on such occasions as this that the notable incidents in a cycle of a life's work stand out in relief. To enumerate the varied fields in which your energy has manifested itself, fields wherein your individuality is stamped, would be merely to record the results of that spirit of progressiveness so apparent during your regime as Pastor. Your scholarly attainments early directed your thoughts and energies to educational matters and the high state of efficiency of our schools at the present time is due in no small degree to your untiring zeal and unerring judgment. In the erection of Churches, in the enlargement and embellishment of our charitable institutions, wherein the sick, the orphaned, and the aged find a place of refuge, in the advancement of the noble cause of total abstinence., in the fostering of all that pertains to aesthetic and intellectual culture, you have taken an active and energetic part. As the pastor of the new Church of the Immaculate Conception, we wish you every success, and our one consolation in your departure from St. Peter's Cathedral is that you will still be near us and that we will be frequently comforted by your genial presence. "The joys of meeting pay the pangs of absence."

We ask of you now to accept this purse of gold as a small token of our affection and esteem.

For St. Peter's Congregation—F. P. McNulty, M. O'Brien, C. H. Pennefather, J. V. Gallivan, D. O'Connell, John R. Corkery, David Holland, Michael Lynch, Patrick Kane, J. J. Duffus, J. J. Hickey, J. W. Fitzgerald, Maurice O'Hearn.

Dean McColl's Reply.

Rev. Dean McColl was deeply moved by the incident. He was touched, he said, by the kind words of the address and by the gift which in these times must have involved some sacrifice. The conditions that make for progress of the church have obtained in this city. The diocese has been blessed by good bishops. Our superiors have been men of good heart, and they have also possessed level heads. The second element contributing to success was good priests, and this too has been found here. And thirdly, there have been good people. There could be no progress without their co-operation. The congregation of St. Peter's could take a large share of the credit for the progress made in the parish.

Speaking of education, Dean McColl said Christ had a special love for children. It was the duty of parents to educate them and also not to allow their innocence to depart. The church takes every precaution to educate children so that their intellectual development shall go hand in hand with their moral training. Results must be good when the children receive not only broad mental education, [illegible] receive a [illegible] education.

Dean McColl said his work at the Cathedral had been a pleasure through the hearty response it had brought from the people. In closing, he again expressed his appreciation of the kindness shown him.

Bishop O'Brien.

His Lordship Bishop O'Brien said he could endorse all that had been said in the address. Dean McColl had been in charge of the Cathedral for thirteen years. He had to handle its finances and he was leaving without being five cents richer.

In your gift there is indicated a strong unity between priest and people. After family ties there is no union more ideal and deeply religious than that between a priest and his people. We have progressed and it is due largely to the response of the people. The respect and love you have shown your pastor is not primarily for his personality good and kind as he may be. It is because you see in him the divinely appointed agent of Christ. You respect the authority which the priest represents. St. Paul did not hesitate to call himself the ambassador of Christ.

Bishop O'Brien said God had placed authority in the church and there it is found as nowhere else in this life. The obedience of the priest to the bishop, the people to the priest was recognized as obedience to God. The world sometimes regards this obedience as a weakness. To-day the world is plunged in grief by the war in Europe. His Lordship asserted that obedience to military discipline was most necessary. The private obeyed without question the instructions of his officers. He obeys not the officer in his own personality. The man in the ranks recognizes in the command of the officer the authority of the King. The officer is merely the agent of the Crown. Hence the army finds one of its main strengths in the obedience that is shown to those who are placed in authority.

His Lordship said the new church would bring great blessings to the new parish. Those who have been good will be made better by the House of God adjacent to their homes. Assisting at morning mass every day will be made easier for many.

It will provide for the spiritual welfare of the people in that section and with Rev. Dean McColl as pastor, it is in good hands.

Bishop O'Brien said it was a pleasure to him to have seen the warm feeling of regard that had been shown Dean McColl.

SPOKE TO BIBLE CLASS

At St. Paul's Bible Class, where they are now considering the ethics of Christian citizenship and contrasting the laws of to-day with those of Moses, and with those outlined in the Scriptures, generally, Mr. Burnham M.P., proceeded with his address yesterday. Questions arising from his remarks of the previous Sunday, were put and answered. The future of Oriental and foreign cheaper competition engaged the attention of the class. The questions asked contained the statement that if it was true as alleged that foreign cheap labour was a danger how is it that it has not been so in the past, and is not the fact that it is inefficient the real reason that it is cheap and unable to compete with western labour? Mr. Burnham replied that the East was just awakening from its long sleep of prejudice against the West, and its chains of caste. The West, which had only recently developed itself, the United States wholly since the Civil War and Germany since 1865, htd, by virtue of enterprise and capital, acquired a long lead, but China had begun to ship the finest steel rails made to the United States, paying the high tariff and making a handsome profit. The writers on eastern peoples, the missionaries and travellers without exception praised the newly awakened intelligence and enterprise of the east and prophesied that as the only lack was capital, when it arrived, the East would rival the West. The magnificent opportunities there and the new readiness to admit foreigners (heretofore an impossibility) was attracting capital. There were already arising immense factories in both India and China. Those who refused to see a menace to highly-paid western labour and the comfort and civilization of the masses of the western peoples would wake up to it before long. In western Canada and the United States unrestricted Oriental immigration aroused the intense hostility of the people. Why? Because the foreigners worked for low wages, were capable and clever, and displaced Canadian and American labour. As it was with foreign cheap labour so is it with foreign labour's goods. They would swamp the Canadian and the United States trade market if not held back. The whole centre of gravity in the manufacturing and producing world might now with the awakening of the East and the advent of capital, be changed. Now, too, when properly trained and led eastern troops are second to none, as shown at the allies' battle front, the east may strive for a complete independence of the domination and control of western powers. They have the labour. We have the capital. Put them together either in the west by immigration, or in the east by the introduction of capital, and where will the masses of the western world be in a quarter of a century. The brotherhood of man, he said, meant not intellectual equality, but kind treatment.

Rev. H. J. Keith Becomes Pastor of Westminster

Rev. Henry J. Keith, M.A., B.D., formerly of Knox Church, Peterborough, Ont., was formally inducted as Pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian Church, last night, with an impressive service that will long be remembered in local Church circles. Rev. Dr. Dyde of Roberston College was one of the principal speakers, and he referred to the terrible toll of the European war. He said there were some who pointed to the war as proof that Christianity is ineffective as a world force. His arguments in favour of Christianity put to rout all disbelievers, and served to strengthen the cause of Christians.

"If the war, terible and devastating as it is, proves the means of arousing the careless and indifferent; if it causes us to be gentler and kinder in the home, more just and honest in business, more diligent and fervent regarding our spiritual life—though it causes the crepe to be hung on some of our doors and dashes to pieces our fondest hopes—it will not be too great a price to pay for a newer and better life and more noble national ideals." Dr. Dyde spoke thus as a father who has given a son to the empire to help fight its battles.

Rev. E. McGougan, moderator pro tem of the Church, proceeded with the induction ceremony, and expressed to Rev. Mr. Keith the hope that every blessing might be his in his new work. Other speakers included Rev. C. D. Campbell and Rev. E. G. Stewart.

Mrs. Keith was presented with a bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums by little Miss Edgar, and Rev. Mr. Keith replied briefly to the message of welcome, after whic hthe new Pastor was introduced to the members of the congregation by Aubrey Fullerton and Mr. Yuill.

The above is a report from an Edmonton exchange, of the induction of the Rev. Mr. Keith, formerly of this City, as Pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian Church.

Another Complaint

Peterborough, Ont., Nov. 28, 1914.

The Daily Examiner Printing Co.,
419 George Street, City—

Gentlemen,—I would thank you to print the following letter from a constand reader if you have space in your valuable paper.

My first bill for electric light from the so-called Public Utilities Commission was due on a Friday in October. Went to the office on the preceding Saturday afternoon, but the office was closed. The following Saturday was told the bill was a day overdue and they would not allow any discount, so was mulcted the full amount of the bill. Yesterday afternoon I went to the office to pay my second bill for electric light, but the lady at the window refused to accept payment because it was ten minutes after four o'clock. She informed me the office closed at four.

What do you think of that! In my opinion the name Public Persecutors would be more fitting for such an aggregation of misfits.

Two of the minions of this same Public Utilities Commission visited my house about ten days ago. After tracking all over it with muddy boots and scrutinizing all the lamps, unburdened themselves about this fashion: You have so much floor space and will have to pay so and so for the space, and so and so for the current consumed, but after you have consumed about one million yards of juice, the Great Public Utilities Commission will allow you a discount of one thousanth of one per cent on the balance.

I would also be interested to know if this before-mentioned commission was appointed by Bill 2. Their circulars smacks much of the mailed fist and hands it out to us unfortunate citizens like this: "This Means You." Evidently they have not been with the governing class long or they would give it to us like this, "This Means You, Slave." They further tickle our presumptious love of liberty, by telling us, and us being no other than the sovereign people, who pay their salaries and buy the coal to keep them warm, so they have no occasion to get hot at us.

We, the workmen of Peterborough, have always enjoyed the privilege of being able to pay our accounts on Saturday afternoons, and we object to being deprived of it now. Nine to four except Saturdays; then only nine to twelve will not do. We cannot leave our work at such hours.

We are led to believe the job was created for the Commission, instead of Commission for the job. They tell us they are not responsible whether we get our bill or not. Then if we do not get it at such and such a time, come to the office and see about it. We would like to inform the Commission that we have our families to look after, and not their business.

The assistance of your valuable paper will be appreciated by all workmen in Peterborough who use electric light, for a successful campaign in forcing the Commission to keep the office open Saturday afternoon until 5 o'clock at least.

Thanking you for your interest, I beg to remain.

A Citizen.

EVERYTHING SATISFACTORY

Captain C. P. Fee, of Peterborough, who is doing duty as captain of the 17th Battery of the 6th Brigade, C.F.A. Expeditionary Force, writing from Kingston to The Examiner, says that they are very fortunate in having a fine lot of men. Some have seen service in almost every part of the British Empire. Needless to say, remarks Capt. Fee, all are anxious to go overseas and of course they are all very keen to know when the troops will be leaving Canada for the Old Land. All are hoping to catch the first contingent so that none of the glory will be lost to those who could not get away with the first force. The battery consists of four eighteen-pounder quick-firing guns and the establishment calls for five officers and 137 non-coms. and men, with 128 horses.

Speaking of the Peterborough boys with the 31st Battalion, Capt. Fee says that so far everything has been very satisfactory. The boys are very anxious to perfect themselves in drill and all are on the go from 6 a.m. The quarters are all that could be desired, and the food is of good quality. They are getting plenty of rifle exercise and the foot drill is beginning to show its good effect by the steadiness on parade and the even marching and general appearance.

SIX MONTHS ON VAGRANCY CHARGE

For the second time in a week Isaac Dormer came before Magistrate Dumble this morning charged with vagrancy. The last time he appeared and was confronted with the charge, the Magistrate made arrangements for Dormer to do some work for him. But this only served to convince the Magistrate that the prisoner was not anxious to work.

"The last time you were here," he said to Dormer, "you wanted six months. Are you still of the same mind?"

"Yes, your Worship," came the response from the witness box.

"All right, then I sentence you to six months in Central prison."

"Couldn't you make it the Guelph Farm, your Worship?"

But the Magistrate heeded not and Dormer will spend the winter months in the shelter of the prison walls in Toronto. When arrested he was sleeping in a local power house.

REV. DR. GORDON CLOSES CAMPAIGN

The campaign for Christian Citizenship was brought to a close in Chalmers' Church, last night by one of the most impressive services of the entire campaign. Shortly after 6 o'clock the people began coming to the Church and although the service did not open until 7.45 the large edifice was filled to the doors at 7 o'clock, so eager were the crowds to attend this last service.

Rev. Dr. Gordon opens a series of services in Woodstock next week and after the service last night hundreds of people filed past and shook hands with the great preacher and with Mrs. Gordon, Mr. Greenlaw, the wonderful singer, and Mr. Mulligan, the organizer and choir leader.

Addresses were given by Rev. D. M. Morden, Rev. W. A. McIlroy and Rev. J. H. Turnbull on the splendid success of the campaign. Special emphasis was laid on the work of Mr. Mulligan, the organizer who organized the campaign after his arrival, as there had been no time for organization before the meetings started. In two or three days he had overcome all the obstacles and had a large choir, had covered the city with cards. The excellent way in which he leads the singing contributed much to the success of the meetings.—Ottawa Citizen.

Souvenir of The Second Battalion

The Examiner is indebted to Major G. W. Bennett of Peterborough, commanding A Company of the Second Battalion of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, for a copy received this morning, of the bulletin published by the Second Battalion to commemorate "the voyage across the Atlantic Ocean of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, in answer to the call to duty by the Mother Country." The "Bulletin" is giving much information about the battalion, including a list of all the officers and men of each Company. There are a number of poems written by members of the Battalion, the words of a number of patriotic songs, including some new verses to "Tipperary," some wireless gossip from Valcartier and the latest war news via Sayville. One important bit of advice to the members of the Battalion is the following: "On no account permit the enemy to cut the communication with your old home."

EVANGELIST LONG AT THE TABERNACLE

Evangelist Long had a full day at the Tabernacle yesterday, preaching morning, afternoon and evening.

At the morning service he spoke especially to Christians on the subject of "The Spirit-filled Life." In the afternoon he addressed the Sunday school, giving an illustrated blackboard talk on the "Two Ways."

He spoke in the evening on three kinds of men who miss Heaven. He said there were many moral men who miss Heaven like the rich young ruler who came to Christ inquiring the way of life, but went away sorrowful because he refused to meet Christ's one requirement of being his disciple. That of leaving all to follow Him. He also stated that there were many praying people who would miss Heaven like the Pharisees of old who prayed much and fasted and gave largely of their means to support their religion, but who were not accepted by God because they harboured iniquity in their hearts and failed to make right the wrongs of which they were guilty.

There were also many people who miss Heaven because they refuse to repent of their wickedness like the thief on the cross, who died cursing and reviling Christ and would not repent like his brother thief who called upon Christ to remember him when he should come to His kingdom.

There were many stokers during the day yesterday.

Service to-night and each night during the week at 8 o'clock. All are welcome.

More Praise for Dr. Hamilton's Pills

"For a period last summer the thought of food excited feelings of nausea," writes Mrs. C. A. Doake of Bloomsbury. "The heat had made me listless and the distaste for food reduced me to a condition of semi-starvation and brought me to the verge of nervous collapse. Tonics were useless to restore an active desire for food. The doctors told me my liver and kidneys were both at fault, but the medicines they gave me were too severe and reduced my strength so that I had to abandon them. At the suggestion of a friend who had been cured of blood and skin trouble, I began the use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. The difference I first noticed was, that while they cleansed the system, instead of feeling weaker I felt better after taking them. Indeed their activity was so mild it was easy to forget I had taken them at all; they seemed to go right to the liver, and in a very brief time not only did all source of nausea disappear, but I began to crave fod and I digested it reasonably well. Then I began to put on weight until within three months I was brought to a condition of good health. I urge Dr. Hamilton's Pills for all who are in poor health."

Get this best of all medicines today and refuse a substitute for Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut. Sold by all druggists and storekeeers, 25c. per box or five for $1.00 Sent postpaid by The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Sewer Work To Commence

The Board of Works has decided to undertake the construction of eight or nine hundred feet of sewer on Victoria Heights. The work will commence about Thursday and will give employment to about fifty men. Applications for jobs, now on file in the City Engineer's Office, number about one hundred and sixty-two men. This work is being undertaken mainly with a view of giving employment to a number of those who are in need of work.

A new type of electric meter is designed to be read from outside a building using it.

BLACKBURN ROVERS WIN FROM BURNLEY--SCORE 6-0

Oldham Athletics Retain the Premier Place in the First Division—West Bromwich Albions Smother Manchester City—Hearts Still Victorious

The last two weeks, The Examiner has been able to get certain portions of the Old Country football results in time for publication on Saturday. As stated previously it is impossible to guarantee this service owing to the war, preference being given to news concerning the conflict. However, football enthusiasts, and there are a few in Peterborough, may rest assured that their interests are not being overlooked in so far as The Examiner is concerned. If the results do not appear in the Saturday edition they will be bulletined as soon as they arrive. Last Saturday the results arrived in the city about five o'clock. The Scottish results preceded the English League results by one hour, and were in time for publication on Saturday.

Oldham Athletics retain the premier place in the First Division of the English League by a splendid victory of five goals to one over Middlesborough. West Bromwich Albion sprung the surprise of the day by smothering the late leaders of the league, Manchester City, by six goals to one. Bolton Wanderers, the wooden spoonists of the First Division of the league, delighted their supporters by a very creditable victory over Tottenham Hotspur. The "Trotters" thrashed the "Spurs" by four goals to two, after a well fought out game. Aston Villa, whose "lassic" football has long been famous, trounced Liverpool by six goals to three, and th game was played on the "Liverpudlian's" ground. The goal scoring Saturday in the first division was prolific. To put through six goals in 90 minutes in first-class football circles is no small achievement for a forward line.

Derby County Victors.

Those old warriors, Derby County, defeated the leaders of the Second Division by one goal to nothing. The game was played on the Derby ground and the match was one of those tussles which delights the soccer devotees of the midland counties. The proud "Prestonians," try as they would, could not defeat Leeds City on their own ground, th result being a draw with no goals scored.

Reading Leading.

The feature of the Southern League was the way in which Gillingham, who are at the foot of the ladder, walloped Southampton. They made no mistake, ruining their opponents off their feet and scoring six goals to two. Reading are still the leaders in the league. Crystal Palace defeated Plymouth by four goals to one.

"Hearts" Still Victorious.

In the Scottish League Saturday, the Celtic team administered a whipping to the Dumbarton eleven, scoring four goals to their opponents' one. The win is all the more creditable to the "Celts" as the game was played on their opponents' ground. While the Celtic team is in the second place in the league table, being four points behind the Hearts of Midlothian, it will necessitate the "Hearts" still pursuing their victorious career to stay at the head of the table.

Falkirk gave their supporters a joyful 90 minutes by walloping the Motherwell team to the tune of five goals to one, Kilmarnock providing a similar treat to their followers by beating Aberdeen by five goals to two. Glasgow Rangers and third Lanark bet in a good old historic tussle, the Rangers scoring three, and the fine defence of the Rangers preventing their opponents from breaking through.

WET CANTEEN UPHELD.

Supervised Liquor Sales Have Checked Rowdyism at Salisbury.

OTTAWA, Nov. 30.—In reply to representations that have been made to the Government regarding the "wet canteen," established in the Canadian camp on Salisbury Plain, an official statement that night said that, while any suggestions from the Canadian Government would no doubt be carefully considered, even though the camp is under the direct control of the War Office, the present arrangement seems the wisest one under the circumstance.

The statement says: "According to official information the complete abolition of the "wet canteen," so-called, resulted in excesses and disorders among a few of the men when they obtained leave of absence, and resorted to neighboring towns and villages, where the opportunity to purchase liquor presented itself.

"After careful consideration, Gen. Alderson determined that it would be better to have a regulated wet canteen, at which beer might be sold at [illegible] hours and under careful supervision.

"The Government is assured by the War Office that the trouble in the neighboring villages, which occasioned much concern at first, had practically ceased since the opening of these regulated and supervised canteens."

Argos Are Champions Of The Big Four Beat Tigers 10 to 4

TORONTO, Nov. 30—The Argonauts are champions of the Big Four. They proved their right to the title by defeating the Tigers on the 'Varsity field by a score of 11 to 4, but though they came out of the struggle with such a nice lead, it does not mean that they are more than twice as good a team as the Jungle Terrors. It might almost be said that in the history of Canadian Rugby, no league has ever contained two teams of the first rank that were so evenly matched, but no doubt can now remain that the Argonauts possess a slight margin of superiority over their rivals from the great Rugby City. The Oarsmen deserve all the more credit because they started the season so badly. In the opening game, played early in October, the Tigers had it over them from every angle, but since that time the Argos have rounded into a real machine, both of offence and defence. It will be noticed that neither team was able to score a try, although the Argos came much closer to making the big count than did their opponents. There was some talk during last week about the strength of the two lines which made it seem probable that a drop kick might be used to settle the argument. It was also pointed out that the Tigers had in Leckie the best drop-kicker left in the game now that Ross Binkley has gone to the front. Well, as a matter of fact, drop-kicks were the deciding elements in the play, but it was not Leckie who put them over the goal bar. While the result still hung in the balance in the third quarter, Jack O'Connor dropped as pretty a goal from the field as one could wish to see, lifting it over from his 35-yard line. He repeated in the last quarter and gave the Oarsmen the lead which put them out of danger, beyond even the reach of a converted try, although the Tigers had shot their bolt by that time and were not showing any signs of coming back.

Where the Tigers Failed.

It was a fine game of Rugby, even though the slippery ground kept the play from being as spectacular as the tie contest in Hamilton. The Argonauts won because their wing line was a little too strong for the Tigers, and because Mallett did not repeat his sensational showing of a week ago, when his booting offset the good work of the Argo forwards. Mallett's booting is hard and elusive, and when he succeeds in getting the back division guessing it gains a lot of ground. In Hamilton he managed to bounce the ball over the heads of the Argo halves on several occasions and he was also driving to the dead-line. It was different at 'Varsity. O'Connor and Smith seemed to be wise to the little tricks of the pigskin after it had been booted by Mallett, and they did not misjudge it more than a couple of times. As this low, fast booting leaves the wings away down the field, the Argos could always make big gains in running back the ball, so it was that Mallett's booting which saved the day for Tigers on their own field, did not get them a great deal on Saturday. Then Billy Mallett is not a robust player, and it does not take many hard tackles to stop him. A week ago he always got rid of the ball either by booting or passing and so he saved himself for his team, but he was not so lucky a second time. The Argo wings got him many times and they are not kid-gloved tacklers by any means He had to retire in the fourth period but it was after the game had been lost. His booting could not save it a second time.

Another reason for the downfall of the Tigers was the effectiveness of Frank Knight. The plans which the Tiger line used so effectively in Hamilton to pocket and block him failed to work again. Knight had solved them and was always on top of the play. Manson, McKelvey and Mallett could not muff the ball with impunity, as they did on their own grounds. On three occasions Knight dived right under a man and secured the loose ball. Once he not only secured the pigskin with one arm, but pulled down Mallett with the other. While Knight was pulling off these stunts in spite of careful guarding, Murray, on the other wing, did the most flashy tackling of the day. He always got down under the punts, and the Tiger halves made very small gains running back the ball.

Conditions In Grocery Market

Improvement Noted in Holiday Fruit Business

The following comment on the market situation as regards food stuffs will appear in Canadian Grocer this week:

Office of Publication.
Toronto, Nov. 26.

The question may be considered at this time as to whether there will be enough holiday fruits to supply the trade until Christmas; the reply is another question as to whether the public will make anything like the usual demands. With most fruits arrived there is an improvement noted in business, but comparatively the buying is light, and a hand-to-mouth policy is displayed. If demand develops later present firm prices are likely to advance and some orders may go unfilled. The situation is very uncertain. Valencia raisins are very short and there are already sales being made within the trade, which is unusual at this stage. Figs have also advanced and prunes, currants and dates are firm.

With the Emden removed better supplies of tea have arrived in England, but the price remains without reaction. The feature of the week was the poor quality of the Indian supplies, evidently the result of delays in making shipment. England has cut off supplying Europe, but this has not helped. At present high prices are due to advances in India and Ceylon. There is considerable talk about the possibilities of a war tax and while there has been some high buying the usual attitude is to be careful while prices are so high.

The sugar situation shows little change. In Canada refiners are keeping price up in accordance with their statement that they are grinding costly raws and the demand is very light, indicating that both the trade and consumers still have supplies. When lower prices may be expected is a matter for speculation. The New York situation shows little change unless it is that things have become more settled on a basis which it is believed will hold for some time. The needs of France and England are not thought to be sufficient to take the market higher for some time unless there is another rush to get supplies.

Coffee remains strong. Pepper should cease soon and cream of tartar also. New shelled almonds are considerably lower. One line of condensed milk has been reduced 15c a case.

Montreal reports a little more interest in the flour situation, but conditions are generally continuing very dull. Domestic demand is very weak, and export business is out of line, although the call is strong. Canadian wheat is higher priced than American. With a cold weather demand for mill-feeds, prices have firmed, and millers are beginning to refuse orders for straight cars, using this demand as a lever for flour sales. Cornmeal shows a reduction of 10c. a sack.

Strictly new-laid eggs are practically off the market so far as dealers are concerned. The price is nominally around 50c but the setatment is made by a Toronto firm that it is doubtful if a case of strictly new-laid stock could be had in the city. Fresh eggs are offered, but candling usually reveals them to be hold-overs and no better than storage stocks. Export demand has ceased owing to poor condition of American shipments having given the business somewhat of a black eye; more interest is expected shortly.

Spanish onions being shipped back to London is an interesting feature of the vegetable market. The price is advancing rapidly. It is evident that the war department is making reservations for the use of the army.

The Ottawa report that France is looking for Canadian potatoes would indicate the probability of a higher market as shipment would be made from the New Brunswick and Delawares practically control the price basis.

New California navel oranges have arrived. The first shipment is slightly later than usual owing to new standards of quality. The crop is reported as being large and prices should be about as low as last year. New crop lemons are coming freely and there appears to be no indication of a shortage. Apples continue firm.

HE DID NOT APPRECIATE TIPPERARY

The members of the Fiske O'Hara Company, which will appear here in January, are laughing at the expense of some of the young actors in that organization who unwittingly got in a scrape recently. The Company was playing in a small Indiana town and several of the younger members of the Company put up at an hotel kept by an excitable German. One of the young men, who is the possessor of a fine tenor voice, had just received a copy of "It's a Long Way to Tipperary," and with a couple of others, assisted by the musicians of the Company, was enthusiastically singing the refrain. The melody fell on the ear of the proprietor and his face grew white with rage. He burst in on the astonished actors with a mad roar:

"Get out of my hotel, quick. Herr Gott! You should insult me with dot? Yah! You gif de tam incidental moosic for de murder of de Germans. Fine, dot is! But not here you should gif it. Git out right away, you verdomt loafers."

In vain the thespians expostulated, but the irate Teuton was deaf to explanation; so they packed their bags and moved to the other hotel, where they were greeted with a hearty laugh, as the news of the episode had preceded them.

BATTLE OF YPRES IN LAST STAGE

Sir John French Speaks in Optimistic Vein

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Field Marshal Sir John French, commander-in-chief of the British forces in the field, speaks in an optimistic vein concerning the position of the allies in a report issued yesterday by the official bureau. The report covers, in a general way, the activities of the British troops from Nov. 11 to Nov. 20, with extensive reference to fighting preceding these dates.

Summing up the situation in concluding his report, Field Marshal French says:—

"As I close this despatch, signs are in evidence that we are possibly in the last stages of the battle from Ypres to Armentieres. For several days past, the artillery fire of the enemy has slackened considerably, and his infantry attacks have practically ceased.

"The role our armies in the west have been called upon to fill, has been to occupy strong defensive positions, holding ground gained and inviting the enemy's attack, and to throw back these attacks, causing the enemy heavy losses in his retreat and following him up with powerful and successful counter-attacks to complete his discomfiture.

"The value and significance of operations of this nature since the commencement of hostilities by the allies' forces in the west, lie in the fact that at the moment when the eastern provinces of Germany are in imminent danger of being over-run by the numerous and powerful armies of Russia, nearly the whole active army of Germany is tied down to a line of trenches extending from Verdun on the Alsatian frontier to the sea at Nieuport, east of Dunkirk, (a distance of 260 miles) where they are held, with much reduced numbers and impaired morale, by the successful action of our troops in the west."

A jack with adjustable legs, long enough to reach solid ground, has been invented for raising automobiles that are caught in mud.

Sweden's Queen in Berlin.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 30. — A despatch from Berlin says that Queen Victoria of Sweden has arrived in Berlin on her way to the City of Karlsruhe. Queen Victoria is a daughter of the late Grand Duke of Baden and a sister of the present Grand Duke Frederick. (Karlsruhe is the capital of the Grand Duchy of Baden).

Deputation Left This Afternoon

Mr. E. A. Peck, solicitor for the County of Peterborough, and Reeve Howden of the municipality of North Monaghan, will go to Toronto to-morrow for the purpose of securing permission from Provincial Secretary Hanna, to raise two thousand dollars' worth of short term debentures. The money will be applied on next year's statute labour in Road district number six. Should the municipality be successful in raising the amount it will enable them to give immediate employment to a number of unemployed men residing in North Monaghan. The work will consist of breaking stones in the gravel pit and putting such material on the road as weather conditions will permit. In order to raise this money by the issuance of short term debentures, it is necessary to secure special permission from the Provincial authorities, as present existing legislation does not provide for such a course. The municipality would rather give the unemployed work than give them charity.

The Council at a meeting that was held on Saturday afternoon, voted the sum of one hundred dollars to the Patriotic Fund.

HUNTERS' COMPANY!

The Hunters' Company of the Home Guard will be organized on Wednesday night at the Y.M.C.A. at 8 o'clock, when officers will be elected and other business transacted. All hunters in the city are asked to attend this meeting. Naturally among such a body there are many crack shots, and from the standpoint of marksmanship, the Hunters should be well to the front in the ranks of the Home Guard. Every hunter in the city is urged to be on hand Wednesday night.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. G. W. Mulligan spent Sunday at his home here, on his way to Woodstock.

Miss McNabb, Gilmour street, spent the week-end the guests of friends in Lakefield.

Miss Freda Junkin of Toronto is in the City, visiting her aunt, Mrs. G. W. Mulligan and Miss A. A. Turner.

Miss Rena Shearer, of Otonabee, is the guest of Miss Florence Hunter, 540 George street, for a few days.

Mrs. R. G. Clifford will receive for the first time since her marriage on Wednesday afternoon, at her home, 212 Reid Street.

Mrs. F. K. Spriggs (Miss Lelia Haskill) will receive the first Wednesday of each month—Dr. Gallivan's Apartments, Fleming Place.

Following the announcement a few days ago of the appointment of Mr. A. Montizambert, the popular local manager of the Bank of Montreal, to the responsibilities in connection with the managership of the branch at Victoria, B.C., Brantfordites, who have learned to appreciate his worth and that of Mrs. Montizambert and Miss Adelaide, will regret to learn that next week will witness their departure from the city. Mrs. Montizambert will leave towards the end of next week for Toronto, and will not return to Brantford before leaving for the west. Miss Adelaide is now visiting with friends in Winnipeg.—Brantford Expositor.

An innovation most commendable in these war times, was introduced into Brantford on Wednesday afternoon of this week at the home of Mrs. Montizambert, Dufferin avenue. Following the example set by well known ladies in Ottawa, Montreal, Toronto, and other large Canadian centres, an afternoon tea was held, invitations being issued as per usual, with a timely little note inscribed on the invitation card that 25 cents, to be devoted to patriotic purposes, would be charged at the door. A large number of friends availed themselves of the opportunity to enjoy the social event and incidentally contribute to the funds of the Brantford Women's Patriotic league, whose coffers were increased to the extent of $46 as a result of the affair.—Brantford Expositor.

POLICE COURT

Harry Martin charged John Dougherty in this morning's Police Court with assault. Chief Thompson conducted the case for Martin and Mr. Joseph Wearing appeared for the accused.

Martin is a tinsmith, and on Friday last did some work in the Ideal Pool Room. The young fellows in the pool room started chafing him and words led to blows. In the encounter, which Martin claims was due to Dougherty taking the initiative, the informant got a badly bruised eye and other minor injuries. Dougherty also displayed a somewhat distorted eye, but Martin could not remember giving it to him.

Martin called to substantiate his story another man who was in the pool room at the time, but witness number two made the case look worse for him, as he testified that if either of the men were guilty of starting the whole thing it was Martin, and that the complainant received his wounds in an open and fair fight. Mr. Wearing did not have to call any witnesses as the Magistrate dismissed the charge on the evidence already heard. He reprimanded Martin for dragging the case into Police Court. "When you invite a man to fight and get what you asked for, don't come whining to Police Court about it," he said.

He remarked that he did not feel very well and within half an hour afterwards died of heart failure.

Mr. J. J. Turner, Jr., delivered a very interesting address before the Life Problem Club on Sunday afternoon, the subject being "Duty." Mr. Turner outlined the many ways in which duty calls to young men. Duty has called some to go to the front in the present war while others are as strongly called to serve at home. Young men do not always recognize the duty they owe to the municipality in which they live to serve in official positions and in other ways.

Twenty-three delegates from Peterborough attended the 9th Annual Boys' Work Conference at Belleville, which closed last evening. The young men were very much helped by addresses delivered by L. Alexander of Ottawa; Rev. A. D. Dunlop, Chas. W. Bishop, B. W. Halpenny, of Toronto, and others.

A banquet was served to the visiting delegates on Saturday evening at Bridge Street Methodist Church.

The boys returned to-day fully determined to do their best in Christian work in the local churches and the Young Men's Christian Association.

CHIMNEY FIRE SATURDAY NIGHT

Saturday evening, about nine o'clock a chimney fire broke out at the residence of Daniel Connelly, 387 Roger Street. The eldest, who is 13 years old, however, went to Box 34 and sent in an alarm. The Fire Brigade responded and the fire was speedily extinguished. There was practically no damage.

BUSY IN ARGONNE.

French Have Repulsed German Attacks—Active on Saturday.

PARIS, Nov. 30. — Comparative quiet prevailed along the western front Sunday except in the Argonne, where the French repelled several attacks.

The following communication was issued by the War Office Sunday night:—

"Quiet prevails along the front, except in the Argonne region, where the German attacks have not been more successful than preceding attacks."

The official statement issued by the War Office yesterday afternoon says:

"Yesterday the enemy's cannonading was more active, but carried on chiefly with 77 millimetre pieces; his heavy artillery has made itself felt very little. Under these conditions the artillery struggle has turned particularly to our advantage.

"In Belgium, our infantry captured several supporting positions to the north and to the south of Ypres. In the country to the north of Arras, one of the enemy's attacks, undertaken by nearly three regiments has definitely failed after several counter-attacks carried out in all directions.

"Between the Somme and Chaulnes we have made perceptible progress. In the neighborhood of the village of Fay, our troops came into immediate contact with the wire entanglements of the defence.

"In the region of the Aisne between Vailly and Berry-au-Bac, a group of machine guns and emplacement for 30 centimetre pieces were destroyed by our shells, one of which caused an explosion in one of the enemy's batteries.

"In the Vosges three counter-attacks, undertaken by the Germans for the purpose of recapturing ground previously taken by us in the Ban-de-Sap region, were repulsed."

SHIPS IN NORTH PACIFIC?

German Cruisers Reported To Be Operating From Aleutians.

TACOMA, Wash., Nov. 30. — That three German cruisers which had been operating off the coast of South America had changed their base to the Aleutian Islands, and were patrolling the trade route between Puget Sound and the Orient, was the report brought yesterday by the Japanese liner Tacoma Maru, in port from Yokohama.

While crossing the Pacific the Tacoma Maru received a wireless despatch from the Chicago Maru, west-bound, stating that German warships were in the area between the 150th and 180th meridians. The Chicago Maru reported that she had altered her course to avoid capture. Precautions were taken aboard the Tacoma Maru, which for three nights proceeded without a light showing. Local shipping men are skeptical regarding to truth of the rumor.

Marching On Suez, Says Berlin.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 30. — (Via London.) — According to a Berlin message to The Telegraaf, Cairo reports that 76,000 Turkish troops, under Izzet Pasha, are marching against the Suez Canal. This army includes 10,000 Bedouins with 500 camels. The reports also state that the Turks have built a field railway to the Hinsakel oasis.

The road to the Suez Canal, according to the despatch, is barricaded by the British with a long line of trenches and with artillery positions.

Body Identified.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Nov. 30.—Relatives on Saturday identified the body which was found in a creek near this city Friday afternoon as J. Mills, a resident of Norwich, twenty miles from Woodstock. Mills had been an inmate of the House of Refuge for about a week, but wandered away a few days ago, eluding the authorities of the institution. His dead body was found in a creek face downwards by a rural mail carrier. Coroner Mearns yesterday opened an inquest.

MOUNTAIN COLLAPSED.

Earthquake In Greece Caused Death of Twenty-Three Persons.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Twenty-three persons were killed and a number of others were injured in the earthquake which occurred on Friday in western Greece and the Ionian Islands, says a despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. from Athens.

On the Island of Santa Maura the earthquake caused strange convulsions of the earth's surface. The mountain of Pelhouja collapsed as it crumbled away for a distance of nearly two miles, and the waters of the Ionian Sea penetrated the valley to the extent of about 125 acres. New small mountains appeared at different points on the island.

Russian Victory in Poland Incomplete

Large Section of Britain's Second Army is Now in France

RUSSIANS SEND FRESH TROOPS TO BATTLE AT LODZ

One Section of German Army Has Extricated Itself But With Heavy Losses--Complete Success Has Not Been Gained By the Russians.

Special Morning Cable:

PETROGRAD, Nov. 29.—The hope of the Russians arms now rests with the great reinforcements which have been rushed forward to the battle line in Poland.

It is still confidently expected that the German armies on the line from the south of Plock to the region of Lodz will be completely crushed. Terrific fighting has marked the efforts of the enemy to cut their way out of that region and a complete success has not yet been gained by the Russians.

The official statement to-day declares favourable progress is still being made by the Russian forces, but it is evident that the various battles which have been going on during the past week have practically welded themselves into one vast engagement which must soon lean one way or the other.

One action of the army at Lodz has succeeded in extricating itself from its precarious position, though only with tremendous losses.

Mr. C. J. Burr, new Vice-President of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

THE POSITION OF ALLIED ARMIES IS SATISFACTORY

Large Portion of Britain's New Army of One Million Men is Now in France and Have Already Won Considerable Distinction--Activity at Sea Expected.

Special Morning Cable:

LONDON, Nov. 29.—A large portion of England's second army of 1,000,000 men is now in France. This was clear to-day, following the receipt of Gen. French's report giving details of the fighting between October 11 and Nov. 29, in which he mentioned the presence of the fourth army corps commanded by Sir Henry Rawlinson.

HIGH TRIBUTE TO THE NEW MEN.

The report of General French is the first mention of this army at the front. Gen. Rawlinson's command was in Belgium as early as the middle of October, when the retreat of the Belgians from Antwerp was covered. The British commander pays a high tribute to Gen. Rawlinson in carrying out this operation, which he declares was most difficult.

In concluding his report, Gen. French declared that there were now signs that fighting from Armentieres to Ypres is entering its final stages.

It is accepted here that the position of the allied armies is entirely favourable. It is confidently believed, however, that with the slackening of fighting on land in the western theatre, greater activity may be shown at sea by the Germans.

Work at ZeeBrugge is being pushed with the utmost speed. The German submarines there are now reported entirely ready for sea duty and parts of additional vessels are said to have arrived by rail for construction in the dock yards.

GERMANS ARE BROKEN INTO THREE PARTS

Peculiar Situation Near Lodz—Middle Force Striving to Avoid Capture

A FORTIFIED POSITION

PETROGRAD, Nov. 29.—A review of the military operations in the last week by both sides at the rear of Lodz, as given out officially here, indicates that the German army under General Mackensen has been cut in three parts.

The right wing is still struggling 15 miles west-south-west of Lotz in an attempt to unite with the column sent to its assistance from Wielun. The centre is ten miles northeast by north of Lodz, and is still engaged in a desperate effort to cut its way west to rejoin the left wing, which is partially cut off from the strongest position on the Vistula. This army, the review asserts, is moving back before Russian onslaughts, but is stubbornly disputing the Russian advance.

In this quarter the Russian advance is from Gombin, 50 miles north of Lodz. It is estimated that the centres of the three parts of the German force are at least 20 miles apart, and that the middle one is acting entirely on its own initiative, being completely isolated from the others.

An Unprecedented Situation.

It is said that the main bodies of the German wing are maintaining a thin line of communications to the rear, extending in semi-circular shape a distance of 40 miles. Russian experts declare that situation is almost unprecedented in the history of warfare. In the opinion of these experts the operations will not result in the complete surrounding of the Germans, but they declare that the purpose of the German campaign against Warsaw has been entirely frustrated.

The alleged failure of the German plan is attributed to what is termed a reckless attempt to cut the Russian centre line.

During all the operations, Lodz is said to have been under attack more than once, but the only injuries sustained were the burning of the electric power plant and the suburban railway station. This is regarded as extraordinary in view of the desperate conflicts that daily have been raging on three sides, and to the fact that Lodz projects like a promontory into the enemy's territory.

Sentiment In Sweden With The Entente

Germany's Demands Have Aroused the People—Wanted Newspapers Suppressed

LONDON, Nov. 30.—The Daily Mail's Copenhagen correspondent says that Germany has demanded that the Swedish Government suppress unfriendly utterance against Germany in Swedish newspapers and has threatened reprisals in the event of non-compliance.

Telegraphing from Copenhagen, the Daily Mail's correspondent represents that Germany's declaration of wood as contraband of war has caused a tremendous revulsion of feeling in Sweden and Norway against Germany, and agitation for an understanding with Russia. Sweden's loss by reason of this declaration, as estimated by the corespondent, will amount to $15,000,000 a year.

"The temper of the Swedes," says the correspondent, "is such that they are discussing whether or not it would be advisable to send cargoes of wood to England through the Kattegat and Skager-Rak under escort of Swedish warships and defy the Germans to attack them. It is contended that Sweden, Norway and Russia could form a profitable commercial agreement which would be greatly to the advantage of themselves and the allies and to the disadvantage of the Germans."

PURSE TO RECTOR.

The congregation of St. Peter's Cathedral presented Rev. Dean McColl with a substantial cheque last night upon his retirement as rector to assume charge of the Church of the Immaculate Conception.

TURKS HAVE LOST MANY

LONDON, NOV. 29—Reuter's Petrograd correspondent sends the following despatch received from the Russian army headquarters in the Caucasus:

"The Turks defeated in the recent fighting suffered enormous losses in all their regiments. The 28th and 29th divisions lost half their effectives and the 86th regiment was almost entirely destroyed. The commander of the 34th division was killed near Maslagat. The commander of the 33rd division deserted, and has been replaced.

"The Turkish commender-in-chief has decided to disband the Kurds, whose work was unsatisfactory.

"The fighting recently has been unimportant."

Von der Goltz Sent for.

A despatch from Berlin by way of Rome states that Field Marshal Baron von der Goltz has been relieved from his position as military governor of the portions of Belgium under German control and attached for the remainder of the war to the entourage of the Sultan of Turkey. General Freiherr von Bissing has been nominated as successor to General von der Goltz as military governor of Belgium.

According to a despatch from Constantinople to the Frankfuster Zeitung, the Sultan has appointed Zekki Pasha, former commander of the Turkish troops and lately commander of the 8th Army Corps in Damascus, as general-adjutant in the suite of Emperor William of Germany.

PEACE POSTERS IN BERLIN.

Police Tear Placards Down But Do Not Search for Offenders.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The Copenhagen correspondent of the Daily Mail says he learns from Berlin that placards are posted nightly in the suburbs of the German capital, demanding peace and containing threats. The police tear the posters down, but they always appear the next night, says the correspondent, and the authorities do not seem anxious to catch the offenders for fear of drawing further attention to the peace agitation.

CANADIAN BORN GERMANS NEED NOT TAKE THE OATH

Naturalization Laws Recognize Them as Citizens in Good Standing —Foreigners' Rights in Holding Property—Many Reside in Peterborough

In view of the very natural suspicion with which all Canadian-born are looking these days upon everyone with a German name or German blood to mark him out, it is interesting to note that there are many citizens living Canada, some even in Peterborough, who are of German extraction, but who are still just as strongly Canadian, from a naturalization standpoint, as are the amateur detectives themselves. It has been pointed out that the mere fact of German name or German blood does not prevent a person being Canadian, without any claim to the Vaterland.

Under the Naturalization Act, the law may be briefly stated as follows:

Under British and Canadian law the following persons are naturalized British subjects: (1) Any person born within his Majesty's dominions and allegiance. (2) Any person born out of his Majesty's dominions whose father was a British subject at the time of that person's birth and either was born within his Majesty's allegiance or was born a person to whom a certificate of naturalization had been granted. (3) Any person born on a British ship, whether in foreign or territorial waters or not. This does not apply to a person born on a foreign ship in British territorial waters if the latter is the only reason for claiming British citizenship. Clause 2 also applies where by treaty, capitulation grant, usage, sufferage or other lawful means his Majesty exercises jurisdiction over British subjects.

In addition to the foregoing the Act provides that children born in a foreign country whose father or mother became naturalized in Canada shall be deemed to be naturalized British subjects. The section is as follows:

"If the father, or the mother being a widow, has obtained a certificate of naturalisation within Canada, every child of such father or mother who, during infancy, has become resident with such father or mother within Canada, shall, within Canada, be deemed to be a naturalized British subject."

From the above it will be seen that the Canadian-born German is quite exempt from taking the oath of allegiance to Britain. Even more than that, the German-born German whose parents have become naturalized does not need to take the oath to become a British subject. Many German of these two classes, particularly the latter, have been greatly exercised because they have not taken the oath of allegiance, but the law shows that any excitement along that line, either on the part of themselves or their critical neighbours, is unnecessary.

When it comes to holding property there is very little discrimination against a foreigner. The Act states that in Canada citizens of other countries, not naturalized, may acquire, hold, or dispose of real and personal property in the same way as the natural-born British subject. Title to property may be acquired in the same manner as the Canadian subject. The only restriction is found in the Dominion Lands Act, which provides that an alien cannot obtain a title to a free homestead until he becomes a naturalized subject. He, however, is not disturbed in the possession of any land which he may have acquired, and in all other respects enjoys the full protection of the law. A further restriction is imposed upon the personal rights of the alien, inasmuch as aliens in Canada cannot qualify for any office, municipal or Parliamentary, or other franchise, and may not become the owner of a British ship.

The Naturalization Act provides that aliens who have been resident for three years within the country may become naturalized by taking the oaths of allegiance and residence before a commissioner. The papers must be submitted to the clerk of the county or district court who posts the name of each applicant in his office for three weeks prior to the sitting of the court. If, during that three weeks, no objections are entered, the applicant is declared by the court to be a British subject and a certificate of naturalisation is granted. British subjects who have become naturalised in any other country and return to Canada, may become re-naturalised after residing here for not less than three months.

"These Shirts That Sister Susie Sews"

Sister Susie's sewing shirts for soldiers—
Such skill at sewing shirts our shy young sister Susie shows!
Some soldiers send epistles — say they'd rather sleep in thistles
Than the saucy soft short shirts for soldiers sister Susie sews.

A Canadian who arived at Montread a few days from Liverpool brought the chorus of a song now popular in England. The song, the music of which has a marching swing similar to that of "Tipperary," is sung wherever women gather to make clothing for men at the front. In fact, so popular has it become that whenever recruits marching to and from their training camps start their "Tipperary" women on the sidewalk sing "Sister Susie," greatly to the delight of every one in hearing distance.

ALLIES HAVE MADE CAUTIOUS ADVANCES

Special Morning Cable:

PARIS, November 29.—The allied lines are now being advanced south of Ypres. It is declared here to-day that the gradual withdrawal of the Germans is outflanked. The British and French troops are pressing forward, occupying the abandoned trenches.

Throughout last week the artillery attacks of the Germans gradually slackened, and it is now declared that many of the trenches in the inundated sections of Flanders have been evacuated by the enemy. South of Ypres, which is now in ruins from the German bombardment, the allies' advance has been cautious.

Heavy artillery fire has been carried on against the Germans, under cover of which new trenches were occupied, but a general offensive has not yet developed.

Russians Are Past Cracow

Have Taken Many Austrians, Guns and Supplies—General Use of Bayonet in Attacks

LONDON, Nov. 30.— The Morning Post correspondent at Petrograd telegraphs:

"I feel perfectly confident that the Russians troops are not merely around Cracow, but are already probably past that last stronghold of the Hapsburgs, as a high military official recently called it.

"During the past eight days the Russians in Galicia have captured nearly 40,000 Austrian prisoners, with guns, Maxims and stores. Whole regiments, with their officers, have been taken prisoners, which significantly indicates the collapse of the Austrian defence.

"Three days ago, according to an official bulletin, the Austrians had finally retired under the guns of Cracow. The Carpathian passes are in the hands of the Russians, and Russian troops, specially selected for the purpose, are now overrunning the plains of Hungary.

Russians Advance Steadily.

"After a careful examination of large scale maps, I cannot ascertain that any really new information has been vouchsafed regarding the decisive battle between the Warta and Vistula Rivers during the past few days, beyond the undoubted fact that the Russians are advancing steadily forward against the desperate defence of the entrapped Germans.

"The frequency with which the bayonet is now the sole weapon used indicates probably the increasing shortage of ammunition on the side of the Germans. I believe this is a factor that will decide the fate of the German armies, but it is impossible to say how soon.

"The Russians delight in bayonet charges, and officers find a difficulty at all times in restraining the impetuosity of the men until the proper moment arrives."

Some despatches published here place the German losses at 100,000 during the last ten days. Others declare that every attempt of German relieving forces has been hurled back.

TOOK THE HINT.

"Philander," said a pretty girl in her bashful beau. "I wish you'd tie this ribbon at my throat. I can't see to do it without a glass."

"Of course; I'll be glad to," he said, and at once grappled the strings.

After an unsuccessful effort of five minutes, during which he got as red as a brick house and perspired like a pitcher of ice water on a July window sill, he stammered.

"I—I—don't think I can tie a respectable knot, Miss Mary."

"Suppose, Philander," she whispered, with a pretty little blush, "suppose you call in a clergyman to assist."

Like the unveiling of a beautiful mystery, the situation unfolded itself to Philander, and he feels better now.

COROT, THE ARTIST.

His Whole Life Was a Song, and Melody Permeated His Works.

These painters who also have the feeling and some of the proficiency of a musician reveal it in their work. They are usually colorists, with more eye for the colors and tones of nature than her shapes and forms.

Such a one was Corot. He had a good tenor voice and played on the violin. He sang at his work and sang, too, when he was not painting, but wandering through the forest of Fontainebleau or around the village of Ville d'Avray, absorbing the beauty of the scene and storing up impressions for future pictures. In fact, his whole long life of seventy-nine years was to Le Pere Corot, as his friends loved to call him, a song.

And one feels it in his pictures, at least in his later ones, by which he is best known. Their coloring is subdued, like a lullaby or waking song, for it was the dawn or twilight that he preferred to paint. His works vibrate with the hum of melody, and here and there is an accent of effect that trembles like the string of his violin.

Corot's long life was a remarkable instance of a man being able to continue to the end the springtime of his youth.

Power of Falling Water.

Still water gives no power, no energy. Falling water has only as much power as is represented by its weight. A gallon of falling water will develop as much power as a falling block of iron weighing 62.5 pounds. Of course, the greater the fall the greater the power developed. Water falling one foot will develop a pressure of .43 pounds per square inch of pipe. The same amount of water falling 100 feet will develop a pressure of 43.31 pounds per square inch of pipe. Falling 1,000 feet it would produce a pressure of 433.09 pounds per square inch of pipe. To compute the power of falling water it is necessary to multiply the volume of flowing water in cubic feet per minute by its weight, 62.5 pounds, and this product by the vertical height of the fall in feet, and divide by 33,000, the number of foot pounds representing one horsepower for one minute.—New York World.

HAD DYSPEPSIA

So Bad Could Not Take a Drink of Water Without Suffering.

Dyspepsia is one of the most difficult diseases of the stomach there is to cure. You eat too much. Drink too much. Use too much tobacco. You make the stomach work overtime. You make it perform more than it should be called on to do. The natural result is that it is going to rebel against the amount of work put on it. It is only a matter of a short time before dyspepsia follows.

That old, forty year old remedy, Burdock Blood Bitters, will cure the dyspepsia and will cure it to stay cured as we can prove by the thousands of testimonials we have received from time to time.

Miss Sarah McRae, Newfield, Ont., writes: "I write to say that I have used your Burdock Blood Bitters, and have found it the best remedy I have ever used for dyspepsia. Two years ago, I had stomach trouble so bad that I could not even take a drink of water without suffering. I took six bottles of B.B.B., and have been entirely cured, and can now eat anything without any bad after effects."

Burdock Blood Bitters is an old and well tried remedy but on account of the many substitutes we would ask you to make sure that our name appears on both the label and wrapper as this preparation is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

MAKING AN EPIGRAM.

The Prize Winner Was Evidently a Married Man's Effusion.

The head epigrammatist of the great wit and humor factory beat over his work bench and rested his gaze upon an epigram that had been used and used until it was cracked and frazzled.

"It's a shame to throw it away," he said, "for I believe it can still be turned about so that it will have a commercial value. I know what I will do. I will offer a prize to the workmen who brings in the best new twist."

So when the workmen were gathered in the room he told them that he wanted them to beat out a new and clever turn upon the old motto "A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush." He gave them just one hour at their anvils, with a monetary prize for the best effort and honorable mention for the others. When the time was up this assortment was handed in:

"A kiss in the dark is worth two under the electric light."

"A grain of sand on the beach is worth two in the eye."

"A gift from a husband after marriage is worth two from a lover before."

"A week's wages in bank is worth two in a trousers pocket that the wife is going through at night."

And, while the first four received honorable mention, it was the last one that won the prize.

BLOWN TO SAFETY.

Curious Incident of an Explosion That Wrecked Fifty Homes.

It happened that in the last month of the reign of Charles I. a certain ship chandler of London was foolish enough to busy himself over a barrel of gunpowder with a lighted candle in his hand. He paid the price of his folly. A spark fell into the gunpowder, and the place was blown up.

The trouble was that the man who did the mischief was not the only one to perish. Fifty houses were wrecked, and the number of people who were killed was not known.

In one house among the fifty a mother had put her baby into its cradle to sleep before the explosion occurred. What became of the mother no one ever knew, but what became of the baby was very widely known. The next morning there was found upon the leads of the Church of Allhallows a young child in a cradle, baby and cradle being entirely uninjured by the explosion that had lifted both to such a giddy height.

It was never learned who the child was, but she was adopted by a gentleman of the parish and grew to womanhood. She must surely all her life have had a peculiar interest in that church.—Sir Walter Besant's "London."

Misplaced Sympathy.

Sitting near the door in a subway car was a middle aged man reading a newspaper. At one station there got aboard this car a mother and her son, a small boy maybe four years old.

As those two came through the doorway and into the car the small boy, quite by accident, of course, hit the middle aged gentleman reading the newspaper a good, smart kick on the shin, causing the man to wince, while the boy's progress was checked for a moment by his thus kicking up against something.

The mother looked down, but she said nothing to the man. It was to the boy she spoke:

"Did you hurt yourself, dear?"

Which seemed a case of misplaced sympathy.

The City and the Child.

New York city—the length and breadth of Manhattan—and Boston, from the Fenway in three directions to the water front, are as unfit for a child to grow up in as the basement of a china store for a calf. There might be hay enough on such a floor for a calf, as there is doubtless air enough on a New York city street for a child. It is not the lack of things—not even air—in a city that renders life next to impossible there. It is rather the multitude of things. City life is a three ringed circus, with a continuous performance and interminable sideshows and peanuts and pink lemonade. It is jarred and jostled and trampled and crowded and hurried, and it is overstimulated, spindling and premature.—Suburban Life.

Echoes Made to Order.

Are you aware that it is possible to make echoes? It is, indeed, easier to make than to destroy them.

In the past men built their great temples and cathedrals with no thought of acoustics. Hence, when the preacher preached echoes rolled freely amid the groinings of the roof, down the rows of sculptured columns and round and round the nave.

With wires strung here and with tapestries spread there many of the echoes of the old world buildings have been obliterated. There are echo experts—builders acquainted with the science of acoustics, whose specialty is echoes' destruction. Sometimes their tasks are hard.

Today an architect takes thought of the echo. His building is constructed so as to exclude this intruder. And, knowing how to exclude it, he knows how to welcome it also.

Architects are frequently called upon in landscape work to put up summer houses and arrange rocks around them so as to create an echo there. And this they can satisfactorily do.—London Tit-Bits.

An Engine That Wouldn't Down.

A light American automobile was sold to a tea planter of upper Assam, a region in the Himalayan foothills with scarcely any good roads and a rainfall of from 300 to 500 inches a year. Six months after it was purchased the planter's native chauffeur drove it into a washout on the Cherapunji road during a freshet, and it went rolling 600 feet into the rain swollen river. A week's search failed to reveal any trace of machine or driver. At the end of the rainy season the remains of the machine were found several miles below the point where the accident had occurred. The wheels were gone and the body battered almost beyond recognition, and it was only on the score of sentiment that the planter had the pieces gathered up and taken home by coolies. A month later while on a tour of Assam I saw the salvaged engine and part of the transmission gear set up over a well and actually pumping water to the planter's bungalow on the top of a high ridge.—World's Work.

KNOW THE LOVE OF CHRIST

Balm For the Wounded Soul—"Come Unto Me"—"All Ye Weary and Heavy-Laden"—Divine Character Slandered—False Theology Driving Many Away From God—Predicted Hour of Trial Upon the Whole World—Thousands Falling Into Infidelity—Correct Understanding of Bible the Only Remedy.

[The matter under this heading is supplied by the Pastor Russell Lecture Bureau, who conduct the Brooklyn Tabernacle (unsectarian) Bible Studies, and who have arranged for its insertion.]

Philadelphia, Nov. 29.—Pastor Russell's theme for to-day was based upon the text, "That ye, being rooted and grounded in love, may be able to comprehend with all saints, what is the breadth, and length, and depth, and height: and to know the love of Christ, which passeth knowledge, that ye might be filled with all the fulness of God." (Ephesians 3:17-19.) He said in part:

The word Love is as warming and cheering correspondingly as the words Hatred and Selfishness are cold and discouraging. To some who all their lives have been immersed in a world of selfish frigidity, the real quality of the word Love is disallowed, disputed, claimed not to exist. Nevertheless, in every human being there is a craving for love, pure and sincere, even though expected never to be found.

For the majority inevitable reverses and failures take the place of anticipated successes. However strong, courageous, or even brutally fierce has been the warrior in the battle for bread, fame and glory, he craves ultimately, in his partial or complete disaster, the love which he has neither shown to others nor ever really expected that others would show to him. Whether he succumbs to financial disaster, to immorality, to narcotic stimulants or to disease—it matters not which—the balm of Gilead for the wounded soul is Love.

Sometimes this love comes from the partner of life—the wife or the husband; sometimes from parents or children, sisters or brothers. Thank God for these sometimes, and for the evidence they afford us of some measure of the image of God in humanity! But alas! in a vast majority of cases the failure, the disaster suffered, not only shatters hope, but cools friendship and destroys the semblance of love, which were merely emotional or perfunctory or admiration. At such a time the Message of the Love of God and Christ is a balm indeed, if it comes to the wounded and discouraged one.

It is our thought that particularly at this time such discouragement is being borne in upon large numbers of the human family. With the opening of the year many properly made resolutions to themselves, or to their friends or to the Lord, that they would live more noble lives, that they would be loyal to their Creator, to their companions, to themselves and to all of their interests and obligations. But as the year slipped away, it has brought trials, testings, and to many defeat and discouragement.

Now is the opportune moment to these discouraged ones to hear the voice of Him that speaketh from Heaven, telling them of His love, His sympathy and His willingness to aid all who will accept His assistance. Hearkening obediently to His voice, such may change the hour of defeat to the hour of victory by the Lord's assisting grace; just as, many a time in earthly warfare, victory has been wrested from defeat by the arrival of reinforcements at the opportune moment. The moment of discouragement, of loss of confidence in earthly progress, and of hopeless despair, is the opportune moment for the discouraged one to recognize his need of the Saviour, to cry unto Him and forthwith to receive the reinforcements from Him who has declared, "My strength is made perfect in your weakness"; and again, "Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy-laden, and I will give you rest. Take My yoke upon you, and learn of Me; for I am meek and lowly of heart; and ye shall find rest unto your souls."

But it requires faith to believe in a Saviour whom we have never seen, with whom we have not been acquainted, and especially One who has been so frequently misrepresented to us as having prepared from before the foundation of the world for our eternal torment. How can we assure ourselves of His Love? How may we know that He is not the cruel One that has been pictured to us? How may we know that He is a loving, generous, kind, faithful Friend—a God who delighteth not in our trouble, who rejoiceth not in iniquity, who rejoiceth not in eternally tormenting His creatures, nor even in destroying them eternally in the Second Death; but, conversely, in doing us good, in exhibiting towards all who will receive it His loving kindness and tender mercy, enabling them more and more, in the language of our text, to appreciate the height, the length, the breadth and the depth of His Love—a God who eventually will have all men saved (recovered) and brought to a knowledge of the Truth, to obedience and character-development, to life everlasting in the Paradise of God?

We see the difficulty of such; and it cries aloud to those of us who have learned the way of the Lord more perfectly, to let our light shine, to let all the world who are not completely blinded by the Adversary see the true character of our God and of the Son of God, to let them see the Scriptural presentation of the love, the mercy and the abundant provision arranged for in the Divine Purpose.

What the world needs is to get over its fright respecting the Lord and the future, and to see the Love of God and His gracious provision in Christ. This alone will win the heart, in the proper sense of the word. Fear may bring torment, but only the Truth can sanctify and happify—fulfil our Redeemer's prayer, "Sanctify them through Thy Truth; Thy Word is Truth."

The fright that is upon the world came from the Dark Ages and is echoed by all the creeds of orthodoxy, breeding in the hearts of men distrust, hatred of God and of the Bible, which is falsely accredited with being the fountain from which have been drawn these brackish waters of tradition represented by the creeds. It is time that every true Christian should take his stand for the right, the Truth, for the Word of God, for the exposition of the falsehoods which have slandered the Almighty Character, which have benumbed the zeal of the saints, and which have repelled the weary and heavy-laden as they looked for relief and balm in the direction of the Creator.

Is it not time that all ministers of the Gospel announced and manifested their freedom from the creedal misstatements of the Divine character and purpose, which in their hearts they have rejected long ago? It is well that all such should lift up their voice like a trumpet, and give no uncertain sound to the oppressed of the groaning creation, who are awakening and are hungering and thirsting for the Bread and the Water of Life, which alone can satisfy their longings.

This is the Message which we bear to the troubled and discouraged ones. Until they have time to take up with us a thorough study of the Scriptures and demonstrate the fact to themselves, they must take our word for it that the Justice, Wisdom, Love and Power of God are all enlisted on behalf of Adam and his race—to save us from our sins and from the dead and dying condition in which we find ourselves, mentally, morally and physically. Nor should it be very difficult to exercise this degree of faith. The Scriptures declare, "He that cometh unto God must believe that He is, and that He is a Rewarder of them that diligently seek Him." (Hebrews 11:6.) This involves a faith in the Justice of God that, having invited us, He will not spurn us when we respond to His call.

Moreover, it should appeal to every reasonable mind that God should be just and loving towards all. The thought of an angry, vindictive, torture-loving Creator should be outrageous to every reasoner. He could not be worshipped by every reverent mind as being unpardonable, demoniacal. No doubt this would have been so had it not been that the misconception on the subject, which the Apostle calls the "doctrine of devils," was imposed upon our minds from our very earliest childhood, and often by those who we properly loved and whose piety we reverenced, but who were themselves deceived.

It is high time that more reverential, more loving, theological views were seen by all mankind. It is the lack of this true theology that is driving many away from the Lord and His Word into vain philosophies and "science falsely so-called"—Higher Criticism, Christian Science, Evolution, Theosophy, etc., etc.—1 Timothy 6:20.
